WARNING TO NEW LONDON TO WATCH FOR TWO STATE FARM RUNAWAYS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 6.—The New London police have been requested to maintain a lookout for Marie Peppi, 23, and Julia Ambelucci, 16, inmates at the State Farm for Women, who made their escape from the institution last night. A search for the runaway girls was made here, but no trace of the pair was found.

An automobile, owned by Dr. William D. Cronin and operated by Arnold Meyers, 59 Potter street, and a machine owned and operated by William H. Guest, Cleveland street, were in collision this morning at the corner of State and Union streets. Neither car was seriously damaged.

George Jones, motorman in the employ of the Connecticut company, complained to the police early this morning that while his automobile was parked in front of the car barn on Montauk avenue, last night some thief stole a motor meter.

An automobile owned and driven by Percy S. Fowler, 298 Vauxhall street, and a car owned and driven by Glenville W. Goss, of Pennsylvania avenue, Niantic, collided this afternoon on Waller street. Both cars were damaged slightly.

The funeral of Bartholome Curran, former sexton of St. Joseph's church, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, the pastor, with Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, deacon, and Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger sub-deacon. The bearers were Michael Daly, Dennis Shea, Michael Corcoran, Thomas Kaneen, James Walsh and John Garvey. The committal prayers in St. Mary's cemetery were read by Fr. Fitzsimons.

Carmine Zozzoros has sold to Carlo Cecchinni a building lot on Ashcraft road extension.

Ernest E. Rogers has sold a house and lot, corner of Chapel street and Montauk avenue, to James N. Snow and Robert Tetreault.

James Ernesht Tuprner, a youth of 16, was taken into custody this afternoon, charged with the theft of a pair of trousers belonging to Manuel Gomes, a lodger at 66 Douglass street. The youth managed to enter the house undetected and going to Gomes' room stole the apparel.

Four youths who appear to be on the road to reform school were arrested this forenoon by Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh following repeated complaints of the boys gambling in a lot off Mountain avenue. The youths refuse to go to school although one of them is a student at Bulkeley High school, and instead of pursuing studies, they spend their time playing cards. This morning when a resident of the avenue lodged complaint the police took the four into custody. Two of the youths are recognized as criminals in the making for they have long been suspected of having committed several robberies, although the crimes could not be fastened upon the boys. They were turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and will be presented in the juvenile court the latter part of the week.

The real estate office of Clark B. Whaley, Groton park, Groton, was threatened with destruction by fire about 2.30 o'clock this afternoon when an oil stove, used for heating the place exploded. An alarm was rung in from Box 41, calling out the Pioneer Hose company, but the services of the firemen were not needed, as the blaze was extinguished before they reached the building. The damage caused was slight.

The authorities are attempting to locate relatives of Lester Fisher, a fisherman, whose death occurred Sunday at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital, where the patient had been ill several weeks with tuberculosis.

Liquor law violators paid the penalty in the police court, this morning, for three parties accused were fined $550 upon pleading guilty to the sale and keeping of a place reputed to be the source of liquor supply for those who sought to buy. Mary and Frank Gunther were fined $75 each for selling to John R. McLean, a so-called "stool pigeon," who was sent to secure the liquor by members of the police department. Gunther is a laborer on the docks and steamboats. He has a large family of children who range in ages from three to seventeen, so he sought to add to his income by selling hooch gin. McLean was a customer there, at a time within a few days, so he took the chance to turn a few dollars to his pockets by treacherously buying liquor and turning it over to the police. He succeeded and Gunther and his wife paid the penalty.

Helen Kalinowski, residing in East New London, was fined $400 on two charges, alleging sale and the keeping of a reputed liquor place. The woman is said to have been very fortunate in the business and to have amassed property. It was due to having sold to McLean that she got into trouble. He went to her home and there purchased synthetic gin and took it to the police who hired him. A warrant was issued and the place was searched where a few quarts of the contraband liquor was obtained and confiscated. Mrs. Kalinowski pleaded guilty and paid her fine, with costs. She said she would abandon the business.

Elmer Allen, a stone worker, was complained against by his wife who has suffered his abuse and neglect as long as her patience would permit her to endure them. Allen was charged with intoxication and with abusing his wife. He admitted that he was drunk when he was found, but said he was only fooling when he shied a bottle at his wife and maltreated her. Others in the police court when Allen was arraigned today represented him as being a competent worker, but such a slave to booze that he would not work more than half the time. A Groton man who had hired him and who desires his services now and again said that Allen was as competent half-drunk as many other workers are when free from liquor. His former employer represented that Allen would not work more than a third of the time. He offered to employ him at $6 a day at once, and said his services were worth that sum. Mrs. Allen represented that she needed the support of her husband for herself and her children, and for that reason she did not want him sent to jail. Judge Crandall fined Allen $10 for intoxication and ordered him confined to jail for ten days for breach of the peace. Then, with the understanding that Allen would turn to the right and follow the street called "Straight" the execution of judgment was suspended and Probation Officer Mansfield was directed to see that Allen supported his wife and children and that he abstained from intoxicating liquor.

Mike Cahill was fined $5 for a drunk. He was in the court a couple of days ago and then put up a sort of "what price glory" story that won him a suspended penalty. But e he hadn't had enough so he paid something like $14 for his latest drunk. He was told that the court could stand that sort of thing as long as he could.

George Sullivan, a youth who worked about printing offices in this city but who graduated to the street, was arraigned for drunkenness. The prosecutor expressed sympathy for the boy's parents and on the representation made, judgment was suspended in his case, as he said he was to go to another city for employment.

Eric Carlson went into Peck's restaurant yesterday and there, while drunk, made an exhibition of himself. That cost Eric $18.70. He said the price was too great to pay for what he had. His conclusion came too late, but he made up his mind that it was better late than never.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Tony Castanza, 9 Grand street, to be suspended following Castanza being convicted of the charge of reckless driving. Miss Ethel Markow, of Ocean Beach is spending several days with relatives in New York.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss E. Roberta Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cooper, of 199 Broad street, to Ensign Walter B. Richard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Richard, Bremerton, Wash. The wedding will take place next month.

Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Martin Finn, of 13 Thompson court. They were married at St. Patrick's cathedral by the assistant pastor, Rev. John Quinn. Edward Brogan formerly of New London, was best man and Miss Minnie Roche, of this city, attended the bride. Mr. Coyle is employed as a letter carrier in Groton.

The police automobile is to be withdrawn fro mservice this week in order to permit the car being given a thorough overhauling and painting. The machine has not been given mechanical attention since it was purchased nearly two years ago and the recent operation of the car reveals that the mechanism is in such condition that repairs are needed at once.

Patrolman George Perkins was unable to perform police duty tonight, being confined to his residence on West street by throat affection.

The New Haven police this evening requested the New London authorities to be on the alert for a Dodge sedan, stolen from the New Haven streets this evening. The car bears Connecticut license 11-981.

A youthful bicycle thief operated in Waterford this evening and the state police of Groton barracks, were requested to be on the lookout for the youthful thief. The state police notified the New London police of the theft of the cycle, and Patrolmen Edward Daniels and Thomas Lyden were sent to the New London-Waterford city line in the police automobile. The officers waited over a half hour, but the cycle thief did not put in an appearance.

About twenty-five followers of New London baseball were passengers tonight on the New London line steamer, Chester W. Chapin for New York from which city they will leave tomorrow morning for Pittsburgh to witness the opening game of the world's series between the Pirates and the Senators.

JOKER TRIES TO PUT OVER HOAX AT NEW MAYOR'S HOME

NEW LONDON, Oct. 6.—A practical joker adopted tactics last night, following the election by the city council of William E. Fox as mayor, that were intended to cause the fire department and police considerable trouble, but only in one instance was the originator of the joke successful. A short time after the meeting of the city council adjourned a telephone call was received at fire headquarters stating that a fire existed at 41 Squire street, which is the address of Mayor Fox. Deputy Chief Shipman dispatched the Pequot Independents and the Ockford hose company to the Fox residence, only to find that no fire existed, and that no telephone message had been sent from the Fox house to fire headquarters. A short time later the police were called upon the telephone with the information that a robbery had occurred at the Squire street address. Desk Sergeant Samuel Hick was on duty at the station at the time and when he inquired the name of the person sending in the message, and received no intelligent answer, no officer was sent to the Squire street house. Later another call was received at the police station and the person talking attempted to reprimand Sergeant Hick, for not sending an officer to Mayor Fox's house. However the party doing the telephoning got in return a censure that he will not froget right away.

Connecticut College

(Special to The Bulletin)

On Sunday evening, October 4, the girls of Branford House held a house party instead of their boat ride which was originally planned. The change was due to the weather conditions which were unfavorable for a sail. Cider and hot dogs were served.

K. S. Thomas spoke to the press board on Monday afternoon about the endowment drive which was being launched by the college for $60,000. This campaign is neither for beautifying the grounds, nor for any new college dormitory. It is simply to raise the pay of the various teachers. Alfred H. Hoffsommer is in charge of the campaign. It is planned to be carried out mainly by publicity through the various papers. Mr. Thomas, who has established his headquarters in Plant building in New London will be here for several months to aid in the general newspaper campaign. He is to have press board cooperate with him as much as possible. Several big features are planned of which announcements are to be made.

Mr. Weld has announced the girls who will comprise the Glee club of the college for 1925-26. There may be a few minor changes later on. The list for the present is: first sopranos, Marian L. Cokswell, of Derry, N. H.; Ruth Stevens, of Meriden; Madelyn A. Smith, of Montclair, N. J.; Marguerette Briggs, of Westfield, Mass.; Edna Somers, of Lynn, Mass.; Mildred Hammond-Knowlton of Watertown; the Misses Rau, Service, Macleod and Mitchell of the class of 1929. The second sopranos in the upper classes are: Grace L. Clark, of Springfield, Mass.; Ruth Mae Caslin, of Cleveland, Ohio; Helen Hood, of Somerville, Mass.; Ethel Woodruff, of Montpelier, Vermont; Mildred Dorman, of Philadelphia, Penn.; Caroline Whittemore, of Newton Center, Mass.; and the following freshmen; Misses M. The first amalgamation meeting of Connecticut colleges will take place in the gymnasium at seven o'clock on Thursday evening, October 8.

Reverend Brewster Eddy, a noted Chinese missionary, spoke on Monday morning at chapel services about the verse taken from the tenth chapter of Luke, "Go and do likewise." He said that there were three kinds of people in the world, the kind that beat up, the kind that pass up, and the kind that lift up; or in other words, the kind that say "What's yours is mine if I can get it; the second who say, "What's yours is yours and what's mine is mine, and the third kind that say, "What's mine is yours if you need it." It is the third kind that Americas should prove to be the uneducated and undeveloped countries. Many people say that America should not help the Chinese to educate themselves, since by teaching them we may educate them so that in time their advancement and civilization will pass ours. This is a selfish viewpoint, for it is by helping and aiding others that we help the world as well as ourselves in maintaining the high standard which we maintain.

The physical education department has finished taking the posture tests of the four classes and has begun its instructions preparatory to class work. First meetings on the tennis and hockey fields will take place on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Y. M. C. A. OPENS SHOP MEETINGS FOR SEASON

Representatives of the local Y. M. C. A. held the first shop meeting of the season Tuesday noon at the plant of the Richmond Radiator company. There was a fine groun of the employes present and all listened with marked interest to the address by Rev. H. Ricketts, who announced his topic as "Encouragement," and, his text as follows, 'Fear not little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." Mr. Ricketts said that Jesus was talking to a little company of folks who had shown to him their loyalty, he was speaking to the large throng who cared little for him but to those who might be called the inner circle. He promised them a kingdom; not a literal kingdom to rule as earthly kings have, but he referred to his kingdom being set up in the heart. He had warm sympathy for the "little flock." When ones sympathy is challenged it calls out his affection. We all know how it is with a mother and her babe so helpless that it demands her sympathy and so it gains her affection; it was so with Jesus and it is so with the great Heavenly Father. He has made certain promises to us and has never broken a single promise, therefore we have no need to worry as so many of us do. To worry about to-morrow is not pleasing to God. Just think of it he has promised us a kingdom if we are true to him, and the kind of a kingdom he gives his children is a wonderful gift. Let us say with earnestness, 'thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift."

FINES ARE IMPOSED IN TWO AUTOMOBILE CASES

A fine of $200 was imposed in the city court Tuesday morning by Judge Arthur F. Libby upon Louis J. Paquette, Taftville constable, upon the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Paquette paid his fine. No jail sentence was given in the case.

Pleading guilty to evading responsibility and to not having an operator's license Stanley Besade, 20, of this city, was fined $100 and costs and given a suspended 30 day jail sentence. The fine was $50 on each count with the court costs added.

In the case of one man, charged with intoxication, he was given a continuance of 30 days so that he may have an opportunity to raise his fine of $5 and costs, totaling $14.50.

Bills For City Tax

Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson is sending out the bills for the city tax of 1925. The rate is 24 mills. Additions are made to taxes that are not paid by Nov. 10. There may or may not be some thought of the psychological effect in sending them out the day after rather than the day before election.

Presented Silk Umbrella

Mrs. William Sharkey recently entertained about twenty friends at a party at her home, 229 Prospect street. There were Victrola selections and cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Sharkey assisted by Miss Nellie Gleason, Mrs. S. J. Fahey and Mrs. Walter Carrington. During the evening Mrs. Sharkey presented Miss Julia Wright a beautiful silk umbrella.

BARBER SHOP CHAIR FOUND ON FIRE FROM SOME UNKNOWN CAUSE

In some unknown manner the upholstering in one of the barber chairs at the Hudson Tube barber shop, No. 126 West Main street, blazed up shortly after 11.15 o'clock Tuesday night. A pedestrian passing the shop noticed smoke coming from the building and running across the street pulled in box 14. The department made a quick response and in a minute or two the firemen had gained entrance to the shop and carried the blazing cushions to the street. The remainder of the blaze was extinguished with a small quantity of water from the sink in the shop. The damage to the chair comprised the only damage in the shop. The recall quickly followed the bell alarm.

The cause of the fire is a mystery. Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft found a rear door unsecured and it is thought possible that someone may have gained entrance to the barber shop with intentions of burglary and while groping around in the dark dropped sparks from a cigarette or cigar onto the upholstering of the chair setting it on fire. Another theory advanced is that a customer may have dropped a spark from a cigarette in the chair seat and that it smouldered for some time before it blazed up. Peter Marino, proprietor of the store could not be located Tuesday night.

LEARNS OF TRAGIC DEATH OF TWO FRIENDS

Thomas H. Bacheler, of Norwich Town received word this week of the tragic deaths of Mrs. William B. Young, 54, and her daughter, Miss Edna Young, 19, of Chicago, Ill., as the result of an automobile accident Saturday evening, September 19th, while en route to Hart, Michigan, to visit Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Patterson, friends of Mr. Bacheler. Mrs. Patterson is a daughter of Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Young and Edna were killed almost instantly when their machine driven by Joseph Suthki, 24, of Chicago, collided with a guy wire which was sagging across trunk line M-11, near Montague, Muskegon county, Mich. Suthki escaped with a minor cut on the forehead when the top of the machine, a sedan, was torn away as it struck the wire, at about 80 miles an hour. The tragedy blasted a romance which was to have culminated next month in the marriage of Miss Young and Suthki. The sagging wire caught the heads of the two women who were on the back seat of the machine. The neck of the girl was broken, while the mother died of a fractured skull. The wire had been left hanging across the road following an accident in which the machine driven by Albert Wainwright a youth of Muskegon Heights skidded on the wet pavement and struck a wooden brace attached to the side of the telephone pole. The brace was knocked out of place by the blow as young Wainwright blinded by the lights of another machine stopped at the side of the road and noticing that other automobile coming toward him from the rear, attempted to signal its driver to stop. Apparently Suthki failed to notice his signals and unconsciously drove into the obstruction.

The bodies of the two women were removed to the mortuary at Whitehall, and later sent to Chicago for burial.

Following an investigation by Coroner Tiede Clock, he asserted no inquest would be necessary as the accident in his opinion was unavoidable. The wrecked car was driven to Hart by Mr. Suthki, who notified Mr. and Mrs. Patterson of the accident. They left immediately for Muskegon in Mr. Patterson's car and accompanied the bodies to Chicago.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Young is survived by her husband and two sons.

When residing in the west, Mr. Bacheler was intimately friendly with the Patterson family, having been a guest at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Patterson on his last visit there. Mr. Patterson is the youngest of twelve children.

EXECUTIVE BENTON RETURNS FROM SCOUT CONFERENCE

The New England Biennial Conference of Scout executives was held this year at Camp Shanty, Lake Fairlee, Vermont, and was attended by 52 executives from practically all the first class councils of the New England states.

Scout Executive F. A. Benton, who has just returned from the conference, reports an instructive and educational programme during the five days meeting. Business policies, leadership, camping, religious training, Scout program, younger and older boy programmes, reading, the scout master, troop committee, new kinks in camp, training, etc., getting the council organization to function, and technicals Scouting were some of the many questions and problems discussed.

The various executives assigned to these subjects led the discussions which were afterward thrown open to all and thoroughly threshed out. Mornings and evenings were fully taken up with conference work, while the afternoons were taken up with out door activities. Hiking over the beautiful hills of Vermont, boating, fishing, tennis, horseback riding, archery and other athletic sports kept the men in health and happiness for the serious work of the conference.

Regional Executive Harold B. Converse of Boston and his staff of three men planned the work, and Chief James E. West, Ray O. Wyland and Arthur A. Schuck of national headquarters at New York were present with instructive and inspiring addresses. Robert S. Lisk of Boston, chairman of the regional camp committee, was also there.

The presentation of the Community Chest plan was ably presented and strongly recommended by Arthur A. Schuck, headquarters financial expert. He advocated the chest plan because it coordinates the social agencies of a community, eliminates duplication of effort and activity, and stimulates the participation of a greater number of people in financial support. In 1924 28 per cent. of the Scout councils were in the Community Chest; in 1925 over 34 per cent. were included.

Chief Scout Executive James E West made several forceful addresses and particularly emphasized the following: the scout executive should be educated; he should be well read; he should bring intelligent knowledge to the handling of all problems; he occupies a dignified and educational position in his community and ranks equally with the superintendent of schools; he should be trained technically; he should read the newspapers and summaries of the world's doings, books, and attend university courses where possible; he is responsible only to his executive board, and finally, he should have "a smile on the face, a thank you on the tongue, and a kindness in the heart."

Ray O. Wyland, of the national office, in charge of church relationship, comparatively a new man, is developing and securing a wonderful response from the ministry, and all church denominations throughout the country, having covered over 13,000 miles of itinerary the past year, and meeting thousands of church men and religious bodies. Mr. Wyland represents a type of man of fine spiritual fibre and scouting owes much to his enlistment of the clergy of the country in its cause. In citing the power of nature upon man's spiritual being, he told the story of the poet who stood with his back to one of the giant trees of California, trees that stood there before the birth of Christ "What message, Oh giant Sequoia, would you have me convey to Man?" Hymn, "Fling out the Banner." Address, "Peter Pan in Porto Rico," Mrs. Samuel Lane Loomis. Treasury records in eastern district. Mrs. J. Fulton Ferguson. Prayer, Miss Lydia Hartig. Luncheon.

As he listened the great tree seemed to say, "All storms pass." His address at the close of the conference was masterly.

Harold B. Converse, regional director, with his geniality, and broad knowledge of men, assisted by his loyal staff of Messrs. Severance, MacKellar, and Abbott made the conference a most successful session for Region 1.

The scout executives from Chief West down appeared in scout uniform during the week. Scout Executive Arthur L. Gemme of Woonsocket accompanied the Norwich executive to Vermont, joining him at Worcester.

Mr. Wyland set up an archery range on the golf links and appointed Mr. Benton to instruct the men in archery during the recreation periods. Mr. Benton's score being the highest made during the week gained him the name of the "Robin Hood of New England."

It was decided to leave the matter in the hands of Governor Trumbull, who will confer with the state board of education.

HIGHWAY HEARING SET FOR CENTRAL VILLAGE

Automobile drivers and others interested in highway improvements will assemble this (Wednesday) afternoon at 2:30 at the town hall in Central Village when a public hearing is to be held by State Highway Commissioner John A Macdonald on the proposed relocation of the Norwich-Putnam highway. As has ben stated through the press, the plan which is sponsored by Norwich Council No. 309, U. C. T., and backed by civic organizations throughout eastern Connecticut, proposed to route the present road through Jewett City around that borough and to establish a new through route over the Green Hollow road above Plainfield to Danielson.

These improvements will do away with the bad S curve over the overhead railroad bridge, north of the borough of Jewett City and will eliminate bad curves and railroad crossings between Jewett City and Danielson.

State Highway Commissioner Macdonald and his staff of engineers will be present at the hearing which it is expected will have a large attendance of eastern Connecticut drivers and others who have occasion to use the highway.

Mrs. Lois Gates Bradley of Stonington was killed and her daughter, Mrs. Anna Bradley Brown, also of Stonington is a patient in St John's hospital, Lowell, Mass., as the result of an automobile accident which occurred in Billerica, Mass., late Monday afternoon. The machine which was driven by Mrs. Brown skidded on wet leaves, crashed into a wooden fence by the roadside, and turned over. Frederick Brown, 8, son of Mrs. Brown who had been a cripple since infancy, and who was strapped on a board, escaped injury. Mrs. Bradley was the wife of Edward E. Mrs. Bradley was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist, who could room in his car for only one. Mrs. Brown pleaded with him to rush her mother, who was unconscious to the hospital for treatment saying she would wait until someone else came along.

Mrs. Brown was jammed against the driving wheel and was suffering considerable pain, when it was suggested that she first be temporary relieved from the position she was in she again urged that her mother be given first consideration.

Later Captain George B. Palmer, of the Lowell police force who was driving home from East Cambridge court with two Lowell officers came along and extracted Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Bradley was the daughter of the late Deacon and A. L. and Emeline Cutler Gates of Stonington. Doctors, too, show a decided preference for Heckers' Cream Farina. As Dieticians they are enthusiastic over its easy digestibility and its delicate texture.

Yet seldom is such healthful food so appetizing. Nothing but the hearts of wheat. Concealed in its creamy smoothness is a natural grain flavor that makes this cereal an ever-welcome favorite the year round.

AMERICAN UNION LABOR NOT PREY TO COMMUNISTS

President Green of the A. F. of L. Frankly Informs Arthur A. Purcell, Member of British Parliament, in Answer to Request That American Labor Establish Closer Relations With the Organized Workers of Russia—Working People of America Too Hard Headed to Be Deceived by a Policy That Seeks to Capture and Destroy Their Organization.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 7—An appeal to American labor by Arthur A. Purcell, member of the British parliament, to establish close relations with the organized workers of Russia was spurned in dramatic fashion today by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor at its annual convention.

Mr. Purcell, who is president of the International Federation of Trades Unions and a fraternal delegate of the British Trades Union Congress, had addressed the delegates urging solidarity among the toilers of the world. After telling of his recent visit to Russia and his study of industrial conditions there, he made his appeal.

His words were greeted with silence, but he received perfunctory applause at the conclusion of his address when he complimented American labor.

President Green then arose and said in reply:

"I want to be frank and kindly in all I say, but we in America know something of the teachings of communism and the control the communist party exises over the so-called Russian ernationale.

"We know that influence emanating from Moscow is seeking, as it has always sought, not to cooperate with us but to capture us. They are frank in their declarations they call the officers and representatives of the American labor movement, fakers, crooks and scabs. They declare frankly that they do not believe in collective bargaining. They do not see in any strike an opportunity to increase wages, to shorten hours, to improve the condition of the employment of workers, but they see in every strike an opportunity for revolution.

"Well the working people of America are very hard headed, experienced people; they are not easily led by these strange utterances * * *. The trade union education league here in America, which is a creature of the communist party, frankly announces that its policy is to bore within the labor movement, to destroy it and substitute for our philosophy the philosophy of communism.

"We are not ready to accept that, and we wish that our friend who has so kindly offered such frank suggestions might take back to the Russian red internationale this message: That the American labor movement will not affiliate with an organization that preaches that doctrine."

Mr. Green swung his fist vigorously and his powerful voice reached all parts of the hall. The delegates rose as one, stamped their feet and yelled their approval.

"I think I may be thus frank," continued Mr. Green after the demonstration had died down, "and I am sure that the fraternal delegates will appreciate fully and completely the spirit of trade unionism in which and through which I have made this statement. We want them to go back fully informed; we don't want them to be misled.

"We long, we yearn for the opportunity to promote peace and good will throughout the world. * * * We are willing to join in those constructive movements that may have been established for the purpose of advancing in a practical way the economic and political welfare of all the peoples throughout the world. But when we are assailed we will stand as immovable as the rock of Gibraltar, for there are some things in which we believe firmly and conscientiously and there are some things for which American trade unionists have given their lives."

Mr. Green received another ovation when he concluded.

Before making his appeal, Mr. Purcell said that the "times we live in are too big, too fraught with fate, to permit little prejudices barring the way to human relationships. * * * The Russian people are a great people—strong, patient, hard working and clever. These people are building up a new economy and a new life. * * * I say to you, workers of American, have much to learn from Russia, we must not be afraid of new ideas. It has often struck me that while the Americans are the most advanced—the most receptive—in ideas concerning mechanical invention and business organization, they have been slow in accepting new social and political ideas.

"Just as the British trades unions have sent delegations to Russia, so I hope and trust that the American Federation of Labor will do the same."

The convention today received 84 resolutions of a widely varied character. Among them was one from the Chicago Bank Employes, association, calling for recognition of soviet Russia by the United States. Others proposed that the federation establish a radio broadcasting station at Washington and the erection of a memorial to labor at the Episcopal cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

Another resolution would pledge the assistance to the bakery workers in their contest with the Ward Baking company. A proposal also was made to abolish the United States bureau of efficiency.

For the first time in recent years no resolution was offered favoring beer and light wines.

A proposal also was made calling for a congressional investigation of the textile industry to determine the influence of the present tariff schedule upon conditions of labor and another requested assistance of unions in their strike with the American Thread Company, of Willimantic, Ct.

The Minnesota State Federation of Labor introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the employment of Canadian workers in violation of the immigration laws of the United States. The seamen's delegation protested the adoption of an international seamen's code by the league of nations "which would perpetuate involuntary servitude for seamen."

Another resolution introduced by the seamen's delegation would disapprove the affiliation of the United States with the world court. The Central Labor council of Portland, Oregon, urged the calling of a world-wide conference in Washington in the spring of 1926 for the purpose of disarmament.

The International Ladies Garment Workers sent in a resolution calling for "a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti, convicted of murder in the first degree by a biased jury under the instructions of a prejudiced judge in Massachusetts."

The convention adopted a resolution calling for organization work in North Carolina, particularly in the textile trades.

FIVE INDICTMENTS FOR MURDER IN CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7—Justice moved speedily today when five men were arrested, indicted and held without bail in connection with the murder of James Fernau. Fernau, a night watchman, was shot by bandits who stole $1500 from the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway carbarns at Waltham early Sunday morning.

The men were arrested at their homes in Allston and Brighton districts of Boston and in Brookline early in the day. Instead of being taken to Waltham for a hearing in the district court they were brought to the East Cambridge jail. The grand jury already in session, which has been investigating recent holdups in this vicinity, promptly indicted Joan J. Devereaux, Edward J. Heinlein, Peter King, and John J. McLaughlin for murder. Joseph H. Bennett was indicted as an accessory.

Late today, the men were arraigned in the superior court. All pleaded not guilty and were held without bail. District Attorney Reading said that he was ready to put them on trial at the earliest possible day under the law, but that it would require about 21 days to impanel a special jury.

State police officers found at the homes of Devereaux, Heinlein and Bennett about $300 in silver and small bills, part of it enclosed in Middlesex and Boston wrappers. All of the men have police records.

AN ACETYLENE TANK ON FREIGHT VESSEL EXPLODED

BORDEAUX, France, Oct. 7—The explosion of an acetylene tank on a freight vessel in the harbor here today gave rise to reports that a cargo of bombs had been detonated while awaiting shipment to Morocco.

The first reports mentioned a large number of casualties, but late this afternoon it was stated that only four workmen had been injured.

Two of the injured men died later.

The explosion occurred two hours before the scheduled embarkation of troops for Morocco on ships nearby, and this fact probably averted a heavier loss of life.

The freighter S. Priest of 1,497 tons, on which the explosion occurred, suffered heavy damage.

5,000 Ton Steamsh... Stolen and Recovered

Removed From Its Pier in Brooklyn and Found at a Pier in North River, Manhattan.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—A chapter, unique even in the recent orgy of large scale thefts and robberies in New York, was written today in the theft and subsequent recovery of a 5,000 ton steamship. It was stolen from its pier in Brooklyn and recovered at a pier in the North River, at the foot of 37th street, Manhattan. As the ship was found abandoned, the identity of the ambitious thieves is unknown.

The vessel was the steamship General George W. Goethals, former shipping board vessel, owned by the Black Star navigation and trading company of which Marcus Garvey, self styled "president of the African republic" was the head. Since June the steamer has been in the custody of U. S. marshals, and is listed for sale next Friday to satisfy a libel of about $7,500 for wages due the crew.

U. S. Marshal August Ferrand, who had custody of the General Goethals, reported that on Saturday he left the vessel at a drydock pier for a short trip ashore. When he returned his ship was gone.

An armed revenue cutter sent to hunt up the lost ship found the General Goethals tied up to a pier in North river. Indications were that it had been moved under its own power.

Four tugs and the revenue cutter brought the truant back to Brooklyn, and authorities are investigating the unauthorized voyage.

POLITICS IS PERMEATING THE LEGION CONVENTION

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Behind the scenes the American legion's national convention was a seething cauldron of politics and policy today.

In the open session all would have been perfunctory, but for a last minute objection which sent the report of the world peace committee to the resolutions committee for amendment.

The only business perfected was selection of Philadelphia for the 1926 convention and the awarding of the 1927 meeting to Paris. The remainder of the time was devoted to addresses by army and navy officers and messages from the American Red Cross and Knights of Columbus.

The aeronautical committee fought heatedly all day over whether to recommend endorsement of Colonel William Mitchell, caustic critic of the nation's aerial defense. A resolution in which Mitchell's name was not mentioned, although one point he had urged, reorganization of the national defense under one cabinet officer with sub-divisions of equal importance for land, sea and air, was finally adopted. It was the product of the pen of Reed Landis, America's second war ace and son of Kenesaw Mountain Landis. It was upon that point that the all-day fight was centered. No other change was made in the proposed resolution as drawn last Monday.

The committee's action did not dispose of the Mitchell matter, which from the first day of the legionnaire's gathering had been the subject of Paramount interest. According to many expression, the turn it takes upon the floor of the convention tomorrow depends on the selection of a national commander to succeed James A. Drain.

Tonight there did not seem to be much probability of a minority report, but, it was predicted freely, that the national commander's query, "is there any discussion" before putting the vote would unleash a storm of fiery debate.

The consensus from Mitchellites seemed to be that not all that Colonel Mitchell has said should be recommended, but that he should be praised by name for bringing to the American people an awakening as to actual conditions in the air service.

The world peace report recommended that the legion espouse support for the world court with the Harding reservations and that the league of nations be made a subject for one year's study by the American legion posts.

As altered by the resolutions committee for presentation to the convention tomorrow the report will ask legion sanction of adherence to the police of "an international court of justice," but without specifying. Otherwise it was left as reported today.

Tonight it was agreed in all quarters that the fight for national commander would shape itself after midnight tomorrow. Numerous states have refrained from caucusing and but few have announced support, and even then some only as "feelers" for any candidate.

Three avowed candidates are in the field, but none with nearly enough apparent strength to win. They are: Howard P. Savage of Chicago, Edward Spafford of New York, and John McQuigg of East Cleveland, Ohio.

"Fighting Bill" Donovan of Buffalo, N. Y., was mentioned by some delegates as a "dark horse."

Legion and city authorities decided today that rowdyism by followers of the convention had reached such a point that detailing of a provost guard of one man from each state delegation was necessary. Mathew D. Hartigan Chicago municipal judge, was appointed provost marshal. The authorities were agreed that the legionnaires had been orderly, but expressed determination to break up street and hotel lobby crap games and whiskey drinking by outsiders, which has been much in evidence.

The provost guard will co-operate with the Omaha police. Legionnaires arrested will be turned over to their state delegations, and, in the flagrant cases, sent home. Outsiders will be handed over to the police.

CROWDS AT WAY STATIONS GREET PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 7—Enthusiastic crowds, the largest that have greeted him at way stations on his Omaha trip, were out to welcome President Coolidge tonight at several points in southern Ohio as his train forged its way toward the capital which will be reached tomorrow morning.

At Chillicothe, a throng gathered around the observation platform during a five minute stop, and while the president came out to smile and acknowledge to cheers, he adhered to his rule not to make rear platform speeches.

OPINONS OF MITCHELL'S PLAN GIVEN PRESIDENT'S AIR BOARD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Col William Mitchell's plan for a sweeping reorganization in the nation's air defense alternately was praised and denounced today before the President's air board. Two witnesses favored the plan, two opposed it and one said it "ought to work" but he didn't believe it would."

After sitting for eight hours, the board recessed until Monday, when Representative Martin B. Madden, chairman of the house appropriations committee, will testify on army and navy aviation appropriations. Board members will go by airplane tomorrow to attend the Pulitzer air races at Mitchell field, New York.

Testimony today covered the widest ranges of subjects of any single session since the hearing began.

Captain James T. Moore, of the Marine Corps, declared many junior naval officers were hesitant to give personal views to investigating bodies despite their assertions to the contrary.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, Naval air chief urged that the Shenandoah be replaced with a dirigible three-times its size, and declared the navy "must not be only the treaty navy, but have its full quota of aviations" as well.

He denied without mentioning Col. Mitchell by name, his charges that "amateur bingling" by non-flying naval officers was responsible for the Shenandoah disaster, failure of the Hawaiian flight and the inability of navy planes with the MacMillan Arctic expedition to accomplish their purpose. He also opposed establishment of a department of national defense or a separate air corps in the navy.

Major Thomas Milling, stationed at McCook field, Dayton, Ohio, who was called at Mitchell's request, endorsed the colonel's national defense department proposal. He testified at some length, amplifying a prepared statement by exhibiting several charts designed to outline the functions of army, navy and air forces under the proposed defense system.

Rear Admiral Charles E. Hughes, commander of the battle fleet, opposed a separate naval air corps, but made clear he did not "belittle the airplane," which he asserted was a "most important" arm of the navy, but one "I want under by command and loyal to me."

The City of Rome docked here tonight after completing her first round trip since the accident and members of her crew including Commander John R. Diehl, will testify at a public hearing tomorrow.

HEAVY SENTENCES FOR RUM RUNNING AND PERJURY

BRIDGEPORT, Oct 7—Convicting them of perjury, Judge John J. Walsh imposed two of the heaviest sentences meted out in recent years in the criminal court of common pleas today upon two self-confessed rum runners who asserted in court yesterday that, in the Stamford city court, they "didn't have a chance," having been, they alleged, abused and threatened by Prosecuting Attorney Max Speike, who victimized them with false promises of leniency.

Patrick Shannon, Brooklyn, driver of the truck carrying 250 cases of "Sandy MacDonald" Scotch whiskey from St. Pierre, was sent to jail for nine months and fined $500. A sentence of six months was given William Major, Brooklyn, his helper, who was likewise fined $250.

LUTHER AND BRIAND HOLD MEETING OF CONCILIATION

German Chancellar and French Foreign Minister Had a Frank Talk on European Problems As a Whole—Both Statesmen Expressed a Determination to Do Everything Humanly Possible to Banish the Franco-German War Spectre—Biggest Single Event That Has Occurred Since the Opening of the Security Conference at Locarno.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Not only peace now, but peace for all time is Germany's desire, The German chancellor, Dr. Luther, informed M. Briand, the French foreign minister today in a private consultation of the two statesmen which stands out conspicuously as the biggest single event since the opening of the security conference.

The two leaders stole quietly away from Locarno and, meeting at a secluded spot on the shore of Lake Maggiore, had a frank talk on European problems as a whole, and especially how best to consolidate the peace of Europe.

This meeting of conciliation marked by an expression of the determination of both statesmen to do everything humanly possible to banish the Franco-German war spectre, has injected a new ray of optimism into the political atmosphere, despite the fact that it did not result in the fashioning of a formula where France can guarantee, in a special way, the territorial integrity of Poland and Czechoslovakia, her allies.

That problem will require a consultation of the cabinets at Paris and Berlin, for France and Germany will find it difficult yielding from their original position without the support of their home governments and home parliaments.

The conference itself, which met for only an hour today, achieved no substantial progress. The spokesmen of the various delegations admitted this, but they qualified in with the declaration that fresh suggestions were forthcoming concerning the necessity of a clear cut understanding that compulsory arbitration must be the guiding principle of the Rhine pact. This is what the allies have been contending for, and the jurists were asked to frame new articles dealing with this subject. Presumably these articles will be discussed at the plenary session tomorrow, which is fixed for 2:30 p. m.

Compulsory arbitration is a feature of the Geneva peace protocol, whose fundamental principles the French are anxious to keep to the fore infinitely and which many other nations at the recent league assembly also approved as the only sure safe-guard of world peace.

Locarno, therefore, like Geneva, appears headed on the road where he who refuses to arbitrate and commits warlike acts will be hailed as an aggressor and punished.

Czechoslovakia, through her foreign minister, Edouard Benes, arrived on the scene today. Dr. Benes immediately conferred with Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, and M. Briand, who put him in touch with the developments.

"I am optimistic," said the Czechoslovak minister to the newspaper correspondents of his country as he emerged from these conferences.

Gustav Stresemann's condition improved today. The drop in his temperature and the disappearance of the swelling in his throat, aided by sunshine and balmy air, put him in such splendid humor that, talking in an animated manner, he stopped at a tea shop and consumed three fancy cakes.

ONE FAIRFIELD CONSTABLE BEATEN BY EX-CONSTABLE

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 7 (AP)—When a man is engrossed in the intricacies of pinochle the last thing in the world to hear is a solo on the harmonica.

At the home of Constable Emil Hurtzeiler in Fairfield last June 29 there was a pinochle party. Outside a group of bobbleehoys, with no proper regard for the importance of pinochle, rendered a few selections on harmonicas.

Hurtzeier went outside, raised his voice and demanded they have done with their concert.

The pseudo-musical youths fled. But only for a time. No sooner had the game been resumed when their disturbing "music" resounded.

Again Hurtzeier went outside. The youths fled a second time, but just then along came Thomas Walsh, 26, Fairfield. Walsh was a constable once himself. He informed Constable Hurtzeier that not within the whole confines of Fairfield was there a constable capable of making him go home. Walsh temporarily proved his point with one constable. Constable Hurtzeier went to a physician and had sundry injuries dressed and, later, Walsh was arrested.

In the Fairfield town court he was convicted of assault and sentenced to jail for five days. Judge John J. Walsh, in the criminal court of common pleas this afternoon, imposed a fine of $150.

JAIL BREAKER BENNETT DIES OF BULLET WOUND

EVERETT, Mass., Oct. 7.—(AP)—James E. Bennett, who broke jail in two states while held on automobile and burglary charges, died in the Whidden hospital here tonight from a bullet wound sustained in a pistol duel with a police officer on September 28. Patrolman Felix Dumas, who fired the shot that wounded Bennett, was the first to volunteer last night when a blood transfusion was found necessary. The blood of another man Jesse Blythe, was used after tests had been made. Bennett's death followed another operation today.

Bennett, who was only 22 years old, had thrice escaped from custody after arrests for automobile and fur thefts in Massachusetts and automobile theft in Maine. He had been last imprisoned at the Thomaston State prison in Maine after a running gun battle with the police. He escaped in April of this year and was not apprehended until his duel with Patrolman Dumas nine days ago. His identity was discovered in the hospital.

Dumas, going to investigate a report that an automobile had been stolen, found Bennett, disguised as a woman, sitting with his sister and a man in the machine. Bennett's wig fell off, and he and the man fled when they alighted from the car. The officer fired twice in the air and then Bennett whirled about and returned the fire. Dumas' next shot struck Bennett in the abdomen.

FINED $1,500 FOR FILING SHORT INCOME TAX RETURNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—Jacob Busch, former Broadway cutlery dealer, was fined $1500 on federal court today for perjury and filing income tax returns which were $232,990 short of the amount assessable on his income for 1921 and 1922. After an investigation by the government, a fine of $116,495 was added to the tax by internal revenue officials. Busch paid $160,000 claiming he was unable to pay the rest. Subsequently he was indicted by a federal grand jury.

PRESIDENT CROWLEY IS GUIDING FLEET CORP.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Fleet Corporation was guided for the first time today by its new president, Elmer E. Crowley, who arrived from New York and took the oath of office in succession to Leigh C. Palmer, who was removed by the Shipping Board yesterday.

Mr. Crowley discussed conditions with members of the board but indicated it probably would be several days before he would be in a position to make any announcement concerning administrative plans.

Meanwhile another important vacancy developed in the corporation executive personnel, Rear Admiral Hutchinson I. Cone, retired, one of Mr. Palmer's right hand men resigning as vice-president and general manager in protest against the board's recent actions. He said he could not continue in the office with the board "defying" President Coolidge by taking over the fleet corporation powers and discharging Mr. Palmer without waiting for the report on the shipping situation that H. G. Dalton of Cleveland has been asked by Mr. Coolidge to make.

While some other resignations may be forced, it has been indicated that the board probably will take no step along this line until it receives next week a report on revision of personnel and salaries from a special committee of its own membership. The office of vice-president in charge of finance, held by Sidney Henry who was removed yesterday, probably will not be filled as members of the board regard the duties as insufficient to require a special officer.

COL. MITCHELL TO APPEAR BEFORE NAVAL COURT TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(A. P.)—Colonel William Mitchell was ordered today to appear tomorrow before the naval court of inquiry in the Shenandoah disaster.

The order was issued by Adjutant General Robert C. Davis at the request of the naval court which desires to question the former assistant chief of the army air service concerning charges he made against the navy department in connection with the wrecking of the airship in the Ohio storm last month.

Because of these charges, Colonel Mitchell now faces possible court martial proceedings. In view of this, Representative Reid of Illinois, counsel for the armby officer, when first advised that his client had been summoned before the court, said he would advise the colonel to appear.

Informed of this statement, Captain Paul Foley, judge advocate of the court, took under advisement the matter of issuing a formal subpoena for the army flier, but he was advised by General Davis that this would be unnecessary since the colonel would be obliged to obey the army order for his appearance.

Col. Mitchell probably will be the only witness heard tomorrow at the reopening of the Shenandoah inquiry, which was started late last month at Lakehurst and adjourned last Monday to Washington. Many other witnesses will be summoned later.

UNABLE TO FIND TRACE OF MISSING AIR MAIL PILOT

CLARION, Pa., Oct. 7.—(A. P.)—Thousands of searchers, including 350 Pennsylvania National Guardsmen volunteers and a dozen airmen who combed a wide range of territory today in the search for Charles Ames missing air mail pilot, returned to Clarion tonight without having found any trace of the birdman, who disappeared while flying over this region six days ago.

Convinced that Ames' plane fell somewhere in the district west of this city, Superintendent Carl F. Egge, of the air mail service, said that the hunt would continue until the missing pilot's fate was determined.

The searchers since early today had combed thoroughly a tract of country about 7 miles wide and 22 miles long.

The hunt was confined to the west of Clarion, and tomorrow Superintendent Egge announced, he will order the searchers further west.

WILLIMANTIC

Rev. Alexander W. Abott, of Norwich, addressed the Woman's club here on the subject, "The American Mind" at the last afternoon meeting of the organization. Rev. Mr Abbott declared our actions are the results of our thinking, as individuals and a nation. In dealing with the mind subject Dr. Abbott based his talk on the three paramount factors of thought and its effects; the efforts and effects of superior minds to elevate to higher levels; the effects of inferior forces which tend to drag down to lower levles and the average mentality which experiences the influence of both these forces and falls in between. Intellects such as Emerson, Ethan Allen, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, Walt Whitman and Abraham Lincoln were pointed out as examples of the superior mind. He probed deeply into the functioning of the average mind. In conclusion Rev. Mr. Abbott said: Out of confusion can come insight and peace, if we link our thinking with righteous influences and the contemplation of beauty and truth, recognizing the power of infinite to influence, correct and control."

The trouble started when Mrs. Wawer questioned the plaintiff about this state of affairs. She called Mrs. Cyerniak names and the two women grappled. They fell in a clinch and in the melee Mrs. Cyerniak struck her head against a stone. Mrs. Cyerniak said that the Wawer woman started the trouble by grabbing her dress and throwing her down and then striking her. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OPENS NEW SEASON WITH A WHIRL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 7—That the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce is going over the top in its activities this year was indicated by the high pitch of enthusiasm which prevailed at the opening meeting of the season, held Tuesday night. The new president A. Linn Weatherhead, was greeted with applause as he inaugurated his term as presiding officer. He turned the meeting over to Judge Otto B. Robinson, chairman of the entertainment committee, who outlined the policies of that body and then called on President Weatherhead to give his message. In reviewing the work of the chamber relative to securing a paid secretary, the president pointed out that at present the organization was unable to support a secretary, nor were the resources of the town sufficient to keep a paid representative busy, but money should and will be raised to properly advertise Willimantic. Gerard E. Loisell introduced a resolution, which was adopted, that at the November meeting the membership dues be increased from $7 to $10 annually.

George F. Taylor spoke on behalf of the Willimantic Industrial Co. a child of the chamber—which is selling stock for the erection of an addition to the building which the company owns and which is occupied by the prosperous Bossie Velvet Co. P. D. Donohues offered a resolution that the chair appoint a committee of ten to cooperate with civic committees in the selling of the stock. This committee consists of James B. Fullerton, Otto B. Robison, Roland B. Jordan, E. J. Donnelly, James P. Mustard, Valentine L. Murphy, George Gurley, Harry N. Bullard, Samuel Chesebro and Charles B. Pomeroy, elected to membership.

The following chairmen then gave outlines of the work of their committees for the ensuing year. H. G Pollard, finance; Gerard E. Loizell, membership; A. E. Green, trade; Nelson A. Daniels, rooms; Harry N. Bullard, publicity; P. D. Donohue, public works; Walter R. King, reception. Edwin J. Donnelly gave a brilliant talk in which he stt forth the objectives of a chamber of commerce. Superintendent of schools Ezbert A. Case was the speaker of the evening.

In relation to the $10 000 appropriation as the town's one-third share of a $300,000 school building which the state plans to erect in the first district, he sketched the history of schools in America and the necessity of education for prosperity. The members indicated through their applause that they favored the appropriation, which will be voted upon at a special town meeting next Saturday.

The proposed new seal for the chamber, designed by H. N. Bullard and bearing the motto "Unity for Prosperity," furnished by G. E. Loisell, was presented for inspection and approval.

Delightful musical entertainment was furnished during the evening by the Imperial male quartet, Arthur Clark, Ray Tallman, Claude Ide, and Edwin F. Cross. Orchestral music was provided by Clifford Donelly, piano, Ralph H. Gibson, violin, and Sam Sussenman of Storrs, saxophone.

An excellent supper was served by the women's society of the Methodist church.

NORWICH STATE HOSP. MEN IN COURT AFTER JOY RIDE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 7—Samuel Arthur Rice, an employe of the Connecticut State hospital for the Insane at Norwich and Henry Kelley, another employe of the hospital, were caught in the local police net, about three o'clock Wednesday morning. Rice was charged in police court Wednesday morning with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Rice denied that he was drunk, although he had imbibed three or four bottles of beer during the course of the evening. He pleaded guilty, however. John Curran, a third hospital employe, informed the court that he was to blame for Rice's predicament, as it was he who had asked Rice to drive him to this city, after both had attended a theatre in Norwich.

Judge Foss imposed the minimum fine, $100 and costs, remitting $50 of the costs after Dr. F. F. Wilcox gave the court information that the man's record and habits at the hospital were good. Rice was arrested by Police Officers Laramee and Piche, when they noticed that he was driving his machine on Main street in a dangerous manner. Rice has been connected with the Norwich hospital for two weeks. His wife is also employed at the hospital.

When You Wake Up Tired—Look Out for Chronic Fatigue

Many a man and woman who is always weak and tired, who goes to bed exhausted, and gets up weary and unrefreshed in the morning—many, yes, thousands of these haggard, nervous worn-out people are victims of chronic fatigue—and do not know it.

Chronic fatigue is entirely different from the ordinary, "healthy" fatigue you feel after vigorous exercise. Chronic fatigue—the serious kind—comes from within. Your nerves muscles, organs, etc., have become devitalized and cannot function properly. That is why even sleep doesn't rest you as it should.

To conquer chronic fatigue—with its terrible tired feeling—you must get at its cause—in the blood. For it is the blood that carries nourishment to all your nerves, muscles and tissues. And it is almost invariably when your blood is thin and pale, lacking in sufficient organic iron that your whole system becomes weakened, and you ing, weakness, nervousness, headache, backache, dizziness, palpitation, poor appetite, etc.

In this condition what you need is to strengthen and invigorate your system by getting more organic iron into your blood. (But don't take the old-fashioned mineral iron medicines which many doctors now say do little good.) Take organic iron—Nuxated iron—which is like the organic iron in your blood and like that in spinach and lentils. Unlike ordinary mineral iron, it will not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. Furthermore, it is promptly assimilated and begins at once to revitalize worn-out nerves muscles and tissues, and give you glorious new strength and endurance.

Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks and you'll be astonished how completely that tired feeling and other miserable symptoms disappear, and you feel stronger and better in every way. Money back if not improved.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Evidences are accumulating that Killingly will have no difficulty whatever in placing the issue of $150,000 of school bonds, authorized by the town for high school building extension. Bankers and brokers already are seeking the issue. It was stated here Wednesday that ther are interests that would be pleased to take the entire issue at par. It is not at all improbable that the bonds will command a premium. The bonds will bear interest at the rate of 4 1-4 per cent. If, as now seems prospective, the bonds sell at a premium, it will be very nice for the town of Killingly.

Plans are partly completed for a teachers' extension course in Killingly. The course is assured, in view of the fact that a sufficient number of teachers of Killingly have agreed to participate. The course will extend through fifteen weeks, two hours being devoted to it each week. The course will have to do with the subject of General Methods in Elementary Education. It will be an extension course given by the department of education of Yale university. A lecturer of the Yale faculty will come here each week. A similar course was given in Killingly two years ago with a lecturer from Harvard. School Supt. William E. Parker said Wednesday afternoon that a date for the opening lecture had not been decided upon as yet.

Recently there appeared in print an item in which it was stated that Attorney William A. King of Willimantic is the dean of the Windham county bar. This was an error that must be charged against some newspaperman. The Willimantic attorney of distinguished service as a practitioner and such a splendid man in many, many ways is not the dean of the Windham county bar. That distinction rests with Attorney Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson. Attorney Bill was admitted to practice in this county in 1877. Attorney King became a member of the Windham county bar in 1880.

Killingly High school's football team will be seen in action here next Saturday, when a game is scheduled with the East Greenwich High school team. Other games on the schedule are: October 17, Killingly vs Chapman Tech, at New London; October 23, Southbridge High, at Danielson; October 31, Putnam High school, at Danielson; November 6, Woodstock academy, at Woodstock; November 11, Plainfield High school, at Danielson; Nov. 26, Putnam High at Putnam.

Traffic is shutoff and will be for several weeks over the Assawaga river bridge on the state highway in Main street, near the property of the Gulf Refining company. Preparations for constructing a new bridge are under way there, the contract having been recently let by the state highway department. Only a short detour is necessary, as there is another bridge spanning the stream from Cottage street to Main just a few feet below the bridge now being removed and to be replaced. The new bridge will be of concrete and of greater width than the old bridge.

At the central fire station in Academy street, Wednesday morning, workmen began preparations for putting in a concrete frontage the full width of the building and to construct a cement sidewalk on the School street side of the property. Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department has rearranged fire apparatus in the building so there will be no delay in getting out in response to alarms. One section of the frontage will be constructed and allowed to harden before the other section is put in. This will allow of access to an entrance to the station at all times.

Miss Eliza Pray, 58, died late Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kies on Mechanic street after an illness of ten weeks. Miss Pray was a native of Killingly, a daughter of Henry W. and Alice Fitzgerald Pray. Miss Pray leaves her mother, two sisters, Mrs. Marvin Kies of Danielson and Mrs. Clarence C. Chase, of Jewett City, and a brother, Luther Pray, of Danielson.

First Selectman John A. Gilbert of Killingly, was among those from this town who were at Central Village Wednesday afternoon at the hearing having to do with a proposal for a new highway route from Jewett City to this town via the Green Hollow road. This proposal has attracted a great deal of attention throughout this section during the past few weeks.

LOST—On trolley car in Danielson, Wed. eve., brown beaded bag. Please return to Mrs. G. E. Munroe, 31 Mechanic St. Putnam.—Adv

Manager Henry Johnson of the Orpheum theatre has a stranger pet at his apartments in the Longo building—a cricket that merrily chirps in answer to Mr. Johnson's whistle and enjoys the freedom of the household. The cricket goes about from room to room, but stows away for the night in a snug place in a small closet. The cricket has been in the Johnson apartment for a number of weeks, and is regarded as a harbinger of good luck.

Fresh winds during Tuesday night and all of Wednesday brought down bales and bales of leaves from trees, something of interest to the hunters who want to go afield today, the first day of the open season, in quest of game. Heavy foliage is a handicap to good hunting, so the hunters were not displeased over the coming down of the leaves.

Members of the Jolly Dozen, a woman's club with local membership, will motor to Providence today (Thursday) for their weekly gathering. A dinner party will be one of the features of the trip.

The matter of four additional grade crossings between Danielson and Ellisville as the result of the adoption of a new state highway route—the road now under construction—is not likely to cause such great concern as was anticipated, in view of the probable abandonment of trolley service over the line within the next few weeks—prior to the completion of the highway.

Indications are that it will be well into the winter before detailed plans can be drawn, approved and bids asked for the construction of the additions authorized by the annual town meeting on Monday to be made to Killingly High school. The committee has only sketches of the proposed additions at this time. Preparation of the detailed plans will require a number of weeks and, of course, bids cannot be asked until this is completed and accepted.

Plans are being considered for remodeling the Burlingham house, next to the public library, to fit it on the lower floor as a tea room such as are to be found in numbers and towns and to be found in numbers of towns and cities in New England. The property is owned by Attorney A. G. Bill.

Gravel walks along sections of Mechanic street was being improved Wednesday by putting additional gravel upon them.

Theodore Hammett is critically ill at his home on Broad street.

George H. Steinman of Worcester visited friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Radio brought returns of the world's series game Wednesday, entertaining numbers of fans.

There is no unemployment problem in Danielson. It was stated Wednesday that it is almost impossible to hire laborers. There appears to be a job for every man who really wants one.

Basketball and volley ball are claiming the attention of members of the Service battery, during spare time at the state armory.

Game wardens assigned to this territory will be afield today and will check up on hunters to see that the game laws are being observed.

Herman M. Coulter of the Devon mills at New Bedford has ben a recent visitor here.

There is need in Water street, between Cottage and Franklin streets—a very decided need of repairs of that part of the roadbed between the Trolley rails. Traffic forced over into the tracks is in danger of being wrecked.

GREEN HOLLOW RE-LOCATING IS AROUSING OPPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Oct. 7—Killingly people will learn with amazement, as did those representing the town in official capacity at the highway hearing in Central Village Wednesday afternoon, that the state highway commission contemplates abandoning the present state highway route between Danielson and Wauregan as part of the trunk line system of Connecticut, if a decision is reached to re-locate the Norwich-Danielson route, coming into Killingly via the Green Hollow road.

It was evident as early as Wednesday evening that Killingly will oppose that proposition to the last ditch and that the Green Hollow re-locating project will never get any real support in this town, under any such arrangement.

The proposal means that the care of what is now trunk line from Main and Water street to the Killingly-Plainfield line, about four miles to the south, would revert to the town of Killingly, instead of being maintained by the state as a trunk line highway. That arrangement would mean a heavy yearly burden of expense for the town of Killingly and one that will not be assumed without a real struggle to avert it.

Town Counsel E. L. Darbie, who accompanied First Selectman John A. Gilbert of Killingly to Wednesday's hearing at Central Village, opposed the plan on behalf of the town. It is within bounds to state here that in opposing it he spoke for the great majority of Killingly interests.

Having heard much beating of tomtoms relative to auxiliary trunk line highways to relieve congestion on present trunk lines, the proposal of the state that it could abandon the present trunk line between Danielson and Wauregan looks like mighty small potatoes to Killingly people. That plan is unqualifiedly against Killingly's interests and carries not a solitary compensating feature.

Killingly is prepared to oppose the plan with all its power—and the entire new layout arrangement as a consequence. And there are effective weapons with which to battle.

Attorney Darbie has expressed the opinion that, as the present trunk line was created by legislative action, it cannot be abandoned without legislative permission, that it is not within the jurisdiction of the state highway commission to say that it will abandon a trunk line established by legislative act in favor of a proposed new route, not legislatively approved.

In so far as Killingly's support is concerned under the circumstances, the whole relocation plan becomes anathema. The town, as a whole, would only be penalized, under the guise of making a general improvement in this section of eastern Connecticut.

Imagine the state asking a town to take over a stretch of trunk line highway and maintain it under the heavy traffic conditions existing in this area today. So this is auxiliary trunk line highway development—so this is Paris! Why, little Rhode Island, with only a fraction of the revenue available in Connecticut for trunk line construction, is building parallel highways to give real traffic relief.

LIEUT. HIBBARD WAS ON S-51 AS INSPECTION OFFICER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Oct. 7—Lieut. Charles Hibbard, U. S. N., son of Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Hibbard, of Reynolds street, tells in a letter to his parents of the shock he sustained upon reading of the S-51 disaster. Lieut. Hibbard heard of the sinking of the submarine by the City of Rome while he was en route to his new station at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu. Lieut. Hibbard for years, up to within a few weeks, has been stationed at the Lake Submarine works in Bridgeport. He was the inspection officer on the S-51 while it was under construction and all the officers who lost their lives in the sinking of the submersible were his personal friends. Their loss in such tragic manner was sad news for him.

At Pearl Harbor, base of the Pacific submarine fleet, he will be inspection officer in charge of maintaining these vessels at maximum efficiency. Lieut. Hibbard has had long and valuable experience in this department of the naval service.

Two Major Advantages Studebaker Alone Offers

1-One-Profit Value 2-Unit-Built Construction

THERE are (as you probably know) only two manufacturers who actually build their cars complete — make all their own bodies, engines, clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

One of these is Ford — in the low priced field. The other is Studebaker in the fine car field.

Because we eliminate the extra profits and overhead that many other manufacturers have to pay to outside parts and body makers—we are able to use finer materials and workmanship—yet charge no more than competing cars.

The steering mechanism is especially designed for easy driving with the big balloon tires

But there is another side to One-Profit manufacture — a feature that no careful buyer can afford to overlook.

Under this One-Profit policy the entire car is designed, engineered and manufactured as a complete, coordinate harmonious unit in Studebaker plants. Being Unit-Built it functions as a unit. And this adds years to its life—gives you scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation—greater riding comfort—minimum repair costs—and, finally, higher resale value.

Examine the Standard Six Coach closely—make detailed comparisons with other cars—and you will understand the full meaning of One-Profit value.

A Coach of quality

It is called a coach only because it is the lowest priced closed car ever sold by Studebaker. But it is a quality car through and through.

Do not buy this coach with the expectation that you'll have to trade it in at the end of a year or so. It's not a one-year car.

Instead, it has been honestly built to give you scores of thousands of miles of dependable service.

Notice the durable wool upholstery. See the heavy ornamental hardware; the plate glass windows and windshield; the fine trim to hide all tacks; the clock and gasoline gauge on dash; automatic windshield cleaner; stop light; locks on ignition, steering gear, door and spare-tire carrier — all operated by a single key.

These are all features that you can easily see. But down underneath that glistening coat of metallic enamel you'll find the same quality of materials and workmanship that are out in the open.

The sturdy frame for the body is built from the fine northern ash and hard maple. Slam the door and the sound says quality. Underneath the upholstery you'll find two layers of washed, quilted cotton, one layer of genuine curled hair and extra long springs closely held together by small coil springs. This is the identical cushion and seat construction used in the highest priced cars.

Long resilient springs made of special chrome Vanadium steel give greater buoyancy and protection from road shocks.

The crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces to eliminate vibration. And the motor is the most powerful in any car of this size and weight, according to the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It is a motor built for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour—not for excessive speed or spectacular stunts.

The body is smart in appearance — yet provides ample room to seat five passengers in real comfort. Ample room to enter or leave without disturbing occupant of folding seat.

Make comparisons before you buy

These are advantages made possible by One-Profit manufacture. Check them off point by point—in comparison with other coaches.

Only after you have seen this One-Profit Studebaker with its Unit-Built construction, will you realize why it offers a value that cannot be obtained in any other car. It is the automobile equivalent of Pullman transportation.

The Studebaker policy of "no yearly models" is a further protection to owners. Under this policy Studebaker cars are always up to date—we add improvements from time to time and do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

Come in—let us demonstrate the Standard Six Coach without obligation on your part.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

It was a rousing reception which the president's address received at the convention of the American Legion at Omaha, but the reception it received was fully merited. He had some very interesting things to say, he said them in his characteristically clear and pointed manner and he drove home some important truths.

President Coolidge lets it be known through his address that he stands for adequate defense, but that military power must be subordinate to civil authority and he can see no merit in unnecessary soldiers and ships. There can be no such thing as a dictation by military authority to civil authority if we are going to maintain the liberties which this country so dearly cherishes. Pointing out the fact that we can fight and that those who have doubted it have changed their minds, he emphasized the fact that the "real question is whether spending money to make a better military force would make a better country."

While his thoughts were directed toward a permanent peace he holds no fanciful views concerning it. There must be preparations and in that connection he expressed himself as favorable to a proper and sound selective service act by which the inequalities that appeared in the recent war would be eliminated and authority given for a very broad mobilization of all the resources of the country, both persons and material.

But when it comes to the matter of peace throughout the world he believes progress is being made. One of the great needs of this country he pointed out, however, was to put an end to the intolerance that was one of the reactions of the war. "There should be," he said, "an intellectual demobilization as well as a military demobilization."

Pointing out the manner in which this country is made up of those from others he called for the demobilization of the racial antagonisms, fears, hatreds and suspicions and create an attitude of toleration in the public mind of the peoples of the earth. That is the spirit he believes should prevail in the making of 100 per cent. Americans. Well does he say that we cannot make America first by intolerance.

YOUR FUEL SUPPLY

Those who have abandoned the use of coal are smiling at the predicament in which the users of anthracite are finding themselves in some instances. It can hardly be said that any period of distress has been reached for there is fuel available of all kinds and the demand has not become so heavy as to create a shortage, even though the strike in the hard coal fields has now been on for a period of five weeks.

Thus far there appears to be no progress made toward an adjustment. Even the effort which was undertaken by the governor of Pennsylvania in calling the heads of the operators and the miners into conference has resulted in nothing. It is realized that no attempt has been made to curb bituminous production by calling a strike in the West Virginia soft coal fields but that has had no appreciable effect.

There are those who filled their bins months ago and have nothing to worry about as to fuel for the winter. Others have partial supplies and some are depending upon weekly or monthly deliveries in the belief that through the use of substitutes they will be able to keep from freezing. They are prepared to resist the holdup to the last.

Inasmuch as it has become necessary to use fuel earlier this fall than some years it is well to bear in mind that even if substitutes are to be employed it is a good idea not to wait too long before putting in an order for early delivery until waiting until the last minute when all will be making a grand rush for fuel and the supply on hand will not be adequate.

Reports from the bituminous fields have not as yet shown the effects of increased demands although there are many who have already begun to use it with highly satisfactory results. Even though it will in all probability be possible to get fuel of some kind the desirability of getting it into the cellar where it can be had when needed, or at least into the yards of the dealers, who must of necessity be governed somewhat by the orders they receive as to what they purchase ought not to be overlooked. It is a good time to look out for yourself and not cater to a shortage and high prices.

INSANE PATIENTS

In connection with an inquiry which has been made concerning St. Elizabeth hospital in Washington, a government institution for the insane, there was testimony presented to the effect that there are inmates there who are not insane and never have been.

Except for the fact that this might be the case in most any hospital for the insane and knowing how easy it is to make such charges without being supported by the facts, one cannot help wondering if those cases in St. Elizabeth hospital which are not regarded as insane are in a class with the Noel case in New Jersey where the young man who escaped from an insane institution proceeded to murder, or the many other instances where those who have eluded detention have acquired firearms and taken the lives of others.

Just at the present time the Noel case is being brought to attention again through proceedings in the criminal court where it appears that alienists for the state maintain that the accused is sane, sane enough to plead and to aid his counsel, while experts for the defense insist that he is insane.

Whether it is a case of doctors disagreeing in connection with the patients in the Washington institution, it seems to be clearly established that proper care should be taken to establish that any patient in an insane hospital is at least not dangerous before releasing him. In the New Jersey and New York cases the patients were not discharged, but it doesn't appear that any special effort was being made to find them and return them to the restraint which had been giving protection to the public.

Nothing worse than restraint of a sane person in an insane hospital can be imagined. Something more than snap judgment should govern commitments and certainly no one should be kept there longer than necessary. But for the safeguarding of the general public it is important that releases should be based upon a thorough knowledge of the case and condition and not made a matter of chance taking.

NOT A GOOD OUTLOOK

The developments in the shipping board case, even with the ousting of President Palmer of the Emergency Fleet corporation, does not mean the end of that problem. Rather can it be expected to intensify it for it indicates what may be expected just as long as such an arrangement is permitted to exist.

President Palmer has introduced changes which upset past practices of the shipping board. He has striven for economies and obtained them without any sacrifice of service. He has been obliged to work against the opposition of the board and he has nevertheless succeeded in cutting expenses and when there can be shown a reduction of $14,000,000 in the handling of a service which has been putting the government $50,000,000 in the hole some years it is something worth speaking about.

When it can be shown that there has been a tremendous reduction in the cost of operating government ships, when it can be seen that there has been a great increase in the efficiency of the government owned merchant marine, when a smaller number of ships carry as large a tonnage and secure as much revenue as a large number in the past and when the actual transfer of government owned ships and trade routes to private American ownership and operation is rapidly becoming an accomplished fact it stands out to the credit of President Palmer that such improvements have been accomplished during his term of office and in spite of the obstacles placed in his way by the shipping board. It is not a cheerful outlook when the board upsets such an administration and indicates that it is going back to its old practices of waste and inefficiency.

THE PENALTY OF CARELESSNESS

Two New York state troopers had gone from Geneva to Canadaigua to attend a court session and were returning at nightfall when struck by an express train and killed.

Well does the New York Times say in reference to this tragedy, "every such accident is distinctly of the preventable sort and these men were under special obligation not to neglect the precautions which it is their special duty to preach to everybody else. Night was falling, . . . but that, though an explanation of what happened, was a poor excuse for failing to 'stop, look and listen', which is all that anybody must do to be perfectly safe at any grade crossing."

It is unfortunate that more frequent emphasis cannot be placed upon this very sentiment. Grade crossings are responsible for too many deaths. The horror of such accidents is appalling and yet they continue to figure almost daily in the news.

Instead of insisting upon the assumption of greater responsibility by the individual to insure his safety there is too frequently a demand for the building of expensive bridges or underpasses. There is no good reason for ignoring the danger of a railroad crossing. It is a potential danger and ignoring it represents a carelessness of an inexcusable type and a disposition to take chances where the penalty is too often quickly imposed and severe. And yet, when those who are supposed to preach against it are found to be indulging, and even furnishing another distressing example of gross carelessness, it accentuates the need of greater attention on the part of others.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Some people worry as to what posterity is going to boast about.

Even though LaFollette goes to the senate elected as a republican he will not be received as such.

Only Nine Killed in Week End Car Wrecks, says a headline. It must have rained in many of the states.

There is no reason to suppose that the heading "year is driest ever known in Maryland" has any reference whatever to prohibition.

Boston has a plan for street signs that will cost $100,000. Marking the streets is an excellent idea but in these days it is also well to mark the country roads.

Now that the French plane that was to be used in crossing the Atlantic is a complete wreck after a twelve mile flight, perhaps Colonel Mitchell will hasten to explain the rottenness of French aviation.

AT THE CLUB

The lady in the flowered chiffon gown leaned back more languidly in the rocker on the clubhouse terrace and shook her head disapprovingly in the direction of the checked woolen legs disappearing down the cement stairway to the links.

"I just cannot," she mourned, "I cannot comprehend these strenuous girls! The thin, wiry kind who don't give a hoot for their complexions and who start in mornings and go round and round the course like a squirrel chasing around a cage and still insist at 6 o'clock that they are fresh as daisies.

"You should have heard George Niblick talking about Irene the other day. 'There's a girl for you!' said George when Irene trailed in after making the course three times, 'and she's ready to dance all evening after whacking the ball twenty miles or so! Aren't you at all tired, Irene?'

"Irene smiled heartily and stated that she was still full of pep and what was he talking about? About five minutes later she was sprawled out in a dressing room chair as limp as a piece of string and too done up to move.

"But George never knew it.

"If you at all doubt my conviction that women actually do not enjoy such constant gymnastics look around and note that it is not the married women as a rule who are the rabid players, insisting they'd rather tee off than get a check from home. The husband-hunters are the ones on the job making bogie records and freckling their faces and letting the sunshine soak in and all that sort of thing.

"What a girl!" thinks the tall and handsome golfer of the foursome just back of her party—never dreaming of her maneuvers to have him just in that position—'full of energy and life and health, and perferring good exercise to dreaming over a novel or crocheting tidies to stick to one's coat! Hey, Foxtrotte, introduce me to the peach in the orange sport suit with the marvelous drive! Bound to be even-tempered and untroubled with nerves and whims!'

"And a year later when he remarks that she isn't using the club course much these days she yawns and says oh, she's so much more comfortable at home on a hot day and anyhow she hates to get all burned up just after she took that expensive bleaching process at the beauty shop! She'll come out in time for dinner, she adds, as it is Illida's day out and it tires her so to cook chops.

"So the tall and handsome golfer wends his way musing much over the transformation in women and surveys with a shrewd and considering and skeptical eye the fair maidens poised like windblown Dianas with the joy of open-air exercise on their enthusiastic countenances, not an idea in their bobbed heads apparently but whanging the golf ball. He wonders. All married men wonder. It does them good because while they are wondering they are kept out of mischief.

"He won't see his wife much in the course unless she begins to get fat and is trying to walk it off or until years have passed and she suddenly gives a jump and begins to scurry around and do things—you know. Perfectly happy women hear a lecture or read an article and say, horrors—if I don't get busy and do things folks will think I am an old lady—that is why the world is so full of middle-aged women engaged in exercise, hobbies, clubs, missions and facial uplift.

"You needn't tell me that Alicia Deverre, who just remonstrated with me for not joining her, is going to enjoy her afternoon out in the broiling sun, especially with those checked woolen stockings on! I don't mind telling you that Alicia has serious designs on Hardy Futter and she knows Hardy would rather wear out the golf links than be president, so what more natural, she figures than that he should admire a girl golfer. That girl is hearing the wedding bells tingle this minute, but she has totally forgotten the deadly little law of contrasts and that a real womanly woman perhaps a little too delicate for harsh work is much more likely—why, bowdedo, Hardy! Off for a round? No, it is so deliciously cool sitting here today I am not playing—why, yes, some tea would be very nice, thank you, if it doesn't interfere with your game—goodby girls!"

The flowered chiffon beauty trailed away with the admiring Hardy, leaving her listeners agape with admiration.—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Nelson A. Miles, the Merchants Boy, The Great General

One of the most dignified figures in the period of the Spanish war was General Nelson A. Miles, the distinguished commander of the United States army. In every way General Miles looked the part of a soldier. He had the appearance of one born to command. And well he might have that appearance, for he had served with great distinction in the Civil war, and in many Indian conflicts. He had commanded troops under varying conditions and had risen to his high office from the humble position of lieutenant.

As a boy, Nelson A. Miles had by no means looked forward to a military career. He had been exceedingly glad to obtain an opening in a Massachusetts store, and he had hoped to rise in business life to something far better than a position of clerk. Then came the Civil war with its call for patriotic men. Young Miles left the counter, took what money he had and used it to bring together a body of men who would form a military company. In this unselfishly patriotic way Nelson A. Miles, as lieutenant of the 22d Massachusetts, entered upon that great career that was of such service to his country.

At once he was plunged into some of the bloodiest fighting of the Civil war—the names of the battles in which he fought reading like a scarlet list. He very quickly ceased to be a lieutenant and rose through various offices to the high position of major general. His bravery on the field of battle won him recognition. At 26 he was put in charge of entire army corps, and no other man of his age held a similar place.

After the Civil war there was much Indian fighting. Doughty old chiefs of the Apaches, the Sioux, the Cheyennes and many other tribes defied the United States. Tirelessly General Miles pursued the Indians and brought them into subjection. In the Spanish war it was General Miles who gave invaluable advice at all times and who brought about the taking of Porto Rico.

When he left the army in 1903, at the age of 64, he was a lieutenant-general instead of a mere lieutenant. Four bullet wounds testified to his personal courage and a grateful country was glad to honor him. The patriotism of the New England store boy had brought its reward.

Stories That Recall Others

Safety First

They were as busy as bees at the restaurant. A portly woman visitor hurriedly approached the serving counter and demanded of the startled waiter:

"Where is the kitchen? I want to see how the meats are prepared before I order mine."

Both Broke

Lew was walking down the street several days ago when he was accosted by a rather famished looking chap who volunteered the information that Lew looked like a "good fellow" who would "stake a fellow to a feed." After sizing up the hungry man Lew invited him to dine with him as he was then on the way to the restaurant.

The stranger ate with a relish and did not hesitate to run up the amount on the check. Lew looked on with satisfaction as the man ate his fill.

"Well, let's go if you have had enough," Lew remarked as the meal was over. Walking to the cashier's desk he felt for his ever-present bill fold, only to find that he had left it at home and was himself without a penny. The cashier smiled, the man who had been fed shuffled uneasily

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

WHERE THE NAVY PLANES ARE FLYING

"A maze of jagged, snow-clad peaks, deep, narrow glacier-filled valleys, and huge ice-covered fiords—such is the section of Ellesmere Island over which the Navy planes of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition have been making their initial flights in the far North, seeking a site for their first advanced base," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"This is the terrane to which radio dispatches from the expedition are now referring.

"Etah, the main base, at which the two ships are anchored, lies on the westernmost tip of Greenland," continues the bulletin. "From this point the shore line of Greenland turns back toward the east and runs in a general northeastern direction for some 600 miles to its most northern point.

"The projection on which Etah lies is at the very head of Baffin Bay. Ellesmere Island bulges eastward at Cape Sabine practically opposite Etah helping almost to close Baffin Bay. The narrow neck of water so formed is Smith Sound over which the planes first fly in striking westward from the ship base. This sound has been found to be filled with ice. After the first advanced base is established the planes will shuttle back and forth across Smith Sound, carrying gasoline and supplies from the ships.

"The coast line of Ellesmere Island which the planes reach, after crossing Smith Sound is little less jagged horizontally than the interior is vertically. This coast line is a succession of fiords, some of them biting so deeply into the island that they almost meet other fiords from the west coast. It was one of these west coast fiords, Cannon Ford, in direct line between Etah and Cape Hubbard, for which the planes set out on their first reconnaissance trip; but fog and unfavorable ice conditions in the fiords which they passed over made it necessary to turn back.

"'Day' Fiord, looked upon by the explorers as a likely site for a base, is not shown on any map of Ellesmere Island, and it is probable the message referred to Bay Fiord, a large tongue of water extending inland from the west to within almost 30 miles of the head of Flagler Fiord, which strikes in from the east coast just back of Cape Sabine, and almost due west of Etah.

"Although Ellesmere Island has been known at its southern point for several centuries, and although in the last 35 years several of its fiords and inland valleys have been explored by dog teams—first by Greely and his party, and later by Peary, MacMillan, and Sverdrup—little is known of the mountain masses of the interior. In their initial flights over the interior, MacMillan and the other observers in the planes have gained a new impression of the extreme ruggedness of this region.

"The failure to find a landing place on the first flight does not mean that the entire island is too rough to afford a satisfactory site for a base. Well north of the Etah-Cannon Fiord route, General A. W. Greely in 1882 found an open, grassy valley. Other such valleys may exist near the route first reconnoitered, while by flying at first due west, a landing field probably can be found on Bay Fiord. This fiord is not 730 miles from Etah as an error in transmission stated, but more nearly 150 miles. The entire distance from Etah to Capt Hubbard, the northwesternmost known land, is only about 330 miles."

CHILD TRAINING

THE NEWCOMER

S. E. McCahey

"Come on! Come on in and listen to my radio!" but the conflic that followed showed that the reluctant one had made his escape.

"He won't go into anybody's house—just runs home and sticks there—well, let him!" and Robert Dunn slammed the front door in disgust as he entered his home.

"He's strange, Sonny, wait until he gets better acquainted,' comforted his grandmother. "He came from the far west and is strange to our city and its ways." For wise Grandmother had already devined that the young stranger who had come to their neighborhood some months previous had made a happy impression on her impetuous grandson whose friendly overtures were not meeting with the success he would have liked.

"He's the same with everybody, even Teacher can't make him talk," complained Robert.

"How can she teach him?" asked Grandmother.

"She can't. He just sits there and looks, and says never a word, and they can't keep the whole class back for him. They are going to put him in 'special.'"

"Oh, I hope not! He is a bright boy and should stay with his grade." And the woman who had brought up three sons of her own and was now mothering his seven-year-old grandson, grew thoughtful.

A few minutes later she was in Mrs. Meyer's little sitting room explaining to the newcomer that the placing of her little son, Harry in "special" meant a step backward for him.

"I can't make out why he won't talk at school," said the mother exasperatedly. "He talks well enough around here, but in school they tell me he's dumb.

"What is the difference between his surroundings here and in Iowa?" asked Mrs. Dunn kindly, feeling sure that Mrs. Meyer would understand her interest.

"It was a farm there, and it's a city here, but he has always adapted himself easily to his surroundings in cities we have visited.'

"There is a difference. You see he has been living here steadily for a year and has been completely uprooted from his old life. Did he ever seem to be interested in any one thing to the exclusion of others in his Iowa home?"

"I never noticed. There were horses, cows, sheep, farm pets; he took them all casually enough. But, yes!" suddenly, "he loved his rabbits!"

"I've brought up three sons, will you lend me your little boy occasionally? You see, my Robert is fond of him, and they make ideal playmates."

"If you can make him talk and answer his teacher, I'll be grateful," said Harry Meyer's mother.

Robert Dunn was surprised at his grandmother's gift the next day—a pure white rabbit with pink eyes as pink as a summer evening sky.

"What do you think, Grandmother? Harry is coming into see my rabbit!" Robert burst out as he pushed open the door that night.

"He's lovely, isn't he?" asked Grandmother picking up the little white beauty and putting him into Harry's eagerly outstretched arms. "You love rabbits?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Harry sturdily.

"Did you ever own any?" asked gentle Grandmother.

"Yes ma'am—seventeen—and some hares."

"Oh," said Grandmother innocently, "is there much difference between a hare and a rabbit?"

"Course there is," said Harry eagerly, "rabbits are smaller and have shorter ears — they burrow — hares don't. Hares can run faster than rabbits."

"Oh," said Grandmother again.

Robert Dunn carried a note to his teacher the next day which read:

"Dear Miss Reid:—

Regarding your problem in connection with Harry Meyer, try 'Rabbits.'

Sincerely,

(Mrs.) M. H. Dunn."

"It's the funniest thing," confided Robert Dunn to his grandmother the following evening when they were alone. "Miss Reid asked Harry today how many rabbits he would have if he had five and she gave him five more."

"Yes," said Grandmother, "and what did he say?"

"He gave the right answer. 'Ten rabbits.' Then she asked him how many he'd have if a boy took three rabbits away from his ten rabbits, and he said, 'Seven,' but that if he really had ten rabbits and anybody took three away from him, there would be a fight!"

HEARING SHOWS JEWETT CITY IS DIVIDED ON HIGHWAY RE-LOCATION

Divided sentiment in Jewett City upon the re-location plan for the section of the Norwich Putnam road that passes through the borough at Main street was disclosed at the hearing held by State Highway Commissioner J. Macdonald on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 at the town hall in Central Village. An attendance of over 100 filled every seat in the hall when the meeting was opened by Commissioner MacDonald, who suggested that one hour each be allotted to the consideration of the Jewett City re-location and to the re-location from French's crossing to Danielson over the Green Hollow road.

These were the two matters that were before the hearing, which the commissioner explained was for the purpose of finding out the sentiment of the people in the endeavor to take such action as would please and accommodate them best. Early in the hearing Commissioner MacDonald made it clear that there was no question of comparative cost between the plan which the state highway department has made and the variations suggested at this hearing, as one plan would cost practically the same as the other.

He likewise made it clear that wherever a section of the present highway would be superseded by a new layout or re-location, the old section would no longer receive state aid but would have to be taken care of by the town. This was one of the reasons why a part of the Jewett City people opposed the re-location plan and also why the town of Killingly opposed the Green Hollow relocation because the Wauregan road would be thrown back onto the town to look out for.

H. R. Branche of this city opened and conducted the discussion in favor of the re-location plan at Jewett City, making a by-pass from the Lisbon road corner around to the west of Main street and coming to the highway again above the Tadpole bridge. Mr. Branche said he represented Norwich council of commercial travelers, having 200 members wh use automobiles daily over these roads. They are interested in eliminating five grade crossings, two or three narrow bridges, many dangerous curves and congested spots, all of which be for the common good.

Mr. Branche called on Robert W. Perkins, president of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., who responded by stating that that organization travels 30,000 miles per month over the roads in question. Mr. Perkins said he was interested in good roads, if that meant roads with every possible danger factor eliminated and he felt that the plan proposed conformed with this idea of what a good road is so that he was in favor of it.

Commending the state highway commissioner for what he has done and will do, George R. Ross of Jewett City spoke of the value of relieving congestion in traffic and said he didn't want to see the tremendous traffic that is to come with the years go through the main street of Jewett City. He declared there were some small people in Jewett City but others who were big enough to have the traffic go around. It is hard to park on the main street now, he said, and he read prophecies of cars of 90 miles an hour speed for the future to show that conditions are going to be worse in the years to come.

Dr. G. H. Jennings also spoke in favor of the re-location, pointing out the bridge and grade crossing, and bad curves within the mile and a quarter from the Lisbon bridge. He also mentioned that 700 school children use the highway, that more buses are to appear in the future and said he approved the re-location plan.

Rev. E. E. Scates of Lisbon was also in favor of the plan and spoke particularly of the danger to children by the present traffic of the road. He could see no harm to Jewett City in diverting the traffic and said that was quite a usual custom.

Rev. Mr. Payne emphasized the care for human life, and especially the children, as the first consideration in favor of the re-location. He said there was nothing tangible to show that trade would be diverted or lost by this plan. The new road is meant to carry the traffic so that the village can be enjoyed by those who have time to stop. So far as injury to business was concerned, he didn't believe the re-location would amount to anything.

J. Nelson Weymouth of the Southern New England Telephone Co. James Graham of Lisbon were also counted as favoring the plan, and Harry Hull, first selectman, said he would favor this if they couldn't show a better location and he thought a better plan could be shown.

Commissioner Macdonald advised him to send the plan to him in Hartford.

The Opposition Speaks

Louis M. Carpenter, representing Jewett City Chamber of Commerce, opposed the plan under consideration, and conducted the opposition. He said that there was from two to three million dollars worth of property fronting the Jewett City main street, which is a main line highway over which it is expected to have a bus line. If the re-location were adopted school children would have to walk 1 1-4 miles to get the bus on the new road. He believed the plan would hurt Jewett City. There is a 24 hour protection at the grade crossing and he said he believed the business on the Main street deserved consideration.

Mr. Carpenter called upon Officer Vegiard who said that there had been but one fatal accident on the main line of travel in five years.

Mr. Carpenter asked if Norwich or New London could live if traffic were routed away like this.

Mayor Waters of this city, who was in the hall, answered that Norwich was routing all traffic around the congested area, where possible.

William McNichol, also of the Chamber of Commerce, proposed a change of highway to go east of Main street, coming from Bishop's crossing along the left side of the railroad track to Jewett City. He was opposed to the suggested plan but would not eliminate the Jewett City grade crossing.

Mr. Carpenter read a letter from Judge W. T. Barry opposing the re-location.

Rev. Mr. Payne spoke again saying that he wished it understood the Chamber of Commerce was not a unit on this. He thought he knew as much as Mr. Carpenter what the feeling in the Chamber of Commerce was, but he admitted in response to Mr. Carpenter's question that he hadn't attended the last meeting.

In response to a question from Commissioner Macdonald, Mr. Carpenter said their attitude was in opposition to any plan that diverted the main line from the Jewett City main street. Mr. Carpenter, brought out that if the re-location were done, the borough would have to clear the street in winter of snow.

D. T. Shea of this city said he would favor the re-location if it would do what it proposed to do, but he thought it would not do that.

Prosecuting Attorney Richard Dudkowski of the town court, stated that he believed the proposed plan was not feasible and was too expensive. He thought another plan would eliminate the cost of two bridges and one bridge could be built to span both the railroad tracks and the river. Mr. Dudkowski said the business men thought they would be hurt by the re-location plan. He declared he did not believe the Main street railroad crossing was very dangerous. There is 24 hour protection there now.

Rev. Mr. Payne interposed to ask how this would affect the hooch business in the Jewett City streets.

Attorney Dudkowski replied by stating that if the citizens would back up the court they could stop a lot of the hooch business, but people won't appear as witnesses.

Secretary John J. O'Rourke reported the attitude of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce by stating that they were in favor of eliminating crossings and dangerous curves. They had had Lewis Young, an engineer, look over the proposed line over the Ashland pond and he had reported that it would cost too much.

Commissioner Macdonald told Mr. O'Rourke that it would cost $125,000.

Mr. O'Rourke said the Norwich chamber, in view of Mr. Young's report, felt that it would be more advisable to use the money to improve the present road.

Mr. Macdonald asked Mr. O'Rourke to take back word that the costs would be the same in either case and he asked the secretary to send him word what action the directors took.

Green Hollow Location

The hearing on the Green Hollow relocation from French's crossing to Danielson occupied less time than the other. Secretary Burgess of the Moosup Chamber of Commerce spoke in favor of it, but said he was delegated to ask the commissioner to continue state maintenance of the present road.

Commissioner Macdonald replied that that was impossible if the re-location were decided upon.

Rev. W. C. Prentiss of Plainfield, Superintendent Kinder of the Attawaugan Co., C. C. Perkins of the Totokett Co., and Joseph T. Cruttenden of Niantic spoke in favor of it.

Mayor Waters of this city also spoke in favor of abolishing all grade crossings and relocating roads away from congested districts.

A. H. Lathrop of this city, Mr. Wood of the Attawaugan Co., William Brown of the Plainfield club and Mr. Vaughn of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce were among others to speak.

E. L. Darbie appeared for the Killingly selectmen, stating that they were opposed to the Green Hollow plan because it would throw the Wauregan road onto the town of Killingly to care for. They would welcome lighter traffic on Main street, Danielson, and were not afraid of losing business.

STATE REGENT VISITS FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER

Faith Trumbull Chapter, Inc., Daughters of the American Revolution, held its opening meeting of the fall season Wednesday afternoon at the community house. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. William H. Dawley, the regent. Mrs. William S. Elliott, the secretary, read the minutes of the annual meeting held last June. Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, the treasurer, submitted her report for four months, and also explained the budget for the year. The budget calls for more than $1,000 to meet national, state and local requirements and to support the regular educational and Americanization work. A membership of 168 was reported by Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, the registrar and the historian, Mrs. George A. Ashley gave some interesting historical facts from a magazine. A brief report was given by Miss Susan I. Gallup, the corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. Tyler Browne, chairman, reported on the work of the museum committee during the summer.

Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup, chairman, reported on the activities of preparing the chapter program of meetings and on gathering material for the year book.

The regent took occasion to congratulate the committee on the appearance and contents of the new year book. Owing to unavoidable delays two committees, the publicity and genealogical research committees, did not get into the year book. These committees are:

Publicity committee—Mrs. William S. Elliott, chairman; Miss Eliza W. Avery and Mrs. C. R. Chamberlain.

Genealogical research—Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers, chairman; Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop, Miss Emily J. Chism and Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell.

Mrs. Henry H. Pettis reported for the magazine committee and said she is ready to receive subscriptions and that several are due soon. Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley, chairman of the ways and means committee, explained that committee's plans for the coming winter months. Other reports were given as follows: Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell for the Revolutionary soldiers' graves; Mrs. Charles L. Stewart for patriotic instruction; Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop for membership and for conservation and thrift committees.

The regent stated that nine chapter members, including several officers were present at the dedication of the memorial fountain in honor of the Pilgrim women at Plymouth, Mass., last June.

Mrs. Vaughn extended an invitation to the members to attend the meetings of the Connecticut Home Missionary union at Park church, today (Thursday.) It was announced by the regent that the semi-annual meeting of the Connecticut Daughters of the American Revolution will be held at New Britain Tuesday, October 13, 11 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. The speakers will include Mrs. Cook, president general, and Mrs. Iras Anderson, librarian general.

Mrs. Charles Humphrey Bissill, of Southington, state regent, and Miss Catherine A. Nettleton, of Derby, state vice regent, were present at the meeting and were called upon to address the gathering. Miss Nettleton spoke of the need of a larger Memorial Continental hall in Washington for the gathering place of the Continental congress, the society having grown so large that the present hall will not hold those who are entitled to come. She told of the building planned and of the method by which the money is to be provided; that is, by the sale of bonds.

Mrs. Bissill was then presented by the regent, who sated that the remainder of the afternoon was to be a birthday party in honor of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Bissell sketched the history of the founding and progress of the organization. At the close of her talk, a birthday cake holding 35 candles, red, white and blue, was brought in by the president of the Gen. Ebenezer Huntington chapter, C. A. R., Miss Rose Standish, in the costume of Faith Trumbull.

The picture was made most effective by lighting the room with candles only. Mrs. Bissell cut the cake and tea was served by the committee of hostesses: Mrs. M. E. Maguire, chairman; Mrs. H. M. Briggs, Mrs. Edward Briggs, Miss May Bushnell, Miss Amy Isurlingame. Miss Eliza Dolheare, Mrs. Alfred M. Haring, Mrs. H. E. Higgins, Mrs. Daniel Jones, Mrs. William H. Oat, Mrs. Charles Standish, Mrs. Ambrose Sullivan, Mrs. Frank Rice, Mrs. Frank I. Royce.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR SPEAKS TO NORWICH ROTARIANS

Service was emphasized as the most beautiful spirit of Rotary by Rev. John Allson, governor of the 30th Rotary district, who was a guest of the Norwich Rotary club at a luncheon meeting Wednesday evening at the Wauregan hotel. The supper was served at 6.15 o'clock promptly, following the singing of America, grace being said by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott.

Joseph C. Worth was the song leader for the evening and there were the usual community and group numbers. A feature of the song programme was a number by a quartette comprising Grosvenor Ely, Russell H. Smith, Eben Learned and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott.

President J. Nelson Weymouth said it was customary for the Rotary members to give a resume of their vacations and then called on Rev. Mr. Abbott for a resume of his vacation, which was given in brief form.

President Weymouth announced as the five minute current topic speaker, Adelard Morin. Mr. Morin said that instead of giving a talk himself he had passed his five minutes on to Rev. S. A. Icieck, pastor of St. Joseph's church, and a former New Britain Rotarian. Father Icieck told of his coming here in January to take charge of what is probably the largest foreign speaking element in Norwich. I started to build a school, because I felt they need it, said Father Icieck. I intend to make that school a real community center. I am not making any distinction between Catholic and non-Catholic. I feel that one young is as good as another young man.

He spoke of the erection of the school as a saving to the city of perhaps $200,000 and said that the school will take care of between 600 and 1,000 Polish children. I feel the city of Norwich will come to my aid and help to put it across. I have no axe to grind, I feel I am giving all the service there is in me. Father Icieck said that the parish will soon ask for $25,000 to be raised by public subscription and he expressed the hope that the movement would receive the support of the Rotary club.

President Weymouth then introduced the district governor, Rev. John Alison, of Holyoke. After speaking in complimentary terms of President "Joe" Weymouth, Governor Alison, or Governor "John", as he is known to Rotarians, said he owes the men of the Norwich Rotary club a great debt of gratitude. I rather suspect that you who were at all intimate with the details of the recent conclave at New London, will have a faint suspicion of what I mean. I am indebted to you for loaning me your fellow Rotarian Dr. Hugh B. Campbell. (Dr. Campbell was chairman of the general committee in charge of the conclave arrangements.) You who were at New London know just what kind of a job he did. The president of Rotary International confessed to me that it was the finest conclave the district ever had.

Launching into his message of the evening Governor Alison said that the important thing connected with his visit here was not the speech he was going to make but rather "the conference we are going to have later on" having reference to a conference of the club's officers, and "committee chairmen, held after the meeting.

Governor Alison said that what he wanted was "to get something from you men in the Norwich Rotary club to take away with me that I may perhaps pass on to someone else." After speaking of the Chicago council conference in an interesting manner the district governor said:

In the city of Norwich everyone of you here tonight is a big man, a busy man. Did you ever stop to think that a Rotarian is the only representative of his business or profession in his community. Every man here is an executive and every executive is a man who has come to the top. How comes it that you can afford to give time, thought and service to Rotary? You don't need to ask me, and I don't need to ask you. What is this thing called Rotary? Don Adams said that Rotary is a spiritual thing. What are these spiritual things? The spiritual things are the invisible things, the indispensable things, the eternal things. When you come to those things that are indispensable that is Rotary.

The first spirit of Rotary is the spirit of selectivity. When you stop to think, you are a chosen man and you ought to be a choice man. You have to represent not only yourself and your business but your classification. Another spirit of Rotary is the spirit of song. I don't think you have a man in your club that can't sing. Every man who is a real Rotarian has the spirit of song. Any man who doesn't want to sing, who doesn't want to hear others sing, who doesn't want to join in the singing isn't a Rotarian.

Another spirit of Rotary is the spirit of sociability. The men that like to be by themselves don't last very long in the Rotary club. You can go back tonight over the years, you can visualize yourself as the boy with boys. No one suspected then of calling ou "Judge" or "Doctor." I love to feel that there are men who know me well enough to call me what they used to call me when I was a boy.

The most beautiful spirit of Rotary is the spirit of Service. The district governor told the oft repeated story of the Good Samaritan, as an example of Service and emphasized in his closing remarks the value and need of "service" in our daily life.

The meeting closed about 8:15 o'clock with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

JOHNSTON'S MASTERFUL PITCHING SILENCES GUNS OF THE PIRATES

The "Big Train" Was at His Best, His Speed and Change of Pace Cutting Down the Pirate Stickers—Traynor and J. Harris Pole Out Home Runs—Meadows Weakens in Fifth Inning as Senators Bunch Hits—Carey's and Cuyler's Speed of No Avail on the Bases—Johnson Fans 10—Attendance 45,000.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 7—(By the Associated Press)—The great right arm of Walter Johnson repulsed the Pittsburgh Pirates today in their first bold bid to board the world's championship baseball craft now manned by Washington's gallant and seasoned battlers.

Before a home-town crowd of 45,000 that filled every nook and cranny of Forbes field, the Pirates fell before the masterful strokes of "Old Barney" while his Senator mates pounded out a decisive four to one triumph in the first clash of the 1925 series conflict.

Johnson Fans Ten

Striking out ten of the bold buccaneers and twirling with superb coolness and effectiveness in every crisis, Johnson held the National League champions to five scattered blows, one of them a booming home run by Pie Traynor, while Joe Harris, Sam Rice and Ossie Bluege led an attack that accomplished the downfall of Lee Meadows, be-spectacled veteran, and also found its mark against the curves of "Jughandle Johnny" Morrison, who took the mound in the ninth after Meadows had given way to a pinch hitter.

The dash and fire, the highly touted howitzers of the Pirate batting batteries were of no avail against the crafty defense of Johnson this afternoon. Smoke is a familiar hometown product on Pittsburgh's fields of battle but the buccaneers found that the "big train" had a variety they couldn't penetrate when there was any prospect that hits would produce much-needed runs.

For Johnson today had all the "smoke" of his famous speed ball as well as the baffling change of pace that has helped him keep the peak and rule as one of the marvels of the national game despite nearly a score of years in big league service.

Pirates Baffled

The Pirates trained their biggest guns on "Old Barney" but they couldn't find the range except for the one stroke put through by Traynor who altogether got two of the five safe blows obtained off Johnson and figured as the only successful gunner of the Pittsburgh firing line. The others found a mark occasionally but their aim was not true, more often they punched in vain at the air, for Johnson, among his ten strike out victims, twice numbered Kiki Cuyler, Clyde Barnhart and Glenn Wright—Three of the heaviest weapons in the Pittsburgh attack.

Johnson occasionally faced prospective trouble, he was a bit wild at times, but he was always mightiest in the pinches. He faced his biggest threat in the ninth inning, when the Pirates got two men on base with only one out but Traynor and Wright could no nohting but lift his shoots aloft for easy outs.

Johnson's brilliant triumph was all the greater for him, for it marked the first full game he had pitched to victory in a world's series. Last fall, after eighteen long years of waiting, it seemed that this was to be denied to "Barney" when the Giants beat him back in his first two starts, after which he came back to gain his glory by pitching the decisive part of the final game. Today, Johnson carried on where he left off last October, but this time he had his full measure of triumphant achievement. The years had rolled back for his good right arm and he was the Barney of old, a bit seasoned and more resourceful, but showing the same effectiveness of his prime.

Big Train Reigns Supreme

Johnson towered above everything else in today's game. The courageous pitching of his rival, Meadows; the sparkling fielding of the Pirates, particularly by Traynor and Grantham; the heavy hitting of Rice, Joe Harris and Bluege; the colorful enthusiasm of the vast crowd, witnessing its first home world's series struggle in 16 years; the return of the old stars of those halcyon days—Wagner, Fred Clarke, Babe Adams, all this paled beside the dominating force of Johnson.

But the "big train" needed all his cunning to turn back this spectacular young Pirate band and he was well supported by his own mates, who again proved their ability as a combination to rise to their best at big moments.

Joe Harris, whose bat was added this season to the Washington attack, would have shared almost equally with Johnson in the day's honors had Barney been able to avert Traynor's homer and the only Pirate run. For it was Harris, succeeding Earl McNeely in the outfield, who banged out a homer that put the Senators in the lead and it was the same Harris who started the fifth inning rally and paved the way for the decisive batting stroke of the game—A sinshing single by Sam Rice with the bases full and two out, that brought over a brace of runs and clinched the battle.

Meadows Weakens

Rice's smash was the climax of the game's most dramatic moment and came just as it seemed that Meadows, twirling with all the skill at his command, seemed about to pitch himself out of his worst hole.

It looked like Meadow's finish in this inning, when Joe Harris, Bluege and Peck rattled off singles in quick succession to fill the bases with none out but the be-spectacled veteran steadied in the crisis and fanned Ruel and Johnson in quick order.

There was a deafening roar from the crowd when Rice swung and missed the first pitch, marking the seventh successive strike scored by Meadows. A wide one, then a second strike came over but Rice caught the next one and shot it over second, just off the flying reach of Eddie Moore.

Joe Harris and Bluege crossed the plate and although Meadows quickly retired Stan Harris for the third out, then turned the Senators back in order through the next three innings, the big damage had been done. There was a final sortie in the ninth, when Goose Goslin, facing Morrison, singled, was sacrificed by Judge and scored on Bluege's second hit but this was an anticlimax.

Except for Traynor's homer in the fifth and their eleventh hour threat in the ninth, the Pirates were easily subdued. The National leagures had their chances to break through, for Carey twice got to base after being hit by pitched balls. Meadows walked on Johnson's only pass and Grantham got to first on a wild throw by "Peck" in the fifth, but Johnson and his mates put up an insurmountable barrier.

Traynor and Grantham Star

Defensive laurels, however, for the most part belonged to the Pirates, with attacking honors going to Washington where pre-series predictions had largely been based on a reverse situation. Traynor and Grantham, particularly, shone in the field for the buccaneers, the former making a remarkable diving catch of a line drive Ruel that cut off at least a two-base hit, while Grantham speared Goslin's smoking wallop in the fourth and converted it into a double play with Stan Harris far off base.

Cuyler and Carey Cut Down

The Pirates much vaunted speed, too, was mostly checked, although Grantham did steal second in the fifth. But Carey was nipped by Ruel trying to pilfer in the first inning and Cuyler, another speed merchant, was trapped and run down off first in the fourth inning.

Aldridge vs. Coveleskie Today

Tomorrow, Washington will send its other right-handed ace, Stanley Coveleskie, to the mound in an effort to make it two straight while the Pirates are expected to rely on Vic Aldridge, another star-board moundsman.

WORLD'S SERIES BRIEFS

(By The A. P.)

As a team the senators batted .250 against Meadows, while the Pirates had to be content with a meager .166 against Johnson's smoke ball.

So effective was Johnson against the sluggers of Bill McKechnie that outside "Pie" Traynor, who slapped out a home run, only three Pirates got as far as second base and none reached third.

The big smoke fanned ten Pirates, Cuyler, Barnhart and Wright succumbing twice each by this route. Only Moore, Traynor and Smith of the Regulars escaped the hurrilisting effect of Walter's deceptive offerings.

Stanley Harris showed a nifty piece of baseball strategy when he ordered Johnson to pass Meodaws in the third. The bespeckled tosser was paraded to first with one down and was forced to run the paths when Moore hit into a double play. This effort evidently had its effect on Meadows for he cracked in the fifth and four singles, three of them in a row, netted the world's champions a pair of counters.

Max Carey will be lucky to last the series. The veteran outfielder caught the full smoke of Walter's fast one on his right elbow in the first inning and went down for nine. Walter found his other elbow in the ninth but Max came up smiling from this one with the remark that Walter was evidently losing his speed.

Joe Harris and "Pi" Traynor divided the batting laurels. Each poked out a home run and a single in four time up. Sam Rice garnered a pair of singles for a .500 average, while Oscar Bluege split his hits with his strikeouts for a .500 mark.

Grantham's catch of Goslin's screeching liner in the fourth, which resulted in adouble play, was the most scintillating piece of fielding during the game. The former Cub dived to the right and speared the drive, doubling Manager Harris at first. Traynor almost matched this achievement when he committed larceny on "Muddy" Ruel's liner a foot inside third base. Both exhibitions gave the Pirate rooters a chance to applaud and they did it spontaneously.

The press box was choked with players wh oturned scribes for the series. John McGraw, Honus Wagner, Ty Cobb nad Babe Ruth all sat in the free section to analyze the game from a technical viewpoint.

"Stuffy" McInnis' role in the opening game was as brief as Walter Johnson could possibly make it. The former Philadelphia and Boston initial sacker came up in the ninth swinging a bludgeon for Meadows. The big smoke burned over a trio and "Stuffy" spun thrice and sat down.

Meadows almost pulled out of his trouble in the fifth. With the bases saturated with Washington runners he fanned Ruel and Johnson in quick order but Sam Rice upset the gorgied hurler with a neat single which scored a pair of runs.

Commissioner Landis watched the game from a box on the third base side with his veteran chin resting comfortably on a pair of official fists. A high foul was the only factor which caused the baseball generalissimo to shift his position to save his official chin from a baseball trade mark.

The Senators' first hit was a home run from Joe Harris' bat. It struck the top of the gate between the temporary stands in right center and Pittsburgh players said that it would have been good for three bases had the new structures not been there.

Muddy Ruel failed on several occasions to hold the shoots of Johnson, yet not once did his erring permit Pittsburgh to gain a base.

There is something unusual for world's series play in the fact that two men of speed, Rice of Washington and Cuyler of Pittsburgh, were trapped off first base in one case. Meadows caught Rice flat-footed and Ruel returned the jab with Cuyler as the victim.

Carey failed to lift his bat from his shoulder while Johnson shot across three "hooks" in the fourth.

Peckinpaugh appeared to have little trouble with his weak ankle, but had the only error of the contest, an overthrow to Grantham in the fifth.

"I don't want to have my picture taken with those two old men," said Babe Ruth as photographers lined him up with Babe Adams and Johnson before the contest. One of them proved later that he is not so old.

After 16 years Tyrus Cobb of Detroit returned to Forbes field. In 1909 he was one of the Detroiters fighting vainly for the world's title. Now he is covering the series for newspapers. Two seats away from Cobb sat an old foe, Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh's great shortstop of years agone.

AGGIES MEET MAINE IN FIRST HOME GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Oct. 7—The Connecticut Aggies will play their first home game of the season next Saturday, when the University of Maine eleven will be met at Storrs. It will be the third game of the season for the Aggies, and it looks like another tough assignment for Coach Dole's men.

Work so far this week has been light, until today, as several of the first team recivd injuries in the New York University game from which they have not fully recovered. A spirited scrimmage was held this afternoon, however, and Dole held his men for a long session. The defensive work of the team was off considerably in last Saturday's game, and Dole devoted a large part of the time in today's workout to correcting the faults displayed in this respect. Using a second team line, Dole rerimmaged his varsity backfield against the varsity line. Much improvement was shown in the work of the linemen, and the varsity backs were unable to gain ground with any degree of consistency.

At the present time it is impossible to foretell what lineup Dole will use against the Maine eleven. Eddy Schofield and Makofski, all regular backfield men, have injuries that may prevent them from playing. Nanfeldt, husky tackle, has a bad knee that may keep him out of the contest.

For the convenience of eastern Connecticut people who want to attend the Connecticut Aggies game this fall the athletic authorities at Storrs have made arrangements with the George B. Madden Co., of Norwich, to sell reserved seat tickets. Those for the Maine game are now on sale, and this will enable eastern Connecticut fans to secure good seats in advance. New bleachers have been erected on Gardner Dow field at Storrs, and with plenty of seats available, all is in readiness for Connecticut's first home game of the 1925 season.

FABER DAY WITH FRIBERG AT JEWETT CITY SUNDAY

The biggest baseball attraction in eastern Connecticut this season will be staged at Ashland park Sunday where the Ashland A. A., with "Bernie" Friberg of the Philadelphia Nationals and "Joe" Faber meets the famous own Talks of Worcester.

Sunday will be "Faber day" at Jewett City and the local boy, who has been playing wonderful ball in the minor leagues for the last three seasons will be honored by the fans of his home town.

Every one knows that the little borough of Jewett City never does anything by halves so they can be assured that Joe will receive a valuable gift.

Through Andrew McNicol, a personal friend of Bernie Friberg of the Philadelphia Nationals, the services of the well known major leaguer have been secured for Sunday and he will be seen at first base for Ashland.

World series return- play by play will be announced by radio on the field at 2 p. m.

Last Sunday was the largest crowd of the season, about 1000 people attended the game, so arrangements will be made to handle twice that many Sunday. Early arrivals will get a good seat, see the boys practice, and get the world series returns at 2 o'clock sharp.

The game will be called at 2.30.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON, DEAN OF PITCHERS, ANSWERS CALL OF THE SUPREME UMPIRE

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Christy Mathewson, "Big Six" of baseball and president and part owner of the Boston Braves, died here at 11 o'clock tonight.

Death, according to his physician, Dr. Edward N. Packard, was due to tuberculosis pneumonia.

Until several days ago Mathewson was in excellent condition, his friends here were told, and his death was unexpected.

Mrs. Mathewson, who has been in constant attendance at the bedsire of her husband ever since he was forced to give up active participation in the affairs of the Boston club, was with Mathewson when he died. His son, Christy Mathewson Jr., is at college.

Christy Mathewson, idol of the nation's baseball fandom over a span of more than two decades, and one of the greatest pitcers the game has ever known, was a symbol of the highest type of American sportsmanship.

Running the full gamut of baseball fame, first as a playing star, later as a coach and manager, Mathewson left the game to answer a greater call during the world war; subsequently fought and won a battle for his life, threatened by the after effects of his service, and then capped the climax of his diamond career by returning as part owner and president of a major league club.

But after all the remarkable achievements of Mathewson's career are recounted, the greatest tribute of all will be paid to his wonderful pitching skill. For on the mound he was a master craftsman, the most consummate and brilliant artist of all time, in the opinion of many of the game's closest students.

"Big Six," — a sobriquet contracted from "Big Six Footer"—started his major league career with the New York Giants in 1900, and it was during his seventeen seasons with that club that he carved a lasting niche for himself in the twirling hall of fame. Later he became manager for two and a half years of the Cincinnati Reds; served as a captain in the chemical warfare arm of the American expeditionary force during the world war; returned from the service to rejoin his old team-mates, the Giants, as a coach; and retired from the game temporarily in 1920, when his health was dangerously impaired. He came back, again hale and hearty, in February 1923, to accept the presidency and part ownership of the Boston nationals.

A graduate of Bucknell college, where he was both a football and baseball star, Mathewson broke into the professional game with the Taunton, Mass., club of the New England league in 1899, receiving a salary of $80 a month for his first season. He lost his first start by a score of 6 to 5 to the Manchester, N. H., club. During the season he won but two and lost nine games; lack of control — a fault he did not overcome for several years—handicapping his effectiveness.

Mathewson, however, was not long in attracting major league attention. Playing with Norfolk, in the Virginia league, in 1900, he won 21 out of 23 games, and was obtained by the Giants who turned him back, after a brief try-out, for more seasoning with the southern club. Later the same year he was drafted by Cincinnati, but soon afterward was sent to the Giants in a deal by which the Reds secured Amos Rusie.

Matty's first major league appearance was in the role of relief pitcher in a game lost by the Giants in Brooklyn. He had but indifferent success as a pitcher and utility player until 1902, when John J. Graw succeeded Horace Fogel as manager of the Giants. "Big Six" was playing first base at the time, but McGraw quickly recognized his pitching ability and took him in hand. His strides toward greatness dated from that period.

Feats of pitching brilliance too numerous to catalogue filled Matty's record during the dozen years in which he ranked consistently among the most effective twirlers in the major leagues.

He was a prominent factor in the pennant victories of the Giants in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912 and 1913; he twirled two no-hit games, one against the St. Louis Cardinals, in 1901, and the second against the Chicago Cubs, in 1905; he held jointly with "Cy" Young and Grover Cleveland Alexander. A major league record of winning more than 30 games three seasons in a row; but his greatest achievement was in the world's series of 1905 when he pitched three shut out victories against the Philadelphia Americans.

McGraw ranks Mathewson's feat in the 1905 series as the greatest in his memory. All five games in that series were shut-outs, Joe McGinnity twirling the fourth victory for the Giants while "Chief" Bender blanked the Giants for the only triumph scored by the Mackmen.

Mathewson had the misfortune to lose two of the most important games of his career, the play-off contest with the Chicago Cubs for the pennant in 1908 and the deciding game of the world's series with the Boston Red Sox in 1912. Breaks of the game played a big part in both defeats. Misjudgment of a fly by Cy Seymour, Giant outfielder, was blamed for the defeat by the Cubs while a costly error by Fred Snodgrass turned the tide against the Giants and Matty in the struggle with the Red Sox.

Mordecai (Three-fingered) Brown of the cubs was Matty's greatest rival on the mound and the two had many stirring duels. Brown was Matty's opponent when the latter pitched his no-hit game against the Cubs in 1905 but conquered his New York rival in the famous 1908 play-off game. It was related that one season when the Giants and Cubs were battling for first place, President Taft, an ardent fan, had his private car attached to the train bearing the New York team to Chicago in order to see Mathewson and Brown oppose each other in the opening game of a series.

Oddly enough, both of these great pitchers, closed their major league careers as players by opposing each other in a game on September 4, 1916. Mathewson then was manager of Cincinnati, and the Reds won, 10 to 3, both "old masters" being hit freely.

Mathewson suffered a shoulder injury in 1914 which virtually ended his career as a regular on the mound. He pitched infrequently thereafter and persuaded McGraw to let him go to Cincinnati during the middle of 1916 to fulfill his managerial ambition. In the deal by which Matty went to the Reds, the Giants also gave Eddie Roush and William McKechnie in exchange for "Buck" Herzog, retiring Cincinnati leader, and Wade Killifer. The Reds finished last in 1916 but improved rapidly under Matty's leadership, landing fourth place in 1917 and third place the following year, his last with the club.

Mathewson responded to the call to war at the close of the abbreviated season of 1918 and served with distinction overseas. He returned to become a coach with the Giants, holding that post until 1920, when he became seriously ill from the effects of being "gassed" during the war and faced a battle for his life with tuberculosis.

Displaying the courage which won him many diamond victories, Matty fought and won the battle for his health during nearly three years of treatment at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Pronounced practically cured, he returned to New York in the fall of 1922 to witness the world's series triumph of his old team-mates, the Giants over the New York Yankees.

Restored in health, Mathewson was eager to get back into the game and when early in 1923, an old friend and admirer, Emil E. Fuchs, prominent New York attorney, engineered a deal by which a New York syndicate obtained control of the Boston Braves from George W. Grant. "Big Six" was persuaded to take the club presidency.

Mathewson thus took his place with the few playing stars who rose to executive power in the game, a list which included Charles Comiskey, of the Chicago White Sox; Clark Griffith, of Washington; Branch Rickey, of the St. Louis Cardinals; John McGraw, of the New York Giants; Jimmy McAleer, A. G. Spalding and John M. Ward.

Mathewson, baseball experts agreed, possessed all the attributes of a brilliant moundsman as well as those of a great athlete—natural skill, keen knowledge of the sport, generalship and coolness under fire. One of the most popular figures in the history of the game, among players and fans alike, "Big Six" also was a hero and idol to the army of youthful followers of the national pastime.

"Matty was without a peer, either before or since the days he was at the height of his greatness," declared McGraw at one time in paying tribute to the pitcher.

"He had a greater variety of stuff than any pitcher I ever knew or handled," he continued. "His fast ball was the equal of Walter Johnson's or Amos Rusie's; his curve rivaled Nan Rucker's; he had the 'fadeway' down to perfection; and he utilized his knowledge of batsmen with greater effect than any twirler in the game. He possessed wonderful control, remarkable fielding ability, and was one of the finest sportsmen the game has ever known."

ASSOCIATED PRESS SETS FOUR NEW WIRE RECORDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—When the baseball players of the Pittsburgh and Washington teams lined up and the umpire called out "play ball" The Associated Press broke four records in order to fulfill its part in the program.

It operated the longest single telegraph circuit on record. Never before had so many operators worked on a single wire. More player scoreboards were linked to the wire than at any other time, and for the first time in history 80 broadcasting stations premeated the air with reports received over the same wire.

The entire leased wire system of The Associated Press, linking up more than 400 cities throughout the United States and extending into Eastern Canada and Cuba, was connected directly into the Pittsburgh ball park. The telegraph signals transmitted from the par traversed more than 46,500 miles as they found their way to the various newspaper offices the country over. At the same time 80 broadcasting stations and 150 player score boards were also connected to the wire. The operation of the circuit was carried out without mishap.

The largest force of press telegraph operators in the world gave their undivided attention to the operation of the wire as the game progressed. More than 800 of them were assigned to the work of copying the telegraph flashes of the one A. P. operator at the ball field, who clicked off the plays dictated to him by the reports. No loophole was left uncovered in the supervision of the service and 80 men in the various relay bureaus, in addition to the force of the telegraph company concentrated their attention on the signals going over the wire so as to prevent the possibility of delay which might be caused by any one of the 800 connections.

With the first signal sent over the wire went the order "no breaking" which meant that 800 men knew they had to translate every dot and dash without interrupting the man at the ball park. This required their closest attention to the work during the entire period. The wire never was permitted to remain idle for a second. When the operator had nothing to send he continued transmitting a set signal which indicated to every operator that the wire was functioning perfectly.

GIRL JOCKEYS TO RIDE IN ENGLISH CLASSIC

NEW MARKET, England, Oct. 7 (AP)—Four girl jockeys, one of them still in her teens and wearing her hair in braids done up under her jockey cap, will participate in tomorrow's running of the town plate race, one of the oldest events in English turfdom.

There will be about a dozen starters in the race, several of them owned by women. Three of the girl jockeys, Miss Iris Rickaby, Miss Jane Vaughan and Miss Betty Tanner, have ridden as jockeys at Newmarket before. Miss Rickaby last year finishing fourth in this event. The fourth, Miss Margie Joel, is just out of school. She is a daughter of S. B. Joel, a well-known turfman, and her father has great hopes that she will win. She is the only one of the four wearing long hair, the other three all having bobs.

The race is over a four-mile course. It was instituted by King Charles II. and endowed by him in perpetuity.

And Mrs. Cassriel eliminated Miss Dorothy Klots of the home club, 2 and 1.

ALEXANDER AND BLACKENSHIP BATTLE NINETEEN INNINGS IN CHICAGO SERIES

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(A. P.)—The White Sox and Cubs battled to a nineteen inning draw today in the first game of the city series with the score two to two. Darkness stopped the contest.

Grover Alexander, the veteran pitcher of the Cubs, was pitted against Ted Blankenship, the young cowboy who outpitched the Cubs ace, both pitchers going the entire route.

Alexander was touched for twenty hits, ten coming after the twelfth inning when he showed signs of weakening. Blankenship improved as he progressed, the Cubs making only two hits after the tenth inning. He gave his rivals only eleven for the entire game.

The White Sox scored first when they bunched three hits with an error by Maranville for two runs. The Cubs scored one run in the fourth on Freigau's triple and Jahn's single, and tied the score in the fifth on singles by Maranville and Hartnett and a sacrifice fly by Alexander.

The game was one of the best played in Chicago in years and was the longest game played during the season. The scene of battle will shift to the Cubs' park, home of the National Leaguers.

Ike Davis, White Sox shortstop will be out of the game for the rest of the series as a result of an injured knee. The score:

Score by innings:

0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2

McKECHNIE AND HARRIS PRAISE JOHNSON'S PITCHING

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 7 (AP)—Bill McKechnie of the Pirates and Stanley Harris of the Senators, rival managers in the world's series, agreed upon one thing at the close of today's first contest, and that is that all credit must go to Walter (Barney) Johnson.

"The honors go to Johnson for his superior pitching," McKechnie said. "I believe that my ball club is just as good as Washington's but we just couldn't hit; there was no tough luck about it. Johnson was bearing down and he had good control. Moreover, there were several breaks that went against us, but these are to be expected in baseball. The team that gets them will win.

"I am not a bit discouraged at the result of today's contest and I am sure that the boys will fight all the harder for tomorrow's game. To me it was only another ball game in which an opposing pitcher had one of his remarkably good days."

Harris was all smiles at the end.

"How'd you like that game, wasn't Barney great? Didn't we play good baseball?"

The questions ran off the young manager's tongue in a steady stream and there could be no doubt that he was just as delighted as he said he was.

"Winning of the first game of a world's series would tickle anybody," he said, perhaps looking back upon the reverse at the hands of the Giants in New York a year ago. "Barney pitched wonderfully and he mixed them up. You should see his hand—swollen to almost twice its size from the way he gripped the ball. Barney was out to win and there was no stopping him.

"Don't forget Sam Rice in that fifth inning. We filled the bases on singles only to see Meadows put on steam and strike out Ruie and Johnson. Sam came to the plate with three men on and two out, took two strikes and a ball himself and then slashed a single into center to score the two runs which won the ball game. Meadows in a big hole, managed to get across eight strikes, but the spirit of Rice, always fighting it out, gave us the needed hit.

"The boys are joyful over the outlook although they realize that such players as Traynor and Grantham, who showed exceptional defensive ability today, may give them plenty of trouble. Traynor is a dangerous batsman.

"Tomorrow I will send Coveleskie after the record game here. The muscles of his back, strained some time ago, appear to be in shape."

LOUISVILLE TROUNCES ORIOLES IN FIFTH SERIES GAME

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 7.—(A. P.)—A ringing home run drive from the bat of Shannon, Louisville shortstop, that landed far up in the right field bleachers, with the bases full in the first inning, spelled defeat today for the Baltimore International champions in the fifth game of the junior world series. Coupled with the masterly brand of pitching uncorked by Joe DeBerry, the Colonel's right hand ace, these runs were more than enough to defeat the Dunnmen. The final score was 7 to 1.

Fritz Maisel gained what little glory fell to the lot of the Orioles, when he lifted one of DeBerry's fast ones over the centerfield wall for the only score off the big Kentuckian. The game was enlivened a bit in the Baltimore half of the eighth when Comet Archdeacon, Bird centerfielder took exception to a third strike called by Umpire Connelly, teammates seized him before any damage was done but the fiery little fielder was banished from the game.

Anderson sparkled in the field, for Louisville, with two circus catches in the left.

Louisville now leads in the series to date with three victories to two for Baltimore. The teams split the four games played earlier at Louisville. Another game will be played here tomorrow. About 8,000 witnessed today's conflict. The score:

Score by innings:

Two base hits, Anderson, Tyson, Cotter, 2. Home runs, Shannon, Maisel. Stolen bases, Archdeacon. Sacrifices, Anderson, Betzel, Shannon. Double plays, McKee to Brainard; Ruer to McKee; Shannon to Cotter; Boley to Brainard to Sheedy. Left on bases, Louisville 5; Baltimore 7. Bases on balls, off Thomas 4; off DeBerry 2; off Jackson 1. Struck out, by Thomas 5; by DeBerry 7. Hits, off Thomas 9 in 8 innings; Jackson none in 1 inning. Losing pitcher Thomas. Umpires, Connelly and Magerkurth.

MOOSUP-WAUREGAN SERIES BEGINS AT MOOSUP SUNDAY

The rivalry between Moosup and Wauregan in the coming series is at a high pitch and what promises to be one of the hottest contests of the season will take place when these two teams face each other next Sunday on the carpet grounds.

Henry Amidon has been secured to replace Loughran as manager of the Moosup team. Loughran resigned the managership after last Sunday's game.

Manager Amidon needs no introduction to the baseball fans of this vicinity and the sporting public can rest assured that the team which will face Wauregan next Sunday will be as good as can be secured.

By all reports from Wauregan Manager Amidon will have to step some to take the first game as the boys from the other part of the town have been out and secured an entirely new team.

ONEY THINKS HE GOT A RAW DEAL SUNDAY

Manager Oney of the St. Joseph's team has a long tail of woe to tell about the tie game played at the Duwell field last Sunday. First, he criticizes the Sachem scorer whose box score, he claims, was altogether wrong. Next he makes a mean dig at Umpire Gross who officiated at the game. In Oney's own words "Gross was rotten." Outside of these few differences the game was all right and Oney would like to play the same team again this coming Sunday.

DUGAS ALL STARS WANT GAME WITH TAFTVILLE A. A.

Chip Dugas and Jimmy Murphy have rounded up a real aggregation of ball players and now are after a game with Jim Troland's youthful wonders. Troland has been saying so much about his club that Dugas is out to show the public that the Taftville A. A. is only a mediocre ball club that has been overrated. The All Star manager has secured the J. B. Martin diamond for Sunday and says to the Taftville A. A. that it si up to them to prove things.

CAPACITY CROWD EXPECTED AT YALE-PENN GAME

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7 (AP)—Prediction that the Yale-Pennsylvania football classic on October 17 would fill the bowl here, bringing 80,000 to see the game, was made tonight by H. F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic association. This prediction was made following a request received from Pennsylvania for an extra allotment of tickets. Seventy-three thousand tickets have been issued to the Yale and Pennsylvania alumni and students, leaving but 7,000 for the public sale which begins Monday.

WASHINGTON TAKES VICTORY OF SENATORS VERY QUIETLY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Washington took the victory of the Senators over the Pittsburgh Pirates very calmy tonight—in marked contrast with the hysterical scenes of last year when a pennant winning team was a novelty to the national capital.

Shortly after the opening of Wednesday morning's session of the superior court here, the plaintiff rested in the case of Edwin A. Vennard vs. Harold H. Libme, being tried before Judge Antonio A. Capotosto and a jury. Vennard was called by Attorney H. W. Rathbun again for a short cross-examination on a few facts which had been brought out in the testimony of Dr. Edwin R. Lewis, who was on the stand Tuesday and testified as to his treating Vennard after the latter was released from the hospital.

Vennard was cross-examined on his statement concerning his not being able to see out of his right eye after the accident occurred. Asked about an examination made to test his eyes 10 days ago with a letter chart, Vennard said he did not tell Dr. Lewis he could see the letters E, C and B on the chart. Later Vennard said he did see the letters with his right eye.

After the plaintiff rested, Attorney Rathbun asked if counsel for the plaintiff objected to an examination of Vennard at this time. Attorney Rathbun said the accident was very largely due to the gross negligence of Vennard and a verdict will be asked for the defendant.

Lieut. H. Russell Burdick, a local photographer, testified as to taking several pictures at the location of the accident and photos of the Libme Packard and the Vennard motorcycle on Sept. 24, 1924.

Harold Hergelor Libme took the stand and testified that the Packard automobile was in the same condition the day after the accident as immediately after it occurred. Libme said that the machine was taken to the police station for some time and then to the garage at their home.

The testimony of Dr. E. R. Lewis and Amos Broadmeadow, in charge of the U. S. coast guard station, Watch Hill, where Vennard was a surfman, closed the evidence for the plaintiff Tuesday.

The condition of Annie, wife of Wilfred M. Brown of Stonington, injured Monday when the Buick touring car she was driving pitched off the road between North Billerica and Central Billerica, Mass., after skidding on slippery leaves was reported from St. John's hospital in Lowell, Mass., as very favorable at noon Wednesday. She is suffering with four broken ribs and a broken wrist. Unless complications set in, it is expected her recovery will be rapid and complete. Her son Henry, also a passenger in the wrecked car, who was uninjured, is still with her. The body of her mother, Mrs. Edward E. Bradley, was taken to Stonington Tuesday afternoon, and it was announced Wednesday that funeral services, which will be private, will be held there today (Thursday).

New Light Hair Shampoo Restores Sparkle to Dull Blonde Hair

When light hair is washed with ordinary shampoos it has a tendency to fade, streak or darken. Unless it is given the most careful attention, it soon loses its natural golden beauty and becomes drab and unattractive. For that reason blondes should always use a special shampoo. Blondex, the new shampoo for blondes only, keeps light hair from darkening. And it actually brings back the original golden sparkle to even the dullest, most faded blonde hair. Makes the hair delightfully soft, silky and fluffy. Highly beneficial to the scalp. Now used by over 200,000. Fine for children's hair. Not a dye. Money instantly refunded if you are not delighted. It was proposed to have another picnic at Mason's Island. A well written paper by Miss Lilling Miner was read by her sister, Mrs. C. D. Holmes. It minutely described the beautifying of a lawn and garden, giving in detail all the flowers and shrubs and the arranging of the vegetable garden with flowers to make it attractive as well as supplying the family with fresh fruits and vegetables. Each one was asked to bring little packages of flower seeds for exchange and when these were all placed on the table it looked as though the seed men would sell very few in the spring, for a large number of many varieties was brought. Special music by the choir and solos with auto-harp accompaniment by Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith is not an ordained minister and never held the pastorate of a church, though he holds a license as a local preacher in the Methodist denomination. As a young man he trained for a musical career but later gave it up in favor of business and became paymaster in one of the large mills in a Maine city. After his conversion the demand for his services became so insistent that he resigned. Under the auspices of the New England Evangelistic association he soon won his way to the front ranks as an evangelist, singer and preacher and his time is well filled with engagements in all parts of New England in large city churches as well as in smaller communities. MISS GROSE, T. M. M. TEACHER FALLS FROM BEDROOM WINDOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 7—Sarah Louise Grose, a teacher at Tourtellotte Memorial high school, North Grosvenordale fell from her bedroom window Tuesday afternoon, a distance of fifteen feet. She was rendered unconscious, and remained so during the evening and night, at Day Kimball hospital where she was taken after the accident. A nerve specialist from Boston was sent for and arrived during the night; but as far as could be determined then, she was not in a dangerous condition. She revived this morning and aside from severe bruises does not appear to have suffered serious injuries. She was kept quiet during the day and has not been questioned, but it is surmised that she leaned too far out of the window of her room in the Teacherage, which adjoins the school, and lost her balance.

She had taught only one day having arrived at the school Monday from Boston. She is a graduate of Vassar and of the University of California. Miss Arnold, dean emeritus of Simmons college, Boston, is her aunt.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Looks Up Johnny Chuck

Who e'er an easy mind doth keep
Will seldom suffer lack of sleep.
—Johnny Chuck.

Peter Rabbit had run over to the Old Orchard to see how Johnny Chuck and Polly Chuck were getting along. He found them taking a sun bath on their own doorstep and looking so fat that Peter wondered how they could breath. Their children had left home to go out into the Great World and Polly and Johnny now had no one to think of but themselves. To Peter it had always been a mystery how they dared go to sleep and sleep all winter. He couldn't understand it.

"Why when I sleep, I sleep with both ears open," said Peter to himself after he had thought things over. "At the least little sound I am awake. But those two go down into their bedrooms, curl up and sleep so soundly that they could be dragged out without being wakened. I should think that they would be afraid that Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote would come in and eat them while they are asleep."

"Good morning Johnny," said Peter as he came hopping up. "You and Polly are looking just as fine as ever and a little finer. I suppose you are making the most of the sunshine before going asleep for the winter. You folks puzzle me."

"How so, Peter, how so?" demanded Johnny Chuck.

"By not being worried over going to sleep," said Peter.

"Why should we worry?" Johnny asked looking very much puzzled.

"Well," said Peter, "I understand you sleep very soundly."

Johnny nodded his head. "What of that?" said he.

"I should think that you would be afraid that Reddy Fox might come and find you while you are sleeping that way," said Peter.

Johnny shook his head. "I don't worry about that at all," said he. "I've lived a long time and Reddy Fox has never been in while I've been asleep." Peter grinned. "You wouldn't have lived a long time if he had," said he. "But if he hasn't, why hasn't he?"

It was Johnny Chuck's turn to grin. "You'll have to ask Reddy," said he. "Yes, sir, you will have to ask Reddy Fox."

"I suppose," said Peter. "It is because you have your doorway between stones and roots and the opening isn't big enough for him to get through."

"That may have something to do with it sometimes," said Johnny. "Still I have had a home right out in the open where it was easy digging and I spent the winter in that hole. Polly here has done the same thing. No Peter, we don't worry when we go to sleep. The only time we worry is when we are not fat enough. But we won't have that to worry about this year. If Polly gets much fatter she won't be able to see."

"Polly isn't any fatter than you are," declared Peter

"Polly isn't any fatter than you are," declared Peter. "I'm almost afraid to sit side of you."

"Why?" demanded Johnny.

"For fear you'll blow up," said Peter. Johnny tried to laugh, but he was so fat the best he could do was to chuckle. "It won't be long now," said he, "before we shut outselves in."

"What do you mean by shut yourselves in?" demanded Peter quickly.

"Oh," said Johnny, "that's just my way of speaking. What I mean is that it is almost time for us to retire for the winter. I find I'm getting so sleepy these days that it is all I can do to keep awake at all. Really, Peter, you ought to try spending the winter as Polly and I do. It would save you a lot of worry and discomfort."

"And I'd lose a lot of fun," declared Peter. "Well, so long Johnny. I'll try to see you again before you go to sleep for the winter.

GAVE REPORT FROM C. E. CONVENTION IN OREGON

The president, Arthur Avery, was in charge of the Young Peoples' Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening at the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, when the speaker was Miss Gertrude A. Ladd of Hanover, president of Norwich Christian Endeavor Union. She told of her experiences while attending the thirtieth international C. E. convention, held at Portland, Oregon, from Saturday, July 4 to Thursday, July 9.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Gurdon F. Baily, after which President Avery intr duced Miss Ladd, who said in substance: All trains coming into Portland were met by city officials as well as Endeavors. I had the honor of shaking hands with the mayor of Portland, George L. Baker. Dr. Clark (father Endeavor) was met by Mayor Baker, the chief of police, also the chief of the fire department. Their's was an honorary welcome. One of the things which impressed me most was the co-operation between the church and the city officials. Dr. Clark also spoke of this fact and said: In the history of Christian Endeavor no convention city had ever co-operated as much as Portland had to make the convention a success, and the delegates welcome. The Saturday and Sunday meetings were held in the Multnomak field while the other sessions were held in the Municipa Auditorium. There were 3,500 delegates from east of the Rockies, and other states and Canada. Four states were absent at the roll call Thursday evening. These were South Dakota, New Mexico, West Virginia and Rhode Island.

Saturday evening all delegates assembled at the field for the opening session, where addresses of welcome were given by George W. M. Pierce, Mayor George L. Baker, Rev. E. H. Pence, D. D., and Judge Jacob Kenyon. Prior to their addresses Percy Foster, a busy bank president of Lansing, Mich., led the praise service, in which over 10,000 voices joined in the familiar hymns of the church. Governor Pinchot spoke after singing by the convention chorus which was selected from the Portland churches and ably directed by Dr. F. W. McMichael, also of Portland. Governor Pinchot said he was asked that he thought of Christian Endeavor. "I thought enough of C. E.," said he, "to cross the continent that night, address you Endeavorers tonight."

Sunday morning delegates were guests of the Portland church which they wished to attend. Sunday evening Percy Foster led the praise service, as he did before each session. Mr. McAfee of Berkeley, Cal., spoke on "Our Friends For Christ." He said: "The normal way is to tell our experiences. We should train ourselves so that it will be normal to talk of Christ. We should practice the presence of Christ. Dr. Petty of New York spoke on "The Community For Christ." He said: "We cannot win men to Christ until we show Christ to them."

James Kelly, president of the European C. E., said: "Not since 1914 has Europe been so tense. The only hope for Europe is C. E. societies. The world convention is invited to London in 1926 with the hope that it will stimulate and encourage the Endeavorers." Dr. Foulker of Cleveland closed this session, saying: "The disciples gathered together in prayer and fellowship until they were one. War can be removed by fellowship."

E. P. Gates spoke of Christian Endeavor as the largest fraternity in the world, with over 4,000,000 members. Christian Endeavor gets along with the smallest budget, it trains in parliamentary law, it tries to make young people more loyal to the church, it gives every one a chance to try, it is organized from the bottom up. A union has no authority over a society. Anything in the organization may be changed to meet local needs. Get the habit of saying thank you for volunteer service; you can find something to praise in every one, the speaker said.

Carrol Wright suggested silent prayers with suggested topics, or to silently pray as pianists softly play such hymns as "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go," or "I Need Thee Every Hour." He said: "We are more concerned with public appearance than private devotion." Carleton Sherwood of New York led a discussion on Amusements, when he said: "Tell me what a young person does after 7 p. m. and I'll tell you what kind of a person they are. We must be careful to make our pla. time re-creation, not wreck-reation. After much discussion these three guides were left for our aid: First, Is it right for us? Does it have bad influence? Its ultimate fruits.

Dr. Deek Lay told how prayer by the Des Moines delegates saved the Pima Indians from drought. Rev Abe of Japan said: "The Sunday school, the Young Men's Christian association and the Christian Endeavor were the chief institutions in his country. Rev. Vemeer, also of Japan, made mention of 257 C. E. societies in Japan, all making steady progress.

Dr. Hubbard, the organizer of Christian Endeavor in China 40 years ago, told of there now being 2,538 societies in that land. Mrs. Gorsuch mentioned that Golden Rule Sunday was begun and advanced by Endeavorers. Out of 40,000 families, 25,000 observe Golden Rule Sunday.

Another speaker, James Kelly, who went to Germany 14 months after the Armistice was signed and found them very unfriendly, mentioned that when he visited there in 1924 they were wonderfully Christian in their fellowship. B. F. Irvine, who although blind is editor of the Oregon Daily Journal said: "If Leopold and Leob had been C. E. goers the little Franks boy would never have been so cruelly murdered. Young people don't learn bad habits at C. E. meetings or in Sunday school. All I am and hope to be," said this speaker, "I owe to Christian parents. You young people of today will be the parents of tomorrow."

Miss Ladd mentioned that after 33 years of service Dr. Clark has resigned as president of the United Society of C. E. Dr. Poling has taken that position for which no salary is received. Dr. Poling feels very keenly the responsibilities of his appointment and his love and respect for Dr. Clark when he says Dr. Clark has not and can never have a successor. During Christian Endeavor week every Endeavorer is to have a chance to share in a Dr. Clark fund. This is in an effort to relieve him of financial worries and also to show him how grateful Endeavorers are for his life and movement which he started.

Dr. Poling's closing address at the convention was: "What Is Success?" He said: "Money is not success. Happiness is a by-product of an unselfish life. Love, Work, God; without these three there is no happiness. Success is doing your dead level best."

In closing Miss Ladd said: "Find a task worth while. We can't measure task to the true proportions as God would; but we can do the best of everything. If we do our best, He will be with up to the end.

MANAGER A. L. WEATHERHEAD PRESENTED FAREWELL GIFTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 7—A. Linn Weatherhead, who resigned as manager of the Willimantic exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company to become an active member of the Jordan Hardware Co., in which he, Walter R. King and Nelson A. Daniels have purchased the Jordan interests, was tendered a farewell party in the town hall, Wednesday evening.

The affair was arranged by Willimantic council of the Telephone Employes' Association of Connecticut. Dancing, cards and refreshments featured the evening. On behalf of the local employes and those of the associated exchanges of Stafford Springs and Lebanon and former employes, Miss Florence Curtis, cashier of the local exchange, presented Manager Weatherhead a handsome lounging chair. SILK TARIFF MAKES WOMEN SMUGGLERS MORE CAREFUL

DOVER, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Women are much keener about smuggling silk into England than they were before the passage of the recent tariff. A gown which costs $50 in Paris now carries about $35 in English duty. The same ratio prevails for lingerie and silk stockings, which can be had at a low price in France because of the exchange situation.

Laces and perfumes were the chief articles that English women would try to smuggle in from France, but silk has now leaped to the fore.

Money is the root of the manufacturing plant.

HERE AT LAST IS REAL RELIEF FROM EXCESS FAT!

"I am the shadow of my former self," writes Mrs. N——, beautiful Brooklyn girl. "Silph Reducing Gum is wonderful!"

Silph Reducing Chewing Gum—

latest scientific discovery takes New York by storm—Everyone is chewing it and POUNDS of FAT ARE ROLLING OFF!

No longer need you suffer from excess fat. No longer need you be humiliated by sarcastic looks or remarks. No longer need you starve yourself to distraction or tire yourself out with exercises. With Silph Reducing Chewing Gum, the latest and most wonderful discovery ever made, every man, woman and child can today safely, quickly and easily reduce. Silph Reducing Gum is the result of years of scientific study and experiments—it is different from anything ever advised to take off FAT. It is simple, safe, cheap and easy. It is almost like telling you to eat candies to reduce. It is just as pleasant and as harmless.

Silph Reducing Gum is not a drug nor a laxative—it contains juice extract of sea plants known for years to possess wonderful reducing properties but until now it was impossible to obtain sufficient quantities of these plant extracts to supply a public demand. Today a group of scientists have found a way to obtain it and to incorporate it in a delicious, refreshing chewing gum. When mixed with the gastric juices, through the flow of saliva it eliminates fat forming elements in the system—at the same time it is great for stomach or intestinal trouble. The quick and amazing results already obtained with Silph have simply been overwhelming. Silph sells for 60 cents a box, enough for one week, at all good drug stores. Remember that to "CHEW SILPH IS TO BE SYLPH-LIKE," that's New York's latest slogan.

In case your druggist is out of Silph you can get it from the Silph Medical Co., 9 W. 60th St. N. Y. City. Silph sells for 30c. per box or two full weeks' supply, $1.00.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creoote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Concert.

Probably the finest musical event of the season will be the concert given under the auspices of the Norwich Music association at Slater hall, on Wednesday evening, October 21, by the renowned 'cellist, Maurice Marechal of Paris, France.

Since his appearance here, in 1920, Marechal has made unprecedented progress in his art, until today he ranks with the greatest violincellis of all Europe. He has been soloist for the great orchestras, Lamoureux, Coloune, Socsite des Concerts, and the Societe Philharmonque of Paris, and has played with such pianists as Risler, Jacques Thibaud, Alfred Cotot, and recently with Pablo Casals at Barcelona, receiving everywhere unstinted admiration. The musical critics of the press in various European cities are extravagant in their praise of his ability and his interpretation, even going so far as to call him a genius. One says: "The privilege of hearing such an artist as Marechal is a noteworthy event in the life of any musician. He is a magician of the violincello. Never have we heard any one equal to him. Another: "The great success of the evening went to Maurice Marechal, who was constantly recalled, amid the wildest enthusiasm, which was wholly merited. While he is playing, one feels that nothing exists save the vibrant soul of his violincello. He was obliged to give repeated encores, in response to the insistent cries of "bravo."

Madame Marechal, formerly Miss Lois Perkins, daughter of the late Donald G. Perkins, is to be in Norwich with her husband and it is to be hoped that her many friends will respond to this unusual opportunity.

Tickets available at Cranston's, Oct. 19th, or from Mrs. Robert Perkins, 60 Broad street, or Mrs. Edmund Perkins, 161 Washington street.

Breed Theater

A motion picture best described by its title, The Knockout.

The Knockout which will be shown at the Breed theater beginning Thursday, is the screen version of M. D. C. Crawford's stirring novel of a prize fighter's romance in the Canandian woods. Milton Sills, as the star, finds considerable more opportunity for a display of virile action than in any picture he has appeared in since The Sea Hawk.

Romance, heart interest, comedy, and thrills all are combined in this story of rugged American manhood. It reveals a modern "Gentleman Jim" type of pugilist who goes into the big timber country to recuperate from an injury. He experiences adventures that make his ring career seem tame by comparison.

Dramatic realism is the keynote on which the picture was made. In order that the background might be true to life in the woods, the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau offered all its resources to Hudson during the making of this picture.

The outdoor scenes, which comprise more than 50 per cent of the picture, were taken in the logging districts of the Ottawa river, both on the Ottawa and Quebec sides. Thrilling fight scenes between Sills and a six-foot-seven adversary are among the highlights of the drama.

One of the unusual features of The Knockout is the world's largest log jam. The action of the story called for the jamming of a river with thousands upon thousands of logs, which pile up when a dam is blown up. But nature stepped in and gave the First Nationalites a jam containing more than a million. Within 40 miles of where the company was making scenes for the picture a huge log boom, holding back a million and a quarter logs, broke, and the timber, released into the swift current of the Montreal river, swept down to pile up in a narrow gorge near where the Montreal empties into Ottawa.

The scenes incidental to the blowing up of this jam are guaranteed to thrill even the most blase motion picture goer.

Palace Theater

Rugged Water, the "best-seller" novel by Joseph C. Lincoln, which comes to the Palace theater today is packed with heroic action, quaint humor and wholesome romance. It is a spectacular action-romance of the life-saving service, produced for Paramount by Irvin Willat, who made Wanderer of the Wasteland, the all-color picture; North of 36 and The Air Mail.

Featured in the leading roles of the production, which was written for the screen by James Shelley Hamilton, are Lois Wilson, Warner Baxter, Wallace Beery and Phyllis Haver.

Joseph C. Lincoln's stories sell into the hundreds of thousands and he is as popular in his particular field as Zane Grey is in his. Rugged Water, which is said, as are all this author's tales of the sea, aroun' Cape Cod, opens at Setuckit Life-Saving Station. There is a vacancy in the captain's post and Warner Baxter, playing Number One man of the crew, thinks he is going to get the job, so does everyone else. But a man from a nearby station, the sole survivor of a great sea tragedy in which his entire command was wiped out, is given the appointment.

Baxter, of course is a bit out out, but determines to forget his end of it and continue serving his new Chief as was his custom.

It develops that Capt Bartlett (Beery) has a very beautiful daughter, Norma, played by Miss Wilson. An obliging tide come in and strands her on a reef. Baxter goes to the rescue, and that's the begining of the romance.

Connecticut College Concert

The second concert of the series which will bring to the New London armory two great pianists Harold Bauer and Ossip Gabrilowitsch was accomplished because of several fortunate circumstances. First, the artists being warm personal friends have explored the literature for two pianos and presented an occasional program together. This year they decided to play a series of about ten concerts provided the dates and places could be linked together in a manner to avoid excessive travel. They will come to us from Hartford where they appear the afternoon before. And last, but not least they are each very kindly disposed toward the colleges and were willing to come at a figure which the committee could afford to pay.

Single tickets for the Philharmonic concert October 20, and for all the concerts will be placed on sale October 14th. Course tickets may be purchased up to the hour of the first concert, but a better choice if seats is assured to those who order them prior to the 14th.

POETRY

By ssbois

[illegible] the reeds and pale they were
[illegible] the sunless glass was gray,
[illegible] sluggish coils of marsh water
[illegible] thinly over root and stone;
[illegible] the deep woods there was no day,
[illegible] day within them, shine or sun—

And evermore the cypresses
Against the cold sky rocked and swung,
The lurching of the high, blacy trees,
Their sprawling black tops tossed and flung
Against the sky. She made a hut
Of dripping stone and wattled clay
And the small window-space was shut
With woven reeds, green and gray.

The comely stars paced soberly
In the blue gardens overhead,
And the morn and eve the housing sky
Shifted in blue and gold and red:
But she who dwelt in the stone hut
Knew not these things. On gathered knees
She leaned her face, her thick hair shut
Her from the stars and trees.
—Vance Thompson.

Overcoat Weather

The leaves that were green when the Summer was young
Are looking a trifle passe.
The birds simply twitter of songs they have sung
And soon they'll be flying away
With a fanciful flirt to each fluttering feather
The moment that Winter says when.
And that's indication 'tis overcoat weather.
'Tis overcoat weather again.

Straw hats are forgotten; they're back in the past;
And heads are now fitted with felt.
Suspenders, long threatened, are with us at last;
We no longer have use for a belt.
Our shoes acquire soles of a heavier leather
For chilly grow middle aged men.
And that's indication 'tis overcoat weather.
'Tis overcoat weather again.

No longer the householder's thinking of ice;
Just now he is thinking of coal.
Its scarcity worries; and also its price;
But being a jolly old soul,
He smiles at his wife as they're sitting together
Side by side in the coziest den.
And that's indication 'tis overcoat weather.
'Tis overcoat weather again.

NEW LONDON AUTHORITIES DEAL WITH A YOUTH OF THE JUKES TYPE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 7—James Ernest Turner may be likened to the flotsam and jetsam that is cast up by the sea. He says he is 16 and that he has been at work for a man he knows as "Joe" only, in the town of Groton. No Georgia cracker was ever more illiterate than James appears to be. He cannot even enumerate the months of the year, nor could he tell this morning whether the current month was February or October. He thought it was February. James was cast up here from Shelter Island. His mother is understood to be in the city and Manuel Gomes, declares that the lad's father leased a tenement from him at 66 Douglass street. The father was given the key of the premises, but though that was a few days ago, no furniture has been placed in the tenement. There is no equipment for housekeeping there. James stole a pair of trousers and a belt from Gomes and that led to his arrest. He is in jail now to remain till Saturday that his situation and the prospect of his care may be investigated, for he evidently is such a youth as should be surrounded by influences he will not encounter if allowed his liberty. He admits taking the things he is accused of having purloined, but says he did not take them for gain. A police officer declared that the mother of the youth passed the police station after she was aware of his arrest and detention, but that she made no inquiry as to the boy.

Thomas G. Whipple of Groton was before the police court this morning on complaint of Traffic Officer Courtney, for failing to obey signals given to him and avert a congestion of traffic, corner of State and Bank streets yesterday. Whipple evidently had erred through unfamiliarity with ordinances of the city. He had read the state laws, but had not familiarized himself with the ordinances of New London. Whipple would not take the oath but gave his testimony by affirmation. It was apparent that he was not an offender willfully, so judgment was suspended.

Eric Carlson of 507 Ocean avenue was somewhat embarrassed when he read in the Bulletin this morning that he had been fined in the police court yesterday for intoxication and for making an exhibition of himself at a Bank street restaurant. The Eric Carlson fined was another person than the Ocean avenue man and one of different reputation. Mr. Carlson of Ocean avenue is a man of excellent character and will never be in the police court for intoxication, as was his namesake.

Ground was broken today for the foundation for the structure on Meridian and Church streets on which will be erected a building 90x200 feet to be used for theatre and store purposes. Work on the structure will be made possible by the sale of bonds and the issuance and sale of shares of stock in what is to be known as "The 235 State Street Corporation." Now it will be established eventually whether New London can and will support the new venture as a theatre. There are now three good amusement houses in the city and a fourth one is also in existence here. A fifth house, The Rialto damaged by fire some months ago, was never repaired.

Baseball fans generally in this city placed their wagers on the world series games on Washington to win today, in this they seem to have backed their opinion rather than their sympathies.

Mrs. Earl Adams, 633 Main street, complained to the police at 12:30 o'clock this morning that a man was at the rear of her residence, tapping on a window and using vile language. Policeman Ernest Opperman went to the Adams house, and accompanied by the woman's husband, made a search of the premises, but did not locate the intruder. Officer Opperman reported that a short time before he went to the Adams house he caused a half dozen sailors who were loitering in front of the place to disperse.

Miss Eleanor James, of Old Lyme: Mrs. Annie Richardson, Saybrook; Miss Julia Shea, 22 Blackhall street; Mrs. George Goss and infant son, 6 Lewis street and William Bright, United States coast guard service, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of William T. Neilan was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a throng of mourners, included among whom were delegations of members of Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians and Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, the pastor, with Rev. Raymond O'Callahan deacon and Rev. Alexander Wolischaeger sub-deacon. After the final obsolution, Edward T. Murray sang "Face to Face." The bearers were Timothy S. V. Collins, John Neilan, John J. Farrell, John Tansey, Michael Gilligan and Daniel Shea. The floral tributes were beautiful. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Fr. Fitzsimons.

City Clerk Julian D. Moran is absent from his duties at the municipal building, having started on his vacation of two weeks.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Joseph Lilkrowsky, Main street, and Albert Fiss, submarine base, recently suspended for violation of the automobile law, to be returned to the owners.

Mrs. Laura Holmes, wife of Francis Holmes, 461 Williams street, complained to the police this afternoon because boys residing in the neighborhood of the Holmes residence, had stoned the complainant's chickens and one fowl had been killed.

Another evidence that many of the automobiles stolen from their places of parking on the streets of New London, are taken by sailors, was given early this morning, when a machine that had been stolen was recovered at the submarine base, but the identity of the thief was not obtained. Robert Cruickshank, 101 Crystal avenue, parked his car, a Buick, in front of the residence of Dennis Devine, 125 Crystal avenue late in the evening. When he went to where he had left the auto at 1.15 o'clock he discovered that it had been stolen. Cruickshank notified the police of the loss of his car and Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Edward Daniels put the police car into commission and started to tour the ouskirts of the city as well as Groton and Waterford in hope that the stolen car and the thief would be located. The officers were not rewarded with any luck until about 6 o'clock, when they went to the submarine base for after making a brief search just off the reservation the automobile was found on the baseball field. The machine was towed to New London and this forenoon it was also in charge by Cruickshank. There have been many automobiles stolen about the city the past few months and then abandoned after the thieves have used the cars for joy rides and in almost every instance the police attribute the theft to sailors.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth McCarthy, 47 Franklin street, where she resides with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius F. Leary, to Arthur J. Mr. McGrath is a marine engineer and Miss McCarthy is employed by a local automobile concern as bookkeeper.

The funeral of Mrs. Emma A. Conlin, wife of George W. Conklin, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 35 Masonic street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Burial was in the family plot in Jordan cemetery.

A deed quit-claiming a tract of land from Joseph Mondecli to the city of New London was received for record at the office of the city clerk this afternoon. The city will use the land for extending Colman street to Ashcroft road extension.

Peter Wortiartis, of Lane A, is spending a few days with relatives in New Bedford, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kaplan, 65 Blyden burg avenue, have returned to their home after several days' automobile trip over the Mohawk Trail and throughout New York state.

An automobile truck owned by the Howard Street Coal company, and operated by Oscar Lee, R. F. D. 1, Mystic, was in collision this afternoon with a pleasure car, owned and driven by Santo Cammataro, 23 Denison avenue. The two vehicles crashed at the corner of Moore avenue and Shaw streets. The pleasure car was damaged. Lee did not possess an operator's license, but he was protected in the right to operate the truck through the fact that Edward B. Tucker, also R. F. D. Mystic, who possessed a driver's license, occupied the seat with Lee when the accident occurred.

Another bicycle, stolen from a Raymond street youth a fortnight ago by another youth, was recovered by the police early this evening. The Raymond street boy parked his wheel on State street, last month, and while he was absent the cycle was stolen. This evening when the boy was passing through Williams street he observed another youth with the stolen cycle. The owner of the wheel detained the youngster and caused the police to be notified. Patrolman Frank Philopena went to where the two boys were with the bicycle and had them both go to the police station. When questioned as to how he came into possion of the cycle, the boy who was found with it and who resides in Waterford, declared that he had purchased the wheel in Norwich of a boy who was paid $8 for it. Upon being further questioned the youth admitted that he was making false statements and then confessed to have stolen the cycle. He was turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield for a hearing in the juvenile court.

It developed tonight that another automobile had been stolen from a New London resident, but it is not believed that the theft occurred in New London, for no report was made of the theft of the auto to the New London police. This evening Chief Inspector of Detectives William Lahey, of the New York police department, notified the New London police that the automobile owned by Oscar Wilson, 8 Connecticut avenue, this city, had been recovered and that the car was stored at the 15th precinct, 152nd street, New York. The local police were requested to notify Wilson of the recovery of the car that he might go to New York and take charge of it. Patrolman Frank Philopena went to the Connecticut avenue address, but Wilson was not at home. It is believed that the automobile was stolen in New York and that the report of its theft was made to the police of that city.

The brick garage on North Bank street, being erected for the use of employes of the Savings Bank of New London, is rapidly nearing completion and within another fornight it will be ready to store the six or eight cars that it is intended shall be housed there during banking hours. The structure is of decorative brick and has made a decided improvement in that section of the street where the building is located.

A new line of thieving has developed in New London of late and is of an exceptionally mean type. Recently several complaints have been made to the police because of a single wheel being taken from a bbay carriage that a careless mother allowed to remain on a veranda or in the yard of a residence. In most instances the wheel has been found, being hurled into the street a considerable distance from where it was taken. Today Mrs. Edward Denehey, 90 West Coit street, informed the police that she had such a bit of thieving the night before.

Crowley, Miss Delia Maroney of the diocesan bureau of social service, Rev. Alexander C. Wolischlager and Mrs. Clara Turner Hammond. Mrs. Otto Almetti, president of the club, introduced the speakers. The ballroom was attractively decorated, a red and white color scheme predominating. Miniature baskets filled with flowers were at each cover.

After grace had been said by Father Crowley, Mrs. Almetti made a brief speech of welcome and the members all joined in singing La Paloma. Miss Adeline Zuccardy then gave a brief report of the organization's activities, after which the assemblage sang Sweet Adeline, a Long Long Trail, and O Sole Mio.

The feature of the evening's entertainment was a scene from Belasco's play, A Girl from the Golden West, acted in a finished manner by Mrs. Hammond in costume. During the evening favorite Italian songs were sung by members and guests. Later the men were invited for dancing. Music was furnished by Rudd's orchestra.

No information has been received at the submarine base as to when the government will cause the salvaging of the S-51 to be started, but because of the 25 or more bodies of officers and sailors being held imprisoned in the hull of the undersea boat, it is believed that the work of raising the submarine will be undertaken without delay. That the task will be an arduous one is indicated by a report of the condition of the submarine, which was sent to the navy department at Washington today by Rear Admiral H. H. Christy, who has had charge of the divers and attempts already made to float the boat. Admiral Christy is of the belief that the forward part of the submarine rests in sand from a depth of from five to 15 feet.

NEW GLENWOOD AVE. BRIDGE IS OPENED TO TRAFFIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 7—The new Glenwood avenue bridge, which has been under construction several weeks, was opened to traffic this afternoon and with the opening of the structure a large number of autoists will be greatly accommodated, both from a commercial standpoint as well as through pleasureable reasons. Glenwood avenue is one of the main highways leading into Waterford, particularly that section known as Goshen and Pleasure Beach.

The new structure is naturally more modern than was the old one and a bridge that will take care of all kinds of ponderous traffic for a number of years. The bridge is built of heavy steel girders, which arch Alewife cove, with steel beams supporting the bridge decking. The easterly end of the structure rests upon a solid foundation of ledge, with a masonry wall at the opposite end and a concrete and steel pier in the center, midway of the stream. The bridge decking is of creosoulated yellow pine, covered with a top surface of amiasite, which makes an excellent roadbed. The iron railings and upper part of the structure are painted white so that the bridge will be readily observed in the darkness.

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

MARKET SLOWED UP

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—Trading slowed up considerably in today's stock market, but there was the same confusion of price movement. Selling pressure, which was renewed soon after the opening, relaxed when call money dropped from 5 1-2 to 4 1-2 per cent. Closing quotations disclosed considerable irregularity; a long list of 1 to 6 point gains being offset by an even longer list of losses ranging from 1 to 3 points in active issues.

Brokers' loans, reported to be close to the highest levels in stock exchange history, are a source of apprehension to conservative traders, and the emphasis placed upon them undoubtedly has inspired much of the liquidation of the last few days. Several commission houses report that marginal accounts seldom were in a better position that they are now, which probably accounts for the sharp rallies that invariably follow each break. The usual weekly rumors of a forthcoming increase in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate also made their appearance.

Steel shares failed to respond to the optimistic tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews. United States steel common closed unchanged at 121, after having crossed 122. The independent steel moved within narrow an dirregular limits.

Rail shares continued to lose ground in reflection of speculative disappointment over the delay of the Interstate Commerce commission in acting upon pending mergers. Southern Pacific sagged to 96, a new low level for the year, and net losses of a point or more were recovered by Chicago Greatwestern preferred, Denver and Rio Grande, western preferred and a fe wothers.

Buoyancy again developed in a number of the high priced industrials American can closed over 3 points higher at 235 3-4, after having touched 237 1-2 and Chrysler showed a net gain of over four points at 188 1-4 after selling at 188 1-2. S. S. Kresge jumped 28 points to a record top of 617 on a few sales.

Net gains of 2 to 4 1-2 points were recovered by Burns Brothers B, J. I. Case preferred, Detroit Edison, Fleischmann, Freeport Texas, National dairy products, motormeter A. Shipbuilding, Remington Typewriter, Timken Roller Bearing, United Cigar stores, United Drug, U. S. Hoffman machinery and Western Union, several of which attained new high prices for the year.

May department stores broke from 129 3-4 to 125 5-8 on an official denial of rumors of a higher dividend. Weakness of market straitway issues reflected disapproval of the proposed sale of the company's properties to the city of San Francisco by a committee named to investigate the project. Failure of the Willys Overland directors to take action to eliminate the heavy arrears of the preferred stock sent that issue down from 113 3-4 to 110 1-4. While the common dropped from 30 3-8 to 28 1-4. Fisher land steel products preferred, Radio corporation, F. G. Shamuck and United States cast iron pipe also were conspicuously heavy.

Call money opened at 5 1-2, but eased to 5 in dthence to 4 1-2 in reflection of the return flow of funds sent out in connection with October 1 disbursements. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling held steady around $4.83 7-8, but French francs ruled a few points higher around 4.62 cents. Norwegian kroner rallied 2½ points to 19.78 cents and Danish krone ruled 10 points higher around 24.06 cents. South American exchanges were strong. Argentine paper pesos crossing 41 cents to a new high level for the year and Brazilian reis holding firm around the year's maximum of 15 cents.

The teachers and officers of the Taftville Congregation church school are to meet tonight (Thursday) at the parsonage on North Third avenue. This is a preliminary meeting to discuss plans for the teacher training class which probably will be organized in the near future.

Henry E. Bell of North Fourth avenue attended the Rockville fair Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thibeault of Woonsocket have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith of North B street.

LEDYARD MAN SELECTS EVER-BEARING STRAWBERRY

It will be interesting to growers of strawberries to know that a new everbearing strawberry has been selected by Sam Holdridge of Ledyard, says Albert E. Wilkinson, vegetable specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college. Mr. Holdridge for several years has been selecting from the older variety superb. He has a berry which is exceedingly productive of very large sized fruit. The foliage of this new berry is very dark and it grows to medium height. The leaves seem to be free from "birdseye." The berries are set on 4½ to 6 inch arms, the fruit being in clusters of 25 or more. One plant that was counted had 172 berries of varying sizes on it. The fruit is almost spherical, many of them being from three-fourths to seven-eighths of an inch in diameter. When ripe the fruit is blood red and glossy. The seeds are yellowish green. The quality of the fruit is excellent for a late type. Congratulations should be extended to Mr. Holdridge for his careful work in selecting such a fine producing type.

BEQUESTS TO Y. M. C. A. AND FREE ACADEMY

The will of the late Leonard O. Smith of Oldelms, Washington street, was filed Wednesday in the probate court with Judge Nelson J. Ayling. Mr. Smith, it is understood, leaves a large estate and makes two public bequests in his will, one of $5,000 to the Norwich Young Men's Christian association and the other of $2,500 to the Norwich Free Academy.

Workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

Flynn Bros., Mystic, employer, and Christopher Klewin, 35, North Stonington, employe, blood poisoned middle finger on Aug. 14, at the rate of $15.

Old Lyme Student Ill

Mrs. John Bridgman was called to Andover, Mass., Monday afternoon by the illness of her son, David, a student at Andover academy, suffering from an attack of appendicitis. The boy was dismissed from the Lawrence hospital, New London, in mid-summer, where he had been a patient for some weeks following an attack of scarlet fever. He had previously been in the Mitchell ward there for six weeks. On account of ill health the year before, he was unable to enter Yale in the fall of 1924 with his twin brother, John C. Bridgman.

NEW GLASGO FINISHING CO. WILL REVIVE LIFE OF VILLAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 7.—The deeds and transfer papers conveying the holdings of the American Thread Co., in Glasgo, six miles south of Jewett City, were presented for record at the office of the town clerk, John Welsh, Monday, Oct. 5th, by William Shaw, one of the men interested in the purchase.

A certificate of incorporation of the Glasgo Finishing Company has been filed with the secretary of state with Arthur M. Brown, William Shaw and Charles V. James named as incorporators, the authorized capital stock to be $300,000.

This sale and transfer is one of the largest real estate deals ever made in Griswold, being second only to the purchase of the W. A. Slater mills by the Ninigret Co. The Glasgo changes in ownership involve a money value of close to $80,000. In the height of the manufacturing successes of the American Thread Co. the property was valued at nearly $140,000.

The present mill began operation in 1886 as a paper mill, and was incorporated under the name of Griswold Paper company, with a capital stock of $60,000. All but a few shares of this stock was disposed of to Griswold subscribers. A twenty-two foot dam was constructed on the site of a former Glasgo dam. Commodious and substantial stone houses were built for the accommodation of their help. L. D. Armstrong, an experienced and skilled paper maker, was secured from the mill at Montville, in 1868 the finished product found a market and was actually being shipped from Glasgo. Soon the stock was increased to $100,000, nevertheless manufacturing successes were transient. The business outlook dwindled with all parts of the concern not up to expectations. Dividend after dividend was passed and there became great dissatisfaction among the stockholders. In 1874 the Griswold Paper Co. passed into the hands of a receiver, and local investors met with an almost total loss in their investments.

In 1881 the plant was taken over by the Glasgo Yarn Mill Co., for the manufacture of cotton yarn. H. M. Osgood of Norwich was the president. The capital stock of $125,000 was increased in 1883 to $200,000. Lucius and Charles Briggs were the management in control. New tenements were built, school facilities provided, a Catholic church was erected, the mill itself was enlarged and numerous improvements were made.

In 1899 the entire plant was sold to the American Thread Co., which at once with changes and improvements put in operation a model branch manufactory. J. T. Wilbur of Jewett City began with this company as bookkeeper, and, being soon promoted, held the offices of superintendent and agent until 1921.

It is with much satisfaction that Griswold notes the confirmation of this important sale. Glasgo instead of being relegated to the ranks of Goldsmith's "Deserted Village" is to boom again. The empty tenements will be filled, and the new Glasgo will be better than the old.

DISALLOWED CLAIM FOR FAILURE TO APPEAR

Failure to be present at the hearing to substantiate her claim for workmen's compensation against the New England Collapsible Tube Co., of New London, led necessarily to the dismissal and disallowance of the claim of Miss Belva M. Andrews, of 51 Pequot avenue, New London.

In his finding and award on the case, Commissioner J. J. Donohue says that Miss Andrews was employed by the company at their New London plant as a telephone operator and it is found that she also did some clerical work, such as filing, etc., and during the vacation of another office employe she had performed some of her duties which included collecting a tube every two hours from each department in order that the office might check up on the quality of the work being done.

She first noticed an infection of her hands on August 21, 1925, and on the following day she consulted a physician and claims she was disabled until Sept. 14, 1925, and that the condition arose out of and in the course of employment.

The superintendent of the plant admits that the claimant did collect the tubes for about a week, during the vacation of another girl, but he is unable to state whether it was the week preceding the claimant's quitting work or not, and he also admits the claimant's notifying the company of the condition from which she suffered and which caused her to quit work, the nature of which was apparently a dermatitis, but he is unable to say or admit that the handling of the tubes could have caused the condition from which the claimant suffered. Her average weekly wages were $12.02.

STATE AID ROAD MONEY IS COMING TO TOWNS

HARTFORD, Oct. 7 (AP)—A half-million dollars was turned over to the state highway department at a meeting of the state board of control Tuesday to reimburse towns which have built state air roads throughout the state. Approximately 50 towns which built highways in anticipation of receiving state aid from the recent session of the legislature will benefit.

The transaction in the board of control, amounting virtually to an appropriation, was the largest undertaken by the board of control since it was established. It was made upon the urgent recommendation of State Highway Commissioner MacDonald, who reported that he had learned in conference with the selectmen of most of the towns which had incurred highway obligations that many of them were seriously embarrassed by the fact that no appropriation to reimburse them for the state's share of the expense was forthcoming from the legislature.

The following towns will receive approximately $7,500 refund each from the state, as a result of the board of control action:

Branford, Canaan, Bozrah, Colchester, Colebrook, Darien, East Granby, Easton, Greenwich, Groton, Hebron, Montville, North Branford, North Canaan, Norwalk, Norwich, Pomfret, Redding, Sharon, Sprague, Seymour, Stafford, Stamford, Southington, Suffield, Torrington, Trumbull, Windsor and Windsor Locks.

SOUTHERNERS WILL MAKE TOUR IN NEW ENGLAND

A group of thirty-three prominent business men from Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina will arrive in Bridgeport on October 11th for an eight day tour of New England. The purpose of the visit is to establish closer business relations between the three southern states and the industrial states of New England.

Two and a half days are to be spent in Connecticut. In this brief period an attempt will be made to show some of the outstanding features of Connecticut; its famous industries, Yale university, the buildings of the great insurance companies, and the harbor facilities Connecticut has for coastwise trade.

The trip will be made by motor busses furnished by the New England Transportation company, a subsidiary of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. The party will be escorted from town to town by officers from the state police department. Local committees in each of the cities visited will have charge of the program to be followed in the different cities, which will include Bridgeport, Waterbury, New Haven, Meriden, New Britain, Hartford, South Manchester and New London. The last named city will be reached October 14, and a two hour stay from 7 to 9 p. m. will be made while the New London committee entertains the visitors. From there the party will proceed to Westerly.

Magnesia Best for Your Indigestion

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use "Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia, especially prepared for stomach use.

SIX CHURCH CONFERENCE AT PRESTON CITY

The conference of six churches was held at the Preston City Congregational church on Wednesday, one hundred and sixty-five attending. The decorations of dahlias was very much admired, for they came from Mystic where there had been no frost. The programme had been arranged by Rev. William Muttart of Hampton, a former pastor of the church. The organ prelude and doxology opened the service. Mr. Muttart led the responsive service followed by prayer by Rev. W. J. Reynolds of Newent. An anthem was sung by the choir.

The address of the morning was given by Rev. R. R. Shoemaker, D. D., superintendent of Congregational mission work in the southwest. Primarily he said, it was the one great objective of his branch of the great southwestern mission movement, to give every possible aid to the making of better types of men and women, he pointed out with convincing argument, that it was the great Christian plan of today, that we must sow that others may reap, adjuring his hearers to bend every effort and make every plan subservient to the leaving of some little spot in the world, better because of our contact with it. The speaker, with the most interesting itinerary possible took his audience on a sight seeing trip through the great territory that lies between El Paso, Tex., and the southern Pacific coast.

A visit was made in the lumber and railroad construction camps, with a short call at the typical border towns of the great New Mexico mining belt. Here, he said, was one of the great fields, where efficient ork was being done, and where many men were taught to find themselves. There was the time, he declared, that it was a common belief that any sort of a "no good," as turned into a missionary. Not so today. There are among the great missionary army thousands of the finest upstanding Christian men and women in the world. The explanations of the benefits and workings of the great Gila irrigation system were of much interest as well as the work in the Indian section at Gallup, Tex. Closing, he said, and following his word picture of the great tubercular menace of the southwest, we must maintain the best traditions of Congregationalism and transform the great teachings of Jesus, into the life of today.

Afternoon Session

Dr. J. Beveridge Lee, of New London announced that Rev. Brewer Eddy, D. D., of Boston had arrived and would address the meeting in the afternoon. Dinner was served by the women of the church. The afternoon session was opened with a praise service. The report of the last conference was read by the clerk, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City. She called the roll of the churches, there being present 19 from Hanover, 17 Pachaug, 9 Newent, 7 Plainfield, 13 Jewett City, Preston City 60 and 40 visitors. The choir sang The Lord is My Light and Salvation with solo and obligato by J. Kellogg Hall and solo by Sidney Hall. Notice was given of the home missionary meeting to be held in Norwich hon October 8. On motion of Rev. Mr. Reynolds, a rising vote of thanks was extended the church for its hospitality and the genial good spirit shown the guests.

The afternoon address was by Rev. Brewer Eddy, D. D. His topic was The World Wide Work of the Kingdom of God. The whole wonderful talk hinged on the word Together. There are twenty-five teams holding 1500 meetings in the interest of Congregational missions. He enjoined the Congregational churches to put less stress on independence and more on partnership in cooperation. If we argue that we owe no obligation to anyone, we have the church and the steeple and no Christianity. The quickest way to kill the smallest church is by giving up the missionary apportionment. When you do you have whipped Christ out of the church. He enlarged upon several different points, and gave figures to prove them. They were the sweep of the work of the American board, which has 850 missionaries with 1,000 helpers. The welcome to the work around the world, the economy used by the missionaries the statesmenship and strategy and the spiritual emphasis of the work were spoken of. The missionary works to select and frame the leadership for the next generation. He said there were 240,000 children being taught in China and 400,000 in India. And the uplift for girls and women is one of the greatest features of mission work in foreign work. He said he had been told that he was to talk to rural churches not rich city churches. But outside the door were parked $27,000 worth of automobiles at this conference.

Rev. Mr. Muttart closed the services and the doxology was sung.

WEST END COMMUNITY MAKES SEASON PLANS

The West End Community association, Inc., held a very enthusiastic and well attended meeting in the auditorium of the Elizabeth street school on Tuesday evening. President C. E. Carpenter was chairman.

Reports were accepted from various committees and other routine business transacted. Plans for numerous activities for the coming season were announced and discussed. The first event is to be a card party in charge of Mrs. John D. McWilliams and committee. Arrangements are under way for a play to be presented soon.

After the business session, the meeting was turned over to Carl E. Krause, acting for the entertainment committee, who had provided what proved to be a very fine program. Several violin solos by George Guile, with Miss Luctie Guile as accompanist, were much enjoyed. Mr. Guile, while a young musician, has attained an enviable reputation as a talented violinist. An offering that furnished much pleasure was the appearance of "Shelby and his orchestra," a team of local jazz artists whose fame is bound to spread afar. They were assisted by Hroker and Cassano, a dancing team of much merit.

During the evening the members joined in singing several songs with Miss Nina E. Perry at the piano. Refreshments, consisting of doughnuts, cheese and coffee were served by the committee.

The association is well started on its second year, with interest constantly increasing.

Your husband knows

A text addressed to the Mistress of the Household

Your husband knows about extension telephones. The chances are that he has one in his place of business. If not, then he has seen one in use in some other office or store. Every business man wants to cut down the loss of time and waste of energy—which is why the percentage of extension telephones in business organizations is so high.

What about lost time and wasted energy in the home?

Tell your husband how many times a day you hurry up or down stairs, or from one end of the apartment to the other, to answer the telephone. Ask him what he thinks about an extension telephone for you. It may not have occurred to him before, but he will probably suggest that you order one without delay.

The cost of an extension telephone (after a moderate connection charge) is less than 2 cents a day. What other convenience comparable with this, can you buy so cheaply?

Telephone our local Business Office, today, and tell them that you want an extension telephone.

GERMANY URGED TO JOIN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS WITHOUT RESERVATIONS

Austen Chamberlain, For Great Britain, and M. Briand, For France, in Brilliant Speeches Before the Security Conference, Emphasized the Desirability of Germany Adding Her Strength to the Power of the League—Germany Has Demanded Special Privileges in Recognition of Her Geographical Position.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 8—(A. P.)—Germany today heard arguments why she should enter the league of nations without making reservations or insisting in advance on a position of privilege.

Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, and M. Briand, the French foreign minister, in two brilliant speeches before the security conference, urged upon Dr. Luther, the German chancellor, and Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, the desirability of Germany, in the interests of Germany and world peace adding her strength to the power of the league.

They virtually told Germany that Article XVI of the covenant, which deals with the application of penalties against an aggressor, and to which Germany objects, can best be amended when that country becomes a member of the league, and promised to help Germany make any reasonable shifting of the provisions of that clause.

Both Mr. Chamberlain and M. Briand repeated what France, England and the league council have already told Germany in formal communications that any extension of special treatment to the German republic would violate the principles of equality which were the very basis of the league, because all other nations have subscribed to the covenant without privilege.

Dr. Stresemann answered, picturing his disarmed and impoverished country, which seeks only the right to guard her neutrality in the event of any European conflict and to avoid complications with her neighbors, which were almost certain, if German soil were overrun by foreign troops in the operation of military penalties against any aggressor country.

Today's discussion, which occupied three hours, was animated without being disagreeable or venomous. The conference adjourned until Saturday when two meetings will be held. No agreement was reached but in the meantime private conversations will be arranged in an endeavor to find a formula acceptable to all concerned.

Dr. Stresemann said paradoxically tonight: "I am optimistically pessimistic."

Germany's demand for recognition of her special geographical and military position as a prior condition to her entrance into the league opens up a very delicate problem for the allies, for they have no right to speak to her for the fifty nations which compose the league of nations. The allies are saying to Germany: "You assert that we are powerful enough to help you on your league problem. All right, trust us. Come into the league, sit on the council as a permanent member, where your voice, like ours, will be strong, and have confidence on us to assist in the elaboration of some amendment to the interpretation of Article XVI of the covenant which will take care of your particular case and wipe out your fear."

Such appears to be the underlying idea of the formula which will be fashioned and handed to Germany. Such a formula would be founded on the conviction that Article XVI is unsatisfactory as it stands, as is proved by the fact that the framers of the Geneva peace protocol found it necessary to fill up the gaps which this penalty article presents.

So far as the Rhine pact is concerned it could only take the form of a recommendation to the league nations. If France would consent to some chance meeting of Germany's needs she would doubtless insist upon an accompanying strengthening of the article, whereby there would be an automatic releasing of military penalties against an aggressor, for as at present framed the article provides only for the recommendation of military assistance.

With such a watertight system France presumably would feel less compelled to demand a special guarantee for her allies, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Dr. Stresemann told Mr. Chamberlain today that he wanted Cologne evacuated as soon as possible. England seems willing to meet the German wishes when practicable, but insists that this question is linked up with the Rhine pact and scrupulous observance by Germany of her disarmament obligations.

COL. MITCHEL DECLINED TO BECOME A WITNESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—Acting upon advice of counsel, Colonel William Mitchell refused twice today to become a witness before the naval court inquiring into the wreck of the Shenandoah, which desired to question him concerning charges he had made against the navy department in connection with that disaster.

Appearing in obedience to direct orders from his superiors in the war department, Col. Mitchell first declined to take the oath necessary to qualify him as a witness, and then refused to respond to a formal subpoena issued by the court and personally delivered to him by the judge advocate.

What action, if any, the court or the war department will take against the officer, who already is facing the probability of court martial proceedings as a result of his Shenandoah charges and other charges, was undecided tonight.

Both the navy and army officials seemed to be agreed that the court had authority either to impose a penalty itself or certify the case to the federal district attorney for contempt proceedings, but all the court has done so far is to direct that an official report be made to the war department.

This report was prepared, but was not forwarded pending a conference between Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, president of the court, and Secretary Wilbur, meanwhile, however, war department officials examined the statutes in the premises, some of these officers were of the opinion unofficially that, since Mitchell has obeyed the army order directing him to appear before the Shenandoah court, the matter now is entirely within the jurisdiction of the court itself.

THREE PERSONS KILLED BY EXPLOSION IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8—(By the A. P.)—The death toll of a terrific explosion that enveloped the ten-story LaClede Gas Light building in the downtown business district here at 2:05 this afternoon, stood at three tonight after the ruins of the first floor and basement had been carefully searched.

The list of injured who received hospital treatment stood at forty-seven of whom are in a serious condition. The number of persons cut by falling debris, overcome by ammonia fumes and otherwise slightly hurt in the confusion police estimated at forty more.

Officials of the company tonight were still at a loss to account for the exact cause of the explosion. Bursting ammonia tanks in the basement spread the ruin but what caused them to explode was unexplained. The damage from the blast, has not been estimated.

The dead: Mrs. Anna Stoll, a widow, clerk.

Carl T. Brewer, engineer.

Armund Marquardt, maintenance man.

Of those badly injured, the condition of Anthony Kahler and Frederick Bristow, both clerks, was said to be critical.

Eighty seven gallons of liquor were found in his machine. Taken before Judge H. W. Durand, he pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs. Another load of liquor was found at his home in Hartford tonight.

BISHOP BROWN STANDS CONVICTED OF HERESY

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 8—(By the A. P.)—The house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States of America today approved the finding of a court convicting Bishop William Montgomery Brown of heresy. More than two hours was occupied in executive session and Bishop Brown addressed the house of bishops on his case. It was announced that the vote was 95 to 11 in favor approving the court's findings.

The next step in the "Brown case" must be taken by the presiding bishop, the Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, bishop of Bethlehem. The presiding bishop was notified by the house of bishops of its approval and he may pass sentence at his pleasure. No date was set, it was said, for pronouncement of sentence which would prevent the convicted bishop from exercising the functions of his office.

"I'll be here to take my seat in the house of bishops tomorrow," Bishop Brown declared immediately after adjournment. "I will enter protest deposition until the sentence against me is formally passed. There was no action taken this afternoon to exclude me from the house and I am hopeful that I will not be deprived of my seat.

"I merely asked for a hearing this afternoon. I had a statement to make, but I could not go through with it. I broke down and was forced to take my seat. I would like to ask the presiding bishop now just what my standing is, but I dislike to reopen the issue tonight."

Bishop Brown is the first bishop of the Episcopal church to be deposed for heresy and the fourth bishop to be deposed in the history of the church.

BUCKNELL PAYS TRIBUTE TO CHRISTY MATHEWSON

LEWISBURG, Pa., Oct. 8—(A. P.)—Citizens of Lewisburg and officials of Bucknell university, from which institution Christy Mathewson was graduated with the class of 1902, paid high tribute to the memory of the famous pitcher today.

President Emory W. Hunt, of Bucknell, delivered a lengthy eulogy at services in the college chapel and arrangements were made for the student body to meet the funeral party when it arrives here tomorrow night from Saranac Lake. Funeral services will be held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Mathewson's mother, Mrs. Frank C. Stoughton.

At the football game between Bucknell and George Washington university on Saturday flags will be at half mast and a bugler will sound taps prior to the start of the contest while the spectators stand with bowed heads for one minute.

BOSTON MAY HAVE A MODERN LUMBER TERMINAL

BOSTON, Oct. 8 —The proposed establishment of a modern lumber terminal on land along the Mystic river in the Charlestown district by the Terminal Wharf and Railroad Warehouse company, at an initial cost of about $2,000,000, became known today. This undertaking will mark the most important port development since the construction of the army base some years ago.

The terminal company will act solely as a service organization. It was announced. The plans call for five steamship berths, with about five acres of macadamized streets for the expeditious handling of lumber from the west coast and foreign ports.

Arguments on Appeal For Gerald Chapman

Defense Counsel Contended That Testimony "Did Not Connect Up With the Case."

HARTFORD, Oct. 8.—(A. P.)—Gerald Chapman, bandit, was convicted of first degree murder on testimony other than that relating to the killing last fall of James Skelly, New Britain policeman, defense counsel argued at the hearing on his appeal from conviction and sentenced to death before the state supreme court of errors today. Chapman has been granted a reprieve until Dec. 3.

Because of an extension of the time which allowed the defense counsel, N. O. Freedman and C. W. Murphy, nearly three hours in which to present their arguments, instead of two as originally agreed upon, court adjourned late in the afternoon and the state's argument was postponed until tomorrow morning.

The setting of the appeal was in marked contrast to the crowded, excited scenes of the trial in the county courthouse here. Only fourteen men and women were spectators today. The hearing did not begin until 12.5? because of the late arrival of one of the justices due to sickness in his family. Printed briefs by the defense counsel and by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn were offered and then recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

The justices sitting in the case are George W. Wheeler, chief justice; Howard J. Curtiss, John E. Keeler, William M. Maltbie and Frank D. Haines.

Mr. Freedman who took up two hours of the time allowed the defense argued on eight of the thirteen points which they claimed were in error. He charged that much of the testimony introduced was irrelevant and tended to produce atmosphere which "prejudiced the jurors and befuddled their minds as to the real issue." The arising of three policemen during the testimony which the prosecution "did not connect up with the case," the cross-examination of Chapman by Mr. Alcorn who asked questions concerning the bandit's life before the shooting of Skelly, and the character of the state's attorney's arguments to the jury were cited by Mr. Freedman as incidents in the trial which were unfair to the defendant who "sat there under the cloak of presumed innocence."

When asked by Justice Maltbie why exceptions had not been made to questions put by Mr. Alcorn on cross-examination, Mr. Freedman answered that it didn't make any difference because the defendant was to be afforded a fair and righteous trial. The politician and prejudices were there, nevertheless, and your body is to say that he is to be given a fair trial, he said.

Mr. Alcorn, who interrupted Mr. Freedman two or three times during the latter's plea for a new trial for Chapman, broke in with "why don't you tell the court that you offered records to the court?"

Mr. Freedman's reply was that if there was anything to be qualified, he would qualify it. He continued that if Mr. Alcorn meant the record of Chapman it should not have been introduced until good points had been brought in.

Mr. Murphy who presented to the court files of Hartford county newspapers which had given prominent display to the crime and the arrest of Chapman, said that the newspapers had done a great harm in picturing the crime. He said that it was hard for a juror who read a paper to tell whether he had heard evidence from a witness on the stand, or read it. He commented on the fact that the court had refused to segregate the witness and said that the time was devoted to everything during the trial except to the specific charge that Chapman killed Skelly. Chapman was robbed of his constitutional rights, he said, when he was brought to the state for trial only in Hartford county and not able to have a change of venue.

Arguments for the state tomorrow will not require two hours, Mr. Alcorn said today. A decision is expected the last week of this month or the first week in November.

RIFFIAN CHIEFTAIN TAKES REFUGE WITH BROTHER

FEZ, French Morroco, Oct. 8.—AP)—Abd-el-krim, the Riffian chieftain, hemmed in by the French advance from Kifane northward and the movement of the Spanish troops southward from Ajdir, is reported to have taken refuge with his brother Si Mohammed in the Beni Arous mountain, one of the most inaccessible of the Atlas range, where he is said to be assembling reserves and munitions.

Information at French headquarters has it that surrender of Abd-el-Krim's followers during the recent occupation of his territory by the French has caused his faithful to dwindle from 32,000 to 15,000. But these are all tried men and true, upon whom the Riffian leader may count to the death.

Legion Upholds One Of Mitchell's Plans

Favors Creating a Cabinet Office to Have Control of Air Branches of Army, and Navy.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 8(A. P.)—The American Legion accorded Colonel William Mitchell, the army's outspoken critic of the nation's aeronautical policy, a measure of commendation today. It unanimously adopted a resolution recommending one of his plans for for rehabilitation of the national defense by creating a separate cabinet office to have control of three equal branches, Army, navy and air.

For three days the resolution was found over and rearranged in committees until it was found acceptable to all parties.

Thereby, what had promised to be one of the hardest contests ever witnessed on the floor of any of the seven national conventions of the legion was averted The situation was regarded as dangerous until the actual recording of the vote.

As adopted the resolution favors a far reaching reorganization of the national defense in that it would supplant either the army or navy secretary and instead designate a defense secretary.

The Mitchell leaders expressed satisfaction with the resolution, saying it was all that could be expected at this time.

With the Mitchell matter out of the way, the legion's attention was turned to the last item on its program, tomorrow's election of national officers.

Edward Spafford of New York, backed by the solid strength of the New York delegation; John McQuigg of East Cleveland, Ohio, and Howard P. Savage of Chicago, sponsored by a United Illinois delegation, were the three outstanding leaders in the contest tonight.

Spafford was advanced as a last minute candidate last year at St. Paul, Minn., when James A. Drain was elected. Tonight the plan was to set his name quickly before the convention with Alabama yielding to Massachusetts for the nomination.

The resolutions committee, which yesterday forced reconsideration by it of the world peace committee's report presented today a resolution which substituted for the other proposal of "immediate adherence of the court of international justice as set up by the league of nations," approval of a plan to have the legion favor United States adherence to a court of international justice, but without indicating any definite court.

The work of the legion's world peace committee and the permanent committee and the permanent committee on foreig nrelations was ordered merged.

The legion adopted strict resolutions controlling issuance of badges and credentials and also the conduct of its members at future conventions. It was recorded that "camp followers" by misconduct which might be charged against legionnaires were endangering the legion's good name.

The American Legion Auxiliary voted unanimously today to become a member of the women's section of the F. I. D. A. C., recently formed in Rome, Italy, convention.

HEATED ARGUMENTS IN THE GIZZI MURDER TRIAL

WATERBURY, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Presentation by the state as an exhibit of the gun alleged to have been used by James Gizzi in the murder of Donato Gaudiosi, and the testimony of a 13 year old boy as to the finding of the gun featured the trial of the aged Italian in superior court today. Police officers descibed a search of the Lakewood district where the slaying took place, and told of the examination of Gizzi after he had been taken into custody.

The trial was marked by heated arguments between opposing counsel. Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin at one time warned Attorney Edward Mascolo, chief counsel for the defense, against holding up the trial by objecting and then failing promptly to state his grounds for objection. Frequent tiffs developed between Attorney Mascolo on the one side and State's Attorney Lewis and Attorney James Peasley on the other. Attorney Peasley, who is acting as a special assistant to State's Attorney Lewis, yesterday examined witnesses for a short time.

INVESTIGATING SINKING OF THE SUBMARINE S-51

Captain Diehl of the Steamship City of Rome Tells of Having Seen a White Light Off the Starboard Bow—In the Opinion of the Third Mate It Was a Tow Going West—Captain Maintained That He Had Complied Absolutely With the Statutes Relative to Leaving the Scene After the Accident—Testimony Given by Chief Engineer, An Oiler and a Seaman.

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A difference of opinion as to the speed of the steamer City of Rome when she crashed into the submarine S-51 off Block island on September 25 developed at a continued hearing today before the local steamship directors.

William Boll, chief engineer of the steamer, testified that the average number of revolutions when the steamer was going full speed was 74 or 75, giving a speed of 12 knots an hour, and on the night of the collision she was making from 58 to 64 revolutions.

He said that the steam pressure rarely went above 150 pounds although the lawful limit was 180 and he thought the speed that night did not exceed 10 knots.

James Delaney, an oiler, said he understood that the lawful steam pressure limit was 175 pounds and he thought the City of Rome was carrying that amount at the time of the crash.

Boll said that when the searchlight was turned on after the collision, two fuses were blown, rendering it useless. He had put a lighted life-buoy on the upper deck and a passenger had thrown it overboard. Twice he heard the call "throw us a line," but he said, "there wouldn't have been time to throw a line; she had got out of reach."

Earling Knutsen, a seaman, heard the same cries and was in the boat which picked up the three survivors from the submarine. Third Mate T. L. Dryer, who was on watch in the pilot house, testified that after Captain John H. Diehl had ordered hard-a-port, he was able to take only one or one and a half turns and that made no appreciable difference in the steamer's headway.

Captain Diehl repeated his previous story of having seen a white light "about four points off the starboard bow," getting the third mate's opinion that it was a tow going west, seeing the light come close and suddenly sighting a red light.

"I sung out 'hard-a-port.' I set the bridge telephone to full speed astern and with the other hand tried the whistle, my hand on the whistle slipped. As soon as I let go the telephone, I got the whistle all right."

He said he felt that he had complied absolutely with the statutes relative to leaving the scene after the accident. The collision was at 10:24 p. m. and he gave his radio operator a message for transmission to the Boston office of the steamship company, owners of the steamer, at 12:10 a. m. He admitted that he did not send any communication to the navy department until 12:45 a. m. after he had received a naval inquiry by radio as to whether he had rammed the S-51. He sent two more messages to the navy later that. These messages were addressed both to the submarine base at New London and the Boston navy yard.

At the conclusion of today's testimony the inspectors did not fix any date for a resumption of their investigation.

NEW FORM OF GOV'T FOR MUNICIPALITIES IN ITALY

ROME, Oct. 8—(A. P.)—Mussolini's cabinet took another important step today in the fascistization of Italy by deciding to revive and modernize a medieval form of government for small municipalities, of 5,000 inhabitants or less, by the appointment by the central government of "podestas," thus eliminating the present system of government by mayors elected locally.

In the medieval Italian republics the podesta acted as a sort of governor and had extensive powers. The chief professed aim is the desire to remove from local government the personal bickering of politics and establish an efficient administration.

The cabinet also decided to give the capital a separate special government under the direct supervision of the ministry of the interior. The political affairs of Rome, therefore, will be administered by a governor appointed by the government. He will be assisted by two vice-governors, ten rectors acting as highly specialized administrative technicians and 30 consultors, elected by various bodies recognized by the government, such as the Chamber of Commerce, the Bankers' association, Professors' associations and similar organizations.

WEST HAVEN STOREKEEPER FOUND GUILTY OF ARSON

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 8—(A. P.)—Antonio Pagluzzi, a former storekeeper of Thomas street, and East avenue, West Haven, was found guilty on an arson charge by a jury in criminal superior court today. Upon request of the state's attorney, Judge C. L. Avery, remanded the accused to the custody of the sheriff and deferred sentence until a later time.

Four different fires were found in Pagluzzi's store at the same time on the night of August 13, evidence showed. The owner was in the store at the time and an explosion sent him crashing through the door and into the street. Pagluzzi claimed that fumes from gasoline and kerosene had been ignited by a defective wire.

In his defense, Pagluzzi claimed he was doing a good business and had no reason to start a fire. In reply the prosecution showed that the stock, not worth $1,000, had been insured for $2,-000, with a like amount of insurance on the building.

H. W. NOEL FOUND SANE ENOUGH TO STAND TRIAL

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Judge Edwin C. Caffrey today decided that Harrison W. Noel is sane enough to stand trial for the murder of Raymond Pierce, negro taxicab driver of Montclair.

His decision followed consideration for several days of testimony taken from eleven alienists and a personal visit to the county jail for the purpose of gaining first hand information as to the prisoner's mental condition.

Noel, who has confessed the murder of Pierce, besides the kidnapping and murder of six-year-old Mary Daly, also of Montclair, has had entered for him a plea of not guilty in the Pierce murder indictment. No plea has yet been entered in the Daly case due to its coming under the jurisdiction of Passaic county, where the body of the little girl was found.

SENATOR WANTS SAY ON SELECTION OF DRY AGENTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP) — Senator Harreld, reublican, Oklahoma, has publicly thrown down the gauntlet to Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury on the question whether Senators are to be consulted in the appointment or dismissal of prohibition enforcement officers.

In a letter to the prohibition field marshal, which he made public today, the Senator served notice that it will be impossible to keep peace in the republican party in Oklahoma unless he and Senator Pine, also a republican, are consulted about appointments and removals.

"I feel it but fair to say to you in advance that we shall expect this courtesy from your department," he declared.

BUSINESS TRANSACTED AT A. F. OF L. CONVENTION

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 8—(A. P.)—Proceedings dragged at two short sessions of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor today, at which seven resolutions were adopted and sections of the annual report of the executive council, recently published, were approved.

All of the resolutions were adopted unanimously and on only two of them was there discussion. One of these was a proposal for an investigation of the labor policy at the United States military academy at West Point in building construction work.

The trades and labor council of greater New York complained that Col. E. J. Timberlake, quartermaster at the academy, was doing work at considerably below the prevailing rate and that in order to carry out a non-union policy he had evaded the law by employing non-citizens.

It also was charged that Col. Timberlake, in a communication to the council last month, "clearely indicated that he bitterly was an opponent of the organized labor movement and aligned with open-shoppers."

BELIEVE GEORGE ROSS A VICTIM OF AMNESIA

WESTBORO, Mass., Oct. 8.—(AP)—A thorough investigation by police and Medical Examiner Roland S. Newton, of possible clues to foul play dispelled all theories of murder advanced in connection with the mysterious disappearance of George Ross, 52 years old, master at the Lyman school.

The finding of a piece of brass pipe upon which several gray hairs were matted had led the authorities to believe that it had been used in an assault upon Mr. Ross. This theory was upset today when Dr. Newton declared that the absence of moisture and apparent lack of recent use of the pipe convinced him that theory was erroneous. There was no blood on the pipe.

The police were inclined to believe today after much discussion of the case that Mr. Ross had been a victim of amnesia, following severe headaches with which it is known he suffered during the week prior to his disappearance.

A threat of violence received by Mr. Ross in the form of a letter signed by "Knights of the Flaming Circle" a few days before his disappearance was not taken seriously by the police.

Simpson, of the superior court, who together with the Mechanics bank, is a co-executor of Governor Woodruff's will.

The total estate, consisting of all the property in the state of Connecticut as appearing from the schedule set forth in the files of the probate court reaches a total of $1,157,006 and is made up of stocks and bonds amounting to $991,-056.75, notes and accounts receivable totalling $50,337.07, and the Rolford farm in Guilford with its live stock and farm equipment which is appraised at $103,038.

"WOLF OF LA SALLE STREET" READY TO SERVE SENTENCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The Chicago Daily News published a story today that John W. Worthington, known as "the wolf of La Salle street," who has been dodging prison for two years, was reported to have returned to Chicago in poor physical condition and ready to serve his sentence. He was convicted of using the mails to defraud and some time ago fled from California to Mexico.

BEER HAD ENOUGH KICK TO JARR AN ELEPHANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 8—Aleck Barnofsky, of 75 Chapman street, was found guilty at the session of police court Thursday on two counts of violation of the liquor law, Judge Foss imposed a fine of $100 on each count—for having in his possession liquor with intent to sell and reputation of selling liquor. The total assessment amounts to $232.15. Barnofsky could not decide whether or not he desired to take an appeal to the superior court and he was allowed time to consider, during which time he is at liberty under bonds. The man's place was raided Saturday evening by police officials and officers assisted by federal men. A quart bottle of moonshine was taken from the cellar and fifteen bottles of homebrew beer. The beer was analyzed and found to contain kick enough to knock an elephant into a helpless condition. Officers testifying as to the raid were, Chief of Police Allan McArthur, Lieutenant Frank McLean, Officer Arthur Hurley and Federal Officer Stanton L. Briggs. All informed Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher that they had received complaints about the place and one of the officers said that he had seen persons intoxicated on the premises.

Barnofsky said that he purchased liquor for his own consumption and used it as a cure for rheumatizm. He denied making any sales or even treating his friends. He said that he had bought the quart Friday night and his wife had hidden it in the cellar so that his children could not get it. His wife made the beer and it was used as a beverage by the family. Barnofsky accused a man named Horrigan and the latter's housekeeper, who owed him a grocery and shoe repairing bill, of telling on him and making the false accusations. Frank Thomas, a neighbor amused the court officials by the manner of his testimony. Asked if he had ever bought anything from Barnofsky he answered that he had. The court officials pricked up their ears and queried, "What?" "Groceries," was the answer. Mrs. Barnofsky said that there had never been any liquor sold from her household.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

It will seem really like fall Saturday when Killingly high school meets East Greenwich high school here at football.

At a meeting of the selectmen Thursday afternoon for reorganization following Monday's annual election of officers of the town, John A. Gilbert was again named as clerk of the board. Attorney Elbert L. Darbie was appointed town council. Mr. Gilbert was named as tree warden and Gaston A. Maindon as sealer of weights and measures, both re-appointments. Hosea E. Greene was named a special constable for a period of six months and Jesse B. Child of Goodyear was appointed a public weigher.

For care and maintenance, the highways of the town were apportioned the same as during the past year, Selectman Alcott D. Sayles taking the East Killingly section, under the care the past year of former Selectman Patrick Riley of Dayville.

A new wrinkle in life insurance—new at least, to many though known many years ago—is non-medical insurance. Local people are being solicited by agents offering this kind of insurance. It is insurance that is issued to people of apparent good health without the necessity of going before a physician for a medical examination.

Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., was the celebrant at St. James' church Thursday morning of a high mass of requiem at the funeral of John Kogat, who has been a resident in the Horse hill section of the town. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S. conducting the committal service. The bearers were Adam Kogat, Stanley Kogat, Joseph Natorski, Stanley Banzelseki, Albert Klosek and Joseph Kloeek. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Theodore E. Hammett, 71, for many years a resident of this town, died during Wednesday night at his home on Broad street. Mr. Hammett had been in failing health for more than a year and seriously ill for some time past. He was a native of the town of Plainfield, born June 24, 1854, son of Theodore and Filena Hubbard Hammett. His mother was a native of South Killingly and of a family for a great many years resident of this town. Mr. Hammett was engaged for many years as a farmer at what was known as the Hammett farm, near the Milone place, on the Green Hollow road. He leaves his wife, who was Miss Harriet Wilson, once a teacher of the town of Plainfield, and two adopted children.

Radio receiving sets to rent, $5.00 weekly. Box 167.—adv.

Old-timers hereabouts recall that the bridge now being removed from over the Assawaga river in Main street came near to being washed away in the great flood that swept under it in the spring of 1887. Beholding the lazy little stream making its way along the riverbed these pleasant fall days, one would have difficulty in realizing what a raging torrent the flood brought and forced high up between the walls sustaining the bridge. This flood swept away the Quinebaug bridge over the river a short distance to the west and caused havoc the length of both rivers. The bridge now being torn out was saved by chaining it to exceptionally large and heavy beams of great length that were in turn anchored to hold them stable. Since that eventful day the bridge has been repaired many times and a few years ago sufficiently strengthened to hold such heavy motor and other traffic as was undreamed of when it was built.

"Real winter cannot come until the ponds are filled." "November will be exceptionally cold this year." "It will be the hardest winter in 200 years." "Caterpillar fuzz indicates an exceptionally mild winter." Quotations from the long distance weather prophets. It seems they do not entirely agree, no more than do other mortals. And considering their disagreements, one may look forward to an average winter season in Southern New England.

There was about every variety of game that may be taken in the hunting season that opened Thursday in the bags that were shown by proud hunters upon their return from field and woods. Most hunters complain that there are too many leaves as yet to allow of really good hunting, but they enjoyed the day, the thrill of the quest and the tramping in the open.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward presided at a session of the town court Thursday morning. A minor case was heard.

Past Masters occupied the chairs in Moriah lodge at a meeting Wednesday evening, Sidney W. Ward acting as master.

Killingly will not receive any apportionment of the $500,000 that the state aid roads—and built them on that have built what are known as state aid funds—and built them on the chance that the state later would pay part of the cost. Such state aid highways as Killingly has constructed have been built with an apportionment approved by the state and under this arrangement there is between $9,000 and $10,000 due the town of Killingly.

Rural Carrier Arthur W. Logee of the Danielson postoffice tells of seeing a flock of about 20 quail in covering his route. Here is evidence that quail are coming back and will again be numerous if ruthless hunters do not shoot them down. The season on quail is closed until 1927.

The one-way control of travel has been lengthened from Stone's corner above the state police barracks to the bridge at Elmville. Traffic men and telephone system are being used to handle this traffic. About November 1 one section, the east side of the highway, can be used over at least part of the distance.

The radio again served Thursday afternoon to entertain Danielson's stay-at-home followers play by play of the World series. And it was a wonderful treat for them too, for they apparently absorbed much of the enthusiasm possessing those actually witnessing the game.

GEORGE GOULD WELL BRED, BUT PROVES A BAD ACTOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 8—It turned out that George Gould, alias F. D. Lane, who was arrested here last Saturday by state officers and later, in default of bail of $5,000, was committed to the New Haven county jail to await trial on a charge of impersonating a federal officer comes of a family in good standing in Boston. Gould is possessed of a good education. He is the brother of an attorney. He seemed particularly concerned, while being held here over the possibility of his people learning about the difficulty in which he found himself. Gould's trial is expected to be held at a term of the federal court opening in New Haven October 28.

BUSINESS MEN STIRRED BY RE-LOCATION SCHEME

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 8 — Enthusiasm for the proposed Green Hollw highway development plan had slumped t oabout zero in Danielson Thursday, when The Bulletin broadcasted the fact that the state will no longer maintain the Danielson-Wauregan road as trunk line highway, if the new route is built. Danielson's interest now is in blocking the entire plan of highway re-location insofar as Killingly is concerned.

Danielson's business interests, which were not represented at Wednesday's hearing in Central Village, at least by an audible representation, now sense that they overlooked an opportunity. Business man after business man went on record Thursday as utterly opposed to the proposal of the state highway commissioner to abandon state maintenence of the present Danielson-Wauregan trunk line if the Green Hollow trunk line project is carried out.

Whatever the need of traffic relief, it is not sufficient to warrant Danielson cutting its own throat, as it were to attain an object professedly in the interest of a large section of eastern Connecticut. The same applies to the entire town of Killingly, which would be burdened with an additional annual highway cost that might run to as much as $5,000 a year and in some years much more, snow removal cost, oiling and other items of expense considered. It isn't reasonable for any other interested town to ask Killingly to assume such a burden. Keeping miles of what is trunk line highway up to standard expected on such roads is not an incidental contract for Killingly to assume, and it will not assume it if there is any ligitimate method of avoiding it.

The new development has soured numbers of Danielson business men on the entire re-location project. They have not been too enthusiastic about it at any time, believing that it would divert much business as well as traffic. They are openly opposed now, having been told that if the change is made they will have extra taxes to pay for the privilege of injuring their business. That is not really a grand proposition for this town.

PUTNAM

All of the public radio stations are being thronged each afternoon to hear the story of the worlds series games. The wire was taken out and the young man was taken home by his parents, apparently none the worse for his experience.

MRS. L. M. REAM GRANTED CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 8.—Residents of Thompson as well as of Putnam, who were interested in the Ream divorce suit, wondered what arrangements would be made about alimony and the custody of the two children. It is announced from Hartford where the suit was heard last week, giving Mrs. Mary Weaver Ream a divorce from Louis Marshall Ream, that the matter of alimony and the custody of the children have been settled and withdrawn from the court. It is understood that a very substantial amount has been settled on Mrs. Ream and that she is to have charge of the children under an arrangement which will permit Mr. Ream to see them at stated times.

He is the son of the late Normann B. Ream, many times millionaire, an associate of the elder Morgan and directing owner of many large business enterprises. He died about 1912. IMPROVED PLAYGROUNDS TO BE AWARDED CASH PRIZES

ASHEVILE, N. C., Oct. 8—A national contest for the improvement and beautification of playgrounds was announced here at the principal session of the Twelfth Recreation Congress.

The object is to encourage the beautification of the 5,006 public outdoor playgrounds in the United States and Canada, all of which are eligible contenders. The contest, it was stated, is a part of a general movement to beautify recreation areas.

The Harmon Foundation of New York city offers three awards of $500 each and thirty of $50 each to those communities whose playgrounds show the greatest progress in beautification during the period of the contest, ending Nov. 1, 1926. In addition, nursery companies will give the winning playgrounds thirty-prizes of $50 each in nursery stock.

The Playground and Recreation Association of America will administer the awards. All entries must be filed by Dec. 1, 1925. Playgrounds, athletic fields, and other spaces used primarily for active outdoor play and conducted by non-commercial groups are eligible to the competition. A community may enter as many playgrounds as it wishes but not more than one award will be made in each community.

MONUMENT WILL OVERLOOK SPOT WHERE EVANGELINE KEPT TRYST

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 8—(AP)—The Longfellow-Evangeline memorial when erected will be made up of three figures cut into a mounment that will stands on the banks of the Bayou Teche, near St. Martinville. The monument will arise in a 50-acre park, almost on the spot where the forlorn Arcadian girl kept her unfulfilled tryst with the banished Gabriel.

For years tourists have visited the beautiful Evangeline country of Louisiana and have marvelled at the beauty of the moss hung oaks beneath which Evangeline awaited her lover. In the center of the park will be a wading pool surrounded by figures symbolic of the poem, Youth, Gladness, Love and Despair, over which will stand the monument consisting of a figure of Longfellow and his two characters, Evangeline and Gabriel.

Funds for the project are being furnished by subscriptions from school children of the South and Longfellow-Evangeline associations everywhere.

For Forty-eight Years American Women Have Approved

The EASY Vacuum Electric WASHER

The Easy Way, Air Pressure and Suction, is the accepted and approved principle for Washing Clothes.

The revolving cups inside the tank, moving up and down 60 times a minute and changing position on every stroke, force the soapy water through the mesh of the garments, carrying with it any foreign substance or dirt lodged in the mesh.

A SPECIAL FEATURE—The Automatic Cutout. Attached to top of one of the legs is a switch called an "automatic cutout" because it automatically cuts off the electric current and stops the motor and washer in the event that the washer or wringer are overloaded. This is a protection against burning out the motor, and saves possible damage to the washer and clothes.

AVOID possible future disappointment. Buy a proven appliance, sold and guaranteed by an established dealer ready to render the service that all mechanical devices at some time require.

AGREED ON REDUCTION

Congress isn't in session as yet though it will be within a month. In the meantime the leaders are getting busy with their plans for legislation during the coming session and as is expected not a little attention is being devoted to the problem of tax reduction.

It cannot be said that there is complete accord in regard to this desirable bit of legislation. There is a common desire that taxes be cut, and there is no doubt but what such action will be taken, but there are many views as yet as to how deep the cut should be made and just where it should take place. Some favor one thing and some another.

Differing from other periods just before the convening of congress there is a united sentiment in behalf of reducing the surtaxes. There has been a lesson learned in this respect and there is certainty that a substantial reduction in the surtaxes on incomes will be made. Whether the reduction carries the tax down to 25, 20 or even a less per cent., the important thing is that a slashing is assured and it will be made with confidence that it will not result in any decrease in the benefits to the country.

Just how great a cut in the taxes will be made is another matter that remains to be decided. There is no question but what conditions will permit of a cut of $350,000,000 and there have been those who have urged as high as a half billion. But the failure to bring about an adjustment of the French debt alters the situation somewhat. It means a lesser sum than might have been figured upon from that direction, but even without it there will be the chance for making a worthwhile and appreciated revision of the revenue bill.

While the new tax bill, or bills, is in the process of formation satisfaction is to be gained from the fact that tax reduction is the common goal. It is simply a question of getting together on what is sound and advisable under the circumstances. Good judgment, honestly applied to such a problem ought to have no great difficulty in reaching a sane solution.

HIGHWAY PROBLEMS

Complaint has been heard in many directions about the manner in which the highway is monopolized by the big trucks, vans and busses, even to the extent of holding up long strings of other vehicles and making travel dangerous in both directions by trying to get around such handicaps.

One writer in voicing his protest against such a situation tells of a truck followed by 42 automobiles which did not dare to do the necessary cutting in and out in order to get past the big vehicle which was moving only 10 miles an hour. This must have been on a much traveled highway with heavy traffic running such as is the case on week days, but it shows the conditions which are to be found even though it may not be as serious as this in the number of cars held back.

As it is coming to the time when roads will be broadened so that [illegible] will be given an outside [illegible] highway, or will the [illegible] when the trucks, vans and busses are required to move over separate [illegible] on important lines of travel.

[illegible] will be possible to deal with the big trucks which impede traffic and make passing dangerous in the same way that railroads on single track roads handle the passenger and the freight trains. In order that the slow may not hold up the fast sidings are provided and the freight invariably takes that until the passenger train gets ahead. It would be entirely feasible to have turnouts on the highways every few miles onto which the trucks would be expected to pull out in order to let the cars which have been piling up in back of it get ahead. That would involve no serious setback to, would be dangerous to neither the cars that are being delayed nor traffic going in the other direction.

Without any question the wider highway is fast becoming necessary as a contribution to greater safety on the highways, and it is quite evident that new problems of the highway can be expected to develop about as fast as existing ones are met.

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS

With the department of justice being served with notice to pay a substantial increase in rent, or get out, it is inevitable that the feeling of the department should be much like that of the householder when forced to face similar terms.

But rather does it bring to attention again the desirability of having the government build its own department structures and get away from the practice of paying so much in rent every year and stand in danger of being ejected every few years. Such a step as is being taken in regard to the department of justice's rented quarters is bound to bring to the front the demand for a federal building programme in Washington to meet this very situation. Such has contemplated a $50,000,000 fund that would be expended over a period of ten years for the purpose of overcoming just such a predicament.

It may have been possible in the past for the government to have hired quarters for various departments at less than it would have cost the government in interest on the necessary outlay, but with rents advancing it can be appreciated that it will not be many years before the rentals would account for a substantial part of such structures, which would also be more adaptable departmental uses.

It is inevitable that the move against the department of justice will create much sympathy for a building plan and if undertaken on a basis that would be in keeping with government requirements and standing, without going in for too elaborate designs, it would seem to be in a fair way to get favorable consideration especially if the expenditures were to be made over a decade.

With departments distributed about in many buildings and subject to constant increases and orders to move it doesn't appear that the desirable degree of efficiency can be obtained or that it is proving economical to the government in the long run if when undertaken a building programme could be put through with economy and efficient as the guiding spirit.

AMERICAN LABOR'S POSITION

Perhaps President Purcell of the International Federation of Trade Unions, and a member of the British parliament, thought that the plea which he made to the American Federation of Labor would receive a different reception than it got, when he urged the American workers to affiliate with the organized workers of Russia, but it was a cold, discouraging rebuff which he received in the immediate reply from President Green.

If the British labor leader figured that American labor was in sympathy with such views as he expressed and ready to join hands with any such movement as he supported he must have been quickly disillusioned. It was quite evident from the reply he got that the head of the American Federation of Labor has some information in regard to the labor situation in Russia, that he has no sympathy with the influence that is being shed upon others from Moscow and that he has not been hoodwinked by the claims which have been put forth regarding Russian aims and endeavors.

The sharp response pointed out the recognition of the Russian aim to use every strike for purposes of revolution and a strong feeling already developed in the American labor organization against communism. It may be that the president did not reflect the sentiment of every delegate in the convention but there is no question from the reception they got but what President Green spoke for organized labor and in a manner that permitted of no misunderstanding. Mr. Purcell will carry back a different impression of labor sentiment in this country than he must have had when he came over here.

JOB FOR CONGRESS

New York has been tolerating conditions in regard to motor busses which the courts say must end. City operated busses are against the law, or New York city at least lacked the authority to bring them into being. The result is that a change must be made.

How long is it going to be before there is regulation of the bus lines which are doing an interstate business, crossing Connecticut at will, dodging across a corner of the state, going along any route that pleases and without the approval of state or interstate authority?

It has been made certain that bus lines are here to stay. They will continue to increase and the public has reason to hope for improved transportation service. But there is no good reason why one bus line should be subjected to regulation and another one should not just because it happens to do business in parts of two states.

This situation is due to the fact that lines within a state are subject to state regulation, but those doing an interstate business are without any regulation because no authority to regulate them has ever been conferred upon any commission. Interstate commerce is regulated by a commission bearing that name, but its powers have never been extended to include motor busses. The result is that lines doing business in two states are doing as they please and for the time being state lines and railroads are being discriminated against.

This is one of the matters which should be given early and [illegible] tention by the coming congress.

EDITORIAL NOTES

With the frost on the pumpkin the husking bees cannot be far away.

Nature is busy with its brush and brilliant colors just as effectively used as ever.

Speaking of a bus drivers' association sounds like going back 30 or 35 years.

Colonel Mitchell may qualify as a loud speaker but he fades away when it comes to sticking to the facts.

The man on the corner says: No one likes to see a championship series where one team takes all the games.

"Keep the Home Fires Burning" may be appropriate for Fire Prevention week if they are only kept in a safe place.

Don't laugh at the old timer who, on his first auto ride, confused the ash receiver with what to him was regarded as the whip socket.

In other days the stranded theatrical people followed the railroad tracks. Those of today can follow the bus lines and find better traveling.

No one knows just what happened to the mail airplane lost in Pennsylvania but Colonel Mitchell can probably use it to point out some flaw in the navy.

GENTLE DIPLOMACY

"Now we've got to decide where we're going to live!" declared the happy young man. "But you are going to decide the question and it is to be just where you want it to be!"

"Oh, George!" breathed the pretty girl, fondly. "You are certainly wonderful, because most men would just the matter into their own hands with no argument! So much depends on the right sort of address on one's at-home cards! I just couldn't endure having people raise their eyebrows and say, 'Where on earth is that street?' you know! Why, when Adelaide gives her address in the stores you'd think she was reciting her family's income tax, and the clerks are so impressed and fall all over themselves to get what she wants! She and Tom have the loveliest apartment in that Carroway Court building——"

"Ouch!" said the happy young man. "I should say they had, but I haven't recently inherited a fortune, as Tom did! Eight rooms, four baths, marble steps and an elevator man who looks like a misaid crown prince! We can't afford that, I'm afraid."

"Oh, of course not," the pretty girl admitted hastily. "I was just saying how nice it was—and I am sure we can find something that will have just as nice an effect, only smaller.

"All I want, George, is a ducky little place on a street that is sort of reserved and quiet and smart," she continued, "the kind that impresses even strangers the minute they turn into it! So folks will know we are somebody and not just ordinary!"

"Uh, huh," the happy young man said understandingly. "Whenever I see a street like that I go through the alley for fear the butlers will run down the steps and yell at me to take off my shoes before stepping on the paving. But I want you to be perfectly satisfield, darling. It is g[illegible] to be as you want it. Of course we've got to stay in town because we couldn't keep in with the crowd if we didn't. It's going to take an awful lot of money, but we'll make it up on food and clothes and furniture and unimportant things like htat. I just laughed at father when he offered to build us a bungalow on one of his lots out at Brickprest eights——"

The pretty girl turned pale. "Oh, my," she breathed. "The suburbs! It is so important to keep up to date! There's that stunning building on Plum street——"

"The rent comes to two-thirds of my whole salary."

"Well, we can find something quaint and turn it into some sort of studio! And we could have Sunday night teas that would make us noted and that would be such a help to you."

"Uh, huh," agreed the young man. "Still, I don't believe a new spaghetti recipe ever helped a young lawyer much. If we had a bungalow at Brickprest Heights——"

"I don't see why you even mention such a place!" the pretty girl told him. "It's not even a place—it's a subdivision—and dinner'd be late if I went to a matinee——"

"And we'd have a guest room so that folks could come out and see us," supplied the young man. "Which is more room than any of the rest of the crowd has—and sunlight in every room, and our own strawberries! And bushels of flowers and morning-glory vines, and everything! And nobody to thump on a radiator if we danced till midnight when we had a party! And no darned rent to pay!"

She considered. "It sounds kind of nice," she admitted. "But there is a catch in it somewhere. I wonder if we could have rosebushes——"

The young man coughed. "We'd save enough on rent," he mentioned carelessly, "to buy a little car, maybe. Then we could get back and forth to parties in town easily."

"Come to think of it," the pretty girl broke out, excitedly, "we'd be the only ones in the crowd to live in a house and it would make us important! And a car! Oh, George! Tell your father we want the bungalow at the eights—what are you grinning about? I'll bet ou had made up your mind all by yourself that we were going to live out there!"

"As though I'd think of dictating to you!" observed the happy young man in aggrieved tones. "Say! I've got some cute plans right here for you to look at! I just happened to have them here in my pocket!"—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

He Didn't Know.

A young man and his wife entertained the minister who was supplying the church pulpit at Sunday dinner. Two fried chickens were on the menu and the minister did full justice to his share of the repast.

He praised the young wife for the meal she had prepared and expressed his appreciation in glowing terms. After he had gone the host remarked to his wife, "Do you suppose he would have enjoyed those chickens any less if he had known they were stolen?"

For the young man irritated at the repeated invasion of his garden by chickens from his neighbor's coop, had captured two of them while they were engaged in their depredations on his side of the fence and it was these chickens that later graced the dinner table when the preacher was entertained.

Poor Judgment.

There was a group of colored men standing on the Central wharf bridge in idleness. It was not long before a colored woman came along and as she noticed the loiterers she remarked to the group in general, "What are you all doin' here? Ah knows what the matter is, youse didn't vote for the right man."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE MIGHTY EATER OF ETAH

This is the tale of Akkomidingwa, Old Man of the North, once a mighty hunter, and now a mighty eater and patriarch of Etah, as told by Maynard Owen Williams, of the MacMillan Arctic expedition, and forwarded by "the machine that talks through the air," as the Eskimos call it, to the National Geographic Society at Washington.

The amateur radio operator who relayed the message was A. W. Everest, of station 1 ARE at Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

"Although it is known as the most northerly settlement in the world, Etah's population is unstable," the message says.

"Tupik and igloo, summer tent and winter rock house, are not always in the same location. The Eskimo, still a hunter, moves his dwelling to sea or hill according to whether he is pursuing the savage walrus or searching his stone or metal traps for blue foxes or other game. Summer or winter there are likely to be Eskimo settlements at Anoritok and other places farther north.

"The dean of Etah society, by living the year round in a rock igloo at the inner break of the Etah Harbor, Boomerang, enables Etah to maintain its reputation. When there was work to be done in assembling the planes, this old Eskimo chose for himself a convenient viewpoint and restricted his heavy labor to overseeing the job of paring a new back plaster whose presence was proclaimed only by his peculiar stoop.

"Akkomidingwa came to be known as Old-Crick-in-The-Back. He is the father of the tribe's best hunter, Kookapingwa. The old man has staked out for himself a sitting-out job and taken into his home as partner a girl whose industry is as unnoticeable as his own.

"As an eater, Akkomidingwa is without a peer among the Smith Sound Eskimos and he is as regular with his meals as there are meals. Acquisitive by nature, his stomach, acting as general staff of operations, looks out for itself first.

"When I first heard of him he was reputed the greatest "bummer" and beggar among a people whose way of inviting themselves to partake of the white man's food might beget more censure were it not for the fact that when opportunity arises they are as eager to share their own as anothers.

"Akkomidingwa is as clever as any of his juniors and has a real sense of humor. His head not only serves his feet and his stomach, but contains a craftiness that he is ready to place at the disposal of his friends. When a visitor wants a section of walrus tusk made into a gavel head bearing the insignia of his lodge, Akkomidingwa is the one who can do the job.

"He conceived a real friendship for Dr. Davidoff (Dr. Leo Davidoff, of Boston,) and in return for professional services rendered, which not only relieved the aches of age but also gave the old man a certain standing in his own community, he made a generous present for which he obstinately refused any return. Koels also won his admiration and our ichtyologist proclaims that he has never detected a sign of the mercenary in the old man's makeup.

"When Nookapingwa sailed with Captain Bernier for Ellesmere Island on the Canadian Patrol steamer, the Arctic, Akkomidingwa shed real tears, not so much at the temporary loss of his meal ticket, for Nookapingwa's caches of walrus meat will always be at his father's disposal, as at the thought that they may never meet again. Akkomidingwa, clever at keeping inside the law, is committing that unpardonable sin against the cruel north. He is getting old.

"When Akkomidingwa salvages gasoline boxes and coffee cans from the wreckage of expedition work, some of his fellows think him stingy and grasping, but it is really foresight which prompts him to gather fuel for his American cook stove, also salvaged in other years so that his rock igloo, embellished by his youthful mate and the colorful labels from cans which to him are not entirely legendary fruits, will not be without cheer in that day when cold and hunger exact their toll and the dean of the Smith Sound Eskimos of Etah goes home; let us hope to a land where the joys of the stomach are not unknown.

"It was not mere chance that enabled Captain MacMillan to picture for geographic readers the Eskimo patriarch in the act of eating. That is one task in which Akkomidingwa, whose hard work has long since, if ever, been done, is still a leader without a peer."

Jail Turned Into Hotel

At Throcknorton, Tex., there has been such little demand for space in the jail that the county commissioners have arranged to convert it into a hotel. The cells are being fitted up comfortably and the iron bars are hidden by draperies. The interior is made fairly cheerful and the county expects to derive considerable revenue from the idea.

All things might come to the man who waits if starvation didn't get there first.

From Small Beginnings

Marshall Field, the Greatest Merchant

Every person who goes to Chicago wishes, first of all, to see the great Marshall Feld store, one of the very greatest commercial institutions in the world, with branches and representatives in many lands. That huge business, whose cash account reads like that of a small kingdom, was established and developed by a man who was once only a Massachusetts farm boy, unable to go to college and sent in early life to work as a poorly paid store clerk. Probably there are still living in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, people who bought goods from the 18 year old dry goods clerk, and felt themselves very much superior to him.

If Marshall Feld was a clerk he was a good clerk, and knew how to sell goods. He also looked ahead to being something greater. When he was 21, he left the Pittsfield store and went to Chicago where he was once more a clerk, but this time in a greater store. He was looking for opportunity and he found it. Because he was honest, quick, a thoroughly good salesman, and alive with ideas and ambition he gained a partnership. Once again he used his ability to his very best and became master of the mercantile business. Then he organized a company which ultimately became the present great organization of Marshall Field and Company.

In a certain sense Marshall Field had reached the top, but he did not stop in his efforts. He watched every detail of the business, studied the demands of the public, sent his buyers far and wide, and put forward reliable goods at reasonable prices. Like an engineer at the throttle, he guided the enterprise until he more than doubled and tripled an already great income. Money came to him in vast sums, and he gave money away liberally for the benefit of others, supplying millions for free education and public uplift. Every person who attends the University of Chicago has Field to thank for the land on which the university stands; and the Field Museum in Chicago and other institutions are monuments to him. The humble clerk had developed into an American prince.

If we are wrong an ally is always welcome.

A good start is half the cake

Of course you have to be a good cook to make good cake, but with good materials it's easy to be a good cook.

For instance, a good shortening like SNOWDRIFT is a big help in making good cake. It is much easier to cream SNOWDRIFT in with the other ingredients because it is so creamy itself. SNOWDRIFT is so delicate it makes your cake rich without changing the flavor. There just couldn't be anything nicer for making cake.

WOMEN HEAR OF HOME MISSIONARY WORK IN SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING

Pacific coast missions of the A. M. A. are playing a significant and important part in interpreting the United States to China and Japan particularly declared Rev. George W. Hinman, D. D., in his address Friday afternoon which closed the semi-annual meeting of the Woman's Congregational Home Missionary Union of Connecticut, Eastern district, which was held at Park Congregational church. There is a new racial and national consciousness in Japan and in China which is sensitive to the treatment of their nationals in this country, but the educated and Christianized men who are sent out from the Chinese and Japanese missions in California are exercising powerful influences towards a right understanding of America in these Asiatic countries.

Rev. Dr. Hinman, who is secretary of the Pacific coast missions of the American Missionary association, spoke upon the part they played as a factor in international friendship. In opening his address he said he felt that Connecticut is and always has been a factor in international friendliness because of its notable missionary contact with the rest of the world. He referred to himself as a pilgrim coming back for the first time to the home of his ancestors and he spoke with admiration of certain sentences in the recent address of President Coolidge before the American Legion at Omaha. So highly had these words of President Coolidge been regarded by the American Missionary association that its officers had telegraphed to the president their thanks for these words as an expression of international friendliness and brotherhood.

No longer can we conduct our missions in China, said Dr. Hinman, independent of what goes on here, for there is a constant reaction in China to what goes on in the United States, and there is a feeling in Japan that is dependent upon the attitude of the Christian people in the United States. More and more the men and women from the missions of the Pacific coast are going back as interpreters of this country to China and Japan.

He related a number of instances of young Chinese or Japanese who had come under the influence of the missions and had become leaders of great influence in their native countries. The missions make no distinction of race or nationality, but out from them is continually flowing a stream of international friendliness.

Prayer by Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe, the singing of America by the congregation and the benediction by Dr. Howe brought the afternoon session and the meeting to a close.

Opening Session

The opening morning session of the meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Charles Snow Thayer of Hartford, with delegates in attendance from Congregational churces in all parts of the district. After the hymn, Hail to the partments of the work were given by Brightness of Zion's Glad Morning, prayer was offered and reports on deputies secretaries as follows: young people, Mrs. B. S. Winchester of Fairfield; home service, Mrs. Henry Laurens, of Hartford; thank offerings, Mrs. William Carr of Poquonnock; methods, Mrs. Fredus M. Case of Milford.

Sunday School Extension

The first address was by Miss Helen Wilcox, field worker of the Sunday school extension service, who spoke upon A Modern March Through Georgia, in which she spoke with great interest of development of the work from the southern part to the northern part of Georgia.

"Realism on the Frontier" was the topic of an address by Miss Mariam L. Woodberry of New York, secretary of the Home Missionary society, who described the important pioneer work in Montana and other western points, in South Tampa, Florida, and other points in the south. She also spoke on what is done among foreigners in the Ellis Island kindergarten and the Schauffer school for girls of all nationalities and the training school for allen young women at Springfield, Mass.

Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard who conducted the music led in the singing of Fling Out the Banner, which was followed by the adress by Mrs. Samuel Lane Loomis, wife of Samuel J. Loomis of the American Missionary association, whose topic was "Peter Pan in Porto Rico." In this she gave a very vivid manner her impressions of a five week tour with her husband in Porto Rico, describing how the work of the missionary society there brings most of the joy experienced by the youth of that island, of whom 70,000 are unable to get into the schools because there isn't room for them. She spoke especially of a school which is the particular responsibility of the Connecticut hmoe missionary society, this being the Blanche Kellogg school for girls.

Mrs. J. Fulton Ferguson of New Haven reported on the Treasury records of the eastern district. Miss Sylvinia Norton of Westchester invited attention to the material to be found upon her table, and Mrs. Allen Latham of Norwich Town, chairman of the eastern district in charge of the arrangements for the day announced the luncheon to be served in the parish house.

Prayer by the Rev. Lydia Hartig of Goshen and the singing of the hymn O Lord of Heaven and Earth and Sky closed the morning session.

Luncheon at Noon

Luncheon was served in the Osgood Memorial parish house by a committee of the Park church women who provided the following inviting menu:

Cold Beef Loaf
Mashed Potatoes Peas

Ice Cream and Cake

The committee included Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, chairman; Mrs. Neville Bilicque, Mrs. Frank Hempstead, Mrs. Humprey Almy, Mrs. Harry Rushworth, Mrs. John S. Blackmar, Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, Miss Mary A. C. Avery.

At 1.30 o'clock a play entitled "Help Wanted for Miss Liberty," a Christian Americanization play, was splendidly presented in the parish house by the Philathea class of the United church school and directed by Mrs. Philip O. Roberts.

Much talent was displayed by the well balanced cast of which the audience was readily appreciative. The cast was formed as follows:

Mrs. Joseph A. French

The incidental vocal music was rendered by Mrs. Charles T. Bard with Mrs. William H. Dawley at the piano.

Mrs. John Gillan had charge of the "Immigrants" that took part in the pageant at the close of the play.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session was opened in the church auditorium at 2.15 with the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," following which prayer was offered by Rev. William J. Reynolds, Mrs. Thayer introduced as the first speaker Rev. Richard R. Shoemaker, superintendent of the Congregational mission work in the southwest, who spoke upon the topic "Gila Monsters and Other Monsters," upon which he gave an inspiring description of the need and the opportunity for Christian work on the great belt of territory between El Paso, Texas, and the Mexican border. This presents a challenge, he declared, that cannot be ignored by the churches who are supporting the work of the home missionary society.

After the singing of the doxology, the congregation heard the address by Dr. Hinman, which was the closing address of the meeting.

Mrs. Thayer expressed the great appreciation which the officers and delegates felt for the hospitality of the church, the music, the play and the speakers.

ACADEMY GRADUATE GIVES LIBRARIES TO UNIVERSITIES

With the creation of the new department of education Dr. James H. Penniman, Yale '84, has made known his intention to present to the university a large number of rare and valuable works on education as a memorial to his parents. Dr. Penniman has already given a library of education to the University of Pennsylvania in memory of his mother, a collection now numbering some 12,000 volumes. For Yale Dr. Penniman will take as a basis the present library of education, numbering about 20,000 volumes, which are to form a part of and be known as the Penniman Memorial Library of Education, and will develop the collection until it is one of the largest and finest in the country. Plans are being made for the housing of this library near the seminary rooms and studies of the department of education, and adjoining similar collections in philosophy, psychology, and other related subjects. While this valuable professional library will be used chiefly by the department of education, it will, like the other libraries, be open to all members of the university and to visiting scholars.

The Penniman Memorial Library of Yale university was unanimously accepted by the university library committee, who arranged to have a special bookplate for the Penniman library, to provide a special room in the new library building, and to erect a suitable memorial tablet. The gift came before the corporation and the corporation minute reads as follows;

"The secretary read a letter from Mr. Keough reporting the establishment by Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, Yale '84, of a Penniman Memorial Library of Education in memory of his parents, James Lanman Penniman, Yale, '53, and Marta Davis Hosmer, and stating that satisfactory arrangements have been made with the library committee for the housing of the books, for a special bookplate and a mural tablet.

"Voted, to extend the thanks of the corporation to Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, B. A., '84, for his generous offer to build up the present Library of Education until it is one of the largest and finest in the country, and for his assurance of a permanent endowment for the purchase of books on this important subject, and to assure Dr. Penniman that the corporation is particularly appreciative of the timeliness of his gift, which will prove of great assistance in the starting of the new department of education."—Yale Alumni Weekly.

There is special local interest in these gifts inasmuch as Dr. Penniman is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1880.

Bennett hall, which is to house the Penniman library of 35,000 books and seat 110 readers in one room at the University of Pennsylvania, completed the past summer. The Penniman room in the new Stirling library at Yale will be even larger. Yale Penniman Library of Education has no superior and is approached by Harvard and Columbia alone.

CUYLER'S HOMER WINS DRAMATIC CONTEST FOR NATIONAL LEAGUERS

Aldridge and Coveleskie Hook in Pitching Battle Until the Eighth Inning When Pirates Even up the Series—Bluege is Hit by Pitched Ball and Is out of the Game—Judge and Wright Also Hit Home Runs—Attendance is 43,000.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8—(By the A. P.)—Undaunted by their first setback, the Pirates sallied forth today, armed to the teeth, and came home with the booty of the second world's series battle.

On the hazy battleground of Forbes field, flanked by a wildly cheering throng of 43,000 non-combatants, the buccaneers turned the tables on their senator conquerors of yesterday, broke up the sharpshooting of one of Washington's biggest guns, Stanley Coveleskie, and won with a dime novel finish after a home run by Kiki Cuyler and the stout hearted pitching of Vic Aldridge.

The final verdict was gained only by the hair-line margin of 3 to 2, with the outcome in doubt until the last putout. But it was enough to put the Pirates on even terms with the world's champion Senators as the rival forces left tonight for the capital, prepared to renew the engagement in the third tussle at Griffith stadium tomorrow.

Bluege is Out of Game

There was a double portion of disaster for the Senators as they withdrew toward their home port, for besides losing the game and their bridling won advantage of yesterday, their ranks suffered a hard blow in the loss, at least temporarily of Ossie Bluege star third base guardian.

Bluege was hit just back of the ear by one of Aldridge's fast inshoots in the sixth inning and forced out of the game while Buddy Myer, an unproved recruit, took his place on the field. Bluege dropped as though shot and at first seemed that he was severely hurt but he recovered sufficiently to walk from the field to the clubhouse. There, though still in a daze, physicians discovered no appreciable danger in his condition. He left shortly after the game with his teammates to board their Washington train but could not remained as to whether he would return to the lineup tomorrow, in spite of Manager Bucky Harris optimism.

The loss of Bluege, whose play has been a feature of the series thus far, came at a critical moment for the Senators, who were battling to break the 4-4 deadlock brought about when Peckinpaugh Pirate shortstop, walloped a home run into the right field stands in the fourth inning that offset the advantage gained by the Senators on Joe Judge's round-trip smash to the right field grandstand extension.

Even with Bluege in the lineup, however it is doubtful whether the Senators could have survived the uphill climax drive, in which Cuyler's home run broke the deadlock and sent both Moore ahead of him with the winning tallies. While Aldridge, called the last of a series of gallant games, held the Senators in a desperate ninth inning rally that fell one run short of tying the count.

The Senators had filled the bases in nine out in the last inning with Harris attempting to steal home and did manage to slide over one run on a long sacrifice fly by Bob Veach, on a pinchhitting play, but Aldridge struck out Dutch Ruether another substitute batsman, and retired the dangerous Sam Rice with a easy bounder for the final out.

Aldridge Pitches Brilliantly

It was the second time in the game that the world's champions filled the bases with none out but on the first occasion, the fifth inning, they were twice as successful, going out without making a run, in that frame. Aldridge got himself in the hole by walking Coveleskie's mate and forcing the lad to third after Peck and Ruel had hit Texas leaguers, but the Pirate twirler pulled himself together with Washington's heavy artillery facing him. He forced Rice, Sam Harris and Goslin to hit into easy infield plays, two of which were forceouts at the plate.

Through the earlier stages of the game Aldridge was out pitched and out batted than his veteran rival, Coveleskie but his courage and control aided him close to unhittability when danger lurked nearest. Besides his great stands in the fifth and ninth, Aldridge closed off Senator threats in two other instances when the fleet footed Sam Rice was in a position to score from second or third if the needed hit would only come through.

Coveleskie himself twirled capably, pulling himself out of bad holes in two innings, the third and sixth, but his downfall was accomplished through two master strokes—the home runs of Wright and Cuyler—although the big Polish star's moist ball silenced the main Pirate guns for the most part.

Pecks Errors Prove Costly

There was no doubt, too that two separate but distinct breaks helped Pittsburgh's eight-inning spurt. The first was an error by the usually reliable veteran Peckinpaugh, who couldn't handle the moist ball driven at him by Eddie Moore before the runner got to first, the second "break" came a moment later when Cuyler's hard drive to right, scoring Moore ahead of him, took a sharp hop that ended in the front part of the temporary stands. It was a fluke homer, a hit that would have given no more than two bases on the regular playing field, but it was sufficient to clinch the battle.

Regardless of these turns of fortune, however, the Pirates probably would have tallied twice in this inning. Moore, on second at the time, would have scored even if Cuyler's blow hadn't jumped out of the field. Barnhart followed with another hit and Peck contributed a second error on Traynor's bounder but these blows were wasted as Coveleskie steadied and checked the onslaught.

Tribute to Mathewson

The victory was scored, in dramatic settings—made so by the roaring spirit of the capacity crowd, the presence of oldtime heroes of Pittsburgh's last world's series victory sixteen years ago and by the tributes paid to the memory of one of the greatest championship heroes of all time—Christy Mathewson. WORLD'S SERIES BRIEFS

(By the A. P.)

Baseball paid tribute to the one and only Matty-Christy Mathewson, who died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., yesterday, by placing the worlds series flag at half mast, bedecking heads and wearing black armbands. Further ceremonies are to follow at Washington on Saturday when "Big Six" is buried, according to present plans.

Few failed to understand when the brief honors for Mutty started and more than 40,000 followers of the game to which the great giant pitcher of the past had contributed so much, participated in the rites. There was silence throughout the great park and many heads were bowed.

The Pirates improved their series batting average today although they failed to match the hitting of the foe. Tonight the Pittsburgh team average is .134 against the .164 yesterday. Washington added four points to its figures and now stands at .254.

"Goose" Goslin, from whom exceptional play was expected when the series started, has not had a single chance in the outfield and has scored only one hit in the eight times at bat.

Max Carey has found both Johnson and Coveleskie puzzling. Yesterday he struck out on three pitched balls, all of them called strikes. Today he did the same thing against Coveleskie but took a swing at the last one.

The Senators have faced nothing but hooks in the series and Mackechnie evidently plans to curve them to death, having assigned Kremer for the third tussle in Washington tomorrow. With the count three and two neither Aldridge nor Meadows has hesitated to feed curve balls. Washington "kills" fast ball pitching and it has been kept from them.

Prophets are again confounded. Pittsburgh's defense was supposed to be unsteady at critical stages, but it remained for the usual reliable Peckinpaugh, voted the most valuable player to his team in the American league to commit two bobbles in one inning. Peck has the error column all to himself, so far, having made one yesterday.

Babe Ruth is becoming more or less of a worthy guest. Yesterday he hobnobbed with the Senators and the American leaguers won. Today he passed the pre-war game time in the Pittsburgh dugout and matters were reversed.

The left side of the Pirate field schtultlares, Wright and Traynor, two youths have made good on everything that had been said of them, flashing in the field and at the bat. It was Traynor who scored the Pirates only run yesterday with a homer and Wright's circuit smash today tied the game.

Home runs have started the scoring in both games—in fact they have been the first hits. Yesterday Joe Harris bolled one into the right field stands in the second and Judge duplicated the feat today.

Washington's sprinters have yet to steal a base on Earl Smith. Pittsburgh boasts two thefts, by Bugbie and Grantham in yesterday's tilt.

Washington's team left for home immediately after the game planning to arrive there about midnight. Pittsburgh started at 10:30 tonight and will arrive about 6 o'clock in the morning.

Two "Babes" in the persons of Stuffy Mclnnis of the Pirates and Dutch Reuther of the Senators, have failed dismally in the role of pinch hitting. McInnis struck out yesterday and Reuther did likewise today.

Enthusiasm over the series made daredevils of several youthful Pittsburghers. When the game started today more than a dozen of them were perched on a great clock over the righfield stands.

FOUR REGULARS RETURN TO AGGIE SQUAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 8.—Connecticut's chances for throwing a strong team against Maine at Storrs on Saturday looked much better this afternoon, after the return to the lineup of several first string men who have been nursing injuries since the New York University game.

Schofield, Eddy, Nanfeldt and Makofski have been passed by Trainor Daly as in condition to play Saturday, and were on the field and practising this afternoon.

Although no definite announcement was made, Coach Dole intimated today that there would be at least two changes in his starting lineup against Maine. The Connecticut mentor was not satisfied with the work of his team against New York, especially the defensive play, and it seems likely that changes will be made to offset this weakness. In the line, Barber, Longo, Johnson, Holm and Logan have all shown up well and it seems likely that if Dole makes any replacements in his forward wall it will be from this group. Filmer, Allard or Donovan will probably get the call if Dole makes any changes behind the line.

ONE KILLED AS MACHINE CRASHES IN AIRPLANE RACES AT MITCHELL FIELD

MITCHELL FIELD, Oct. 8—Though death today cast its shadow over Mitchel field, during the first day's activities of the 1925 national air races, it failed to dim the enthusiasm of the participants.

Taking off in the first event, the free-for-all race for two seater, low horsepower airplanes, for which the Glenn H. Curtiss trophy was offered, C. D. Chamberlain, piloting a home built Bellanca CE-2, and carrying Lawrence Buranelli as a passenger, experienced trouble almost from the start.

The plane proved "right wing heavy" and when about a half mile south of the field, sideslipped a hundred feet crashing on the right wing. Buranelli was killed and Chamberlain injured.

Seeing the plane bearing their brother turn the first black and gold pylon, Vincent Buranelli, designer of the Remington-Buranelli plane and Prosper Buranelli, New York newspaperman, awaited its reappearance. While waiting they were informed that the plane had crashed, but through faulty identification understood that Chamberlain and not Buranelli had been killed. It was considerably later that correct identification was established.

Basil L. Rowe, piloting a Thomas Morse S-4C won the race with an average speed of 109.9 miles per hour over a hundred mile course.

The next event was a free-for-all race for two, three and four place planes, for the Merchants' association of New York trophy.

Several of the pilots during each circuit rose high in the air, to dive down across the field and swoop around the first pylon, on an upward, outward curve.

In doing this one pilot, Basil Rowe, flying a Sun, of Italian design, several times dived so low that his landing gear touched the field. With the planes in such close proximity the spectators were given an opportunity to observe their remarkable speed. "Casey" Jones of Garden City, piloting a Curtiss-Oriole, won the race with an average speed of 124.2 miles per hour over the hundred mile course.

After the second race a squadron of army pursuit planes took the air to stage manoeuvres and stunt flying.

The third and feature event of the day was the Liberty engine builders' trophy race, the first international event to be held in this country in many years. Sixteen ships of observation type lasted out upon the field and conspicuous among them were the green planes of the French war department, piloted by Captain H. Lemaitre and Captain Pelletier Doisi, French aces. Three navy ships also were entered.

Off at the crack of the starter's gun Captain Lemaitre led the first group of planes throughout the race, winning with an average speed of 129.1 miles per hour over the 100 mile course. Lieut. E. H. Bayley, bearing the army standards was next to pass over the white canvas cross at the finish, making an average speed of 128.3 miles per hour. The navy, represented by Lieut. G. B. Henderson took third honors with an average speed of 125.3 miles per hour and Captain Pelletier Doisi was fourth with an average speed of 122.1 miles per hour.

The day offered plenty of excitement and records through the crowd. Parachute jumps and stunt flights filled in the time between races, and when the last plane landed, the searchlights cut the gathering darkness with paths of light, and the planes taxied one after one to their places for tonight's line.

Among the visitors were six members of the president's air inquiry board who came from Washington by plane.

There will be four races tomorrow.

PRES. COOLIDGE TO TOSS OUT BALL IN TODAY'S GAME

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—Shifting to baseball's little classic to Washington from Pittsburgh finds capital fandom ready and anxious to desert the electric score boards for such seats as they have been able to obtain at the Clark Griffith stadium.

With the contest standing at one victory each for the Nationals and the Pirates, interest here promises at present to center on the pitching duel between Coveleskie and Aldridge, confident that Harris and his men will capture their second consecutive world title.

A large part of official Washington, led by President Coolidge, who is approaching the status of a seasoned fan will be at the park to witness the third encounter of the series. In addition to his role as spectator in such, the chief executive will officiate once more at the baseball classic by tossing out the first ball, several thousand persons high in the government, the army, navy and marine corps, among the "specialists" in the battle for tickets, will add color to the setting.

The weather, the outcome of the series and the matter of tickets seemed tonight to be the only items about the whole event that were undecided. An early forecast warned of the probability of showers and lower temperature tomorrow. The series results lie in the hands of the players and the remaining reserved tickets appeared to be in the hands of scalpers.

The scramble for the precious boards continued unabated tonight, and although the Washington club had reported a sell-out of all but the reserved seats, tickets still were in circulation. A score or more of scalpers plied their trade on the streets and in temporary offices, and while prices were reported rising steadily a suggestion went the rounds that the scalpers' clients may meet with grief at the park gates.

The gate keepers, it was said, are to examine each ticket presented and will reject each bearing the signature of a scalper, every person who sells a ticket, if he be other than a club official, is supposed to sign each card to comply with the law.

Thousands who sought reservations but didn't get them and who shunned the scalpers, are ready for the rush to begin early tomorrow for the unreserved seats in the centerfield sun parlor and in the temporary stands. About 5,000 such seats will be available.

In left and centerfields, the temporary stands have been erected and additional boxes have been provided along the rightfield line. The encroaching stands in left and center offer an inviting home run mark for the hardy right hand hitters of both clubs, but a mighty wallop still will be required to hoist the ball over the high right field wall.

MELLON SAYS EVERYBODY WAS AT BALL GAME

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—Secretary Mellon, a native of Pittsburgh, is convinced his home city has gone clean off its base over the world's series.

After putting in long distance calls all day yesterday for persons in Pittsburgh, he announced today he was unable to find any one there who had time to talk to a secretary of the treasury while such attractions as Walter Johnson and others were available.

The secretary is rooting for Washington.

CUBS DRAW FIRST BLOOD IN CHICAGO SERIES

CHICAGO, Oct. 8—(A. P.)—The National league drew first blood in the annual Chicago city series today when they defeated the White Sox 2 to 1 in the first complete game of the series. Yesterday the two teams played nine teen innings to a 2 to 2 deadlock, which was halted on account of darkness.

Wilbur Cooper, the Cubs' star southpaw hander, held the White Sox to five hits while the National was aided by Ted Lyons and Dickie Kerr for eight safe blows. Both of the Cubs' runs were scored off Lyons.

The scene of conflict will shift tomorrow to the White Sox park, the home of the American leaguers, score:

BALTIMORE EVENS UP SERIES WITH LOUISVILLE

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8—The Baltimore Orioles came back today behind the stellar pitching of Big George Earnshaw and drew up on even terms with the Louisville Colonels by winning 5 to 3 the sixth game of the annual series for the championship of the class AA circuits.

The teams are now deadlocked with three victories apiece.

While Earnshaw held the American association champions to five scattered hits, the internationals fielded brilliantly behind him and hit Ed Holley Louisville box star, hard and often. Fielding gems on the part of the Kentuckians drew Holley out of trouble frequently, but he was obliged to give way to Dawson in the eighth inning. The birds could do nothing with the latter's offerings thereafter.

A remarkable triple play in the fifth inning saved Holley an earlier retreat. After Archdeacon had walked and was ridden home on successive singles by Maisel, Porter and Roser, Reinard attempted a squeeze play. The hit bopped straight into the hands of Holley and the relay to Shannon at second and Cotter at first caught the surprised birds flatfooted.

The series will be renewed here and will continue until one team has gained five contests. The core:

MATTY IS ON HIS WAY TO HIS HOME

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 8—Christy Mathewson is on his way home.

The body of "The Six", baseball's great idol who died suddenly last night at his home here, was placed aboard a train at 9:50 o'clock bound for Lewisburg, Pa., his mother's home, where his funeral will be held Saturday.

It was a simple ceremony, this leave taking from the north that had sheltered him through five years of vain struggle against tuberculosis. Utterly devoid of outward indications of the high place he held in the hearts of the villagers and lovers of base ball, the hearse bearing "Matty's" massive frame, drove slowly to the little railroad station along the streets where heads were bowed in reverence. At the station the casket was placed aboard the train and Mrs. Mathewson, who is accompanying the body, retired to a drawing room in another car.

It was Mrs. Mathewson's wish that no ceremony should mark "Matty's" farewell. Early in the day the commanders of Jackson A. Mathews post and Saranac Lake post, American Legion, in whose rolls Christy's name was inscribed as a member, called on the widow and laid before her plans for a military escort. But Mrs. Mathewson demurred, pointing out that many of the members of the two posts were fighting the same disease that proved fatal to her husband and that exertion might be more than they could withstand.

WINDHAM WILL PLAY AT WESTERLY TODAY

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 8—"Windham High school's eleven is well prepared and should continue its two season undefeated record," was the statement made by Coach Callaghan, Thursday night, the eve of Windham's acid test of the season. Friday afternoon at three o'clock the Crimson and Blue gridsters will engage the Westerly High school cohorts on the latter's home grounds.

The local mentor is highly optimistic over the manner in which the players are rounding out. Lariviere will appear in the fullback role today and the remainder of the lineup will be: Buck, center; Garrigus and Cohen, guards; Tomasco and Sawicki, tackles; Wojcik and Saba, ends; Meikle, quarterback; Lariviere, fullback; Rychling and Nichols, halfbacks. Sawicki suffered an injury to his hip in practice this week and there is a possibility that Dawson will start the game in his place.

KREMER WILL OPPOSE FERGUSON IN TODAYS GAME

PITTSBURGH, Pa. Oct. 8.—(AP)—Managers McKechnie of Pittsburgh and Harris of Washington, said after the Pirates' victory in the second world's series game today that they could continue right-handed duels, at least in the first contest at Washington tomorrow.

Ray Kremer, youthful Pittsburgh moundsman, will face Alex Ferguson, obtained by the Senators from the New York Yankees this season, formerly pitcher for the Boston Red Sox. The statements of Harris and McKechnie upset the "dope" somewhat as it had been expected that Emil Yde and Dutch Ruether, two capable southpaws, would fight out the third contest.

"We are now one and one," said McKechnie after his Pirates had triumphed. "I rather expected it and the superior pitching of Aldridge could not be denied. He worked wonderfully in that fifth inning, shuttling them out after the bases had been filled. I am very well satisfied with the team's showing.

"If we start to hit, and the boys showed a better grip on the bats today, I expect my men to romp away with the series. They got to Coveleskie today, especially Glenn Wright, who I expect to become one of the greatest players baseball ever has known. Cuyler, A heavy hitter always, delivered today after several failures and we have reason to be smiling.

"Do you know that it is only in the last two months that Wright has been able to catch a ball with one hand."

Harris stressed the accident which took his third baseman, Bluege, out of the game. "There may be a slight concussion, according to the physicians." The young manager said. "He may be able to play tomorrow but I doubt it. When we arrive in Washington we will have an x-ray taken. If Bluege is unable to play Buddy Myer again will be in his position. He is a fine ball player but will be somewhat out of his element at third.

"We had many chances to win today. Perhaps it was Aldridge's pitching and perhaps it was the nervousness of batters, but the fact remains that Pittsburgh won. I will send Ferguson after tomorrow's game.

"Filling the bases the way we did we are sure to break through very shortly and when we do there will be nothing to it."

WEBSTER MANAGER THINKS LOUGHRAN A POOR SPORT

Manager Felix Wozniekl of the St. Joseph club of Webster, Mass., called The Bulletin last night and poured fourth a tale of woe in which he characterized Henry Loughran, former manager of the Moosup team, as a poor sport and not a man of his word. According to Wozniekl Loughran brought the Moosup team to Webster early in the season for a guarantee of $150 with the understanding that the Webster club was to get a return game at Moosup for the same money. The game was definitely scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 11. On Wednesday of this week Manager Wozniekl received a letter from Moosup stating that Loughran was no longer manager of the team and the game would have to be called off.

Manager Wozniekl says he is of the opinion that Loughran is to back of the deal so that he won't have to dig up $150 for the guarantee but if bringing in a cheaper team, Waterman, to get some of the Moosup peoples' money. Manager Wozniekl said that this was not the first time the Loughran had been known to pull such a trick in order to save almost a few pennies. He also said that never again would the Webster club have anything to do with the Moosup team as long as Loughran had anything to do with the club.

WESTERLY

For the adjourned meeting of the Westerly town council which met for the October session in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall Monday, only two members appeared at the council chambers Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. One of the purposes of the meeting was the canvassing of the voting lists, which it was anticipated here might be a call for if an adjourned caucus of the Republican party was to be held. The Republican caucus developed no contests and as a result there was no need for an adjourned session. No council session was held Thursday.

Under the Westerly caucus act a provision is made that if more than one candidate is named for office a three-day adjournment follows, when the polls are open from 2 p. m. until 9 p. m., and the voting is done by check list. It was for this reason that the list was to have been made ready for use. Its use will not now be required until town election day, which comes Tuesday, November .

Apparently there will be held no caucus of the Democratic party this year in Westerly, a number of Westerly leading Democrats have stated that in all probability none will be held. A remarkable fact is that since the Westerly caucus law became effective, no contests have developed in that party primaries which would necessitate the use of a check list, which by the law becomes a part of the records of the office of the Westerly Town clerk. Up to the present, outside of the records of Democrats who have been candidates for office, there is no list of the Westerly Democracy available. It would seem that a continuation of this policy on the part of the Democrats, would cause no pressing need for a check list to be used in a caucus, if it should be decided later to hold one. Should no opposition ticket be placed in the field, next election day would be one in name only.

The theme was built around the quotation, "Give ye them to eat," from the words of Jesus "These are not my meetings," exclaimed Mr. Smith, "These are your meetings," and he proceeded to stress the need for everyone to feel a sense of responsibility for the success of the campaign. The sermon was preceded by a musical service in which the church choir under the leadership of Mrs. J. W. Jackson took part. The pastor, Rev. J. G. Five united with the church at the communion service here Sunday.

Regardless of the stormy day Monday, over 350 met at the town hall to cast their ballot for town officers in the annual election.

The Goshen church will unite with her mother church, the First Church of Lebanon in its 225th anniversary celebration, Sunday, October 18th.

Two Major Advantages Studebaker Alone Offers

1-One-Profit Value 2-Unit-Built Construction

THERE are (as you probably know) only two manufacturers who actually build their cars complete — make all their own bodies, engines, clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

One of these is Ford—in the low priced field. The other is Studebaker in the fine car field.

Because we eliminate the extra profits and overhead that many other manufacturers have to pay to outside parts and body makers—we are able to use finer materials and workmanship—yet charge no more than competing cars.

The steering mechanism is especially designed for easy driving with the big balloon tires

But there is another side to One-Profit manufacture—a feature that no careful buyer can afford to overlook.

Under this One-Profit policy the entire car is designed, engineered and manufactured as a complete, coordinate harmonious unit in Studebaker plants. Being Unit-Built it functions as a unit. And this adds years to its life—gives you scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation—greater riding comfort—minimum repair costs—and, finally, higher resale value.

Examine the Standard Six Coach closely—make detailed comparisons with other cars—and you will understand the full meaning of One-Profit value.

A Coach of quality

It is called a coach only because it is the lowest priced closed car ever sold by Studebaker. But it is a quality car through and through.

Do not buy this coach with the expectation that you'll have to trade it in at the end of a year or so. It's not a one-year car.

Instead, it has been honestly built to give you scores of thousands of miles of dependable service.

Notice the durable wool upholstery. See the heavy ornamental hardware; the plate glass windows and windshield; the fine trim to hide all tacks; the clock and gasoline gauge on dash; automatic windshield cleaner; stop light; locks on ignition, steering gear, door and spare-tire carrier—all operated by a single key.

These are all features that you can easily see. But down underneath that glistening coat of metallic enamel you'll find the same quality of materials and workmanship that are out in the open.

The sturdy frame for the body is built from the fine northern ash and hard maple. Slam the door and the sound says quality. Underneath the upholstery you'll find two layers of washed, quilted cotton, one layer of genuine curled hair and extra long springs closely held together by small coil springs. This is the identical cushion and seat construction used in the highest priced cars.

Long resilient springs made of special chrome Vanadium steel give greater buoyancy and protection from road shocks.

The crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces to eliminate vibration. And the motor is the most powerful in any car of this size and weight, according to the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It is a motor built for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour—not for excessive speed or spectacular stunts.

The body is smart in appearance — yet provides ample room to seat five passengers in real comfort. Ample room to enter or leave without disturbing occupant of folding seat.

Make comparisons before you buy

These are advantages made possible by One-Profit manufacture. Check them off point by point—in comparison with other coaches.

Only after you have seen this One-Profit Studebaker with its Unit-Built construction, will you realize why it offers a value that cannot be obtained in any other car. It is the automobile equivalent of Pullman transportation.

The Studebaker policy of "no yearly models" is a further protection to owners. Under this policy Studebaker cars are always up to date—we add improvements from time to time and do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

Come in—let us demonstrate the Standard Six Coach without obligation on your part.

LIFE OR DEATH

To hope is life, to fear is death,
And life is blissful to the brave
While cowards scent in June's sweet breath
The noisome odors of the grave.

The hope of life is life in truth;
The fear of death itself is death,
And hope or fear, to age from youth,
Delights or blights each mortal's path.

Hope knows no fear, knows no hope,
And earth is heaven to those who trust,
While sunless skies shroud those who grope
For wisdom in confusion's dust.

Hope is the ever flaming star—
The orb of life's supernal seat—
Blazing the trackless spaces far,
To homeward guide faith's eager feet.

The craven fool who daily dies
The hero's one triumphant death
Resigns to fear life's only prize,
And barters heaven for a breath.

JEWETT CITY

Jewett City goes up in the air, so to speak, once in a while, and for various and sundry reasons. Now, with the many different and various pro and con view points, an altitude has been reached, seldom attained before. And it is the proposed re-routing of the federal highway that causes the concern. Many are strong in their belief that years will pass before a change is made. The interest in the matter, manifested by each Jewett City man or woman, is governed, just in so far as there is personal concern, which is an entirely normal condition. Over two thousand residents of the town of Griswold are saying "it doesn't make a straw's difference to me anyway."

First Selectman Maxcy Seymour was interviewed Thursday, relative to the financial effect as touching the town of Griswold. Mr. Seymour is opposed to the setting-off of Jewett City, from the state highway, from the viewpoint of the town's interest. From the Lisbon bridge to the point above the lower Tadpole overhead trestle, where the proposed new survey again comes onto the present road, is over 5,000 feet.

This section, in event the change is made, would come upon Griswold to keep in repair, oil, sand, and clear from snow and sleet. Selectman Seymour, roughly estimated Thursday that the oil and repairs would cost about $700 annually. This town has no machine suitable to keep this close to a mile of wide roadway free from snow in the event, and it would come to that, of having to hire the state of Connecticut to run its big power scrapes and plow over the Jewett City section, the cost would, in a winter of much snow, cost between $2,500 and $3,000. Here is where the argument of the "not affected," property owners in Griswold is refuted with tangible proof. How? Doubtless the rate of tax levy on the property of the town would have to be substantially advanced, to meet this added expenses. One back-country resident says: "Let the snow stay there until it melts.' After about the third good snow storm like the blizzards here this winter, the schools, and stores might board up the windows and lock the doors, while the town and borough government chipped in to buy a pair of bars for Lisbon bridge and the north borough line. Checkers and pinochle would be the popular occupation, with an occasional game of seven up or Old Sledge, "til the spring thrawin."

SPECIAL SCHOOLS FOR NON CHRISTIANS IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Oct. 8—(AP)—That a special system of instruction is desirable for the non-Christian peoples of the Philippines, especially for the Moros who inhabit Mindanao and Sulu and who are Mohammedans, is the conclusion of the board of American experts, headed by Dr. Paul Monroe of Columbia University, which spent four months in making a survey of the educational system of the islands.

The board suggested that a special department of the bureau of education be created to take charge and make a close study of school work among these peoples. The board's report says:

"The non-Christian peoples need a system of education that in many essential respects should differ from the developed for the great mass of the Filipino people. Only by such special treatment can the non-Christian peoples be brought up to the cultural and economic level of the Christian population. To give them the same education as that of the Christian peoples results simply in drawing off a few of the ablest of their youth into the general population."

LUTHERANS NOT TO SPONSOR BLUE LAW LEGISLATION

NE WYORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Holding that the mission of the church is purely spiritual, the Lutheran church of the synodical conference, through the American Lutheran publicity bureau, issued a statement today refusing to support any movement toward the enactment of bue aw legislation.

"We deplore the activity, so openly displayed, of a large part of American Protestantism in secular and political affairs," the statement adds, "and hold that such activity not only is a diversion of force from the exclusively spiritual mission of the Christian church, but it likewise is a violation of that basic principle of our American constitution, the separation of church and state."

Mentioning "the Lord's Day Alliance and similar organiztions," as being in support of such a movement, the state says:

"The Lutheran church teaches that no ecclesiastical body worthy of the name Christian has theright to call upon the state for assistance in carryink out the mission of the church."

STATISTICS OF INCOME TAXPAYERS IN AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Completing its study of the 1923 income of American taxpayers, the bureau of internal revenue announced tonight that 7,698,321 individuals and 398,933 corporations had filed returns for the year, the individuals contributing $663,651,503 and the corporations $937,-105,739 toward the support of the government.

Tonight's announcement showed that receipts from these sources for 1923 represented a decrease of $197,-405,808 from individuals, but an increase of $153,330,520 from corporations over the preceding year.

Taxable income of individuals was placed by the bureau at $24,840,137,364 an increase of $3,503,924,834 over 1922. Only 233,339 of the corporations were subject taxes in 1923, the other 165,-594 reported no taxable income for the year. The taxable returns of corporations amounted to $8,321,529,134 as compared with taxable income of $6,-963,811,143 from 212,583 corporations in 1922.

ADVICE BY CHANCELLOR TO OXFORD UNDERGRADUATES

OXFORD, England, Oct. 8.—(AP)—On attack phrased in Latin was leveled today at "Oxford bags" — the trousers with enormous baggy legs affected by Oxford undergraduates—by Vice Chancellor Joseph Wells in his annual Latin address.

The learned gentleman—to translate his remarks into English—described the "bags" as "more barbarian than anything which the Dacians or Samaritians (barbarian peoples of the ancient world) ever wore." He also denounced the practice of undergraduates and "undergraduattes" of sipping coffee for hours at a time in Oxford cafes.

Mr. Wells further deprecated the speed and number of automobiles in Oxford, asserting that they had made "the streets impassable save at grave peril and their noise resounded through all open spaces."

IMMEDIATE REVISION OF TREATIES WITH CHINA URGED

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—Immediate revision of all treaties with China to insure the effective application of the principles of the nine-power treaty signed in Washington, in 1922, and the abolition of extraterritoriality in that country, was urged in a number of resolutions adopted today by representatives of 37 boards and societies working in China in joint conference.

Developments in recent Chinese history "necessitate the revision of existing treaties between China and other powers," the joint conference declared.

RESCUE OF CREW TOLD IN FEWER WORDS THAN PRAISE

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 8—(A. P.)—Capt. Robert Laird of the Honduran steamship, Atlantida, is a man of few words.

The master of the Honduran vessel required fewer words to log the rescue of a crew from an American vessel in distress than needed by the president of the United States in inscribing the appreciation of the government in a watch presented Captain Laird.

"Much lightning. 8 a. m. Sighted Timpson in distress. 2 p. m. Rescued Crude oil to quiet waves," says the Atlantida's log.

Captain Laird sailed from his New Orleans home wearing a watch bearing the inscription: "From the president of the United States to Robert Laird, master of the Honduran steamship, Atlantida, in recognition of his humane service in effecting the rescue at sea on October 18, 1924 of the master and crew of the American motorship, James Timpson."

John R. Kennedy, second officer and Lionel Buckley, wireless operator, were presented with binoculars, and medals will be presented to three members of the crew who manned the small boat, with Kennedy and Buckley, in which 22 members of the crew of the Timpson were transported through hurricane seas from their crippled ship to the Atlantida.

Providing for Separate Schools

MANILA, Oct. 8—(AP)—A bill providing for separate schools for boys and girls in Mindanao and Sulu where nearly all the inhabitants are Mohammedans has been introduced in the House of Representatives by J. P. Melencio, son-in-law of General Aguinaldo. Coeducation in the elementary schools of Mindanao has not produced good results in the opinion of Representative Melencio, who believes the enactment of the bill into law will greatly improve the public school system among the Moros.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Beechnut Gossip

Ne'er may you in gossip trust,
For 'tis seldom it is just.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit doesn't care anything about beechnuts. He care nothing for nuts of any kind. You see, Peter's teeth are not made for cracking hard shells. Peter can gnaw and strip off pieces of bark, but when it come to cracking nuts Peter isn't a success. Nevertheless, Peter spent considerable time over in that part of the Green Forest where the beechnuts grow. That was because so many other people were spending so much time there. You see where there are many people together there is bound to be a lot of gossip. It was his curiosity and love of gossip that took Peter over there.

Now there was just one topic that interested everybody over there. That topic was the coming of winter, and how best to prepare for it. Big and little, weak and strong, wearers of feathers and wearers of fur, all were equally interested. Each one had his or her own ideas. Of course you know exactly what Happy Jack Squirrel and the other members of the Squirrel family insisted was the proper thing to do. They insisted that the only thing to do was to store away food and plenty of it, and they were living examples of their belief. Buster Bear insisted that that was all foolishness and that the proper way of preparing for a comfortable winter was to eat all possible and get as fat as possible and then when food was no longer to be found, go to sleep and sleep until spring returned.

"That's the sensible thing to do," declared Buster in his deep, rumbly, grumbly voice

"That's the sensible thing to do," declared Buster in his deep, rumbly, grumbly voice. "Somebody may find and steal the food you Squirrels put away, but nobody can take my fat from me. I believe in putting food away under the skin; then you always have it."

"But we don't put all our supplies in one place," declared Chatterer the Red Squirrel. "Why sometimes I have a dozen storehouses. No one is going to find all those storehouses."

"Perhaps not," retorted Buster Bear. "Still if you must fill a lot of storehouses so as to be sure to have food enough left 1 ncase some of your storehouses are found, you must do a lot of work for nothin. All that food is stored under my skin, and every bit of it is going to be used by me. I tell you, Johnny Chuck and I know the best plan. Yes, sir, Johnny Chuck and I know."

"Pooth!" exclaimed Welcome Robin, who happened to come along just in time to hear this. "The really sensible thing to do is to just go off and leave cold weather behind. Now where I go down in the Sunny South there is plenty to eat all the time. Yes, sir, that is the sensible thing to do, go South."

"That's all very well for you folks with wings," grumbled Buster Bear. "But we folks who wear fur can't do that. We must stay here, whether we want to or not. That is one advantage you feathered folk have over us furbearers. You can fly away and leave hard times, while we must stay and do the best we can. Personally I am rather proud of the fact that we animals are not quitters. We don't run away from cold and hard times. There is no four-legged animal that doesn't stay when Jack Frost and rough Brother North Wind come down from the Far North. It is true that some of us sleep through the worst of the bad weather, but we stay."

"I can name one who doesn't," declared Welcome Robin.

Peter Rabbit drew a little nearer and his ears were standing straight up. Who could it be that Welcome Robbin meant? He waited eagerly for what Buster Bear might reply. At first Buster didn't reply at all. He pretended not to have heard. "I said that I know one animal who doesn't stay, but who goes South just like the rest of us," declared Welcome Robin in a little louder voice.

"You don't know anything of the kind," growled Buster Bear. "No animal could go way down to the Sunny South. It would take an animal so long to get there that Jack Frost would overtake him long before he was even half way there."

"Nevertheless I know one who does it," declared Welcome Robin, and his eyes twinkled. He glanced around at all the other folk sitting there. He saw the same puzzled look in the face of each. "Think it over," said Welcome Robin, and away he flew.

GLADIOLUS WIZARD WANTS TO SEE A GARDEN IN EACH YARD

GOSHEN, Ind., Oct. 8 (AP)—Motorists who pause along the Lincoln highway west of here to admire acres of gladiolus blooms which stretch away from the pavement, may see among the rows of color an overalled man, well past middle age, caring tenderly for the flowers.

He is A. E. Kunerd, gladiolus king, whose experimentation in their culture has brought him worldwide fame among horticulturists, and a fortune, too.

The developer of more varieties of gladioli than any other man, Kunerd says he is just beginning to exploit the possibilities of the flower, which attracted him forty years ago.

Less than a score of years ago, gladioli were rare. Kunerd's methods of selection and his matings presently began to produce new and choicer varieties, laying the foundation for the production finally of the ruffled gladiolus, his masterpiece. It is a type with beautiful ruffled petals, and its introduction was a horticultural sensation.

He has a more farfluna goal, however, than being a gladiolus producer. He wants to see in his lifetime a flower garden in the yard of every American home. That will be a reality, he believes, within the next ten years.

In the national and western gladiolus expositions this year, at Richester, N. Y., and Des Moines, Ia., Mr. Kunerd won more than three-fourths of total awards. From almost every country horticulturists have come to his farm of several hundred acres to take back his methods of gladiolus hybridization and specimens of the flowers.

ARKANSAS COURT PREPARED FOR MORE OIL PROMOTERS

TEXARKANA, Ark. Oct 8 (AP)—More oil company promoters are expected to go on trial before Judge Youmans in United States District Court here when it convenes Oct. 12 for a special term.

The Texarkana court for the last two years has been the scene of trials of other promoters who are alleged to have taken in millions through extravagant promises and representations on which to sell oil stock. A dozen or more have been sent to the Federal prison at Leavenworth.

The docket for the October term has on it the cases of John Messenger, W. Homer Taylor, Jess L. Tomberlin, Louis S. Grimm, W. R. Simmons, Harvey B. Pratt, Paul L. Flanery, Jim Drever, Jay J. Grimm and Pat Murphy. All are charged in from five to nine counts with the use of mails to defraud.

Witnesses in the cases will come from all parts of the country.

HYGIENIC REQUIREMENT ONE FEATURE OF ARTIFICIAL EYE

LAUSCHA, Thuringia, Oct. 8 (AP)—The art of making artificial eyes has attained a state of perfection in Germany, and many thousands of them are exported from this little city, whose main industry is to supply reserve optics. The principal firm in this business was founded in 1907.

The artificial eye is rather more of a hygienic than a cosmetic requirement, as it serves to prevent dust, etc., from getting into the empty socket and setting up an inflamation like to jeopardize the remaining eye. It is very light in weight and it not spherical but flat in shape. It takes one hour to make while the patient is present in order that it may be modeled after the normal eye. The average German artificial eyes are guaranteed from three to five years.

SAYS GREENLAND ICE CAPS CAUSE EUROPE'S WEATHER

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 8 (AP)—If a meteorological wireless station were established in the interior of Greenland, it would be possible to warn Europe of coming storms with absolute certainty in the opinion of Prof. W. H. Hobbs of Michigan University. Prof. Hoobs is here assisting in the scientific program for the expedition of Lauge Koch across the inland ice of Greenland next year.

A similar phenomenon is only to be found on the Antartic continent, where Sir Douglas Mawson, by wireless from the inland ice, warned the south coast of Australia of a terrible cyclone that reached Australia 48 hours later, said Prof. Hobbs.

Most of the weather affecting Europe comes from Greenland's icy mountains Prof. Hobbs believes.

"The results of the long series of expeditions on the inland ice, which were commenced by Dalager some 150 years ago, clearly show that the storms of Northern and Westerr Europe originate as cyclones in the cold air of the interior of Greenland and from there rage over and beyond the coasts with a violence whic. surpasses that of a tropical hurricane," he said.

"In the interior of Greenland it is, according to my theory, practically calm. The clouds then descend on the mountain tops, which is the cause of the thick fog with frost rim, which is always mentioned in reports from there. From the interior the winds are then blown to all sides out beyond the coasts."

The new Koch expedition across Greenland will have an opportunity of testing Prof. Hobbs' theories. Koch will carry self-registering apparatus for measuring meteorological conditions and newly invented appliances, able to stand the shaking of sledge travels.

ALABAMA BOY ENABLED TO SCHOOL AND EQUIP HIMSELF

GADSDEN, Ala., Oct. 8 (AP)—Every boy in Alabama has opportunity to equip himself with an education and to become self-supporting.

For the boy of limited means and in such financial circumstances as to require him to become a quick producer, the state has established the Alabama School of Trades and industries a state-endowed institution to train craftsmen. Added to craftsmanship will be such cultural advantages as may be speedily absorbed.

The school will teach a boy to become a skilled worker, a carpenter, a cabinet maker, a bricklayer, a printer, an artist, an engineer, a mechanic, a motorist, or any of the other allied trades.

The first unit of the dormitory system is complete. Others will be built as the plant is completed. The shops embrace all needed machinery and skilled instructors compose the faculty. The entire plant is super-modern.

London Actors Have New School

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP)—The University of London will have a new sort of drama and theater school in the theatrical productions of which such actors and producers as Granville Barker, Nigel Playfair, Edith Craig and Basil Dean will play a prominent part.

An old gymnasium at East London College has been converted into a theater seating 400 persons and will be utilized for producing eighteenth-century dramas which are little known. No appeal will be made to undergraduates students. All lectures and plays will be prepared with the thought of interesting actors and dramatists.

A Winter's Parlor Sport.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 8 (AP)—To illustrate the infinitesimal size of an atom, Professor Niels Bohr told a meeting of Scandinavian Mathematicians that to count the atoms contained in one cubic centimeter of air, all the people of the earth, white and negro, would have to count for more than 1,000 years and then their task would not be finished.

Aspirin Braces Up Cup Flowers

Experiments have confirmed the fact that cut flowers may be prevented from fading by giving them an aspirin tablet. The experiments were conducted with chrysanthemums. The treated blooms outlasted the untreated by three days. Flowers which were badly wilted were given fresh water and an aspirin tablet. They revived in two hours, looking as fresh as they did when picked. The leaves, however, remained wilted. The aspirin acts as an antiseptic, interfering with the enzyme which causes the clogging of the stem at its cut surface.

Palace Theatre

There is another wonderful vaudeville and picture bill at the Palace for the last half of this week which every theatre-goer should see.

The vaudeville opens with the "Singer Sisters" in a very clever character singing act singing their way into the hearts of the audience.

"Dechalos and Grenados dance revue interpret some wonderful Spanish dance numbers accompanied by their own Spanish all-string dance orchestra the leader rendering a beautiful violin solo. This act is surrounded with special scenery and settings and is no doubt the neatest act of its kind seen in Norwich.

"Edwards and King" furnish a speedy line of hokum that is a knockout.

"Stanley and Attree" close the show with a sensational trapeze act performing some great fetes of strength. Stanley hangs from the trapeze by his teeth holding his own weight and the weight of his partner.

Coming to the Breed

In support of Corinne Griffith in the First National picture, Declasse, which comes next week to the Breed theater, are many popular screen players. Among them are Lloyd Hughes, Hedda Hopper, Rockliffe Fellowes, Lilyan Tashman, Louise Fezenda, Clive Brook, Joan Standing, Eddie Lyons, Mario Carillo. The direction was in the hands of Robert Vignola. The picture is an adaption from Ethel Barrymore's stage success of the same title.

Breed Theater

Motion picture lovers who have tired of problem plays, psychological studies and the like, and who have been crying for pictures containing melodrama, romance, action, and thrills will find all these in The Knockout, which opened yesterday at the Breed theater.

In this picture one finds love, thrills, action, excitement, scenic beauty, pathos and good, wholesome fun. And Milton Sills gives, in our opinion, one of the greatest screen performances of his brilliant career. Combine Sills' fight scenes in The Spoilers, The Sea Hawk, As Man Desires together with his other action scenes in pervious pictures and one has some idea of the rapid-fire action of The Knockout.

The Knockout is a screen adaption of M. D. C. Crawford's novel, The Comeback. It was adapted and produced under the personal supervision of Earl Hudson. Lambert Hillyer, who directed Sills in The Spoilers, directed him in this picture.

Briefly, The Knockout is the story of a prizefighter who goes to the lumber camps of Canada as a camp superintendent when his famous right arm is injured. He falls in love with the dauxhter of the crippled owner of a large timber tract.

Black Jack Ducane, camp boss for the girl's father, attempts to kill the fighter with his bare hands. This encounter is one of the greatest screen fights in motion picture history. Then to prove his innocence of any wrong, the hero returns to the ring he has renounced and fights a championship battle to secure money to save his sweetheart's father from financial ruin.

John Philip Kolb, a giant of a man who plays the part of Black Jack Ducane, makes a most successful "heavy." Jed Prouty furnishes the laughs—and does it screamingly well. One scene in particular where he bathes a skunk which he thinks is a cat, is enough to send one into hysterics.

But when all is said, Milton Sills dominates the picture. He is the picture. And his performance is one of his greatest.

Broadway Theatre

The program at the Broadway Theatre that continues till Saturday is an excellent one in every respect. The five R. F. Keith Vaudeville acts have everything that could be desired and the photoplay One Glorious Night with Elaine Hammerstein as the star makes this bill an outstanding one.

Two big features are scheduled for a Sunday showing at the Broadway. The main picture is the Verdict.

Last year on Long Island, an unhappy young woman killed herself in a melancholy moment. A young man was with her at the time, and she used his revolver. For nine months she was confined in the death house at Sing Sing, sentenced to die for murder, convicted by circumstantial evidence. At the last moment his innocence was established beyond doubt, and he was freed—old and broken before his time.

In California, a continent away, a bank was robbed by its own employes. They cleverly fastened the crime upon four ignorant Mexicans, who were tried and sentenced to state's prison for more than twenty years apiece. The thieves quarreled over their loot, one of them turned state's evidence, and the Mexicans were finally allowed to go back to their disgraced families, impoverished and humiliated.

Such are the triumphs of circumstantial evidence—the favorite weapon of prosecuting attorneys. Only an unusually clever jury can tell whether it is being proved that a man did commit a crime, or only that he might have committed it, he sometimes dies.

Suggested by such instances as cited above, Phil Goldstone, the Hollywood film producer, has prepared a bold argument for the abolition of circumstantial evidence in his current picture, The Verdict, starring Lou Tellegan, William Collier, Jr., Elliott Dexter, Taylor Holmes, Gertrude Astor, Gaston Glass, Walter Long, Louise Lorraine, Maude George, Paul Weigel, Josef Swickard, George Fawcett, Stanton Heck and Charles Clary. It will interest all those who stand for better pictures, all who approve of using the screen for the public good, and all who like the dramatic type of picture. Buffalo Bill, Jr., is Hard Hitting Hamilton is the second feature.

RECEPTION OPENS SEASON AT NORWICH Y. M. C. A.

The fall reception of the Young Men's Christian association, which was held Wednesday evening at the association building, had an unusually large attendance of young men for the programme which opened with several fine selections by Swahn's orchestra, followed by baritone solos by Frank Steinke, who was called on for several encore numbers. A comic reel, Pets by Proxy, closed the entertainment in the gymnasium, after which the audience was invited down stairs to the Osgood swimming pool, where water events were carried out under the direction of E. J. Fritz, the physical director.

The swimming team representing the association defeated the Maderites of Greeneville by the score of 36 to 27, thus evening up matters with the latter who succeeded in defeating the Y'ers in a close meet a short time ago. The results in the various events were as follows:

The officials were William Wyman Howard Ludlow, Oscar Mossessian, E. J. Fritz.

Ice cream and wafers were served in the reception hall at the close of the evening, while selections were rendered by the orchestra, while included John M. Swahn, cornet, Frederick C. Geer, piano and John Dougherty, violin.

CHARGES DENIED BY THE CONTINENTAL BAKING CORP.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP) — A sweeping denial of the Federal trade commission's charges that the recent acquisition of control of smaller baking companies by the Continental Baking corporation was in violation of the anti-trust laws was made before the commission's board of review by G. G. Barber, chairman of the company's board of directors, and was made public tonight by the commission.

In making public the denial, the commission voted to set aside its secrecy rule covering proceedings before the board. This exception was understood to have been proposed by Commissioner Thompson; who only a commission's complaint against the ew days ago made made public the corporation, which was subsequently entered a merger with the Ward and General Baking interests, deliberately refusing to abide by the secrecy rules to which he and Commissioner Nugent have constantly dissented.

A YOUTH INJURED BY FALL ON SLEDGE HANDLE

WATERBURY, Oct. 8.—(A. P.)—Irving Chipman, 17, who fell on a sledge handle at the plant of the Eastern Malleable iron company in Naugatuck, yesterday, suffering a ruptured bladder is reported to be improving at the Waterbury hospital. It is believed that he will live.

MILKMEN NOT REQUIRED TO REGISTER IN OCTOBER

HARTFORD, Oct. 8.—(A. P.)—The milk producers and dealers of the state will not be requested to register during October this year with the state dairy and food department as has been the annual custom, Commissioner Thomas Holt said today. The next registration date has been set for May first by the general assembly, which at the past session made this change in dates in the regulations of the state milk regulation board.

The man who has no enemies must be good but it's a question what he's good for.

STATEMENT BY FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSIONERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(A. P.)—Advised by the budget bureau the federal trade commission's budget for 1926 would be reduced by $124,000 from the original $997,000 asked, Commissioners Thompson and Nugent tonight issued a statement outlining the status of the commission's economic work and protesting against the commission's refusal to proceed with investigations directed by the senate.

The statement was prompted partly by a suggestion made to the commission by the budget bureau that $100,000 of the budget be offset by reductions in the commission's economic division.

"This division," the statement said, "is the one to which had been assigned the investigation of the bread industry under the senate resolution."

After a small amount of work had been done on the broad investigation the minority commissioners related, the majority asked the president to have the attorney general give an opinion as to the jurisdiction of the commission under resolutions adopted by only one house of congress when no specific anti-trust law violations were charged.

The resolutions immediately affected by this action included those directing investigations into the bread and tobacco industries, certain activities of the General Electric Company, open price associations, and co-operative associations.

At the time Commissioners Nugent and Thompson protested to the president against determination of the commissioner's jurisdiction, holding that this was a matter for the court.

"Five months have passed," their statement said, "and no answer has been received by the commission either from the president or the attorney general. In the meantime, the commission had discontinued all work on the resolution to investigate bread. No work has been done on open price associations and co-operative associations."

DEBS ADDRESSED MASS MEETING IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 8.—(A. P.)—Striking at the coal mining industry as at present conducted and deploring the down trodden condition of all laboring classes, Eugene V. Debs, former socialist candidate for president and socialist leader said at a mass meeting at the Park theatre here tonight, attended by about 1,800 persons: "Every few years comes a depression in business and who suffers? Not the capitalist, but the workers," he said.

"It is but a short time ago that Secretary Hoover declared, 'there are twice as many coal miners as are needed.' It is true that about 350,000 miners are out of employment. Must they suffer and starve because modern machinery has done away with the need of thousands of workmen?"

HUNDREDS OF HUNTERS IN THE WOODS YESTERDAY

HARTFORD, Oct. 8.—(A. P.)—The cear weather of today proved advantageous to hundreds of hunters who were in the woods of the state on the opening day of the hunting season. Whether the quadrupeds and birds, listed as game, appreciated the high visibility and sought heavier cover than usual could not be determined tonight from reports made by returning hunters, who mostly all were enthusiastic over the first day of the sport. However, these reports indicated a successful day for most hunters.

Babies and pianos would make less noise if grown people would let them alone.

MAKING THE LAWS OF THE LAND.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

It's getting towards that season of the fall when states begin to think of caucuses and candidates. Especially for the legislature. It is, therefore, a good time to consider a question somewhat more fundamental than mere candidacies. Instead of devoting all our thought to the matter of nominees, the problems of who wants to go, of whom we'd like to send, of who is "slated" by the local bosses, etc., why not give a few minutes to consideration of the deeper question:

Why is a legislature, anyway?

We've all heard the thus far unanswered conundrum: "Why is a hen?"

I doubt if that semi-jocuse query is really any more of a puzzler than the query about a legislature.

I mean, of course, the annual and perfunctory legislatures, which sit or set every winter at the state capitals, and spend that portion of the time which isn't occupied with poker and whist trying to make a "record" to go back to the constituencies with.

Those who make compilations of such things report that the various state legislatures last winter passed 13,416 bills,—made 13,416 new laws. No statement is made, for none is statistically possible, of how many of these were really needed and how many were just the imposing of new restrictions, the invention of old maidish regulations, the ordering of more penalties, the camouflaged attack of some new "ism," or the even more carefully concealed first wedge opening the way to fresh public spoliation.

But there were over 40,000 laws on the statute-books before one of these 13,416 were passed. There were so many and those so complicated, so contradictory, so unintelligibly worded, that not even the judges who devote their lives to study and enforcement of the laws know what "the law" really is. They can't see the forest because of the trees,—more particularly because of the impenetrable thickets of underbrush.

We've had, only recently, a striking example of the awful muddle at which conditions have arrived, when one federal judge in Montana decided that a certain law meant one thing, and another federal judge in California that the same law meant the exact opposite. I'm referring, of course, to the famous Teapot Dome affair.

But there was nothing new or even exceptional about that case. It is matter of common notoriety that if two neighbors disagree about their respective legal rights, neither has any difficulty in finding a lawyer who will tell him that his interpretation is correct and the other fellow's wrong. When it's taken to court and the judge, after reserving decision and studying over all the laws and previous decisions he can hunt up, finds that A and A's lawyer were right, B promptly appeals and another judge, sitting in another court, as sapiently decides that A was wrong and B is right.

Is this the fault of the judges? Not wholly. It is much more the fault of the lawmakers, who pass clumsily-worded enactments doubtful of intention and muddy of phrase, and often contradictory of previous laws of long standing acceptance. I am aware of the suspicion, harbored in many breasts, that lawyer legislators not infrequently muddle the language of new laws with deliberate intent to make more business for themselves. Even if that were a general case, however, they couldn't succeed in putting their scheme over if a majority of their fellow-legislators didn't help them along with it.

Isaiah once declared that the high-way of holiness was so simple and manifest that "the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein."

That is exactly what the laws of the land should be. We are practically all of us law-abiding in our intentions. Barring the criminals, the minority of intentional criminals, the rest of us want to obey the law. We could, too, if it were only clear enough so that ordinary wayfaring men who are not absolute fools could understand it. But when lawyers disagree and judges differ as to what it means, how can we common folk know?

"Ignorance of the law excuses no man" is a time-worn saying. Think of the absurd injustice if that ideal! When lawyers who have devoted their whole lives to its study can't agree upon what it means; when judges who are officially appointed to define it gravely decide, in one court, that it means this, and in another court that it means that, and in the final court of last resort that it means something else,—how in the name of common sense can the poor layman be expected to understand it, rigit off the bat?

Laws, laws, laws,—and then more laws. We annually pile the Pelion of new legislation on the Ossa of existing enactments, making confusion worse confounded.

Seems to me I've once before re-ferred to the old lawyer of a neighboring state who spent a few months, last season, reading up on the laws he was expected to obey. He reported as his finding that he had been himself ignorantly and innocently violating a considerable number of laws, all his life long, and that, as a cold matter of fact, it was physically, mentally, and morally impossible for him to live without an occasional violation of some.

And yet last years' legislatures added 13,416 more laws to the already incomprehensible and mutually contradictory mass!

And we're already preparing to elect new legislatures to do as bad,—or perhaps worse!

It may be accepted as clear that, under our form of government, the people who pay the taxes should, by themselves or by their representatives, have the say as to how those taxes shall be spent. Voting taxes and making appropriations are, therefore, legitimate work for the legislature whose members are elected to represent the wishes of the people.

"How much time would that take, if a legislature went at the job in the same spirit and with the same energy shown by a board of directors in a private business?

A few,—a very few new conditions, such as those created by the spreading use of new inventions like the automobile, radio, etc., may need occasional regulation.

Beyond these two functions there is mighty little which a legislature can do of important service to its state. Mighty little which couldn't be done in a two weeks' session once every other winter.

Unless, indeed, one should be found with enough patriotism and reason in its composition to repeal incontinently about half the laws now cluttering up book-shelves; invalidate about two-thirds of the court decisions worshipped as "precedents;" and recast the remaining laws into plain English, which not only the common people can understand, but hair-splitting lawyers can't explain away.

Don't worry; there's no immediate danger of any such eruption of common sense. We shall continue to elect legislators, either because they are willing to spend money for the "honor," or because they've scratched our backs, sometime, and we want to repay the favor, or because it seems to be their "turn to go," or because they're on the busses' slates.

When they get to the state capital, they'll find waiting for them a horde of self-appointed censors and "reformers," with all sorts of new laws which they want passed "agin" this, that or the other. They'll find another lot of exceedingly smooth-spoken gentlemen who want special legislation enabling them to get chestnuts out of the fire with safety and celerity. They'll find companies pulling them one way and cohorts hauling them another.

And the easiest thing for them to do will be to pass about what they're asked to, dump a few more ingredients into the unholy stew, and rely on the courts to make something or other out of the mess,—it matters little what

We are all getting ourselves so hedg-ed about by legal regulations, so cabined, cribbed, confined in legal restrictions that one is hardly sure whether he has a right to breathe faster than 24 to the minute, or carry a walking-stick on the street, or snore in any other key than G flat.

The legislatures we're about to elect will, in all probability, keep right on as legislatures have in the past, grinding out new laws, making new traffic rules, discovering new things to forbid, imposing new penalties, adding fresh tangles to the existing chaos.

Consider, for just one minute, a sin-gle contrast between the way in which simplified law works in London and the farrago of complexity which we call law in this country. In 1923 London, the largest city in the world, had 27 murders,—one to each 278,999 inhabitants. Chicago, that same year had, though a smaller city, 270 murders, or one to each 10,000 inhabitants. In London's 27 murders, 27 arrests were made; nine were sentenced to death, and only one acquitted. In Chicago with ten times as many murders, the same number, nine, were sentenced to death, and 45 acquitted. There was so much law in so many forms and so confusedly worded in Chicago that shrewd criminal lawyers found flaws all ready made for them to pick out and defeat justice with.

According to Whittier in his famous poem about Abraham Davenport, "In the old days the people sent their wisest men to make the public laws." He immediately added with terse irony that this was "a custom laid aside with breeches and cocked hats."

What d'ye s'pose would happen if, in some sudden cataclysm of public virtue, the voters of the states,—of any state,—should revert to this strange and outworn bygone custom?

THE FARMER.

GERMANY'S OIL PRODUCTION ONLY 0.05 PERCENT OF NEED

NUERNBERG, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Germany's share in the world's production of oil is but 0.05 per cent, which barely covers five per cent of the country's requirements, said Prof. F. Schondorf before the German society of chemists.

After Germany lost its oil wells in Alsace-Lorrgine, with their annual yield of 70,000 tons, the wells of Wieze in Hanover, turned out to be of greatest promise. For the first time existing derricks were replaced by a regular pit having a depth of 825 feet. With a single pit these wells now turn out the same production as with 600 derricks formerly, and far surpass the Alsatian output of prewar days.

Lost Record of Unanimous Vote

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Oct. 3.—(AP)—One of Santa Barbara county's most treasured documents—a record of its only unanimous election — was partly destroyed in the earthquake.

The transcript which had been carefully guarded for more than 75 years, related that every qualified elector residing in the county cast his vote on April 1, 1850, and the result was 20 to 0 in favor of California entering the union and the ratification of the state constitution.

Never Let a Cold Get a Start

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

"MORE SMOKESTACKS!" THE SLOGAN IF NEW LONDON WOULD PROSPER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, OCT. 8—If the sponsors for the form of government in practice in New London wish to popularize that sort of management, they can do the trick by securing industries that will employ labor and which will produce manufactured articles and send them out into the markets of the world, in return for cash that will come back and be distributed in wages among those who toil in the establishments thus engaged. New London has never been in a position where she needs industry in so great a degree as she does now. It is universal comment that the city is as near a standstill in manufacturing at present as it well could be and still succeed in keeping the population it has and the inducements for citizens to remain here. The Bulletin has before pointed out this city has not as much nor as varied manufacturing now as it had fifty years ago. It must increase the number of its industrial establishments if it is to attain prosperity. Reports from all over the country are of mill and factories increasing number of hours of employment and adding to the number of employes. The city council can do something in the line indicated. Whether it will or whether it will continue to let the city be misrepresented by alleged seekers after industries remains to be seen. That the situation is realized by people in general here is obvious from the expressions of opinion. The Bulletin has often demanded "more smokestacks". They will save New London from deteriorating.

Louis Siff, a young man residing with his widow mother on North Bank street, got drunk and became so boisterous in the street that he was arrested by Policeman Clifford, about one o'clock this morning. He realizes the fact today, for he was not subdued till the officers had applied the stick to him. He is 20, so a guardian ad litem was appointed in Richard W. Mansfield. The latter, after a talk with the young man entered a plea of guilty as there was no doubt that the offender was drunk and that he resisted arrest strenously when taken into custody. The prosecutor represented Siff as being lazy and having a desire to booze a great deal. He works infrequently and fails to supply any of the needs of his mother, so she has to provide for him from the earnings of a little store she maintains on North Bank street. The prosecutor told the court that he had no sympathy whatever with the boy, but he felt that the mother should not be made to suffer for the young man's acts, and it would be she who would pay, in the event that her son was fined. Judge Prince took the statement of the prosecutor into consideration and after imposing a fine for each of the offenses, with which was charged the suspended execution of the judgment for a period of a year and placed the defendant in the custody of the probation officer. Judge Prince gave Siff some advice which was to the effect that his conduct was shameless and deserving of a severe penalty.

Mrs. Walter Griffin and infant son, of Fishers Island and Mrs. Wheeler Way, Saybrook, were patients discharged at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today.

Mary Holmes has sold a dwelling on Winthrop street to Thomas and Mary Samuel.

Byron E. Wilkinson has sold a two-family house and lot on Walker street to Benjamin L. and Elizabeth H. C. Armstrong.

Byron E. Wilkinson has sold a two-family house on the easterly side of Georgianna street to Frederick and da R. Levitsky.

The funeral of George P. Finch, former well known Groton truckman, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Mr. Finch's residence 65 Meridian street, Groton, and was attended by many mourners, including a delegation of Pioneer Hose company. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Athat, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The bearers were members of the Pioneer Hose company, and former acquaintances of Mr. Finch. Burial was in the family plot in Starr cemetery.

Installation of the officers of Rev. Father Deacon Assembly, Knights of Columbus, took place last night at the home of the organization, Huntington street, and was attended by a representative number of members. Mayor William C. Fox addressed the gathering, using for his subject, "Political Life and Our Duties as Citizens," the discourse proving interesting and instructive. The officer installed were: Faithful Navigator, Michael L. O'Connell; Faithful Chaplain, Peter J. Moriarty; Faithful Admiral, Paul Curtin; Faithful Pilot, Frank LeBlanc; Faithful Controller, Capt. John McDonald; Inner Sentinel, Peter McInnis; Outer Sentinel, Mortimer Duggan. A committee, consisting of Peter J. Moriarty, chairman, Harry J. Kennedy, Joseph St. Germain and Paul Curtin was appointed to complete arrangements for a celebration Columbus Day by the organization.

The New London police department is to be without the use of a speed car indefinitely, for today City Manager William A. Holt ordered that the speed car be delivered to a service station that the car might be given a thorough overhauling and after the work is completed and the car put in proper running order that it be given a coat of varnish. It was intended that a high-powered machine be hired to take the place of the emergency automobile, but City Manager Holt abandoned that idea because of the cost that would be entailed in the hiring of the car. Instead, the police will now respond to all calls in the patrol, which has been out of commission many months because of its unfitness for use. It is possible, however, that one of the automobiles used by the city's water and sewer department may be turned over to the police, until the speed car is placed back in service.

An automobile owned and driven by Thomas Collins, of Broad street extension, struck and killed an unidentified dog on Shaw street, near Hamilton street, late this afternoon.

Bicycle thieves continue to operate without detection for early this evening, Marjorie Prentice, 261 Williams street, reported to the police that her bicycle had been stolen when left near her home. Early this evening a youth appeared at the police station and declared that his wheel, which he had left in the rear of the National Bank of Commerce, had been stolen, but it was later found abandoned on Washington street.

An automobile owned by the Connecticut Power company, and driven by Charles O. Lewis, Truman street, and a machine owned and driven by George Branch, Fog Plain road, Waterford, were in collision late this afternoon on Bank street, corner of Shaw street. Both cars were badly damaged, for they came together with so much force that the wrecked vehicles, which came to a stop on the rails of the Connecticut company, and caused an interruption of traffic for several minutes, until the cars could be removed off the course of traffic.

The authorities have been unable to locate any relatives of Lester Fisher, a fishing boat worker, whose death occured from tuberculosis at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital Sunday. Tomorrow the man will be buried in the city's plot in Jordan for the unknown dead and for the dead whose relatives cannot be found.

Mrs. Nicia Watson Whiteside, has tendered her resignation as visiting nurse with the American Red Cross. Mrs. Whiteside has been connected with the organization ten years.

James G. Lord, 227 Broad street has gone to Boston, where he has enrolled as a night student at Boston university. Mr. Lord was formerly employed by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

Ida Goodwin, 12, residing with her parents at 317 Chestnut street, Groton, had a close call from serious injury late this afternoon when struck by an automobile on Main street. The child was walking along the street, accompanied by a woman. Near the corner of John street, the girl suddenly left the side of the woman and ran to the street. As she did so an automobile, owned and operated by Earl B. LaFlamme, Box 187, Montville, was about to pass. Before LaFlamme had opportunity to apply his brakes and bring the machine to a stop, the girl ran against the side of the auto and was knocked down. She regained her feet and tried to reach the sidewalk, but fell across the curbing. She was picked up by the woman and did not appear to be injured beyond bruises. LaFlamme, however, conveyed the girl to her home.

Complaint was made to City Manager William A. Holt this afternoon that vandals are again operating on Hamilton street, cutting the wires of the Connecticut Power company and smashing the globes to the lights that illuminate the highway where the bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad spans it. Several times during the year the police have been complained to because of lights being stolen and smashed and in one instance prosecution resulted. After a lapse of several weeks the vandals appear to have resumed operations again.

An employe of the Hallville mills, Preston, communicated with the police late this afternoon, stating that a bird dog, bearing "A. B., 34 Fourth street, New London," on the collar, had frequented the mill grounds for a day or two and that the dog was now being harbored there until such time as the local police could notify the owner to go to Preston and claim the animal.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 8—Sunday night at 8.15 a memorial service for the dead officers and sailors of the submarine S 51 will be held at the Lyceum theatre. The committee which has charge of the affair is making elaborate plans for its success. The army and navy will be represented, as will be the churches of New London, Groton, Noank and Waterford, and it is expected that Senator Hiram Bingham and Congressman Richard P. Freeman will occupy seats on the stage with Commander E. J. King of the Submarine Base, Captain Hinckley, commandant at the United States Coast Guard academy; Colonel Ferguson, commandant of the New London Artillery district, stationed at Fort Wright, Fisher's Island; Captain William E. Munter, commander of the local section base, No. 4, United States Coast Guard, State Pier, together with the personnel of the various stations.

The committee, as now composed, consists of Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley and Rabbi Rosen, of this city; Rev. Henry W. Hurlbut, Groton, and Chaplain A. S. Parker, Submarine Base.

DOMINICK SAMMATARO HELD BY LAWRENCE, MASS., POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 8—The police have under arrest at Lawrence, Mass., Dominick Sammataro, who is suspected of having been implicated in a recent pay roll robbery at Lawrence. The police are checking up Sammataro's movements of the past two weeks and as Sammataro declares that he was in New London at the time of the robbery the New London police have been requested to aid the Lawrence authorities to determine whether Sammataro is telling the truth regarding his movements. Sammataro declares that he and his wife registered at the Crocker House, this city Sept. 23, arriving at the hotel at 3 o'clock in the morning and that they left the same day, going to the residence of Sammataro's uncle, Antonio Sammataro, 23 Denison avenue, where the couple remained three days and then went to New York.

Sammataro's statements do not hitch with facts obtained relative to his stay in New London, as determined by the investigation of Sergeant John Cavanaugh. The officer's his wife registered at the Crocker House Sept. 27 and that the couple departed the following day, stating that they were going to New York. This information has been forwarded to the Lawrence authorities.

"Petey" Meyers, a colored youth of 19, residing on Potter street, was arrested tonight by Acting-Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Patrolman Edward Daniels charged with breach of the peace. Meyers acted in such a strange manner and because of the fact that he did not display signs of having been drinking it is believed that he is mentally unbalanced.

Meyers went to the store of Jacob Katz, John street, about 9 o'clock, where he created a disturbance and for no known cause. When he was remonstrated with for his actions Meyers attacked Katz and started to wreck the place. A hurry call was sent to the police station for an officer and when Acting-Lieutenant Gaffney and Officer Daniels arrived Meyers was carrying out his intention to wreck the establishment. The officers quickly subdued Meyers and placed him in a cell.

U. S. STEEL FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—Heavy buying of U. S. steel common, which was bid up over 3 points to a new high on the current movement above 124, turned the course of prices sharply upward towards the close of today's stock market after an early period of irregularity. The rally embraced all groups of stocks except the oils, which failed to respond to another sharp decrease in crude oil production.

Relaxation of call money rates, reflecting the return flow of funds sent into the interior in connection with October 1 disbursements, was a primary factor in the buying movement. The usual Thursday rumors of an increase in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate again failed to materialize, and the market paid little attention to them. The stock market also disregarded a break of $8.50 a bale in cotton prices which followed the surprisingly high government corp estimate.

The sudden demand for the steel shares apparently was in belated response to reports of increased orders and mill operations. Some of the independents showed impressive strength. Sloss-Sheffield scored an extreme gain of over six points at 108 1-2, a new high record; Ludlum steel jumped nearly six points to 44 3-4 and closed within a point of the top, and Bethlehem crucible, Colt states, Republic, United Alloy and YYoungstown Sheet & Tube move up one to nearly 4 points.

Motor shares took on a new lease of life under the leadership of Chrysler, which closed six points higher at 193 1-4 after having touched 193 3-4. Mack truck scored an extreme gain of about 3 points at 210 1-4 and then fell back over a point on profit taking, and gains of a point or two also were recorded by Studebaker, Mot. Wheel, Chandler, Hudson, Hupp, Eaton Axle and Timken Roller Bearing, the last named touching a new high for the year at 53 3-8.

Rails continued to lag behind the industrials although some of the western and northern issues received stronger buying support. ORDAINED TO MINISTRY: WILL GO TO MISSION FIELD IN AFRICA

Arthur Cary Adams of East Great Plain, a graduate of Yale Divinity school, in a course in Social Service, was ordained to the Christian ministry Thursday evening at the United Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Adams is to sail this month for South Africa where he will be engaged in missionary work. Preceeding the ordination service the council of ministers met at the church at 4 o'clock in the afternoon to question the candidate and to complete the ordination arrangements. Following the council session the delegates were entertained at supper in the church social rooms, the supper being served by the women of the church.

The ordination service opened at 7:30 o'clock with the singing of the

REV. ARTHUR CARY ADAMS

Doxology, followed by the invocation and Lord's prayer by ev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town. The report of the council was given by Reverend Charles H. Ricketts, who presided during the ordination service, and Rev. Mr. Bailey read the minutes of the council meeting. Rev. Jerome D. Davis, a representative of the Yale Divinity school, spoke in very high terms of the candidate. He told of his attending the Yale Divinity school and of the brilliant research work he has done in the past year. I congratulate his parents and relatives on his ordination to the ministry, he said. Rev. Mr. Davis then gave th scripture reading which was followed by the singing of the hymn, Beneath the Cross of Jesus. The ordination sermon was delivered by Rev. Ernest W. Riggs, one of the secretaries of the American board.

I have chosen for my text the sixth chapter of St. Luke, 39th verse, said Rev. Mr. Riggs And he spake also a parable unto them, Can the blind guide the blind? Shall they not both fall into a pit? The disciple is not above his master; but everyone when he is perfected shall be as his master.

The world weltered for years in blood, during the war, because multitudes were being led by blind leaders, said Rev. Mr. Riggs. There is one hope. The great leaders of today are turning back to that master Teacher as the only one who can lead the world out of the pit into which it has fallen. Rev. Mr. Riggs told of spending some months in South Africa. The whole native system heads up in that arch-demon, the witch doctor, he said. He holds the people in his hand. When sick they go to him and he tells them who has bewitched them. He tells them how they must debauch themselves so that the devils won't steal away the harvest.

Ninety per cent of the education of the natives is in the hands of missions. Except through the missionary societies education has largely failed. Socially the native could not rise; educationally he was held down; economically he was kept in his place. It is this racial problem that has made South Africa a seething cauldron.

Rev. Mr. Riggs went on to tell of the marvellous work which is being done by the missions in Johannesburg. Those who are called to leadership in the Christian church today are called to a very high office, he said. The one thing is that the disciple should be as his teacher. He who is to lead the multitudes of Africa, who are indeed blind, must be as his teacher.

What a day of uncertainty we are living in and what a need there is for faith. Let us depend on God in our daily work. That is faith. Only as we know the fellowship of God can we hope to be as our Master. There must be a different attitude toward service. We must begin with the thought that service is the idea thing. No service brings a greater joy than service in a foreign field.

Following the singing of the hymn Spirit of God, Descend Upon My Heart, the prayer of ordination was offered by Rev. Mr. Ricketts and was followed by the Laying on of Hands by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. After the singing of the hymn, O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee, the benediction was pronounced by the newly ordained minister, Rev. Mr. Adams.

Rev. Mr. Adams will sail this month from Boston under a three year appointment for social service work at Johannesburg, Natal, South Africa, under the direction of the American Board.

GENUINE THRILLS IN "SMASH" CLIMAX OF RUGGED WATER"

The Irvin Willat-Paramount production, "Rugged Water," adapted for the screen by James Shelley Hamilton from the novel of the same name by Joseph C Lincoln is a stirring drama of the life-saving service on the New England coast.

The story opens in the Setuckit Life-Saving station. Warner Baxter, number one man of the crew, is expected by the men to succeed the retiring captain, who has recommended him and who believes he will maintain the tradition of the station: no lives ever lost.

Politics, however, bring about the appointment of an older man, a Captain Bartlett, played by Wallace Beery. Subsequent events prove the new chief to be a religious fanatic and the worst kind of a coward. During one of the severest storms of the winter a schooner goes on the rocks, and he refuses to send out a boat. Baxter takes things into his own hands and effects a thrilling rescue. Norma, Bartlett's daughter, thinks he usurped command merely to bring about his own appointment as captain of the station and breaks their engagement.

Baxter plunges into his work with more vigor than ever to forget the girl. Another storm comes up and this time Captain Bartlett, half crazy from a prolonged illness, goes out alone in a flimsy boat after a sinking vessel. Baxter, also ill, takes after him, and the closing scenes of the picture find the two men in a battle for their lives far out in the ocean. If ever there was a smash climax on the screen it's furnished by this last series of scenes in "Rugged Water."

Baxter and Wallace Beery are featured with Lois Wilson and Phyllis Haver in the principal roles of the production. Dot Farley heads the supporting cast which includes among others, P. J. Lockney, James Mason, Willard Cooley, Jack Byron and Walter and Warren Rodgers.

WORKER IS AWARDED COMPENSATION FOR ILLNESS

Payment of $14.72 for the period of total disability from July 3, 1925, together with medical and hospital bills is awarded to Sidney C. Keeney of Thames View Terrace, New London, in his workmen's compensation claim against the New England Collarsville Tube Co. Accrued interest payments are to be made in a lump sum, according to the award by Commissioner J. J. Donohue, and weekly thereafter during total incapacity.

The claimant was not able to attend the hearing on Oct. 5 because he is still in bed suffering from the effects of turpentine fumes upon a weakened condition of his system with a tendency toward tuberculosis, the commissioner found.

LOSES SUIT AGAINST ROAD BUILDING FIRM

Judgment for the defendants has been handed down by Judge Alyn L. Brown of the superior court in the suit of Alpheus N. Williams of Groton against Frank and Clarence Arrigoni, doing business as Frank Arrigoni & Son, of Durham, road building contractors.

Mr. Williams sued for $3,500 damages on the claim that the defendants unlawfully took from the Williams land in Groton, about May 29, the amount of 7,244 cubic yards of gravel worth $1.25 per cubic yard.

Legal Works for Bar Library

The bar library committee voted at a recent meeting in Hartford to buy four standard legal works for the use of lawyers and judges. The books are Babbitt's "Judicial Code and Equity Rules," "Freeman on Judgments," fifth edition; Thorpe, "Federal Departmental Organization and Practice," and Jessup's "The Professional Ideas of the Lawyer." The committee is composed of Arthur Perkins, chairman, Justice William M. Maltbie and Charles Welles Gross. Mrs. Gladys Judd Day is in charge of the library.

VIOLATED SANITARY CODE IN FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS

A boy residing in a community in Connecticut was taken ill with cerebrospinal meningitis or spotted fever on Saturday, September 26. He was seen by a physician and sent to the isolation hospital where he died early Monday morning, September 28, says the weekly bulletin of the state department of health.

Owing to lapses in reporting to the health officer the local health authorities did not have official knowledge of the case as promptly as they should For this reason there was a delay in communicating with the family regarding measures to be taken to prevent the spread of infection. After death of the patient it is not customary to placard the house, and the father appeared to make the absence of a placard a pretext for disregarding health regulations.

The father seemed very anxious to have a public funeral. He was informed by both the state and local health authorities that a public funeral would be in violation of the state sanitary code but apparently in utter disregard of health regulations and the safety of persons who might be exposed to spotted fever, while attending a public funeral, arrangements were made for such a funeral and announcement made to that effect.

The essential point of the situation appears to be the utter disregard of the law and sanitary code regulations designed for protecting others from infection. A determination to have one's way regardless of laws and regulations to the contrary often results in the spread of disease and in trouble for the law violator. In this case the father of the child who insisted on a public funeral in spite of instructions from both state and local health authorities to the contrary, does not appear to deserve much sympathy on account of any troubles that may follow his disregard of instructions by the health officer.

Such disregard for law and contempt for efforts to prevent the spread of disease to others and such heartlessness in failure to protect others from infection is seldom met. The results of such acts may be so serious that the instance can not be allowed to pass without taking measures designed to strongly impress those concerned with the necessity for observing the law in regard to protecting other people from diseases. Accordingly appropriate action is being instituted by the health authorities.

IS AWARDED COMPENSATION FOR 'HUSBAND'S DEATH

Workmen's compensation to Mrs. Grace E. Mumford of 120 North Main street, widow of Charles E. Mumford, an employe of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, has been awarded by commissioner J. J. Donohue in a stipulation agreed upon between the claimant and the insurance company carrying the power company's risk.

Mr. Mumford received electrical burns on his arms, legs and chest on Aug. 7, 1925 and died in the hospital nine days later. Mrs. Mumford is to be paid compensation for this period at the rate of $19.25, amounting to $22.32, and in addition will be paid at the rate of $18 per week for 312 weeks for the death of her husband. The award is subject to modification in case of death or re-marriage of the claimant within the period of 312 weeks.

Eastern Connecticut Health

One case of diphtheria and one case of typhoid fever were reported from Norwich during the week ending Oct. 3rd, according to the weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health. Communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut during the week were as follows:

Poor relations wonder if the rich one really has a poor memory.

MACHINES COLLIDE AT WASHINGTON ST. CORNER

A Hudson sedan had its right hand door and side bent in when it was run into Thursday afternoon at the corner of Sachem and Washington streets by a Ford machine driven and owned by Burrill W. Lathrop of 86 Town street, Norwich Town. The sedan, which is owned by an attorney, E. May, of Hartford, and was driven by James Davis, colored, of Colchester, was proceeding from Williams avenue when it was struck by the other car, which Mr. Lathrop was driving down Washington street. According to his statement in making the report he was looking the other way and did not expect the car coming from his left to go across in front of him.

The Hartford machine was able to drive away under its own power, but the Norwich car had its front badly smashed and had to be taken to a garage for repairs. This is the second accident at this corner within a few days.

PRIZE ESSAYS OFFERS IN "SAVE OLD IRONSIDES"

Essay prize offers are made to school children by the Elks in connection with the "Save Old Ironsides" fund, for which a quota of $250 has been assigned to Norwich lodge to be secured in "Old Ironsides Week," Oct. 19-24. Each lodge of the order is given a pro rata amount in proportion of $40 for every 1,000 school children, and as there are approximately 6,000 school children in Norwich, the quota here is $250, to be raised by the voluntary small contributions of the children and their interest in securing larger sums from their parents and friends.

The topics for these essays have been selected by Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States. The medals have been donated by Commander Marion Eppley, U. S. N. R. a member of Newport, R. I. lodge No. 104. The medals will be awarded as follows:

For elementary schools—One bronze medal for each lodge jurisdiction, the obverse of which reads "For excellence in naval history" and carries other lettering descriptive of the restoration of the frigate Constitution, for presentation through the lodge to the child in an elementary school writing the best 500-word essay on the topic, "Why will the preservation of the U. S. S. Constitution promote patriotism?"

One gold medal to be awarded to the child writing the best essay of those produced by the children of all the elementary schools in the country.

One silver medal for the child writing the second best essay of those produced by the children of all the elementary schools in the country.

High schools—One silver medal in each state for the student writing the best essay on the topic "Why did the victories of the U. S. S. Constitution contribute so largely to our success in the War of 1812?"

One gold medal for the best essay written by a high school student in the nation.

The directions to local committees are as follows:

The "Old Ironsides" committee in each lodge shall determine the winner of the elementary school medal in its jurisdiction. The principal of each elementary school should be requested to select the best essay in his school and forward it to your committee who, with some school authority, should make the selection of the winner. The presentation of the medal should be made at the patriotic exercises during "Old Ironsides week," and the winner should read the essay. In every school the best essay should be read during the exercises.

Your committee should forward a copy of the winning bronze medal essay as soon as possible to national headquarters in order that the award may be made of the gold and silver medals referred to above for the best essays written in the elementary schools of the nation.

Your committee will also, in the same manner stated in the selection of the best essays in the elementary schools, select the best essay in each high school in your district and forward a copy thereof as promptly as possible to the district deputy who has jurisdiction over your lodge. The district deputies of each state, with such school and naval authorities as they might decide upon, will select the winning essay in each state and forward a copy of the same to national headquarters so that an award may be made of the gold medal for the best essay written by a high school student in the entire nation.

The silver medal in each state should be awarded to the winner at the patriotic exercises during "Old Ironsides week." In every case the best essay in each high school should be read at the patriotic exercises.

CONSIDERING GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT FOR GERMANY

Discussion at Locarno of Plan to Create Reservation of Article XVI of the League Covenant That Would Exempt Germany From Punitive Expeditions Ordained by the League Against Aggressor Nations—Germans Suggest That a Special Session of the League Council Be Convoked at Locarno to Consider Germany's Demands as Regards Her Entry Into the League.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 9 (AP)—A gentleman's agreement for Germany designed to lessen her responsibilities as a member of the League of Nations was the particular problem wrestled with today by the Locarno security conference.

The plan is that the allied powers, all of which are members of the league council, would jointly and individually undertake to bring into existence at Geneva some reservation to article XVI of the league covenant whereby Germany would be free to abstain from punitive expeditions ordained by the league against aggressor nations. doubtless throw some light on this issue, which may be referred to as a crucial question of the conference, for if Germany can get into the league it is generally presumed that France would be content with a special declaration proclaiming her eastern alliances inviolable.

Secret conversations between the leaders, including Count Skrzynsky, the Polish foreign minister, and Dr. Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, marked today's feverish activities, everybody was optimistic except the Germans, who were described as "pessimistic for home consumption."

The feeling here is that Geramny "wants something — evacuation of Cologne, dimunition of French occupation of the left bank of the Rhine, and colonies," it is pointed out the German delegates hesitate about returning to Berlin shouldered with an engagement to join the league, bus with empty pockets.

The Germans, however, attach such vast importance to the league issue, that they suggested today that a special session of the league council be convoked at Locarno to consider Germany's demands as regards her entry into the league.

Dr. Stresmann, German foreign secretary, brought out some illuminating points regarding the view sof his country at yesterday's session of the conference. He emphasized that Germany was being asked to join the league unconditionally and to agree under article XVI to allow foreign armies to march through Germany if this was necessary to defend countries allied to France. He insisted that Germany wanted a solution which did justice to her present state of disarmament, as compared with other nations where disarmament had not yet been begun.

"It is not Germany's intention to complicate or retard the progress of restoring the political balance, which is indispensable to world peace, by a question of universal disarmament, which is provided for in the treaty of Versailles though moral justification "likewise, Germany does not wish to exclude herself from co-operation in the tasks of the league.

"But as long as Germany is disarmed and the other nations are in a state of fullest armament, we wish to be exempted from participation in any future armed conflicts which this highly strung state of general armaments may provoke, we wish to give the German people a safe guarantee of future peace."

The German spokesman said that the decision regarding future Franco-German relations rested mainly with France, and he warned that the choice was between military hegemony on the continent and financial and economic restoration.

Italy made it clear today through Signor Scialoia that her position at Locarno was like that of Great Britain; that she expected to sign the Rhine pact as a guarantor, but would under take no responsibilities covering Germany's treaties with Poland and Czechoslovakia. He said he wished to repudiate rumors that Italy was merely an observer at Locarno.

Count Skrzynsky contributed a note of harmony to the situation by asserting that Poland wanted to find a fair comprise based on existing treaties and within the scope of the league covenant. His remarks, however, that Poland stood ready to arbitrate all disputes provided they did not affect existing treaties, was construed as an admonition to Germany that the Warsaw governemnt would reject any move to reopen the question of restoration of the Polish corridor.

Czecho-Slovakia to Pay $3,000,000 Year

Arrangements Made to Spread $115,000,000 Debt Over a Period of 62 Years—Differences Settled.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Establishing a record for speedy solution of such a problem, the American and Czecho-Slovakian debt commissions today agreed upon an arrangement for funding Czecho-Slovakia's debt to the United States.

All differences were swept aside, the formula of settlement worked out, and an arrangement made for signing the formal documents within a week after the Czecho-Slovakian mission had arrived in this country.

The American government, accepted, subject to congressional approval, a lump sum of $185,000,00 as the basis of the settlement upon which the annual amortization payments will be made, conceding a reduction of $2,679,095 from the obligations as shown by treasury records.

It also agreed to a rate of 4 1-4 per cent., for computing accrued interest on the advances since they were made, with a rate of three per cent. from June 15 last to June 15, 1935, and 3 1-2 per cent. for the remainder of the 62 year amortization period.

Czecho-Slovakia was given terms which her representatives said would enable her to carry out the contract without disturbance to her government's fiscal affairs. She will be allowed, beginning next December, to pay $3,000,000 annually on principal and interest through the first 18 years of the agreement's operation, after which the payments will approximate something over $6,000,000.

The total she will have paid in principal and interest when the debt is finally extinguished will be in the neighborhood of $300,000,000.

Arguments Closed In Chapman Appeal

State's Attorney Alcorn Maintains That the Defense Has Not Raised a Real Legal Question.

HARTFORD, Oct. 9.—(A. P.)—That not a real legal question had been raised by the defense in its appeal for a new trial for Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit, was the argument of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn before the supreme court of errors here today. The argument of the state concluded the appeal of Chapman from the judgment of the superior court of first degree murder for the murder of Policeman James Skelly in New Britain on October 12, 1924.

There were 57 assignments of errors originally in the appeal the state's attorney said, and he pointed out that all had been discharged but 13. It was his contention that the remaining 13 did not constitute a basis for a new trial.

The defense, he asserted does not "even contend that their client was not guilty of the crime charged."

Taking the points brought forward by the defense, Mr. Alcorn called the attention of the court that Chapman's attorney in his argument had passed over the fourth point of alleged error, which claimed the verdict of the jury was against the evidence.

In this connection, the state's attorney mentioned the Ciafone case (the Renaldino murder) in which the supreme court had declined to set aside the verdict of murder in the second degree. He declared that the evidence in the Chapman case was twenty-fold stronger than in the Ciaffone case. He declared that the verdict would not have set aside in that case had the verdict been returned for the crime as charged.

After relating the story of the murder of Skelly and the capture of Chapman in Muncie, Ind., last January Mr. Alcorn took up the testimony of Ben Hance of Muncie. He characterized Hance as a man any one could take to and believe, and told of how Hance had identified many of the articles found in Chapman's room in Springfield, Mass., at the storehouse of Walter Shean in that city, or at the scene of the crime, as having been in Chapman's possession at the Hance farm in Muncie.

MACMILLAN ARCTIC PARTY AT MONHEGAN ISLAND, ME.

Lieut MacMillan and His Dozen Companions Were Greeted With Cheers Upon Their Return From Arctic Regions—The Schooner Peary and the Steamer Bowdoin Had an Exciting Race Down the Nova Scotia Coast on the Last Leg of Their Run From the Arctic.

MONHEGAN ISLAND, Maine, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The schooner Bowdoin arrived here at 4:50 o'clock tonight from Sydney, N. S., and joined the steamer Peary, which had arrived at the wharf at noon, with the members of the returning MacMillan navy arctic expedition, sent out from Wiscasset on June 20 last under the auspices of the National Geographic society.

Lieut. Commander Donald B. MacMillan and his dozen companions were greeted at the wharf with cheers and welcoming words by relatives and friends, who only ten minutes before had landed on this little island, 20 miles off the mainland, where Commander MacMillan usually stops overnight before entering Wiscasset, his home port, upon returning from his Arctic expeditions, which now number nine.

The party numbering about forty came out from Wiscasset in the small steamer Novelty, operated by Captain Cass Brackett of Monhegan The steamer had pulled up alongside the Peary and its passengers had started for the various homes to which they had been assigned for the night, the summer hotels being closed, when the Bowdoin was sighted, and all rushed back to the dock.

One of the first to board the Peary was Mrs. M. A. Schur of San Diego, Cal., wife of Lieut. Schur, one of the naval plane fliers.

It rained hard on the trip of more than three hours from Wiscasset, but the sea was smooth. A make-shift awning was spread on the aft deck of the Novelty, under which protection was afforded.

The Peary and the Bowdoin, a two-masted auxiliary craft, had a most exciting race down the Nova Scotia coast on the last leg of their run from the Arctic it was learned after the Peary had docked here, five hours ahead of the schooner.

The Peary which had been laying at Halifax to await the Bowdoin went out to join her yesterday morning but was unable to do so. "The Bowdoin had the wind and we could not catch her," Lieutenant Commander Eugene F. McDonald Jr., of the Peary, said. "I never saw the engineer put so much 'pep' into the Bowdoin as on this run. They were in a hurry to get home. Although the vessels were within sight of each other all day, we could not catch the schooner At 7 o'clock the Bowdoin into a headwind and an hour later we overhauled and passed her off Cape Sable N. S."

The Peary kept on to this port and had a fine trip, with the sea like a mill pond today. This condition left the Bowdoin's sails fluttering in a perfect calm, and she came along under her auxiliary power at less than eight knots an hour.

On the run toward Cape Sable, the men on the Peary received play by play reports of the worlds series baseball game at Pittsburgh yesterday through station WEEI at Boston.

SLIGHT EARTHQUAKE IN EASTERN NEW HAMPSHIRE

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A slight earthquake today shook central and eastern New Hampshire and extended slightly over the border into Maine. The only damage reported was the tipping of one or two chimneys in Gilmanton, N. H., and Corinth, Maine, the breaking of a little window glass at Ossipee and the knocking of goods from shelves of a store at Effingham Falls.

The disturbance was described by Associate Professor Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard university as "purely local." It was recorded faintly on the Harvard seismograph. The engineering economics foundation in a statement issued in Boston pointed out that the time of occurrence were out the general principle that earthquakes in New England usually came in the fall, winter or early spring. The foundation took occasion to emphasize that there was no means of predicting the date of any future shock.

The earthquake today accompanied by a rumbling noise, was felt chiefly in the Merrimack valley, the Lake Winnipesaukee region and the belt lying northeast of the lake near the Maine border. It occurred just before 9 a. m. and was first reported from Franklin, at the head waters of the Merrimack river

The most severe recent earthquake in New England came on February 28, last, when the severest shock felt in this section since 1885 was experienced throughout the region. There had been slight tremors in southern Maine and Vermont on September 30, 1924, and in eastern Massachusetts on January 7 last. Another minor shock was felt in southeastern Massachusetts on April 24 and there was a local disturbance on the Massachusetts north shore in May.

FILM MEN DENIED A RE-ARGUMENT OF CASE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 9.—Film producers and distributors who are fighting the Connecticut motion picture tax and censorship law, lost a point in their legal campaign today when they were denied a re-argument of their case by the three federal court judges who had upheld the constitutionality of the statute.

The petition, which was denied today, had been filed with the court by the American Feature Film Company, Inc., of Boston and the Fox Film corporation, of New York.

They were the petitioners in the original complaint against the film act, which was heard by Federal Court Judges Henry W. Rogers, Henry Goddard and Thomas Thacher at a special session held in this city July 10 The constitutionality of the act was at issue at that hearing and the judges later, in their decision ruled that the act was constitutional.

The petitioners in their appeal for a re-argument of the case, held that the judges had ruled on the constitutionality of the law from a police power basis, whereby the law, in ehir opinion was on of taxation.

OVERLAND JOURNEY FOR ARMY'S BIGGEST GUN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The army's biggest mobile gun, a 14-inch rifle on a railway mount; will be started soon on a 3,000 mile overland journey to Fort McArthur, San Diego, Calif., from Aberdeen, Md., and will be put through firing tests immediately after its arrival.

General plans for the railway route over which the monster coast defense weapon will move to San Diego were worked out at a conference yesterday between army officials and representatives of the trans-continental railway system over which it will move.

The entire trip is regarded by coast artillery officers and army engineers as an experiment promising valuable information in connection with plans worked out since the war for supplementing the big gun batteries along the coast lines with heavy guns on railway mounts. The firing test at San Diego is intended to determine the effects on the railway mounting of the 3,000 mile journey, which will take about two months, numerous stops to permit the interior towns and cities to inspect the gun being planned on the way across the continent.

Later it is charged, the pair switched the real stones for glass imitations.

The police sad the two were also at liberty in $5,000 bail on a similar diamond swindle perpetrated at Mineola, Long Island, on a sheriff who was defrauded of $2,500.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIAN LOAN OF $50,000,000 PROBABLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—The agreement to fund Czecho-Slovakia's war debt to the United States, Wall Street bankers believe, will pave the way for an early flotation of a $50,000,000 Czecho-Slavakian loan.

A. F. OF L. TO FIGHT FOR THE CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 9.—(A. P.)—Ways and means of waging a nationwide fight for the child labor amendment to the federal constitution were considered at a three hour session of the American Federation of Labor today.

President William Green summed up the attitude of all the speakers when he said: "This fight will go on, as long as we live and through succeeding generations, until the children of the nation are safe."

Half a dozen speakers urged that an intensive campaign of education be carried on, through organized bureaus, motion pictures, cartoons and in every-day conversation with friends and neighbors.

NO PUNITIVE MEASURES AGAINST COL. MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(A. P.)—While the official decision still is to be made, it appeared probable today that no punitive measures will be taken against Colonel William Mitchell for his refusal to qualify as a witness before the naval court inquiring into the Shenandoah disaster.

The only concrete development in the case was the formal certification of the fact to the war department by the navy department. Thus, the navy leaves the first step to the army, while high officers in that service take the unofficial view that the issue rests squarely with the naval court.

Should the war department so notify the navy department, the court still would have its remedy, possibly in the federal courts, but some naval officials were inclined to the opinion that, since Colonel Mitchell already is facing army court-martial proceedings, the incident of his refusal to appear before the naval court should be regarded as closed.

"POISON GAS PROPAGANDA" VEXES ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—The anti-saloon league of American today issued a statement attacking the "poison gas propaganda" against prohibition with which it asserts European liquor dealers are flooding the United States, through American news channels. The statement was issued jointly by Wayne B. Wheeler, national counsel for the league, Ernest M. Cherrington, secretary of the executive committee, and Bishop James A. Cannon, chairman of the legislative committee of league headquarters here, after the three had met to formulate a national and international plan to offset what they termed as foreign influence.

"European liquor dealers are organizing to check the rapid spread of prohibition sentiment in their own lands," the statement said. "We have assurance that these men, notably the wine growers and sellers of France, are subsidizing the wet fight in America.

"From Canada come floods of propaganda intended to conceal the failure of legitimatized beer and the government sale system. While the wet group here extols the Canadian system as ideal, the wets in Ontario declare that 4.4 beer is unsatisfactory, and the liquor commission of Quebec fills the newspapers with display advertising setting forth the advantages of the Quebec system, in the hope of stilling the popular dissatisfaction at home, and selling their system to the United States.

George A. Taylor, 67, of Scotland, died at the Norwich State Hospital last Thursday night after illness of six months. JEWETT CITY

The newly elected school board of the town of Griswold met and organized Thursday evening. The board is E. E. Gilbert, James H. Shea and Richard Dudkowski. Mr. Gilbert is chairman and Mr. Shea, clerk.

At such time as the trolley service is discontinued for Jewett City, and supplemented by a regular bus schedule it is beleieved to be a foregone conclusion that special service will be established to accommodate the 50 odd pupils that attend the high school in Central Village and the academy in Norwich.

It is probable that the transportation scheme will include a pupils' bus that will be operated for them, and leaving Postoffice Square at a seasonable hour, will land the students at the academy entrance, not entering the down-town section of the city. There will be no walking to Lisbon if the Federal highway should be rerouted to take this bus. Jewett City will have a service of their own, regardless of the change in the road. This borough will occupy its present boundaries, and, recognizing its fine patronage its service will come here to get it.

Acting under the advice of Deputy Sheriff John T. Dolan of this place, Constable Edmond St. John of Voluntown, visited the locked and deserted house on the Beach Pond road, below Voluntown. This house is situated on what is known as the Bliven farm, and has been occupied by Joseph Chowenie and a woman supposed to be his wife. Everybody human flew the coop, leaving animals and poultry to starve. Officer St. John forced an entrance to find the story of criminal desertion tragically told again. For there about the floor, under windows where futile attempts to escape had been made, were the dead bodies of two cats and several fowl, starved to death. News reached the borough that Chowenie had been taken into custody. Late Friday such was not the case, although Sheriff Dolan and Constable St. John telephoned all the velvet and silk mills in Norwich, where it was said he is employed, probably under an assumed name.

Automobile drivers entering the town Friday evening were telling of several near accidents to motor vehicles, caused by skidding on the wet leaves that covered the state road.

From all parts of the outlying districts are coming reports of the exceptional beauty of the early fall foliage. There is a view to be seen from the residence of E. M. Gray on Taylor hill, with an outstanding feature of novel beauty off to the north and fully three miles distant a great bright red maple is to be made out with no other color near, giving the appearance of just at sunset of a flaming crimson torch in a setting of green and gold.

An auto vehicle driver of the right sort proved his merit on the borough street Friday afternoon. He was at the wheel of a big truck which attached to a chain was pulling a smaller two-wheel cart. Informed that the trailer should carry a red warning flag, Mr. Driver, offered thanks to his informant, alighted, entered a near at hand furnishing store, paid 15 perfectly good cents, came out with a red bandanna handkerchief, made it fast to the trailer and proceeded in full compliance with the law.

At the conference of six churches at Preston City Wednesday Rev. William L. Muttart, of Hampton, a former pastor at Preston City, had charge of the program. In introducing the speaker of the morning service, Rev. R. R. Shoemaker, D. D., Mr. Muttart told the familiar narritive of a partly illiterate man who read the sign over a cobbler's door, "Adam Strong, shoemaker," pronouncing it "A dam strong shoemaker." The Rev. doctor, stepping into the pulpit smiled sort of winning like, and said he was reminded of a moderator who introduced a speaker, remarking, "I don't know this man, but, I do know he isn't hung yet, but I don't know why."

People with many or few dahlias are taking them from the ground in preparation for winter storage. In almost every case there is the report that the killing frost came so early that the roots were putting out new shoots, some of which were above ground. It is of interest to note how well nature supplies for the summer time that will come again. A small grower paid $12 for a single toe. On carefully digging out the tubers Friday he found nature's multiplication lair had given him nine fine roots for his future garden, in addition to a dozen georeous blooms before the freeze. The old Cluey Watson gardens on Main street turned out over 1,000 of the finest toes, and it is likely that from the surplus over the replanting needs, some topnotchers may be secured.

Faith Chapter, O. E. S., celebrated its twelfth anniversary Thursday evening, several grand officers were present, including Worthy Grand Matron Helen I. Williams of Silver Lane, grand conductress, Willie Stewart New Canaan; associate grand conductress, Frances Geer, Norwich and Past Grand Worthy Matron Bertha Gallup of Moosup. A turkey supper was served by the Ladies' Society of the Congregational church in the vestry. The tables were set in the form of a star. A birthday cake on which was a candle star in blue, yellow, green, red and white, made by Mrs. H. E. Paul, stood in the center of the room, and the candles were lighted after the guests were seated. The table decorations were exquisite candlesticks, some of which came from Scotland, holding candles the colors of the five points of the star. Mrs. Walter Richardson had decorated the rooms in autumn foliage the beautiful colors and effective arrangement being greatly admired. The guests were received by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, who was in charge of the waitresses. After the divine blessing was invoked by the Worthy Grand Matron, a march was played and the waitresses marched to the side table from which the supper was served. The menu included roast turkey; stuffing, giblet gravy, mashed potato, mashed turnip, cranberry jelly, celery, rolls, ice cream, cake, coffee.

The supper was in charge of Mrs. C. D. Wolf, Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. J. T. Stewart, Mrs. F. D. Ballou, Mrs. Walter Richardson and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox They were assisted by Mrs. S. A. New Method Eradicates Wrinkles Like Magic

It has been found that a simple tarkroot mixture, spread over the entire face, acts almost magically upon even the deepest wrinkles and crowsfeet. It produces the natural rejuvenating effect of massage, only to a more marked degree. The danger of loosening the skin or muscles, as in unscientific or too frequent massaging, is eliminated, no rubbing being necessary. On the other hand, the skin and underlying tissues are so invigorated they become much firmer, and the skin's texture is so changed it again assumes its original clear, smooth, velvety appearance.

If you will procure a package of powdered tarkroot from your druggist, mix a spoonful with a spoonful of lemon juice, apply with the fingers and sit down before your mirror, you will see the wrinkles and sags disappear, in less that 15 minutes! You will be amazed, to say the least. Tarkroot of course is perfectly harmless. And certainly it is inexpensive; a treatment costs less than three cents!

Mr. Ledger kept the children interested by giving them a few slogans, and distributed some pictures, actual and imaginary of fires besides telling an occasional story. Chief Ledger stated that in 1924, 180 cities spent $3,250,000,000 on new buildings, yet following this there was a loss of $548,000,000 by fire in six months. At the conclusion of the lecture, the children applauded vigorously. Next on the program was the singing of America by all the class, saluting the flag concluded.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph H. Rau of Brooklyn, N. Y., were in the casualties report added on such a rainy afternoon as that of Friday to the long list of those who have figured in accidents on the hills of the state highway east of here and leading to Providence. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Rau was seriously hurt, sustaining only cuts and abrasinos, when the Chevrolet coupe in which they were riding overturned coming down South Killingly hill. It is believed the car skidded when Mr. Rau applied his brakes a bit too heavily on the steep grade. The car was not seriously damaged. Mr. Rau was driving under a New Jersey registration and carried a New Jersey operator's license. State Officer Leonard Comstock investigated the accident.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kies Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock funeral services for Mrs. Kies' sister, Miss Eliza Pray, were conducted by Rev. Almer E. Gallup of the Nazarene church, numbers of relatives and friends being in attendance. Burial was in the High street cemetery, Dayville. The bearers were Clarence A. Chase and Chauncey Chase of Jewett City, Marvin Kies of Danielson and Henry Pray of Ballouville. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Danielson is proud to incidentally bask a bit in the honor reflected from the election of Nathan D. Prince of this town and Hartford as treasurer of the American Bankers' association, at the recent national convention of the organization at Atlantic City. Mr. Prince is president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, one of the largest banks in New England; president of the Windham County National bank of Danielson, where his first banking experience was gained, and a director of the Cargill Trust company at Putnam. He has been eminently successful as a banker, holds the confidence of banking interest throughout the country and year by year has been attaining greater distinction in national banking fields.

Consideration of the Green Hollow re-location project for the Norwich-Danielson new trunk line highway was veering around Friday to a proposal that petitions be circulated in the towns of Killingly and Plainfield against the stand of State Highway Commissioner Macdonald that the Danielson-Wauregan state trunk line will be abandoned to town support if the proposed new line is built.

Plainfield is in the same boat with Killingly, if the state highway commissioner's edict becomes effective. Plainfield will be subject, as will Killingly, to a heavy yearly cost of maintaining a long stretch of road now cared for by the state as trunk line highway. Plainfield, it would appear from what worthy citizens of that township say, is as much opposed to having miles of present trunk line revert to its car as is Killingly.

It has been said a few million times in the past that "the people are the state." Possibly that's true. One cannot be too sure of anything in this advanced age. If it is true, the state is about to hear from the citizenship of Plainfield and Killingly. The state will hear that Plainfield and Killingly are against the state highway commissioner's proposal—it will hear that through petitions signed by a great many people.

Members of St. Alban's parish were expressing keen pleasure Friday in contemplating a wholly interesting jolly and profitable gathering at their new parish house Thursday evening. The affair was, in effect, a house warming, for the parish house, completed the past summer, had not previously held such a gathering. About 125 were in attendance.

The Ladies' Aid society of the church prepared an excellent supper, partaken of by the gathering as by a great family party.

The social hours held much to make everyone happy. There were brief addresses by Rev. Leonard Richards, the rector, Alfred L. Reed, Francis E. Storer, E. H. Keach. Musical numbers included a violin and piano duet by Alfred Pate and his daughter, Miss Elsa Pate, a piano solo by Miss Allee Bacon, a piano and trombone duet by Miss Ethel Birch and Miss Bacon, vocal solos by Rev. Leonard Richards and community singing. Much might be said of the community singing. The songs of yesterday seemed to inspire not only those who lived and enjoyed them in the days when they were new, but the younger people as well. No more delightful evening has been spent in yeras by the members of St. Alban's parish than they spent Thursday particularly appreciative were the comments on the graceful manner in which the rector, in his whole-hearted manner, made possible such a degree of real comradeship.

There are new fast-delivery mail arrangements out of the Danielson postoffice for those with letters on which hurried delivery is desired in Boston, with which city Danielson does much business. Postmaster E. H. Keach has arranged for a special pouch to be made up here for the mail closing at 9.19 a. m., assuring delivery of letters in Boston at the noon hour. This will be a great advantage to business and manufacturing interests. One may read his early morning mail here under the new arrangement and have a reply back in Boston at noon the same day. That's about as good as the air mail service offers in speedy delivery—for non-long-distance carrying. At 9.13 a. m., also, another special pouch is closed here to go west from Putnam, assuring delivery in Hartford before noon and at points farther west at a time ahead of other previously available schedules. Here is peace time progress prosaic in a way, but of vast importance to interests depending on speedy mail service for the greater advantage of their business deals. And it is not so bad for a person who has a message of mere nothingness to write.

Death came during Thursday night to Mary Chaiah, at her home on Railroad street. Mrs. Chaiah had been seriously ill the past eight months. To the average person here and hereabouts the name of the dead will mean little or nothing—but if she be called "Mary the Peddler," that is an entirely different thing.

The great majority who had encountered her during the 27 years that she had made Danielson her home knew her only by her sobriquet. She had gone about Danielson and other communities of the town of Killingly—and the surrounding towns—offering her wares. The wares were the products of her native Syria, or were supposed to be, but whatever the origin of them, the prices and qualities were always such as to appeal to a great multitude of women who like lovely things and will buy them, especially under the romantic influence of a vendor born of the east, savoring of the east and its mystic, mysterious code.

Mary Chaiah was a good woman. She labored long. She labored zealously. None of the glamor of life in this amazing nation appealed to her. Her liberal earnings were never reflected in any personal adornment or other outward ostentation. She did not fall for the weakness of modern Americana to shine, to be exalted, to be talked about.

Indeed she was a pathetic figure, poorly clad bent, withered, but of sprightly mind and super-sharp trading instinct. Mary was keen mentally, more potent physically than was outwardly apparent, Mary saved money. Her wants were few. She has passed on to something beyond this life where money must count as little as the smoke from burning leaves on an autumn evening. It's a pleasant thought. In death she is not "Mary the Peddler," but a departed soul, who labored well, who sought nothing of life's glitter, but lived a life of honest effort—to honor her son, Deap Chaiah, with whom she made her home and who survives her, and in consonance with the traditions of the mystic east, from the centuries of philosophy of which she drew her pattern of life, Danielson knew Mary well in some ways, but not at all in others.

45,845 Delinquent

August operations of internal revenue collectors throughout the country resulted in the discovery of 45,845 tax delinquencies. It was announced today by the internal revenue bureau, which reported that of the total more than 23,000 never had paid taxes before. It segregated them as 14,142 who had failed to pay some of the many special taxes, while the remainder were delinquent in income taxes.

Commissioner Blair stated, however, that the work thus done was not the result of any special drive, but a continuing function of the bureau and that he anticipated further returns to the treasury, which have been averaging about $4,500,00' a month from this source.

HUNTERS AND FIRES

With the opening of the hunting season in the middle of Fire Prevention week it is impossible to overlook the thought, in spite of the soaking rain, that those who go into the fields and woods to shoot have an opportunity to do much in the way of reducing the number of forest fires.

There isn't anything which kindles much faster than dry leaves and once a fire in them gets under headway much damage is likely to result before a check is placed upon it. As yet the bulk of the leaves have not fallen but the menace which they create will increase as the season moves along.

If there is a sincere desire to contribute something to fire prevention there is the chance provided in connection with forest fires. Last spring, by the report of the state forester, there were 730 such fires in this state, burning over a total of 19,000 acres and causing damage estimated at more than $92,000. The bulk of these fires averaged only 13 acres but there were 47 of them which burned over an average of 212 acres.

It is interesting to note that 26 of the bad fires started in leaves, 14 in grass and that 21 were due to smokers. Thus it is shown that many of the fires were unnecessary, that the exercise of more care would have reduced the number and the loss and that the application of preventive measures would have made an appreciable change in the situation.

That fact should not be lost sight of either in the spring or the fall when many go into the woods and give little thought to the manner in which they scatter firebrands about. It may not mean any direct loss to them that there have been fires or that there may be others because of their carelessness, but someone is going to be the loser and it is the great waste that is involved that all should strive to prevent. It is slight recompense to the owners of the woods to so conduct yourself that you do not do damage to his property, whether by fire or otherwise.

WHERE CHANGES ARE NEEDED

In connection with the holding up of those carrying payrolls and those making collections of funds, or transferring large sums of money, various methods have been employed. Institutions have obtained special machines with barred windows and placed extra messengers in such cars, while others have had them followed by armed men in other cars. And yet it has been the experience in and about Boston that the robberies continue to take place and several deaths have resulted from the desperation of the robbers.

Police authorities give as the reason for such banditry police inefficiency, the leniencies accompanying the parole and probation systems and the failure of the prosecuting authorities to do their full duty. There are serious charges involved in such claims, none of which should exist if proper protection is given to the public, and yet with the prevailing conditions and the need of greater safeguards it is not surprising that new methods are being employed to get them.

Paying by check is one of the methods suggested for meeting the situation. Another is to employ such agencies as make a business of delivering payrolls, making collections and transferring funds. Certain Boston institutions have reluctantly decided to adopt this latter course, in which service experienced men are employed, men who can shoot quicker than the robbers, and men who have the protection of armored cars. Such a service is maintained in 25 or more cities and it is on record that the employes of such a concern have actually caught robbers before they could get into action.

It is a deplorable situation when the conditions are such that the authorities created for the purpose of dealing with highwaymen prove inefficient. Nothing cries out louder for a thorough house cleaning. Such conditions ought not to be tolerated even though the means of transporting funds is changed and made safer. While the safer transfer service is being adopted better police, court and prosecuting protection should also be insisted upon.

ALIEN REGISTRATION

When Chairman Johnson of the house committee on immigration points to the need of alien registration in this country he is hitting at a subject which had received some attention but not as much as it deserves. Secretary Davis of the department of labor has strongly urged the registration of all aliens and from time to time new instances are being encountered which accentuate the need.

It is the practice in this country to permit aliens living here to return to their homeland, or go elsewhere outside of the country, for a period of a year. They are given permits which will admit them to the country on their return within the specified time but from the study which has been made of these cases it has been found that of those applying for such permits 20 per cent. were not able to prove that they were legally admitted to this country. It is the expressed opinion of Chairman Johnson that this ratio runs through the entire alien population.

It is an eye opening statement and yet when it is realized how extensively bootlegging of aliens is carried on, how many of those who come to this country as seamen and then desert and how many are smuggled across the borders the statement is easily reconciled.

We have within the past few years established more strict immigration laws for the purpose of keeping out the undesirables and keeping down the number of newcomers until they can be assimilated. This has increased the determination to get in by illegal methods and when it is figured that a fifth of the aliens here got in through a violation of our laws the wisdom of enacting a law that will do much toward placing a check therein seems apparent.

If our laws are going to amount to anything they must be respected. When they are defied it is time to provide additional support. Registration of aliens will require considerable government machinery and some expense but no one will be to blame for it but the aliens illegally here and the aliens would of necessity have to meet the expense.

MARKING STREETS AND ROADS

Some lead and others follow. As long as the example is a good one there can be no complaint if it is followed up reasonably soon. Just how many will be impressed by the action which has been taken in Boston for more and better street signs will be hard to ascertain but it is a matter of steadily increasing importance to the users of the highways. This is true not only of the city but of the territory outside as well. Every street has a name but it is many times hard to find it, and every road goes somewhere but it is a puzzle for the uninformed to solve in too many cases.

With highways used more and more, and with the desire for faster moving traffic, it can be appreciated that the plainly marked streets will do much in relieving this situation. It is a matter of much convenience for the pedestrian as well as the auto rider to have the streets marked. This applies as much to the main streets as to the cross streets, for while more people know the main thoroughfares than know the cross streets the absence of signs at corners indicating all streets is as confusing to the stranger who comes out of a cross street as one who is seeking a cross street. It does not meet requirements to label a main thoroughfare at each end and neglect it at the cross streets.

It is pleasing to note that Boston is awakening to the need of better street signs. Let the good work be carried through speedily and may the cry be taken up in all other cities and towns.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON

Men rise to fame in various ways. Some do it by way of the baseball diamond and such was the medium in the case of Christy Mathewson, whose fight for life has been as hard fought as were the battles in which he occupied the pitcher's box.

He was one of those players who came into prominence through the masterly manner in which he played the national game. There have been many great baseball players, there are many today and there will be more. It is some time since Mathewson has played but for a period previous to a decade ago he was the idol of the fans. His name was on the lips of all followers of the game, and he deserved all the attention that was lavished upon him.

Mathewson was the type of a young man that might well be placed in the hero class. He was of fine character, displayed excellent sportsmanship, never allowed his victories to turn his head and was always ready to give the best in him to the game in which he so signally succeeded. He played a clean game and he lived a clean life. It is such players as Mathewson who have made such great contributions to the game of baseball. They have served to sustain the confidence of the people, when others have been doing their utmost to break it down for selfish reasons. The presence of such a character cannot fail to give its benefits to whatever organization it is connected with.

It was a great loss when disease made it necessary for him to abandon baseball and it is even a greater one when death removes him from all fields of activity. He nevertheless made his mark and it will not be quickly forgotten.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Among the changes that mark the growth of civilization along some directions none is more conspicuous than the expansion of the daily press. In the writer's boyhood days to have a sport column in any paper would have been regarded as an act of unpardonable frivolity. Twenty years later when he was in college only meagre space was devoted to athletic games. Compare this, if you please, to the modern page, or rather pages that are expected in the metropolitan press. And yet the earth has not been consumed by fervent heat. In the next six weeks or two the leading of all our daily papers will be the reports of football games in our colleges and universities. The wonderful advancement in photography has done much for the increased interest in games and athletes. This old world has learned late in life that the fullest development of man will not be attained by ignoring the play instinct.

If one did not read the newspapers he would soon learn that baseball had been hung up and football taken down. Mankind generally hangs up the "shovel and the hoe" when it takes down the "fiddle and the bow," simply because the two don't go together. In other words we use things and do things that are seasonable. Quite apart, then, from the papers, we know what is going on by the antics of the youngsters as soon as the school day is over. My, what knowledge of football is displayed! How glibly do the familiar terms of that game flow from their lips! What knowledge of tackles, forward passes and touchdowns! That is all right, boys, but make just as many inside of the school room as out.

Does not the approach of the real autumnal weather remind us also that many of our duties are seasonal? That is there are certain things, which, if not done at a certain time cannot be done at another time just as well. Baseball and football emphasize this suggestion. If our eyes, however, are open we do not need this suggestion; we find it in the facts themselves. The other day the writer motored over to Colchester, and on the way he had abundant evidence that corn ought to have been cut a week or two earlier. It had ripened, in many cases, probably in most cases, but this seasonal delay was quite expensive to the farmers; the bleached-out, brittle fodder had lost much of its nutriment. Do we not see this fact illustrated on all sides? Do we not see many buildings that ought to have been painted years ago. There is no money in letting anything run down that is worth repairing at all. There is a season for everything.

A certain eminent teacher once said: "Let me have a boy until he is seven years old, and I care not who has him afterward." Probably this statement was exaggerated for the purpose of emphasis, but it certainly contains the essence of a very important truth. Many years ago our own venerated Dr. Horace Bushnell wrote a book, entitled Christian Nurture, which revolutionized many of the prevailing archaic notions in regard to the spiritual education of the young. He claimed that it was impossible to begin too early in the unfolding of the spiritual nature of the child. One who reads the Old Testament carefully is amazed at the injunction placed upon the father to bring up his child in the knowledge of the law. Our Sunday schools are worthy of all praise and honor but one hour a week is pitifully small to be devoted to so important a matter as religion.

It is a very hopeful sign when the youth of the country is seeking admission to our colleges in such unprecedented numbers. There seems to be an unuttered cry arising from the young people of our land from Plymouth Rock to the Golden Gate, and from the lakes to the gulf, "we will not grow up illiterate." Our wonders at the recent Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., with its frightful revelation of ignorance and bigotry has not spurred on the youth of the country for the larger intellectual outlooks. Possibly the constantly increasing per capita wealth of the country has had something to do with it. It shows clearly that all the iron atoms of Puritanism has not seeped out of our American blood. It is also a good sign that such a proportion of Jewish boys are showing such capacity for scholarship. Amherst has an incoming class of 339—great for a college of its size—Smith has 1,400, Connecticut College 500, Storrs nearly 500, the limit fixed by law, while Yale and Harvard are being flooded. May this be America's answer to the Scopes trial.

Judge Hale—better known in history as the great Sir Matthew Hale—one of the greatest ornaments of the English church and the English bench, was a most spiritually devout man. Though he believed in the presence of witchcraft and gave severe sentences to those convicted of witchcraft, yet he was consistent with his beliefs. Judge Hale set great value on the Sabbath as a day of rest, not a day for business nor worldly recreation, but of holy rest. He contended that he found the work of the week to go well according as he had kept the Sabbath well. Dr. Guthrie votes him as saying: "As a stroke of an eagle's wing sends her a long way, so a well spent Sabbath sent him a long way."

On the 11th day of October 1890, the Daughters of the American Revolution organized, and through many lines of public service this organization has been justified. We need something of the sort, "lest we forget," and in the rush and push of modern life we can easily forget past places, former things, and ancient heroes. One of the pathetic tendencies of the times is the forgetting of old burying grounds. The Daughters of the American Revolution by their persistence, intelligence and courage have saved some of these sacred places—for every ground ought to be sacred. I repeat they have been instrumental in saving some of these places from coarse and godless commercialism. Attempts on the part of those who have come to this country with no care or refined feeling for places that ought to be forever dear to every true American have been thwarted in their mercenary projects by the watchfulness of this organization.

What a revolution in modes of travel since 1783! On October 20, 1783 two men from Hartford opened a stage line between Boston and Hartford—the first in New England. To show the conservatism of the day it is reported that a prominent Boston man who was asked to join the enterprise replied, "that the time might arrive when the public could support such an undertaking but not in your day or mine." What would this same man say could he see airplanes sailing above him? But conservatism is not dead. I wonder if we are tumbling over one another to invest money in passenger air craft fully as rational now as the stage coach was then. One is inclined to ask if there is any limit to the possibilities of scientific discoveries and inventions. Is not "the earth getting as full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea?"

Effect of Altitude

The Geological Survey says that according to science there is an altitude at which water would not boil; however, no one has ever reached that point, as it is about 20 miles above sea level.

While it is not impossible to boil an egg hard at the top of Pike's Peak, it takes longer to do it.

HOW ESKIMOS HUNT THE WALRUS

"One of the most thrilling and dangerous combats between man and animal today is part of the Greenland Eskimo's ordinary routine of making a living. An Eskimo walrus hunt, staged in a tiny boat and with the most primitive of weapons, offers the game more than a sporting chance, and, in comparison, makes bull fighting or lion hunting by civilized man with modern weapons seem poor and one-sided slaughter," according to Maynard Owen Williams, staff correspondent of the National Geographic expedition, in a message forwarded to the society's Washington, D. C. headquarters through amateur radio station 1 ARE, of Pittsfield, Mass.

"When the Eskimo puts to sea in a top balloon of a boat, to battle to the death with twenty times his weight of pigheaded, bull-necked ferocity, his trusty 'steed' is corseted to his waist and his trusty 'rifle' is made from a tusk in the mouth of his enemy," the message continues. "He must not only kill his walrus, but also drag it ashore and, if he is forced to make an arsenal of his narrow deck space he does so.

Invades Enemy's Element

"A mighty hunter, equipped with the highest powered rifle that he can shoot without making game of himself, climbs a tree, shoots a lion and writes a book. The Eskimo, however, invades the lement in which the 'lion of the sea' is at home but in which he, the hunter, cannot swim. He shackles his feet inside a flipper by means of which he must out-maneuver an animal born with them, sinks a bit of walrus ivory in the tough hide of his prey and gets his antagonist angry enough to come to the surface and receive the killing iron.

"When it is all over and his sinkable quarry has been towed ashore and cut up, the hunter removes its spleen, stretches the membrane on a hoop made of walrus ribs and makes a Kilaute (a musical instrument) with which to accompany his song of victory to his wife and dogs.

"The Eskimo must not only carry his contest for food but must finish his job without going home for more tools. Across the taut sealskin deck of his kayak (Eskimo canoe) are stretched lines of rawhide, held in place by bone or walrus ivory buttons. These lines serve as a tool chest, into which each instrument is placed and from which it can be instantly withdrawn when the occasion arises.

Paddle Costs a Fox Skin

"More important than any weapon, since the Eskimo's life depends upon it is the double-bladed paddle, straight grained as a baseball bat, and tipped with bone. Along Smith sound the trees, willow and birch, are two inches high and paddle material must be bartered for. A strong light stick, seven feet long, may cost a blue fox skin.

"The paddle is both propeller and helm, and is material for a pontoon bridge when more than one kayak is moored abreast. The paddle is stretched across from one frail bark to another when the kayak is swunk broadside to the rock shore. Laid across the deck and touching the rocks or ice the paddle also prevents overturning while the owner is squirming out of the narrow opening.

Harpoon Does Not Kill

"Next in importance is the harpoon. It kills nothing, but it brings it back. Ten inches of the front is made of bone, blunt pointed, and so joined with rawhide that at impact it turns sideways, releasing the detachable point and setting it across the incision in the tough hide so that it will hold. The point is edged with steel, possibly cut from some abandoned saw blade. A long knotless line joins it to the awatah, or sealskin float, which tires out the walrus and keeps him from sinking and being lost. This line is made by skinning a broad cummberbund from the body of a square flipper seal and then cutting from it a single long line. This line, if kept moist, will withstand the strain of four to five men. A ton of walrus is beached by belting a line about it and using holes cut in the ice, in lieu of block and tackle.

"The killing iron which inflicts the mortal hurt is attached to a long rod. It must be lanced deep through tough hide, thick fat, and between close-set ribs to the heart before the sea is reddened with blood and the upended awatah, motionless in the water, shows that the fight is over and that man has won.

"As the kayak deck is often awash the owner wears a seal skin corslet, which laps over the rim of the opening and prevents water from running in on the one thickness of bear skin, all that keeps him from feeling the more than ice-cold water through the thin-skin kayak covering.

Head Down in Water

"In South Greenland the corslet becomes a skirt, which can be tied about the face so that the kayaker can turn completely over or hang head down in the water. The line is neatly coiled on a circular stand set up on a bone tripod on the fore deck, in the south the kayak is not only smaller, faster and more easily handled in sea and on land, but is also equipped with a tiny keel which prevents side sway at each stroke of the paddle.

"The South Greenlander also adds a throw stick to his harpoon and carries, in addition, a bird spear tilted with a cruel trap of bone jaw projecting from it a third of the way back from the point. He carries also a bone fish knife, scientifically used to deaden all nerve centers so that the fish cannot flop off the flat deck. In the north, where there are almost no fish, this implement is not needed. Where a stout fish line is constantly being dragged up and dropped, in the operation known as jigging, the harpoon is hung over the side to protect the sealskin from the cut of the line.

Man Not Always Winner

"As we anchored at Sukkertoppen a circle of kayaks formed about the Bowdoin and we declared we had never seen more graceful boats. Their keels glistened and their prows were neatly decorated with ivory knobs. Many of the boatmen were mere boys, who seemed more skillful than Kookatingwa himself. But these South Greenlanders, progressive as they appear, are less cunning and less self confident than the Smith Sound Eskimos whom we followed to the walrus haunt outside Cape Alexander, there to disturb the smalleyed lion of the sea at his clam feast and engage him in a fight that does not always end in favor of the man.

"From one hunt, which resulted in three walrus being towed ashore and several more killed by rifle fire, one kayak was brought back after it had overturned and two of the awatahs were punctured by the tusks of a herd of a hundred infuriated sea animals, which recognized in them something associated with an enemy.

"In these aquatic battles of the century the bull walrus fights for his females and their young. But back of the Eskimo are his family and his dogs, all of whom depend upon him and his walrus catches for their very lives. The walrus, dangerous as he is, is food and plenty of it. Paddle, harpoon, sealskin float, and killing iron are but the implements with which the sea-fed Eskimo farms his icy waters."

Stories That Recall Others

John's Ailment

The day after John had been absent he brought the following note written by himself;

"Teacher, please excuse John's absence for he had dramatic rheumatism."

Time

A small boy's mother went to a meeting, at which she was to take the minutes. Before she left he asked her where she was going.

She replied; "I am going to a meeting to take the minutes." After she left, he went to his aunt's house.

"Where is your mother?" asked the aunt.

The boy replied: "She went to a meeting to take the time."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Brigadier General Benjamin A. Poore, whose promotion to the rank of major general comes into effect today with his succession to the command of the 7th Corps Area, with headquarters at Omaha, is one of the comparatively few general officers of the United States army who were awarded the distinguished service cross for extraordinary heroism in France. Born in Alabama, Gen. Poore entered the United States Military Academy from Massachusetts. During the World war he commanded the Seventh Infantry Brigade of the Fourth Division in the Aisne-Marne-St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensive and in the fight around Vesle and Toule. Recently he has been the commanding officer at Fort Sheridan, Ill. In the command of the 7th Corps Area he succeeds Maj. Gen. George B. Duncan, who retires today for age.

From Small Beginnings

Russell Sage, the Great Financier.

When Russell Sage died he left a fortune of nearly $100,000,000 dollars. From that vast sum Mrs. Sage gave with an open hand to many organizations for good. In his lifetime, Russell Sage was regarded as one of the shrewdest and most remarkable of all American financiers.

In early life fortune put no golden spoon in his mouth, and not even a silver spoon. In fact, Russell Sage, in early life, felt himself lucky to have even a tin spoon. From his childhood until he was 15 years old he worked on a farm, doing all that a boy could do, all the odd jobs and all the dirty jobs until he gained strength enough for the harder farm work. From being a farm hand he became messenger for a grocery store.

"What's your name, boy?" people asked him. "Russell Sage."

"Huh!" they said, and took their carrots and spinach.

Who cares for a grocery boy? Yet even that uneducated grocery boy found the way to huge fortune and immense power. From being the store boy he became partner in a grocery, and then partner in a wholesale business. He had delivered carrots and learned business at the same time. When he had a small business, he learned how to manage a larger business, for he had the forward look. Then, having ability, he took a larger view of life and studied general conditions; becoming successively alderman, county treasurer and congressman. Through all this he learned still more about money and how to use it.

Now that he has gained his education he enlarged his field and interested himself in railroad development. In this he worked with that other clever financier, Jay Gould, and brought together a fortune, not by luck or accident, but because he had mastered every detail of the business from the time when he first set out as store boy in the old grocery. His farm habits stuck to him all through life. He had known what it means to be without money and how necessary it is to save, and he remained to the last thrifty, saving and a hater of waste. The man, who, at 21, was proud to be partner in a grocery store made himself in his later years one of the richest Americans.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Is It Worth While?

Mr. Editor: If this writer was out on a forlorn hope of convincing all opponents, scientific and theological, it would not be worth while.

Nevertheless there is a satisfaction in making appeal to friends whose common sense in general expect a defense, and who express their gratification at our method of making it.

Now, we note this, that the most virulent opposers of the Bible are the men who read it the least or those who reading it get the least meaning out of its language.

By the same token, those who write in favor of evolution are not scientists who are digging out their theories at first hand, but rather those affecting science, who have only a dictionary understanding of its terms. This is shown by their using them so lavishly.

Every student knows that the word "science" is a term which means "to know." It does not mean I think, nor I believe nor I guess, therefore the man who writes on science or on theology should be able to speak of what he knows. Christians who stumble at the Old Testament miracles should know that the new testament relates miracles as incredible as those in the old. Now, as to the story given in Genesis "the earth is not described as being "flat and square." It distinctly states that the earth was without form and void. So far this agrees with the theories of science. So far from its being misunderstood to be "flat and square" one of the most respected prophets writing centuries after creation describes God as, "He that sitteth upon the circle of the earth and the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers (not monkeys)."

The word "upon" here signifies not only circularity, but also sphericity,—if we may be allowed to interpret.

So here we have in scientific poetry the earth declared a sphere, long before the times of Galileo and Copernikus, Christopher Columbus or the telescope.

All this baby-logic which we hear about the earth's surface being regarded square and flat as affecting men's moral state is idle nonsense anyway. Mensuration, geography and navigation all treat the earth's surface as al, even today. The square and triangle are the basis shown in Euclid's elements. They are the only shapes that can be measured with accuracy. The circle's superficies can only be approximated. The flat map is the first thing put into the pupil's hands, the globe later on. The navigator sails by chart and compass and the surveyor runs his chain on straight lines.

Our unit of measurement is the inch, and its length is equal to three barley corns placed end to end. All measurement superficial given by length and width. Latitude and longitude are not misnomers in practice, why should they be so considered in why should they be so considered in the gospel? We might well note here that the prophet who gives us the earth's shape correctly in the same who prophesied the coming of the who prophesied the coming of the Messiah. Prophecy is miracle, inwards. That prophet lived 760 years before Christ, yet he described His coming—even to the virgin birth, the natal town, how He would grow up and be received, also his passion death and burial with the rich, and the triumph of his gospel. The grasshoppers may doctor this out of the creed, where it was put in after fulfilment, but they cannot wipe it out of the book in which Isaiah put it. 700 odd years before it took place. It gives us confidence in this book, that even in this apostate age it is the best seller in the public mart. Miller, the father of geology, was a devout Christian, finding the Bible a helpful handbook. And has it not been a textbook for the astronomer? Where else do we learn so early of chaos, of the constellations, Orion and the Pleiades?

Sunday Morning Talk

COMPANIONS

Our companionships will prove either a curse or a blessing to us. That statement can be verified in every community. All of us can call to mind some whose characters were wrecked through sinful companions. There are those who sadly failed in the things essential to life. They had the same opportunities as others; some of them possessed superior advantages; but their lives have gone out under a cloud; and those who are still living give little promise of a better end. Their tragic failure was almost entirely due to the choice of the wrong companions. A great majority of criminals, who end their lives in shame and disgrace confess that their downfall has been largely due to bad company. One of this unfortunate class said: "Keep away from bad company is the best message I can send."

Our companionships here should be a foretaste of our companionships in heaven. David Brainerd's influence as a Christian and missionary is world wide, though he spent only three short years in active service. A most potent influence which contributed to that end was his obedience to the advice he received, when a boy of nineteen, to associate with reverent and older people. Christian character is our most precious possession. It develops slowly. It is the most beautiful thing in the universe. It is the finished product of infinite grace, wisdom and love together with life's discipline. It is the greatest moral force in the world, except God. It is truth immutable and incarnated in human life.

Aside from God and His grace there is nothing so potent for good as a companion whose fellowship in manner, conduct and conversation creates within us a longing for the true and the things that are above. It is an earnest of what shall be one of the delights in our Father's house of many mansions, "I am part of all that I have met," said Ulysses. If that be true, how much more is it true of those whom we choose for our companions and invite to share our joys and griefs, our struggles and our victories. If we value this life or the life to come we should take heed before it is too late.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

A PIONEER SEES HIS DREAM COME TRUE

Seeing a 45 year old geographic phobiney come true, is the privilege of William H. Jackson, veteran geologist, who has been the guest of the National Geographic society's expedition which is exploring the prehistoric Pueblo Bonito in Chaco Canyon, New Mexico.

Jackson, with the Hayden party in 1877, scouted down Chaco canyon and mapped the many deserted pueblos of this winding cut in the treeless hills Pueblo Bonito, he reported, was the largest in the canyon and the only one which still had walls standing higher than two stories. Jackson is an artist as well as a geologist, photographer and pluinsman. He drew a picture of Pueblo Bonito as it might have appeared in its prime.

Dr. Neil M. Judd, in charge of the Society's expedition took with him Jackson's mind's-eye map, when the digging began four years ago. Every year of excavation has confirmed the prophetic vision of his original conception of the prehistoric apartment house.

"The ground plans and descriptive information prepared by Jackson," Dr. Judd says in a communication to The Society, "Still stand as marvels of accuracy."

"Revisiting the scene of some of his earlier explorations for the first time in 48 years, Mr. Jackson, now 83 years old, enjoyed himself to the utmost. He sought out old stairways and pictographic inscriptions he remembered. he displayed a strong, active interest in the current explorations and devoted a portion of each day watching the work."

Instead of a ruin of broken-down walls, Jackson visualized in 1877 what exploration has since revealed, a structure of trim brick shaped like the horseshoe end of a great stadium. From the interior are of space left for games and religious festivals, the terraces rose, giving each apartment a view of the "playing field." The outside wall of the arc was a sheer drop of four stories. The ends of the arc were joined by a lower defensive wall paralleled with the dry creek bed. The whole communal dwelling lay under the shadow of a huge cliff.

As in the abode rooms of Pueblo Indian buildings today, ladders gave access to the prehistoric apartments. By pulling up their "stairways," the occupants could present a solid front to an attacking enemy. Above a certain safe limit, all the walls were punctured by windows to admit light to the apartments.

Also indicated in Jackson's drawing and established beyond doubt by Dr. Judd's excavation, are the estufas, or round subterranean religious rooms. These were the tribe's high places of worship.

At Pueblo Bonito Jackson found much of his prophetic drawing recreated in solid, durable stone. Dr. Judd has carefully cleaned out the debris of centuries from the great ruins, sifting it spadeful by spadeful for clues to the life of the dead dwellers. The breaking walls he and his workmen, many of them Zuni Indians and probably blood descendants of the very occupants of Pueblo Bonito, have repaired, using the same kind of brick. They are trying only to preserve the remains, not rebuild the vast dwelling, but the work accomplished gives the visitor a clear idea of the original pueblo and the life its inhabitants lived.

Jackson is one of three survivors of the Hayden expedition which went into Arizona and New Mexico in the late seventies, during the danger of Indian attack to explore this little-known territory of the United States. Dr. William H. Holmes, now of Washington, D. C. was associated with Jackson in this pioneer expedition.

Spiders Catch Small Birds

In New Guinea and Australia are spiders with a leg spread of fully four inches that made nets so strong that small birds caught in them are held fast and helpless, says The Golden Age. The natives use them to catch fish that weight up to a pound. Some of these nets are stretched 12 to 15 feet, with centers six feet high. Florida has an equally large spider that builds a golden yellow net of almost equal size.

OBITUARY

Mrs. W. Irving Mott

Friends learned with sorrow of the sudden death of Mrs. Jennie May Delaba, 67, widow of W. Irving Mott, which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Watrous of Otrobando avenue, some time during Thursday night or early Friday morning.

When going to her mother's room about 7:30 Friday morning, Mrs. Watrous found her dead in bed, with every appearance that the end came peacefully. Only a few days ago, Mrs. Mott said to her daughter, that it seemed to her that death must be simply closing the eyes in sleep and leaving this life to pass on to the next. The family is comforted with the thought that this is really what happened and that she passed away while sleeping.

Except for a cold last week, Mrs. Mott had been in her usual health. Late Thursday afternoon she told her daughter she thought she would take a walk as she wanted to see the new Norwich Town bridge. This she did accompanied by her grand-daughter, stopping along the way to chat with one or two neighbors. When retiring about 10 o'clock, she was apparently as well as usual.

Born in Queens county, New York, Feb. 25th, 1858, Mrs. Mott was one of six children of William and Mercy A. Porter Dalaba. Her father died when she was three weeks old, and the mother moved the family to Middletown Springs, Vermont, where Mrs. Mott spent her early life. In Norwich Jan. 31st, 1882, she was united in marriage with W. Irving Mott. The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. William S. Palmer, then pastor of the Second Congregational church on Church street.

For more than forty years Mr. and Mrs. Mott resided on a farm in Lebanon, where they were esteemed residents of the town. For the past eight years she had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Watrous. Mr. Mott also having lived there during that time until his death in January 1923. During their residence in Lebanon, Mr. and Mrs. Mott were active members of Goshen Hill Congregational church, where their names still remain on the church records. For four years, since moving to Norwich Town, the Mott family attended the Gospel Mission until it disbanded about two years ago. Last winter Mrs. Mott spent in Florida, with her daughter's family.

Besides Mrs. Watrous, with whom she made her home, she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Ernest Fargo, of Fitchville and a sister, Mrs. Calista Plant, of West Rutland, Vermont, also several grand-children: Wilbur, Rena, Jennie, Merrill, Justin, Myrtice and John Fargo Jr., also Marion, Dorolyn, and Irving Watrous, of Norwich Town. In the death of Mrs. Mott, the family have lost an ideal mother and grandmother. To her friends and neighbors she was always most faithful in doing deeds of kindness, never faltering regardless of the time, day or night, when she has been called upon to administer to the poor and needy in times of sickness and distress.

DEPUTY SUPERINTENDENT AT STATE FARM RESIGNS

Miss S. Belle Hendricks has resigned as deputy superintendent of the state farm for women at Niantic, her resignation to be effective Monday. The reason for her action, she declared Friday, is that her combined duties of deputy superintendent and matron of the cottage for mothers and babies are too heavy for her to perform "with satisfaction to myself or justice to the institution." She denied that her resignation was due to a disagreement between herself and Miss Helen Hazard, superintendent of the farm, who appointed her deputy superintendent.

Miss Hazard also denied that such a disagreement was the cause of Miss Hendricks resignation. She admitted that there had been disagreements between the two, but said she was not aware "that there had been any serious ones."

Both Miss Hazard and Mrs. Whitefield N. Thompson of Hartford, chairman of the board of directors of the institution, said they felt Miss Hendrick's duties were too heavy for a single person to perform, but both declared that Miss Hendrick had handled them in a highly efficient manner. Mrs. Thompson added that Miss Hendrick, however, had apparently not cared to be relieved of any of her duties. She declared that Miss Hendricks, in informing the board of her resignation, had given no reason for it.

Allan B. Cook, head farmer at the institution, declined to comment today on a report that he contemplated resigning. He would neither confirm nor deny the report. "I have nothing to say on that just now," he asserted. He was appointed head farmer at the institution about seven years ago, by the board of directors.

Miss Hendrick joined the state farm staff two years ago, following the promotion of Miss Hazard to succeed Miss Anna Peterson as superintendent. At the time of her appointment as deputy superintendent of the state farm, Miss Hendrick was head matron at the Rhode Island state prison. Her home is in that state.

Rev. Dwight C. Stone, who for twenty years has been pastor of the Stonington Second church, but was recently called to the pastorate of the Hanover Congregational church, was installed at Hanover Friday night before a congregation that filled the church in spite of the forbidding weather.

In the afternoon a council had been held at which Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of this city was moderator and Rev. Mr. Ricketts presided at the installation services. The installation sermon was by Rev. Edward S. Worcester of New Brunswick, N. J., formerly of this city, who emphasized the prime importance of preaching the great principles of Jesus Christ rather than being diverted to minor and local matters of lesser value. The invocation was by Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis of Taftville the business statement by Rev. Allen Shaw Bush of Gales Ferry, the scripture lesson by Rev. Frank A. Fuller, the installing prayer by Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Howe of this city, and the right hand of fellowship, by Rev. J. R. Danforth of New London.

UNION ST. IMPROVEMENT WILL SOON BE COMPLETED

The improvement of Union street is progressing satisfactorily and will in a short time be open to traffic throughout the entire section of the street. At the present time the lower section of the street, from Union square to a point just beyond the S. N. E. telephone building is open to traffic. This particular section of the street is nearly completed, although there is yet one layer to be laid and rolled.

When completed the street will be a one way street, south, this being in accordance with a vote of the court of common council at its meeting last Monday evening. Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., said Friday evening that the street will become a one way street when the improvement is completed and a legal notice to this effect will be published in the local press at that time. At the same time Broadway hill from Union square to the head of the little plain will become a one way street, going north.

FEAST OF THE SEASONS BY BAPTIST WOMEN

Plans for the fall and winter season were discussed Friday evening by the Woman's League of the Central Baptist church. A feature of the meeting was a travel talk on Europe by Mrs. Lucis Brown. Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the church, also addressed the gathering.

During the supper there was a concert programme by the Sunday school orchestra. The musical programme was featured by a solo, Moonlight at Midnight, by Miss Viola Hill.

The decorations were unique in that the room was divided into four sections, each representing one of the four seasons of the year, the supper being a "feast of the seasons." The spring section was decorated in daffodils and violets, while the summer section decorations were of roses with a clever bit of scenery representing Beach Pond and Pine Lodge. The section representing fall was adorned in autumn leaves with a cornucopia of fruits and also asters, and the section representing winter consisted of a prettily decorated Christmas tree.

RAIN CAUSES POSTPONEMENT OF THIRD GAME IN BATTLE FOR WORLD TITLE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP)—Rain drops, curved across the landscape by that familiar old veteran, J. Pluvius, silenced the batteries of world's series forces today and put off until tomorrow the renewal of hostilities between the deadlocked Washington Senators and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The downpour started at 8 o'clock this morning, simutaneous with the arrival of most of the warring battalions from the haze of the opening two skirmishes in Pittsburgh. It kept up almost continuously until noon, when a deep-sea conference, participated in by High Commissioner Landis, President Clark Griffith of the Washington club, and Manager Bill McKechnie of the Pirates, concluded that the field at Griffith stadium was in no condition for championship combat.

Then, just to play a prank on the thousands of Capital rooters disappointed in their hopes of seeing the first game on home soil, Old Sol checked the watery attack and gave a balmy finish to the afternoon. The chief encouragement in this, however, was the prospect that tomorrow and the following two days would provide suitable weather for the play to go on under its delayed schedule.

The washout provided an unexpected yet welcome rest for most of those in the warring camps, despite the impatient desire of the competitors to keep in stride. But it was especially a blessing in disguise to Bucky Harris and his gallant champions.

The Senators came back to their home port with ranks somewhat shattered and shaken in sustaining their first defeat of the series in the second game yesterday, and today's rest presented an opportunity to consolidate their lines once more. It not only provided an interval which will permit the two Washington sharpshooters, Johnson and Coveleskie, to come back to the firing line earlier than had been hoped, but it also was expected to assure the return to the lineup of Ossie Bluege, brilliant third baseman, who was laid low by one of Vic Aldridge's fast ones yesterday.

Bluege tonight was pronounced entirely out of danger of any ill effects of the blow that struck him down and cast an added bit of gloom over the Senator camp in the midst of defeat. An X-ray of the third sacker's head revealed no injury of any sort. He was resting easily at his apartment in a hotel, and physicians who had earlier believed he could not don a uniform again until Sunday, decided he would be fit and ready for service tomorrow.

This was the most cheering development of the day for the Capital camp, while the veteran Roger Peckinpaugh, whose wobbly fielding had been another damaging factor in the Senators' defense, also hailed the rest as a chance to shake his fielding jinx and get back into normal gait.

So far as the twirling staffs are concerned, Harris and McKechnie both regarded the delay as a benefit, although it did not change the plans originally laid by the rival boards of strategy for the third game. After an afternoon of deep-thinking among the master minds, it was assured that tomorrow's tussle would find Alex Ferguson, Washington's veteran right hander and master of the "screw ball," opposed to Ray Kremer, a comparative newcomer of the major leagues but a seasoned moundsman nevertheless.

This probably will result in McKechnie calling on his young southpaw Emil Yde, for Sunday's game. Harris, for that day, may rely on his veteran portsider, Dutch Ruether, although Johnson and Lee Meadows, opponents in the first game, will have had three days' rest, enough to permit either to go back into the fray.

The fifth game now is scheduled here Monday, with the scene shifting to Pittsburgh for the sixth and seventh, if the issue is prolonged that far. It will be, unless either team takes three straight here, and this possibility is regarded as remote in both camps as well as among observers who have watched the closely-waged struggle so far.

WORLD'S SERIES BRIEFS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(By the A. P.)—Lightning calculations figure that today's postponement adds about $1,000,000 to the world's series bill. This includes increased hotel and maintenance costs to the followers and contenders, added expense to the clubs and the wide variety of revenue that is connected otherwise with such a travelling performance.

The Pirates will be greeted tomorrow morning by President and Mrs. Coolidge at the white house, and pose for pictures with the chief executive and his wife, who has arranged to attend the game in the afternoon.

Most of the rival players today seized the opportunity to get a bit of diversion and take their minds off the strain of battle. A group of them went to Laurel, Md., to watch the horse races, while others attended theatres.

Close to a thousand hopeful fans huddled under umbrellas, papers, oil cloth and tarpaulin covering in the centerfield bleachers in the rain for nearly two hours before the postponement decision was reached. Many of them had stood in line since daybreak to be sure of their seats, but they planned to be back in line again tomorrow.

While the fans sat out in the downpour waiting for the official "yea" or "no" from Commissioner Landis a battalion of ushers under the protection of the grand stand sang, "How Dry I Am", to which bleacherites responded with "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'."

Ticket scalpers were in abundant array at the union station, along Pennsylvania avenue and in the hotel lobbies, offering pasteboards for sale at double and triple the face value.

Despite today's dampener, Washington fandom seems to be taking its baseball much less seriously than a year ago in the first flush of pennant and world's series triumph. The carnival atmosphere of last fall was missing along the boulevards, where Bucky Harris, Walter Johnson and their mates are taken now as matter of fact champions.

One of the most interesting phases of the series thus far has been the superior defensive work of the Pirates before the series, their youth and comparative inexperience was expected to make them unsteady, but McKechnie's youngsters have outsteadied their more seasoned opponents for the most part. This was particularly true of the stonewall infield defense put up behind Aldridge in yesterday's tussle.

With each club holding a victory, tomorrow's game will be a crucial point, with its result likely to have a marked influence on the pitching strategy afterward. Should the Pirates win, the dopesters believe Harris will call on his big ace, Johnson for the game Sunday in an effort to tie it up again. Similarly, if Pittsburgh loses, McKechnie probably will send Meadows his first game twirler, back to the mound.

With two games in the bag, the official averages show Joe Harris, slugging Washington rightfield, leading the regulars of both teams at bat with a mark of .571, compiled from four safe blows in seven times at bat. Harris also is the leading run-getter, with two tallies to his credit, and sets the pace in total bases with seven.

At the rate the heavy artillery has been going, the record for home runs in a single series will push into the discard. In two games, the big guns have rattled five circuit wallops, the high mark is ten, collected by the Yankees and Giants in 1923. It is worthy of note that all five of the homers rapped out at Forbes Field landed in temporary sections of the outer stands.

MATTY'S FUNERAL TODAY WILL BE VERY SIMPLE

LEWISBURG, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Lewisburg, where Christy Mathewson achieved fame on the college gridiron and diamond long before he became a star of the professional baseball field, tonight received his body and awaited with a hushed stillness the opportunity to render final honors to its adopted hero.

This opportunity will come tomorrow when simple funeral services for "big six" will be held in the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Frank C. Stoughton. Prior to the services, the body will lie in state for several hours.

Accompanied by Mrs. Mathewson and her two sisters, Mrs. Henry Myer, of this place, and Mrs. Cragor, of Plainfield, N. J., the body of Mathewson arrived here about 7 P. M., from Saranac Lake, N. Y., where he died Wednesday night. It was brought by motor from Sunbury, 13 miles away. The student body of Bucknell university where Mathewson was graduated in 1902, met the funeral party on the outskirts of the town and escorted it to the Stoughton home. They marched through silent streets and between buildings on which the flags here at half staff. Pedestrians and hundreds of persons who gathered at the windows of business houses stood with bared heads as the solemn procession passed.

Mrs. Mathewson found her mother's home banked with floral tributes to her famous husband. They ranged from handsome wreaths to small clusters of roses and came from persons in all walks of life. She also found a flood of letters, cablegrams, radiograms and telegrams of condolence from all parts of the world.

In accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Mathewson, the funeral services will be simple. They will be held at 2:30 P. M. and will in charge of the Rev. Frank B. Everitt, pastor of the Lewisburg Presbyterian church. Interment will be in the Lewisburg cemetery. The Bucknell student body, delegations from the local Masonic lodge, American Legion and the local chapter of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity will escort the body from the Stoughton home to the cemetery, where brief services will be held.

The honorary pallbearers will be Emil Fuchs, Vice President of the Boston National league baseball club; John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants; Ernest Sterling, Bronxville, N. Y.; Albert Powell, New Haven, Conn; David Bancroft, and Edward Reilly, respectively, manager and secretary of the Boston Nationals. Most of these men left New York tonight in a special car and are due here early tomorrow.

AGGIE FROSH GET INTO ACTION AGAINST KENT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 9.—After two weeks of intensive drill, Coach Alexander's Connecticut Aggie freshmen team will swing into action tomorrow, when Kent school is met at Kent in what will be the first game of the season for both teams.

The probable lineup for the Aggies announced tonight after practise, is Brown and Usher, ends; Sturtevant and Cromble, tackles; Reeve and Callcurcio, guards; Callahan, center; Knaut, quarterback; Dixon and Sahagian, halfbacks, and Allard, fullback.

Others making the trip are Bushnell, Gilman, McNamara, Wilson, Sayers, Aschenback, Peck, Williams, Armington and Hewitt.

Sayers, who played tackle for Hartford high, may start at tackle if a shoulder injury does not prevent. He will be acting captain if he does start as he made the highest mark in the football examination on the rules which Coach Alexander always gives the men early in the season. Callahan, who received the next highest mark, will be acting captain in case Sayers is unable to start. A captain will be elected by those playing against Kent after the close of the contest.

A glance at the yearling lineup shows high and prep school athletes from all parts of Connecticut represented. In addition, Massachusets and New Jersey are both represented.

Hartford is represented by Sayers, tackle, and Peck, an end. Hewitt, a fullback, comes from Chapman Tech of New London, while Allard, another fullback, comes from Plainfield. Knaut and Dixon, promising backfield candidates formerly played with New Haven high. Bushnell, center, comes from the same city, Gilman and McNamara, who have both shown up well at guard in the past played for Norwich Free academy. Windham high of Willimantic is represented by Usher, who is fast developing into a capable end.

Massachusetts is represented by Callahan, who played center for Revere high; Brown, end, from Amherst high; Salsagian from North high of Worcester; and Wilson of Springfield high. Sturetevant, a tackle, formerly played with Layola Prep of New Jersey.

To date these men have looked the best of Coach Alexander's squad of fifty-four men, and it seems likely that the nucleus of this season's yearling team will be taken from this group.

The team that goes against Kent tomorrow will be the third freshman football team at the Connecticut Agricultural college, the first having been formed in 1922, when the freshman rule went into effect at Storrs. Coach Alexander has been in charge of freshman teams at Storrs since they were first formed and up to the present time not one of his football teams have met with defeat.

Yale will again be without the services of Captain Joss, left tackle tomorrow. Butterworth, the other tackle will be acting captain with Richards as Joss' substitute. BRITISH BRING FAST SEAPLANE TO AMERICA

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(A. P.)—The British "mystery ship" brought to this country in carefully guarded crates by the Royal Aero club's team entered in the Schneider Seaplane Trophy races at Baltimore Oct. 23 and 24 was revealed today as a supermarine-napier S-4 of a new type of design embodying features said to be entirely new to seaplanes.

Capt. Hubert Broad, a British war ace, announced that the plane is the one whose speed of 228 miles an hour in trials at Calshott, England, recently was accredited as a new world's record for seaplanes by the International Aero-Nautical Federation at Paris last Tuesday.

Capt. Broad and other members of the British team are here for the national air races at Mitchell Field. He is to be the pilot of another "mystery plane" entered by the Royal Aero club, a Gloster-I-Napier, with a wing spread of 19 feet, which is said to be the tiniest seaplane for its power in the world and with which he will compete with the international field and his own teammate, Capt. Henry S. Biard, who will pilot the Supermaine-Napier S-4.

The British flyers expressed their confidence that the world record of 178.25 miles an hour for seaplanes, established in a 1200-kilometre race at Baltimore, last year by Lieut. Ralph Ofstie, of the U. S. Navy, in a Curtiss plane, would be shattered easily in the forthcoming races at Baltimore. They revealed an apprehension, however, that the Americans had "something up their sleeves too" for the Schneider cup races.

NUTMEGS HAVE NO GAME FOR THIS SUNDAY

The Norwich Nutmegs football team will be idle this coming Sunday, the 11th, as no game has been scheduled for them. Several new men have been signed up during the past week among whom are A. Williams, formerly of the Crescents, Ludlow, another Ex-Crescent man; Jab Burnes of the Warriors and Jones another ex-Warrior player. The team as a body will attend the Greeneville-Tixer Jewett City Speed-boy game at Mohegan park Sunday afternoon in order to get a line on both squads as games are expected to be arranged with these teams later in the season.

CONN. AGGIE OPEN HOME SEASON TODAY AGAINST UNIVERSITY OF MAINE ELEVEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 9.—The Connecticut Aggies will play their first home game of the season tomorrow when the rugged University of Maine eleven is met on Gardner Dow field at Storrs. It will be the third contest of the season for both teams, which to date have won and lost a game apiece.

Of further interest is the fact that the two institutions are members of the New England College conference, and tomorrow's battle will be the first of the 1925 season between conference teams.

Spectators at the Maine-Aggie game will find many new improvements on Gardner Dow field this year. Always hampered in the past by the lack of seating accommodations for spectators at home football games, the Athletic Council at the state college took steps this year to remedy the situation.

Now wooden bleachers seating 1,000 persons have been erected on the south side of the field, and these will be reserved for alumni and others who may want to see the game. Students as in the past, will view the contest from the bleachers on the north side of the field, where head cheer-leader Conklin will direct rooters for the Connecticut team.

A corps of uniformed ushers will be on duty at the game, and every effort will be made to care for the comfort and convenience of the visitors at Storrs tomorrow. In the past the attendance at Connecticut's home football games has not been large, and it is felt here that in a large measure this was due to the fact that seating facilities were inadequate. With this difficulty overcome, however, and the Aggie elevens showing much improvement in recent seasons, the State college will offer football attractions that are on a par with any of New England's smaller colleges.

Coach Doyle's eleven wound up its preparation for the Maine game with a light signal practice this afternoon. The wet weather gave the team an excellent opportunity to work with a slippery ball, and Dole's men made the most of it.

Indications point to a wet soggy field tomorrow, which will undoubtedly hamper Connecticut's aerial attack. The forward pass continues to be the Aggie's strongest offensive weapon, and under Dole's direction it has been developed to a high point of efficiency.

Connecticut's team that takes the field tomorrow will be in better condition then at any time since the Wesleyan game. Again the Red and Black the Storrs eleven suffered injuries from which it has not fully recovered when New York University was played last week. More injuries in that contest brought the team back to Storrs in a decidedly crippled state, but through Trainer Daly's efforts in the past week, the team is back in good condition once more.

Of much satisfaction to Coach Dole of late has been the rapid development of several second string men. Baker, Allard and Donovan, among others, have made rapid strides in the last few days and it seems likely that they will see plenty of action before the season closes. These three men all acquitted themselves well against New York last Saturday, when they were sent into the fray to take the place of regulars forced out by injuries.

Maine opened its season two weeks ago by walloping Fort Williams to the tune of 33-0. Although the soldiers are not strong, the score shows that the Pine Tree staters have a formidable offense and one that will give the Aggies a stiff test. Probably the best indication of Maine's strength is seen in the Maine-Tufts game of last week, in which Tufts was on the long end of a 7-6 score. Tufts has a strong team this year, and Maine's ability to hold the Jumbos to so small a margin of victory is indicative of its power.

"Ginger" Fraser, husky 189 pound tackle, captains the Maine team this year. Fraser has played regularly for the Pine Tree staters since his freshman year, and has three times been selected "All Maine" tackle, which selection embraces the colleges of Colby, Bowdoin, Bates and Maine. He is recognized by football experts as being one of the best tackles in New England, and his work at Storrs tomorrow will be watch with interest.

Last year the Aggies defeated Maine 3-0 at Orono in a game that was decided in the dying moments of the contest with a place kick by Maxson Eddy. Maine will be out to avenge that defeat tomorrow, while at the same time the Aggies will be working to make it two straight.

For the last three years the Pine Tree staters have won the Maine state championship, which is one of the most interesting competitions in New England college football. All indications point to the team from Orono winning the honor again this year and tomorrow's game at Storrs will be of further interest because of that fact.

The game is scheduled to get under way at 2:30, and it will be handled by the following officials: Referee E. F. Sherlock, Harvard; umpire A. R. Gorman, Columbia; head linesman, J. H. Madden, Amherst. Lineup at Storrs:

Maine—Lavorgna, le; Fraser (Capt.) lt; Beesaker, lg; Simons, c; Dickson, rg; Lamoreau, rt; Stanton, re; Cassista, qb; Peakes, lhb; Newhall, rhb; Burrows, fb.

Connecticut—Brink (Capt.) le; Nanfeldt, lt; Bitzood, lg; Daly, c; Lorentson, rg; Zollin, rt; Flenneman, re; Schofield, qb; Eddy, lhb; Moreland, rhb; Mukofski, fb.

Game called at 2:30 p. m.

ACADEMY SQUAD SHOWS BUT LITTLE IMPROVEMENT

Coach Whitney has kept his squad of embryo football players hard at work during the past week. Monday and Tuesday were devoted to signal drills and kicking practice while Wednesday the squad went through a long dummy scrimmage. Thursday the varsity and the second team had a strenuous three-quarters of an hour's scrimmage in which the varsity scored three touchdowns and kicked two goals after touchdowns.

There is an improvement in the teams' playing but it is so slight that one would have to have seen the practice of the squad from the first day they started to be able to notice it. Whitney has expended an enormous amount of energy in trying to round out even an average team. There is no competition among the candidates for the various positions and, as this is lacking, practice is a more or less spiritless affair. What the academy needs is some real old-fashioned school spirit.

Harvard Harriers Win

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 9—(A. P.)—Harvard Harriers opened their season today by defeating Middlebury, 11 to 47. Ellsworth Haggerty of Harvard intercollegiate mile champion, was the individual winner, covering the 5 1-2 mile course in 30 minutes, 10 seconds.

FABER DAY AT JEWETT CITY SUNDAY

The biggest baseball attraction held in eastern Connecticut will be staged at Ashland park Sunday, where the Ashland A. A., with "Bernie" Friberg of the Philadelphia Nationals and Joe Faber of Reading International league meets the famous Town Talks of Worcester.

This club defeated the local team two weeks ago, 7 to 4, and is one of the fastest teams that has played on the local grounds this season. They have won the championshop of Worcester for the last four seasons and are also rated the leading semi-pro club in southern Massachusetts.

Sunday is Faber day at Jewett City and the popular local boy, who has played professional ball for the last three seasons, will be honored by the fans of his home town.

Joe was born in Jewett City and started his baseball career with the Holy Name team and later starred with the St. Mary's nine, well remembered as the best little amateur team that has played in this part of the state. In 1920 he entered the service of Uncle Sam and played on the Norfolk, Va., Training Station team and later at the Sub Base, where he hit over 400 and knocked 19 homeruns.

In 1922 he played with the Riverview club of this city. On the recommendation of Tommy Corcoran he reported to Baltimore in 1923 and made a fine impression and was sent to Winston-Salem, Piedmont league, later recalled and sent to Jersey City. In 1924 he again went south with the Orioles and was sent under option to Harrisburg, N. Y.-Penn. league. This spring Dunn sold him to Newark and when the club was transferred to Providence the stocky little infielder went like a house afire. In mid-season with the local boys hitting well over .300 and holding his own with the veterans he was for some unknown reason farmed out to York, Pa., where he was a great help to that club in winning the N. Y.-Penn. league championship this season. Next spring he reports to Reading and should go big in the International circuit.

"Bernie" Friberg of the Philadelphia Nationals has been secured to play first base for Ashland Sunday. Friberg played with the Chicago Cubs for four seasons and was sold to the Philly club this spring. He is a dangerous hitter and an exceptionally fine fielder and is one of the outstanding stars on the Philly Nationals this season.

The Town Talks will lineup Sunday as follows: Regan c; Flodman, St. Louis Browns, p; Keliher, 1b; Hewrickson, ss; Farley, 2b; Murphy, 3b; P. Carroll, lf; Bunker, cf; T. Carroll, rf.

Ashland will lineup: "Bill" Liberty, c; "Spike" Liberty, p; "Bernie" Friberg, Philadelphia Nationals, 1b; Joe Faber, Reading International league, ss; Rainey, 2b; "Nap" Liberty, 3b; Gilbert, lf; Raill, cf; Benjamin, rf; Robertson and Stanley, utility. Game will be called at 2.30 p. m. by Tommy Corcoran, former International league umpire.

The world's series returns will be announced play by play by radio on the field at 2 p. m. The grounds have been put in tip top condition and arrangements have been made to handle a crowd of 2,000 people.

MURPHY DRIVES WINNER IN FEATURE AT LEXINGTON

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 9—(A. P.)—After a two day's postponement, grand circuit racing was resumed here this afternoon with the Transylvania won by Etta Druien, driven by Thomas W. Murphy as the feature. The Ashland won by Thomas F. Dillon, of the Good Time stable, driven by Cox and the Mayday stake, won by the local filly Hollyrood Susan, bred, trained, owned and driven by John L. Dodge. The track was slow and the day raw and cold, a rain fell about 4 o'clock causing the track to become slippery and causing the remainder of the card to be carried over until tomorrow though one heat had been paced each in the Tennessee and Cumberland events.

The favorite, Ribbon Cane, was the winner of the opening round in the Cumberland and the half mile tracker, Captain Huertas, was best in the first heat of the colt race. This is Murphy's third Transylvania in succession.

The Mayday was worth $13,250 of which $2,000 went to the second or consolation division leaving the gross amount of the major stake at $11,250. Of this amount Hollyrood Susan won $7,590, Guy Dean, as second won $2,440, and Polly Peactree and Station Belle each $825 they dividing third and fourth monies. The colts were on the track ready for the consolation when the showers fell.

Weather permitting the unfinished races and regular program will be raced tomorrow afternoon.

WESTERLY-WINDHAM GAME POSTPONED TO MONDAY

Severe rain prevented the football game between the Westerly high school football eleven and the Windham high of Willimantic at Westerly Friday, although both elevens were on the field ready to play at the appointed time, the Thread city boys having made the trip by auto truck. This postponed game is now scheduled for Columbus day afternoon, next Monday at 3.30 p. m.

Novogroski of the Westrely high school football team, who plays tackle was absent by reason of his being suspended "indefinitely" for a violation of school regulations.

There are four races with purses of $1,000 each and five of $500 each. REPORTS THAT M'CARTHY MAY MANAGE THE CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—(A. P.)—Reports persisted in baseball circles tonight that Joe McCarthy, manager of the pennant winning Louisville club of the American association, would be signed as manager of the Chicago Nationals for 1926.

President Veeck of the Cubs would have no announcement to make until after the city series.

Solomon-Maloney Bout Postponed

BOSTON, Oct. 9 (AP)—The bout between King Solomon and Jim Maloney scheduled for tonight at Braves field, was postponed until tomorrow night because of rain.

BABE RUTH TO BE OPERATED ON AGAIN FOR ABCESS

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Babe Ruth arrived in New York tonight from Washington disappointed because he will be unable to see the other games of the world's series. He is suffering from an abcess and will undergo a minor operation in a hospital where he was under treatment last spring. Ruth went to Pittsburgh against the advice of his physicians.

ALL STARS-TAFTVILLE SERIES TO BE WEEK END FEATURE

Th leading baseball attraction over the week end will be the Dugas' All Stars—Taftville A. A. series, one game being played today and the other on Sunday. Today's game will be played at the Providence street grounds in Taftville and will be the only baseball game in Eastern Connecticut today. Sunday's game will be played at the J. B. Martin field. Through special arangement radio broadcasts of the game at Washington will be given at both games and fans can follow both the local game and the series battle at the same time.

Chip Dugas has rounded up an All Star aggregation that looks good on paper and from what is known of the individual ability of the players they should perform according to form in the field. For Saturday Chip will send Pepin to the mound. Pepin has pitched for the J. B. Martin team during the season. Jimmy Murphy, Pepin's battery mate on the Velvet team, will do the catching. Harry Mills or Joe Hamil will be at first, both having played this position with ability during the season. Francis Murphy will take care of the keystone sack. In the short field will be Mondi Normandin, one of the snappiest shortstops in the astern part of the state this season. Mondi has been going strong both in the field and at bat. Chip Dugas himself will be on the dizzy corner and Chip today is playing better ball than many of the youngster 20 years his junior. In the outfield will be Harry Noel, Eddie Murphy and Lefty Dona, a hard hitting and fleet-footed trio.

The Taftville team will use the same lineup that has been going so strong this season. Manager Troland will use his two southpaws, Lefty Dugas and Lefty Jarvis. Which one will pitch Saturday is undecided. The rest of the lineup will be Eccleston c; A. Dugas 1b; Cardie 2b; Gauthier ss; Yerrington 3b; Gaudette lf; Leo Jarvis cf; R. Jarvis rf.

On Sunday Toney West is slated to burn them over for the All Stars, so that Sunday's game will be a battle of left handers.

WAUREGAN RESENTS BEING ALLUDED TO AS "CHEAP"

Special to The Bulletin)

WAUREGAN, Oct. 9—Who is this Manager Felix Woznicki of the St. Joseph Baseball club of Webster? He challenges the truth when he declares, in a statement to The Bulletin that the Wauregan baseball team of Manager Jerry Doyle, that is to play Moosup tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon is a "cheap team."

Be it known to all baseball fans, past, present and prospective that the efficient Moosup team has a real ball game to play tomorrow. Wauregan is after the collective scalp of that Moosup aggregation. You watch out, Manager Wozniecki—and all other doubters—about Wauregan being a cheap team.

Manager Doyle of the Wauregan team was up on his toes Friday morning denouncing the statement out of Webster that appeared in The Bulletin. Doyle says that Moosup isn't so much. He is going after them tomorrow and in the two succeeding Sunday games. And, as he says, having demonstrated that Moosup can be shown up, and the weather holds good for baseball, he will be on Manager Woznicki's trail, to make him understand that it is wholly out of order to call Wauregan a "cheap team."

If Manager Doyle is a good prophet, and he is not known for overstatement of facts, Manager Wozniecki of Webster will be sorry he talked before the cold weather season sets in.

FIRST GAME OF MOOSUP AND WAUREGAN SERIES SUNDAY

Arrangements are complete for what no doubt will be one of the hottest combats staged on the carpet grounds at Moosup this season when Moosup and Wauregan face each other Sunday.

Some of the fastest semi-pro players obtainable have been secured by each manager.

Manager Amidon, who knows a ball player when he sees one, has picked the cream of R. I. semi-pros to represent Moosup. Manager Doyle has also received some of Rhode Island's fastest, as well as a couple of local boys, Clabby and Mills, as will be seen in his lineup below.

Arrangements have also been completed whereby the world's series will be broadcasted play by play by radios located on the grounds.

The lineups of both teams follow:

Moosup—McDermert, c; McHurley, p; Frechett, 1b; Stone, 2b; Desrosier, ss; O'Conner, 3b; Enright, lf; Noonan, cf; Kendrick, rf.

SNOW PREVENTED THIRD GAME OF CHICAGO SERIES

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (AP)—Rain and snow today prevented the third game between the White Sox and Cubs, in the city series. Hostilities will be resumed tomorrow at the National league park, weather permitting. Pitchers probably will be Sheriff Blake for the Cubs and "Red" Faber for the White Sox.

ONLY ONE EVENT RUN OFF AT AIRPLANE RACES

MITCHELL FIELD, N. YY., Oct. 9 (AP)—Rain today reduced the grandstands, pylons and trimmings of the National Air Races to a sodden condition in dispiriting contrast to their flaunting brilliance of yesterday, the first day of the meet. Hoping the clouds would break, a medium sized crowd of spectators cathered, shivered and departed. Officials staged one event, in which light commercial craft competed for the aviation town and country club of Detroit trophy, and then gave up.

Today's events were postponed until Monday, colors were cased, little knots of soldiers made their way silently through the swirling mists, and guards pacing their solitary posts with raindrops dripping from their bayonets, kept vigil over the deserted field.

Under cover, however, in hangers, huts and shacks, animated discussions were in order of the day. For tomorrow will furnish the supreme moment of the three-day meet, the Army-Navy contest for the Pulitzer thophy. Flying tw otrim black and gold ships, representing the peak of engineering skill in design and construction, Lieuts. Cyrus Bettis and L. H. Dawson, of the army, will race against Lieuts A. J. Williams and G. T. Cuddihy, crack nacy pilots who will be at the controls of the blue and gold navy racers. The contestants will attempt to beat the world's speed record of 287 miles per hour now held by Captain Bonnet of France.

"I'll win the race if the plan holds together," Williams announced to a group of his friends today, and added: "If it doesn't hold together, I won't know whether I've won it or not."

Today's single event was won by C. S. "Casey" Jones, piloting a Curtiss-Oriole. His average speed was 128.42 miles per hour. R. L. Rowe, in a Svn, took second place with an average speed of 117.80 mile per hour, while Fred H. Becker, in a Wright-Bellance, took third honors with an average speed of 11.99 miles per hour.

THINKS MGR. ONEY HAS NO KICK ABOUT GAME

Sports Ed: The Mgr. Sachems, feels that Mgr. Oney of the St. Joseph's has no kick coming, what so ever about the game last Sunday. In the first place, why does he say that Umpire Gross, was rotten; he picked him to umpire, and each inning he had something to say to Gross. We, the Sachems, found no fault, and eight men of the St. Joseph's did not seem to have much to say about his umpiring, but if Mgr. Oney is basing his claim, on the foul play he made in the 7th inning trying to steal third when the short stop had the ball, and tagged him, why I think, instead of Gross being rotten, it is Mgr. Oney who is rotten, for trying to throw down a man, that did the best he could. But if Mgr. Oney, wishes to put the same team on the field as he did last Sunday, I promise him I will put my regular team on the field and the score will be much different, because we played them last Sunday with 4 regular men, and 5 that we picked from the grandstand, who have not played ball in years; and if the St. Joseph men, kept away from Umpire Gross, in the first of the eighth inning instead of having him call the game we are sure we would of handed them a trouncing.

Yours in Sports,
JOHN MCBURNEY.

He was fined $30 and costs, which he paid.

JURY'S VERDICT $18,000 IN JENNARD-LIHME CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 9.—The jury in the $50,000 damage case brought against Herold H. Lihme, a Watch Hill cottager, by Edwin D. Vennard, a surfman at the Watch Hill coast guard station, returned at about 6 p. m. with a verdict of $18,000 for Vennard.

Lihne, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bal Lihne, summer residents of Watch Hill was found guilty of negligence. The case grew out of a collision between a motorcycle operated by Vennard and an automobile driven by Lihne here September 23, 1924. Vennard claimed he was seriously injured in the accident. Lihne is a student at St. Paul's school, Concord, N. H. His parents are winter residents of New York and Chicago. His sister, Miss Anita Lihne recently became the bride of an Austrian prince.

A well filled court room continued to show interest in the $50,000 damage case on the fourth day of the trial in superior court before Judge Antonio Capotosto, and a jury today.

The first witness on the stand this morning was Dr. Michael H. Scanlon in a continuation of his cross-examination by Mr. Ferguson. He was followed by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, who testified as to measurements made early this morning for Mr. Rathbun at the location of the accident.

Albert Robar, an automobile mechanic, testified to passing the Lihne car on School street just before the accident, when he said the machine was being operated in second gear at a speed of 15 miles an hour.

Mr. Rathbun, for the respondent, rested at 11:30 o'clock and Attorney Ferguson called in rebuttal Dr. Edwin R. Lewis, medical officer at the Watch Hill coast guard station where Vennard was employed as a surfman. He was followed by Engineer A. L. Leon, engineer for the Westerly Highway commission, who testified as to the School street grades.

Mrs. Lillian E. Nye testified that Miss Edith Burke, a witness for the defendant, had stated at Mrs. Nye's home that she did not hear the Lihne horn blown, but that she was going into court and testify that she did hear it.

Mr Ferguson rested the plaintiff's case at 11:45. J. Henry Burk was called as a witness by the plaintiff, and testified that he had shown no unusual activity in getting witnesses for the defense.

At 11:40 Mr. Rathbun asked that the jury be withdrawn, and he moved the judge direct a verdict for the defense. Judge Capotosto denied the motion saying that "where contributory negligence is part of the defense in automobile cases, recent decisions of the supreme court have shown that it is a matter for the jury to pass upon first." The judge then stated that he wanted the case to go to the jury today, as Monday would be a legal holiday, Columbus day, and asked that the jurymen return at 12:45 this afternoon, when both lawyers could make their plea and that he would then charge the jury.

The jury retired to the jury room at about 3:30 o'clock for deliberation Their retirement followed an hour's plea by Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun for the defendant, and the plea by Attorney John Ferguson, Jr., for Vennard.

Even Queens Were Thrifty

Isabella, the tragic queen, wife of Edward II, as apparently a thrifty queen, for in the records at the British Musum may be found her budget book, in which she recorded, among other things, that she had paid 20 shillings to a poor man whose house had been burned down, and other items, such as paying for the binding of a black carpet and the lining for her chariot. Most homely of all charges is the one showing a sum paid for repair to the bath. She was extravagant in some respects and quite generous to the poor and unfortunate.

An Old Gray House

Portulacas and crooning bee,
Foam-topped waves in sun-ecstasy,
Old maids' pinks to the roadside near
With the call of the locust shrill and clear—

And the worn old house, with its sagging door,
Seems to dream of those who may come no more,
While its dormer windows, two half-shut eyes,
Serve to guard its soul from the prying skies,
And its pleasant new tenants who come and go,
Its deepest heart story may never know.

Portulacas, so faintly sweet,
Lapping waves with their rhythmic beat,
Pollen-flecked, murmuring honey bee,
Shadows of lilacs on roadside and lea—

And what did the bold young sea captain say
To Justine and Aline when he sailed away?
From each dormer window they kissed their hands
To wish him good luck in foreign lands—
Then a true lover's knot to him Justine threw,
And, Aline, to his mate, a rose, starred with dew.

Portucalas, rose, red and white,
Gay in the sunshine, faded at night—
Ebbing and flowing forever and aye
Tides that measure each passing day.

Glad in the morning with eager eyes,
Justine and Aline watched the bright sun rise,
Sewed on garments so dainty and sheer,
For the bridals to come in the changing year,
When the mate and the captain who sailed away
Should return to rejoice in their wedding day

Portulacas so flaunting fair,
What may you know of love's carkling care?
Soft-droning bee, with your golden store,
What may you tell of sad days of yore?

Justine and Aline in the churchyard lie,
See,—there you find it—their gray house nigh:
Unchanged are their names on their stones so old,
For but half of their story has ever been told—
And their old gray house, with long, shuddering sighs
Hears the fate of their lovers as blue waves rise.

Stone Walls

Along the country-roadside, stone on stone
Past waving grain-field and near broken stile,
The walls stretch onward, an uneven pile,
With ranking vines and lichen overgrown;
So stand they sentinel. Unchanged, alone.
They're left to watch the seasons' passing slow;
The summer's sunlight or the winter's snow,
The springtime's birdling or the autumn's moan,
Who placed the stones now gray with many years?
And did the rough hands tire, the sore hearts ache.
The eyes grow dim with all their weight of tears?
Or did the work seem light for some dear sake?
Those lives are over. All their hopes and fears
Are lost like shadows in the morning break.

Canning Time

Each year when canning time is here
I swear that I will ne'er again
Put up a vegetable or fruit—but then
Our habits have such deep deep root.
I'll heed the pain of aching hands
From screwing lids on rubber bands
The broken nails and fingers sore
My sticky stove and messy floor
With tired back and swelling feet
My resolution I repeat.

But when I see in glassy cells
The fruit, and catch
The changing lights in jells
The aroma of pickles spiced
In greenish lengths,
Or thinly sliced,
And taste of jams and marmalade
It's then my labors are repaid.
Last year I made the same old vow.
But broke again,
I'm canning now.

I Remember, I Remember

I remember, I remember
The house where I was born;
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn;
He never came a wink too soon.
Nor brought too long a day;
But now, I often wish the night
Had borne my breath away!

I remember, I remember
The roses, red and white,
The violets and the lily cups,
Those flowers made of light!
The lilacs where the robin built,
And where my brother set
The laburnum on his birthdays,
The tree is living yet!

I remember, I remember
Where I was used to swing,
And thought the air must rush as fresh
To swallows on the wing;
My spirit flew in feathers then,
That is so heavy now,
And summer pools could hardly cool
The fever on my brow!

I remember, I remember
The fir trees dark and high;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky
It was a childish ignorance,
But now 't is little joy
To know I'm farther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy.

WHEN THE FROST IS ON THE PUMPKIN

When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock,
And you hear the kyouck and the gobble of the struttin' turkey-cock,
And the clackin' of the guineys, and the cluckin' of the hens,
And the rooster's hallylooyer as he tiptoes on the fence:
O, it's then's the times a feller is a-feelin' at his best,
With the risin' sun to greet him from a night of peaceful rest,
As he leaves the house bare-headed, and goes out to feed the stock,
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

They's something kindo' harty-like about the atmusfere
When the heat of summer's over and the coolin' fall is here—
Of course we miss the flowers, and the blossums on the trees,
And the mumble of the humming birds and buzzin' of the bees;
But the air's so appetizin'; and the landscape through the haze
Of a crisp and sunny morning of the airly autumn days
Is a pictur' that no painter has the colorin' to mock—
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock.

The husky, rusty russel of the tossels of the corn,
And the raspin' of the tangled leaves, as golden as the morn;
The stubble in the furries—kindo' lonesome-like, but still
A-preachin' sermons to us on the barns they growed to fill;
The strawstack in the medder, and the reaper in the shed;
The hosses in their stalls below—the clover overhead!
O, it sets my hart a-clickin' like the tickin' of a clock,
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock!

Then your apples all is gathered and the ones a feller keeps
Is poured around the cellar-floor in red and yellow heaps;
And your cider-makin's over, and your wimmen-folks is through
With their mince and apple-butter, and their sousc and saussage, too!—
I don't know how to tell it—but ef sich a thing could be
As the Angels wantin' boardin' and they'd called around on me—
I'd want to 'commodate 'em—all the whole-indurin' flock—
When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock!

Give the Best

Give the best to the Home-folks.
They love you as no others can;
They'll stand by you to the last,
Proud when they see a man.
Give kind, sweet words as father
And as glad husband of a Home;
Remember that little wife is waiting
No matter what troubles come.

Those your own give life for you,
Then wound not these tender hearts;
Let no harsh words escape thy lips
Or cause a tear to start.
Let Love rule that little home
The golden rule would do
Then home will be a gladsome place,
And sweet as Heaven to you.

We are too often thoughtless.
Thoughtless of our very own;
The world is rough and business tense
And oft our strength is shorn;
And in our rush and struggle
Grown weary, up life's way.
We forget to speak the kindly word
That makes a gladsome day.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

NYACK ON THE HUDSON: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

WHITE CLOVER and MRS. E. M. S.: Cards sent as requested.

BALSAM FIR: Very interesting. Many thanks.

A SIMPLE WAY TO REMOVE IODINE

Dear Editor and Social Corner: I am sending in a simple way to remove iodine which I have tried out myself and know the results. One day my husband spilled about half a bottle of iodine on a new bureau scarf that I had just made. Well of course I thought it was ruined but I put it in cold water immediately and then I put a good big handful of table salt into the water which made it very strong and let it soak a while until it had all disappeared. The salt seemed to eat it out. Then I washed and laundered it the usual way. A woman asked me knowing my experience with my scarf if I supposed she could remove a spot of iodine that was on her centerpiece which had probably been there a month or so, and had dried in. I told her to try my way for I thought it would come out. So she tried it and removed it without showing a bit of stain and was very pleased. So both ways have been tested, whether it has been in a long or a short time. Probably there are other ways to remove stains by getting something from the drug store, but this one is so simple that I thought I would send it in as it might help some other sister, and that is what we are here for, to help one another.

People that I have known have always said that if iodine was spilled on anything it was ruined.

With best wishes to the Social Corner.

MAKING THINGS FROM TWIGS

Dear Sisters: Things which children may be interested in are always timely.

Did you ever look at the nice, long, live looking branches, and runners, and twigs that are cut from the trees and all the shrubbery in such abundance at prunning time and wonder why such healthy, useful looking things had to be thrown in the rubbage heap?

And did you ever pick out of the heap some particularly smooth bits of twigs and wish that you could keep them and make them useful, and so save them from being thrown away?

Well any little girl or boy can make them into charming toys, and just how to do this is not at all difficult to learn. All that is needed is a little patience and skill with one's hands.

Any boy or girl who knows how to sit still and take pains for a few minutes at a time can soon learn to make these cunning little toys out of a few tiny tacks or brads with which to fasten the twigs together. A good piece of twig work to begin with is a little sleigh, because it is so easy to make, and so pretty when finished. Take a bunch of thin twigs and cut all the same length. They can be as long or as short as you wish, but it is advisable not to make them very long as the longer they are, the more difficult they will be to handle eight or ten inches is a good length to handle and make a toy of convenient size. Small dolls can take their outings luxuriously in such a sleigh.

Fasten the bunch of twigs together near each end, with wire. About an inch from the end is a good distance to place the wire. Now bend your twigs into a good curve to resemble the shape of a sleigh, and then spread them apart in the middle to hollow them out in a scoop form. Select thicker twigs that are quite smooth for the runners cut them the right length, and bend them into the desired curves. Make the seat of small straight twigs placed side by side and the back in the same way. All the parts must be put together with the little tacks or brads. When it is finished it will be a sleigh which any little girl would like to have for her doll.

If you want to make a birthday present for grandma or for your aunt or some other grown-up, a pretty photograph frame can be made of smooth twigs, evenly cut. Place two of them for each side of an oblong frame and then, over them, on the side that will show the face of the picture, make a heartshaped framework of thinner twigs.

If you live in a region where the white birch tree grows, you can combine the smooth, glossy birch bark with twigs, to make a great variety of things. A fascinating little wheelbarrow maybe made, just the right size for any doll to roll. Make the four sides of the barro wof the birch bark, and decorate the long sides with little twigs which will hold them firmer, use smooth round twigs for the wheels with short twigs for the spokes, which are fastened in place with tiny brass brads.

You can make little arbors and plant small vines near it, and when they grow big enough to send little tendrils up to cling about the sides and the roof, the arbor will be, indeed a thing of beauty and delight.

CHANCE TO DO MUCH

Dear Social Corner Friends: The long evenings will soon be here and there will be plenty of time to write good articles for the Corner page which calls for anything that is interesting the mind may suggests. It matters not whether it is how to mind the baby, to make it smile or how to make home happy, how to cook with out eggs, who has the best sewing machine, can you or can you not, now is the time. There are many good things the great Corner family could write weekly for The Bulletin. Take a hand at it this coming winter and make the Corner page a solid sheet of valuable good things the members can suggest. It is sad to learn some of the Corner writers are passing out. Their letters will be greatly missed.

How true we are here today but know not what tomorrow will bring forth. Those confined in the hospital have our sympathy in their hours of illness.

Papas Boy: I am sending you a letter by this mail which will explain my long delay. We did not forget your advice to send a few words of cheer to the sick ones at the Norwich hospital.

Balsam Fir: The card with the good words was very interesting; many thanks. We wonder where Primrose is moving. Hope she will not forget to tell the Corner of her new home and address. May the Corner make improvements the coming year, like the automobiles is the wish of RURAL DELIVERY.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor of Social Corner: As I have enjoyed many of the letters in the Social Corner for a number of years, I should like to become a member, since I knew many of the Social Corner sisters. Shall be pleased to receive a pin if there are any left.

Shall take for my pen name the name of my old home town, on the river banks.

PICNICS HAVE BEEN MUCH ENJOYED

Dear Editor and Sisters: I know I have not added my bit to fill out the page our editor has given to us, but hope to do better in the future. I have enjoyed the picnics that I have been able to attend this summer. We were nicely entertained at Too Late's also at Helper's. I was not able to get to North Windham on account of illness, but hear they had a fine time as they always do when there. Owing to the kindness of a neighbor I was able to go to Ocean Beach—a very pleasant trip.

I enjoyed the gathering of Club No. 1 in their new quarters which is much easier to get to and very neat and comfortable with a handy kitchen to take care of the food. I think the committe were very fortunate in getting so nice a place and should have a vote of thanks.

I hope to be able to go there the 14th of this month. Rose Lee and her helpers will make us sit up and take notice as she has chosen the best.

I am sorry for those that are ill and those who are in the hospital, although they have the best of care. A call, or a card from a friend is very cheering and I am glad to know they will think of Remember Me, also Huldy who has a room above Remember Me.

Mrs. Jennie Brown although not a member of the Corner, who has been there weeks is not able to speak but can see and read and would enjoy a card. Only those away from home on a bed, ill can appreciate so small a thing on our part. It means very little expense and trouble.

We shall miss Anna Mell who as always so cheerful, although afflicted. She made an effort to be with us and remembered us when ill as on our natal day. I have known her many years and always enjoyed seeing her. It was my privilege to be present at her silver wedding anniversary and read a poem and Judith, who has passed on before, held the light for me to read. Many have passed on since that time. She looked very sweet that night, with the same gown and bonnet on that she wore when married. One by on we shall drop out. Let us meet while we can and enjoy the time while we can.

Yours for the Corner,

AMY.

THE GARDEN CROPS

Social Corner Friends: The summer is gone, but we shall keep in mind the memories of the pleasant gatherings at picnics or the trips taken by auto or bus to shore resort.

I have been like others, busy canning and making jellies and pickles. When I go down cellar and see all my work of the summer, besides potatoes, beets, carrots, onions, turnips and celery all from our own garden, I feel well repaid for my summers work.

Irva Lynn: The description of your trip to the Catskills brought to my mind the wonderful unbroken view we had from our home of these same mountains. The view extended from the Overlook at the north to the Shawanqunk range, which is a spur of the Catskills, at the south. It was one of the things I missed when we came to Connecticut to live. I have stood on the top of Overlook and enjoyed the wonderful view of the valleys. By the way, have you ever been to Lake Mohonk, one of the beauty spots of nature, a veritable paradise I'm not going to describe the place, but it is well worth going many miles to see.

I should think the best way would be to go to Poughkeepsie cross the river to Highland the to New Platz. From there you will take a private auto, or you may take the public road to Mountain Rest which is as far as you can go by auto, as they have not allowed on the estate. If you are good at hiking, as I think you must be, you will enjoy the two mile walk or a carrige will meet and convey you to the hotel. I heard a very wealthy lady who had traveled extensively say that one needn't visit Switzerland for the scenery from the observatory at Skytop equaled any to be found there.

Mary France and I spent the day recently with Nema. It was a wonderful day and we had a lovely visit. As soon as Mary France learns to run the automobile, we may come your way. I hear you have lots of unexpected company.

Nema: Received the seeds and plants. Thanks. The onions we like best is the early red. We bought the seed at Hurley and Grants, a local hardware store.

We shall miss Anna Mell from our gatherings, she was always so pleased to be with us.

Remember Me is in the hospital. Best wishes for a speedy recovery to you and all others.

COBSCOOK BAY AND EASTPORT

Dear Social Corner Friends. Have been very busy so did not get time to write more of our beautiful state. Our new road is about done. As today is Sunday there is no end to travel. About everybody is at their cottages. I trust you will enjoy the story I am sending.

It is in its sea country, that Eastport manifests its greatest charm. Within a radius of 25 miles adjacent to the town and along the Canadian frontier, lie more than 90 islands of every conceivable characteristic, flanked seaward by the mighty cliffs of Grand Marran. At Eastport is the record tide variation on the United States Atlantic coast a rise and fall, at some seasons of over 25 feet.

In summer the climate is ideal. A government weather bureau is stationed at Eastport, which invariably records an enviably cool and uniform temperature all through hot weather. The fishing, abundant cod, pollock, and haddock right in the immediate harbor, amazes the tourist always; while lobsters, bull fed and fresh from the traps, are available every day in the year.

Eastport because of its island situation, with no adjacent pollen plant bearing lands, gives immunity to hay fever sufferers. A little way above the bay head, on the St. Croix and opposite St. Stephen on the New Brunswick bank, lies Calais.

In Meddybemps lake, the recreation ground for years of Joe Jefferson and Grover Cleveland, and only a few miles from Calais over excellent motor roads, are some of the largest black bass to be found anywhere, and no other bass waters in the state offer greater attractions or surer results than this lake whose fame as a bass fishing lake is fast extending beyond the borders of the state.

We have had a number of white frosts and yet my flower garden is yet unhurt.

Hope: Pleased to learn you had not forgotten me.

Delilah Deal: Sorry to learn of your illness. You will get a letter soon.

Crimson Rambler: I sincerely trust you are ever so much better.

Best regards to all from

DISLIKES THE FALL SEASON

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I must write a few lines to our Corner page. I really mean to write every month but have been so busy it slips my mind each week, but I do enjoy the interesting and heiuful letters from all the sisters of the Corner. I have been making grape jelly and green tomato mince meat today, and that finishes up my canning now for this year. Next comes housecleaning and the winter sewing.

Honoray Busqui: I'll say please pass the cake, especially if it is some of that lovely cocoanut cake, and you will cut it for us.

Rosalind: I guess there was a mistake in the printing last week. You asked me, How about that "side," and I know you meant how about that ride we had in the moonlight on the load of potatoes? Well it sure was a lovely ride and we had such fun.

I had a nice call from Pisces and Rosalind last saturday evening and we had a nice time. I wonder if Mr. Rosalind has those awful seeds all picked off yet. If not I am sure Pisces and I can help.

I had a lovely ride Sunday, went to Beach pond. The trees were a beautiful sight, such beautiful colorings all along the way. I looked to see if I could see Rural Aunty when we went over Ekonk hill, but didn't see her anywhere. It was a lovely day when we started out for our ride. We took our lunch and ate over in the grove and quite a few people were there. It clouded up before we left and rained hard when we arrived home, and was real cold.

I saw quite a few pretty flower beds at different places on my ride and they looked so nice. Jack Frost hadn't hurt them a bit. All my flowers were wiped out entirely the last hard frost we had.

The fall season is lovely and yet it seems always kind of sad to me to see everything freeze up and die. It makes anyone feel sort of dreary and lonesome some how.

Well I must close now for it is supper time. Hope all the sick ones are on the gain.

With best wishes to all.

FAN TAN.

BIRTHDAY CAKES

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: We are mindful that the summer days for this year are past, and now the beauties of autumn thats are all about us. We may regret that Jack Frost has spoiled our dahlias and other late flowers in our gardens about the house, but we surely enjoy the wonderful and beautiful colorings of the trees and shrubs that appear now, and will for a little while ahead. It was my pleasure to attend the meeting of Club No. 2 on Sept 2, just five weeks ago. I promised Sister Catnip, that day, that I would send her the recipe of a cake that I had made and brought along for the dinner, so I will at this writing keep to my word. Also while on the subject of 'cake" I will add a few suggestions that are helpful at any time to all of us. First regarding birthday cakes, all the way from the little tots up to grandma or great grandma. Regardless of the years, the birthday cake may represent, we will admire a prettily decorated affair, which will linger long in pleasant memory. The tiny lighted candles are very attractive to the little folks, but unless the cake for some of us older ones, is extra large, there will not be room enough for the illuminated decoration. One design, however, may be utilized, for any age, and that is a name. If white frosting is used on the surface, then a variety of colors or make up for the letters may be selected. Broken pieces of walnut meats, make a good showering for name and whole pieces around the edge, make a pretty circle. Letters selected from the alphabet of macaroni, stained in cranberry juice, or prune juice, present a pretty display if a chocolate icing is used on the cake, then put on tiny white or green candies to form the name, for a contrast of colors. Decorated cakes for the Thanksgiving or Christmas day, tea table may be appropriately designed.

Layer cakes seem to be the favorites for special occasions; shredded cocoanut for filling and top dressing is often in the lead, which may also bear a name as suggested for others.

The recipe that sister Catnip asked me for has no special name, but I will suggest to her that she call it

Jennie's Dark Cake: 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 level tablespoon of shortening, 1 teaspoon each of ginger and cinnamon, 1 cup sour milk, with one level teaspoon of soda in same, 1 1-2 cups of pastry flour, 1-2 cup of floured raisins if desired.

Bake in shallow pan in moderate oven. In using a large cup for measurements the mixture may be divided to make a layer cake, for plain white frosting filling.

Best wishes to all.

JENNIE.

KEEP "THOUGHT GEMS" SHINING

Dear Cornerites: I want to second what a sister recently said about good reading.

Good reading and good poems are considered to be a part of every modern woman's "household euipment." In many of our "treasure chests." are stored the "thought gems" of our years of study. At least we put them there—those carefully memorized, selected portions of the books we loved.

But like many things of beauty they have tarnished and blackened into oblivion by not being used. And finally when we would express some thought in the words of a beloved author, we must prepare and polish that gem. The busy day, with probably household and family cares, have crowded that task aside.

But friends, I have found a way of keeping those gems shining and also of adding to my treasure chest, while still busily engaged with other cares. Our minds must be busy with something, many times not in accord with our hands, so I put in some conspicuous place—probably over my sink, near my stove or work table—the gem I wish to make my own.

A glance now and then, a line or two at a time, and soon it is a perfect crystalized thought in my mind. Ironing day is my special time to repolish all my store.

I hope this will prove as much of a sunbeam to others as it has to me.

MISSES DECEASED SISTERS

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: One more of our sisters, Anna Mell, has been called home. It was a pleasure to have known her. I will miss her like I do little Sister Wrinkle. About Aug. 1 I called at the Card home. Then Sister Anna Mell was able to be up and went to her meals. She was planning to visit me soon. Sister Amy used to bring her in her auto, which was appreciated by me as well as by Anna Mell.

Perhaps some of the older members remember two poems I sent to the Corner some time ago. My Father's Hymnal and My Galilee, by Mary France Rice of South Montrose, Pa. She passed away the same night Anna Mell did, Sept 18, age 88.

Betsy Bray: I enjoyed your visit Sept. 28, only it was not long enough. You will have to try again.

Marigold: Your trip to Maine must have been delightful. Thank you for your pretty card.

Irva Lynn: Would you be surprised to see me out your way? Social Corner sisters are in the habit of hiring a palace auto and taking long rides, sometimes changing the route after they start. I always enjoyed our trips on the Hudson river. I might take one again. On one of those sails I wore a linen dress and my younger brother about 5 years old wore a linen suit. We went to Iona island. We were by the shore picking shells and stones. The Albany day boat sailed by and rolled a wave over us. Sisters Nema and Georgianna laid us up on the rocks to dry.

As some one asked for a recipe for tomato mince meat I will send mine.

Tomato Mince Meat: 8 qts. green tomatoes chopped fine, 8 qts. apple chopped fine, 5 lbs. brown sugar, 2 pounds raisins, 3 cups vinegar or half cider, 1 pound butter or fat pork, 1 orange, 1 lemon, citron, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 tablespoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 1-2 nutmegs, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon mace. Boil 40 minutes and can hot.

Perhaps some one would like a good chili sauce recipe.

Chili Sauce: 2 quarts ripe tomatoes 4 large onions, 4 red peppers, all chopped fine, 1 cup vinegar, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 teaspoons cloves, cinnamon, ginger, allspice, nutmeg. Boil all together 1 hour; can hot.

I also think the new meeting place in Willimantic a great improvement.

Best wishes for our Corner.

MARY FRANCE.

VISITORS TO FARMS

Dear Social Corner Members: Much has been said concerning getting ready for company and entertaining friends as well as suggestions as how the guests may lighten the burden of the hostess, but I am going to present another problem in regard to entertaining. Any parents who live in the city love to take their families out in the country for a few days or an occasional week-end.

I am the wife of a farmer and love to have my city friends visit me but sometimes their children are almost unbearable. They pick green apples and throw them around; they trample the garden, run through the hay and grain fields, and recently one small boy who was visiting me with his mother exclaimed, "Say, you folks get everything you eat free, don't you?"

Now, this is my plea, that parents will teach their children the value of farm produce; explain to them about the long hours the farmer spends preparing the land for the seed, the careful cultivation that is necessary to raise the potatoes and corn and how thoroughly the fruit trees must be sprayed in order to produce nice friut.

If children understand that the friut and grain and vegetables out in the country are the farmer's wages for his labor, just the same as their father's pay envelope contains his, I am sure they would be less destructive. If they are taught that a bushel of apples or potatoes, or anything that is raised, means the same amount of money to the farmer as to their father who buys them, they would see things in a different way.

How many children would take an apple which mother had just bought, take a bite or two and then throw it at a cat which might be passing and then expect to have another to waste in the same way? They should be taught that these things have value where they grow as well as in the city. They should know that other people's rights must be respected so that they may grow up to be good law respecting citizens.

Best wishes for the Corner.

ANDIETTA.

GREETINGS FROM STRAWBERRY

Dear Sisters: What a beautiful fall day and what a nice time and day we did have at our meeting. It seemed so good to see so many old members. I think it is fine we can leave our dishes at the Odd Fellow's hall. I did not leave mine this time, but am going to next time.

Annette: That cream cake was delicious.

Aries: I believe you were there and sat near me at the table. I sat the other side of Joan.

Apple Blossom: I don't believe I can get up the 12th as little Strawberry is not out of school that day. Will come up when I can.

Rumble Bee: I was so glad to see Aunt F. Bring her again.

I am sending a little poem which I think is very true.

One Little Word

One little word may pierce the heart
With sorrow keener than a knife.
And best of friends may quickly part
With feelings of such bitter strife.

One little word may kindness show
When all the world seems dark and drear,
And tears of deepest anguish flow.
One little word may often cheer.

One little word may help so much
The weary with a heavy load;
A pleasant smile, a gentle touch,
Smooth places in the roughest road.

One little word may tempests calm.
When raging fierce within the breast
A kindly word may fall like balm
And angry feelings soothe to rest.

One little word may be too late
Before fond hopes are buried low,
And often it may seal the fate
Of many lives for weal or woe.
With best wishes for the success of the Social Corner and Club No. 2.

STRAWBERRY, (May 10.)

SOME CANDY RECIPES

Dear Corner Sisters: Recently one of the sisters asked for some candy recipes. I think she might like to try these:

Maple Balls: Cook one cup of maple sirup and one-half cup of water to 254 degrees F., or until it forms a firm ball tested in cold water. Remove from the fire and pour very gradually over the whites of two eggs beaten stiff, beating constantly. Then stir in one cup of sifted confectioner's sugar. Drop by spoonfuls on shredded cocoanut, roll into balls and place on wax paper to harden.

A Delicious Paste: Soak three tablespoons of gelatin in one-half cup of grape juice and one-fourth cup of lemon juice. Put two cups of granulated sugar and three-fourths cup of water in a saucepan and bring to the boiling-point. Add the soaked gelatin and boil 15 minutes over a gentle heat. Strain into a shallow pan that has been dipped in cold water. Let stand until firm, then remove to a platter or board and cut into cubes. Roll in confectioner's sugar.

Chocolate Fudge: Two squares of chocolate, one tablespoon of corn syrup, two cups of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, three-quarters of a cup of evaporated milk, one-half cup of water, a pinch of salt and one-half teaspoon of vanilla.

Shave the chocolate fine, and put into a saucepan with all the other ingredients except the vanilla. Boil until a little of the mixture forms a soft ball in a glass of water. Cool in cold water until the bottom of the pan feels comfortable to the hand. After adding the vanilla beat vigorously until the mass is creamy and pour into a platter.

Aries: Thanks for your mint jell recipes.

Best wishes to all the members.

FINE GATHERING OF CLUB NO. 2

Dear Editor and Social Sisters: What a fine gathering Club No. 2 had at the October meeting in the new hall—plenty to eat, plenty of room and to spare—the only expense being the hall. After another meeting we will be nicely settled.

Through the kindness of the janitor we have a fine place to keep our dishes. There will be no need to carry them every time, which so many of the sisters have dreaded.

The hall is nice and roomy and very quiet, with no trams switching to interrupt the program. It is hard to read or recite when there is so much noise.

Scottie: You were Johnny on the Spot all right and I think everything was carried out. Glad your helpers responded so nicely to your call.

We missed a number of the real old writers. As they find out where we are am sure they will join us.

Calla Lily: Glad you are such a good sport. Hope things will go all right now, as I am sure they will.

Wetona: When I need a good speech made will call on you; also if I have anything to sell chances on. You for the good of the Social Corner.

Maple Leaf: Was pleased to see you. Next time bring more pork.

Chocolate: Glad to see you on your old job again.

White Dawn: Congratulations for getting the yellow slip. Try again.

Bumble Bee and Golden Glow: You were all right, too.

With best wishes for the Corner and our new hall.

NECIA.

MOPS AND DUSTERS

Dear Members: Some one called my name, so here I come. Have been overready for all kinds of work lately.

I'd like to have a few come to me at the meeting of Club No. 1 in Willimantic October 14 ready with numbers for the programs. Just tell me you are, so in case any one fails to appear we'll be ready to fill in.

If you need a new dustmop, buy a mop handle for 25 cents and a ten cent bottle of o'Cedar oil. Take old stockings and cut into strips about two inches wide, tie onto wire of mop until well filled. Place some oil in an old can or pail. Put mop in this also, pour oil over it. You'll find it will work as satisfactorily as the expensive mops, and when it comes to washing can be easily done, too.

For a duster, take a pair of old worn stockings cotton or silk, slit up seams, run pair together, dampen, on one corner add a little kerosene or any of the other oils, roll up and when oil strikes in you will find you have a good duster.

Yours for the Corner.

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

J. E. T.'S SUGGESTION

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: In looking over a very old scrap book I see where neighbors used to have an auction once a year and get a little money or swap things such as old broken chairs, which could be mended by those who have carpenters in the family, iron kettles, yellow heavy mixing bowls good to bake beans in, home made soap, quilts, rug rugs, knit lace, holders, preserves, old pictures with good frames, tea sets, chopping trays, iron waiters that could be painted, good baskets, brown bread kettles, surplus feather pillows, etc.

After the auction there would be a big farm dinner provided by several helpers for 25 cents. No one need bring anything but a little money and some good cheer.

Rumble Bee has a fine yard and house for such a thing and knows just how. Saw her and F. C. E. a minute the other day. Don't know as anyone will fall in with my idea, but it is suggested for a change.

J. E. T.

GREETINGS FROM ROBERTA

Dear Social Corner Friends: I have enjoyed the letters very much this summer, especially those about the vacation trips of the sisters. That is the way I have taken my vacation this year, hearing my friends tell of theirs, and reading the Social Corner letters. My father and I spent one day away the first of the summer, but he has not been able to go and I have not wanted to leave him.

Grace: We enjoyed your trip very much; could almost see the places. I was glad you got a prize for it.

Roseland: I saw you on the car the other day, but was not near enough to say "Roseland" as I wanted to. Do you know my name?

Primrose: Am sorry you have left our neighborhood.

Ino: How do you like your new home?

ROBERTA.

NEGLECTED TO SEND NAME

Dear Editor: I have been a visitor at the Social Corner meetings and have enjoyed them so much that I would like to become a member. I will take as my pen name.

HONEY DEW.

(You have neglected to send your correct name. When that is done you can become a Corner member.—S. C. Editor.)

BUCKINGHAM SISTERS MEET

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: What a wonderful time we had at the Buckingham Memorial. Such a big crowd and so much nice food. It really seemed more like a banquet than a dinner. We were surprised by John Fanning presenting us with a nice big watermelon which was delicious. Mrs. Fanning gave some very interesting remarks. All voted it a very wonderful time.

ALTA.

ENJOYED PICNIC

Social Corner Editor: I attended Too Late's picnic and had a wonderful time plenty to eat and a sociable day, so I would like to join if there is still room for more I will take for my pen name.

A Secret
And sunny shampoo
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I have glorious hair, as millions of women know. Its glint is like a halo on the stage or on the street.

I don't know how I get it. I only know that it comes to me through what they call a Fruity Shampoo.

Very wonderful men perfected it for me, but they never would give me the formula. They say that one ingredient gives that matchless glint, but they never would tell me what it is.

But they make it for me to supply to you, just as they make it for me. It is the greatest shampoo in existence I say that after trying scores of them, and searching the world for the best.

I want you to try it, I want you to see the luster that it adds to hair. I would not take a fortune for what it has done for mine.

I cannot tell you the secrets of its wizard-like results. They have never been told to me. But those results will amaze and delight you. Ask any toilet counter for Edna Wallace Hopper's Fruity Shampoo, and you'll get exactly what I use. The price is 50 cents. And your dealer will return your money if you think that any other shampoo comes within a mile of this. For your own sake, see what it does.

Mail the coupon for a sample bottle and my Beauty Book.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Flying rocks from a blast in the Laurel Hill tunnel did considerable damage to property in that vicinity 50 years ago this week. Rocks flew in all directions, one striking a car in the square and another smashing against the side of the Wauregan House. The town election took place the same week and at the town meeting a town tax of six mills was laid. The old Niagara Hose company held a meeting and elected John Blackburn foreman and John Nolan as first assistant. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of October, 1875, follow:

Monday, Oct. 4, 1875—The Democrats held their caucus in Aborn hall Friday evening. Ralph Wheeler was chosen chairman and William Douglas, clerk. A committee of seven appointed by the chair to make nominations, brought in the following list: Town ticket, town clerk, Frederick W. Miner; selectmen, C. C. Comstock, E. V. Daboll, Alexander Cohn; registrar of births, marriages and deaths, Frederick W. Miner; city ticket, Aldermen, Benjamin Stark, William Burke; to fill vacancy, George Williams; councilmen, William A. Holt, Benjamin R. Tate, Robert R. Congdon; to fill vacancy, John Dray; constable, Daniel Fraser, Jr.; water commissioner, Julius T. Shepard; school visitors, Ralph Wheeler, John Bishop; assessors, Charles Bishop; to fill vacancy, Charles H. Miner; board of relief, Thomas Gaffey.

It is time steps were taken to put a stop to the reckless blasting on the Laurel Hill tunnell. On Saturday a stone as big as a man's head struck on the cross walk from Franklin hall to the Strand building, narrowly missing a little girl. Two smaller stones fell on the opposite side of the square in front of Young's and the other in front of Herrick's grocery. A large one went through the roof of Ripley's store, another smashed in a window in the car standing on the square and still another struck the Wauregan and made a slight perforation in the front wall. Other fragments of the volley did considerable petty damage to the rear and roof of the Williams building. The contractors promptly gave notice that they would pay all damages. It is asserted that the character of the rock in the tunnel is responsible for these eccentric blasts, but nevertheless as the city is responsible for damages inflicted, it should take pains to enforce the most scrupulous care on the part of the blasters.

Lewis' city band will serenade Mme. Urso at the Wauregan House previous to the concert tonight. The ladies will be interested to know that she will wear a dress just arrived from Paris.

Tuesday, Oct. 5, 1875—The town election yesterday was notable chiefly for the amount of scratching that was done. The work of the counters was begun at 3 o'clock and did not terminate until a few minutes before nine. At the town hall Charles E. Dyer acted as moderator and proved an excellent presiding officer. The hall was full at nine o'clock when the vote was announced.

The report of the treasurer of the town deposit fund was read, showing that the fund amounts to $13,501.41 and is loaned to the town of Norwich at 6 per cent. The report was accepted. The report of the auditors appointed with the town accounts was accepted. Charles Webb was re-elected town auditor. The report of the selectmen and the report of the school visitors were accepted as published. The salary of the town clerk was fixed at $200, payable quarterly and of the selectmen at $1,600. The Hon. J. Lloyd Greene moved that a town tax of six mills be laid. The Hon. David Young moved as an amendment a tax of five mills. P. E. Greene moved to amend by laying a tax of seven mills and the amendment being put, was lost. A tax of six mills was then ordered. Daniel Lee moved that the compensation of the town collector be fixed at one per cent of the amount collected and paid into the treasury. Mr. Spalding offered as an amendment that the compensation be 3-4 of one per cent. The amendment was lost and Mr. Lee's motion was adopted.

At the regular meeting of Niagara Hose company No. 2, last evening, John Blackburn was elected foreman; John Nolan, first assistant; William Blackburn, second assistant; clerk, Daniel Lee; treasurer, William Hall.

Wednesday, Oct. 6, 1875—The trenching of the Greeneville water pipes is completed with the exception of about fifty feet. It is expected that the pipes will be ready so that the water can be let on next week.

It is intended to commence work next week on the horse railroad. The much needed repairs must be made before the cold weather sets in. The question of securing covered sleighs to be run during the winter when the tracks are impassable, is under consideration.

William Molony, the grocer, had his money drawer broken open during the forenoon yesterday, while several persons were in the store and while the proprietor was temporarily busy in another part of the room, and upwards of $90 was extracted. There is little if any clue to the thief.

Thursday, Oct. 7, 1875—Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Adams celebrated their golden wedding at No. 143 Main street yesterday. They received numerous presents, many of them in gold, and were congratulated by a large number of their friends. In the afternoon, when the company was gathered, the Hon. John Stearns of New York made an address and a poem, composed for the occasion by a Hartford lady was read by John C. Tracy.

The soldiers' monument at Colchester will be unveiled today and the soldiers' graves decorated. The Hon. John A. Tibbits of the New London Telegram will deliver the oration and there will be a collation at 2 p. m. The monument bears the names of 40 of more soldiers.

The Portland express train has proved a decided success and it is not improbable that some arrangement will be made to connect with the steamboat train after the change in time next Monday. If this is not done the connection for New York at Worcester will be made by rail.

Friday, Oct. 8, 1875—H. T. Miller has been appointed leader of Tubb's band. It has also been voted to change the name to Miller's band. J. P. Miller is a member and one of the contractors. J. H. George, who was obliged to give up cornet playing a year ago on account of his health, will play the solo B flat cornet.

Robert McWhirr of Wauregan lodge of this city is chairman of the state centennial committee of Knights of Pythias now in session at New Haven.

Mr. West of Boston has been appointed superintendent of the Morse railroad under the new owners, and is expected to take charge of it today.

Saturday, Oct. 9, 1875—The death of Mrs. John T. Clark, whose funeral we announce this morning, will bring sorrow to many hearts. Though not a native of Norwich, she had lived here long enough to become very dear to those most intimately associated with her, and to win the sincere admiration and respect of the large circle in which she moved.

The entries for the races next week are filling well and there promises to be good trotting. If the weather is favorable a very good meeting may be expected. Twenty-two horses have been entered all ready, including several from Hartford, Providence and other places.

The Otis Library. The recent exhibit of the financial condition of this institution showed just how much has been expended, what its endowment is and what it may grow to, if still fostered by the good will and patronage of the public. During the last three years 1,026 volumes have been purchased and placed on its shelves. The library room has been handsomely carpeted and refitted, th now it presents as attractive appearance as any similar institution in the state. Its list of periodicals, though not large, is a popular one while its yearly additions in the book line enable it to furnish its patrons the best of the constantly issuing publications.

Peter Guesses in Vain

To fool the wise, we must admit,
If sometimes takes but little wit.
—Welcome Robin.

Buster Bear had stated that no animals ran away from Jack Frost and Rough Brother North Wind, as so many of the birds do. Of course they don't exactly run away, but they fly away, and that amounts to the same thing. Welcome Robin had overheard the remark, and he hadn't liked it. He had promptly replied that he knew one animal who didn't stay through the winter, but went down south like the birds. Then off he flew, leaving the others to guess who it was he meant.

"It is no such thing," declared Buster Bear as he munced beechnuts. "I don't doubt there are some animals who would like to go South, but the Sunny South is too far away for we folks who wear fur. If any of us ever got down there we never could get back again."

For awhile everybody was so busy trying to think who it could be that Welcome Robin meant that no one said a word. In their own minds every one thought that Buster Bear was right. Peter sat under a hemlock tough and watched Buster Bear and Happy Jack Squirrel, and Rusty the Fox Squirrel, and Chatterer the Red Squirrel, and Striped Chipmunk and Mrs. Grouse and Lightfoot the Deer picking up sweet little beechnuts, and all the time he was turning over in his mind the names of all the people he could think of except the feathered folk, and for the life of him he couldn't think of one who wouldn't be right there in the Green Forest or on the Green Meadows or in the Old Pasture or in the Old Orchard during the winter. Finally he started off to try to find Welcome Robin. He meant to ask Welcome Robin right out. Welcome had sounded as if he really meant what he said, but Peter, who thought he knew everybody, was stuck, and he had to admit that he was stuck. Peter couldn't find Welcome Robin although he looked all through the Old Orchard and went up almost to Farmer Brown's dooryard. Finally he gave up in disgust, and returned to the Green Forest. The first person he met was Striped Chipmunk. "Have you guessed yet who is that wears fur and goes to the Sunny South in the winter?" Peter asked.

Striped Chipmunk's pockets in his cheeks were stuffed so full of beechnuts that he couldn't have spoken to save his life. All he could do was to shake his head, and he did very hard indeed. Then he hurried on. Then in turn each of the other members of the Squirrel family came along and when Peter asked the same question each one shook his head. By the time Peter got back to the beech trees he was sure that no one there was any wiser than he, and most of them were pretending that they didn't believe a word of what Welcome Robin had said. Peter himself was just a wee bit more honest. Welcome Robin had sounded as if he believed what he said and Peter was inclined to think that he did. This made the puzzle the more provoking, for Peter knew he ought to know just who Welcome Robin was thinking of.

Peter soon found that the others were less interested than he. They were all so busy with those beechnuts that they couldn't think of much of anything else. Peter, having nothing else to do and not being interested in beechnuts, could do nothing but sit there and puzzle. He kept naming over and over all the animals he could think of and there wasn't one—no, sir, there wasn't one—that would go very far from the Green Forest or the Green Meadows. He knew this for an absolute fact.

Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun started to bed behind the Purple Hills. The Squirrel cousins all went home for the good night's rest they had earned. Only Buster Bear and Lightfoot the Deer and Bobby Coon and Unc' Billy Possum remained. Peter watched them, still eating and wondered however they could hold so much.

Use Two Kinds of Dollars

Changsha, China, still has two kinds of silver dollars—the ordinary kind, or kwang-yang and the chopped dollar or chang-yong. The latter is worth about 10 coppers less than the former. Bank-notes issued by the Bank of China and Bank of Communications are at par with kwang-yang.

There are not copper notes, but the people make use of a kind of fractional currency issued by the Changsha Orphanage, which is really in the nature of a savings deposit receipt. It is issued in denominations of 10, 20 and 30 cents originally for the use of the orphans, but it later gained a much wider circulation. Its issue is limited to $10,000, and has been maintained

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP)—Stock prices gave another impressive demonstration of strength today under the leadership of the high-priced industrials. The buying was the usual mixture of short covering and bull pool operations. It was probably influenced by the absence of any strain on the credit situation, as reflected in the lower renewal rate for call money and the maintenance of the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate by the New York Federal Reserve bank and growing indications of expanding fall trade.

Nearly two score issues mounted to new high levels for the year on total transactions that exceed 2,000,00 shares. Group movements were again evidenced with the Automotive, Chemical, express, merchandising, public utility and tobacco issues making the best showing.

Some spectacular advances took place in the so-called rich men's stocks. S. S. Kresge soared 51 points to a new high record for all time at 705, or 197 points above Monday's low, and then slipped back to 700 on profit taking. Talk of a stock split-up accompanied the rise. Detroit Edison jumped over 10 points to a new top at 154 3-4, closing within a point of the top. Chrysel, which sold as low as 101 1-3 earlier in the year, was bid up nearly eight points to 200.

The weekly mercantile reviews confirmed reports of better business. Bradstreet's states that "cool weather, with snow in the northwest and part of the central west, and rains quite well distributed throughout the rest of the country, have given a stimulus to retail bbying of clothing, shoes and other apparel, and suprred the production of soft coal."

Dunn's sets forth that "Statistical records and reports from widely separated cities give increasing evidence of the upward course of business."

"Some, holding back, still appears," it adds, "but the main trend is unmistakably toward expansion, and there is greater stability now than has prevailed for a long time."

Short covering played a prominent part in the rise of the motor stocks. Studebaker, General Motors, and Dodge Brothers "A" all mounted to new peak prices for the year, as well as a number of motor accessory shares, including United States Rubber, Goodrich, Timken Roller Bearing, Fisher Body, Gabriel Snubber.

Department store issues were bid up in anticipation of record-breaking holiday trade, Gimble Brothers, McCrory stores B and Associated Dry Goods also breaking through their previous maximum quotations. Tobacco stocks were given another whirl under the leadership of United Cigar stores, which soared 7 points to 9, a new top and a gain of 15 points in two days.

Other outstanding strong spots were Allied Chemical, American Brake Shoe, Case Threshing Machine, Du Pont, Federal Mining and Smelting preferred, Foundation company, Goldust, Mathieson Alkali, Stromberg tobacco products, United Fruit, United States Industrial Alcohol, all up about 2 1-2 to 7 points on the day.

Standard industrials were held in check by profit taking. United States Steel common opened with a block of 6,000 shares at 124 1-2 and then slipped back to 124 1-4, for a small fractional loss on the day. Baldwin showed a slight loss at 118 3-4 after having climbed a point above the figure and American Can closed about a point higher at 238. Rails continued to lag behind the industrials although St. Paul preferred advanced over a point on the announcement that the reorganization plan had been declared operative.

Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent. All money. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were easy with the exception of demand sterling, which held firm around 4.85 3-32. French Francs ruled nearly 2 points lower around 4.60 1-2 cents. Other recessions were of a nominal character.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD ACQUIRES LONDREGAN PROPERTY, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 9—The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad today acquired valuable realty adjoining other property owned by the railroad at Fort Neck. The property acquired is that heretofore owned by Timothy A. and Julia E. Londregan and is located on Goshen street. It consists of a dwelling and a parcel of land. The price pair for the realty is $14,000. It is understood that the railroad company will eventually utilize the property in increasing railroad facilities at the Fort Neck yard.

John F. and Mary Gilmartin today sold a dwelling house and a small tract of land on Williams street to Edward and Catherine Boyle.

Matteo Sutera has sold a house and lot on Huntington street to Antonio and Angelina Berbera.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Frank T. Arms, of 51 Glenwood avenue, are spending a few days in New York.

Nathaniel Menders of 20 High street and Patrick Barnes, the latter a member of the crew of the U. S. S. McCall, stationed at the State Pier, were patients dismissed today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

The funeral of Lester Fisher, fisherman, whose death occured at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital last Sunday, was held this afternoon at 8 Ocean avenue, the services being conducted by Richard W. Mansfield. Burial was in the city's plot in Jordan.

Charlie Meyers, colored, was in the police court this morning, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He was very drunk on John street last evening and there became a nuisance at the store of Samuel Katz. The latter asked for his arrest and that was accomplished as soon as officers could get from the police station to John street. Meyers was ugly when the police arrived, and he struggled with them fiercely, but the only exhausted his strength. Probation Officer Mansfield spoke a good word for Meyers, declaring that he had known the youth most of his life. The probation officer thought there was goodness in Charlie if he would abstain from liquor, and this he had promised to do. Judge Prince recalled that the youth was unfortunate and advised him as to his future course. Then he imposed a fine of $10 on each count, but suspended the execution of judgment for a year, that hemight try out the offender and prove whether he meant to do as he had agreed to do.

Rain fell steadily here today from about 11 o'clock, checking business in great degree. It also diminished interest in the world series ball game for it became apparent before noon that no game could be played today. The newspapers were kept busy answering calls as to what the prospect was until the news circulated that the game had been called off.

Although there is a coal strike on in the anthracite mines in Pennsylvania a large quantity of coal is being forwarded over the rails of the New Haven road. The information comes from railroad officials that there is about 75 per cent. of a supply on hand in this state now, so that the prospect of a coal famine is not great.

The price of mackerel jumped from 15 cents a pound to 25 cents this week or 40 per cent. on the purchase of a dollar's worth.

Miss Mary Harrison died this morning at her residence, 27 Harrison street following an illness of many weeks caused by infirmities attending her advanced years. So far as is known, Miss Harrison is not survived by any near relatives. Miss Harrison was born in the house in which she died, and had resided there her entire life. Harrison street was named after a relative of Miss Harrison.

William Dwyer, formerly of New London is seriously ill at Bellevue hospital, New York. Late last night the New York police requested the New London police to notify Mr. Dwyer's brother, James J. Dwyer of 32 Hempstead street of the illness of the latter's brother. Mr. Dwyer was engaged in business in New London at one time and for several months was proprietor of a club room in the Asthemier building, Railroad avenue. He moved from New London about 10 years ago. He was also employed on the New London line steamers several years.

Mrs. Morris Bernstein, 73 Montauk avenue complained to the police this afternoon that earlier in the day a window of her residence was smashed, one of several youths hurling a stone through it as he was on his way to school.

The new Seagrave aerial truck for use of the New London Fire department will arrive in New London within a few days. The huge piece of fire fighting machinery has been shipped from the factory in Ohio. When the truck reaches New London it will be placed at the central fire station on Union street.

The city court will be busy Saturday with adjourned acses and a few others that come in during tonight. Charlie Moore, known also as Charlie Chaplin was taken into custody on the 22nd day of July as an idle person, and then the case was continued till tomorrow that he might be examined at the Norwich state hospital. But since then Charlie has returned to New London and is at liberty. So it is supposed that his mentality has been determined to be such as will warrant his attention to whatever business he may find. Albert Soltz, a boy, must answer a complaint that alleges he has been found gambling in a game "with a knife." That is said to infer that he was playing the game called "mumbletepeg" for money. Henrietta Simmons will answer to a complaint alleging an attack upon Josie Yoskoskie: no one around the police station remembered anything about it but they declared their recollection to be that the complaint arose from a neighborhood quarrel. James Ernest Turner, a youth of questionable mentality is charged with the theft of a pair of trousers and a belt from Manuel Gomes. Turner is said to admit the taking of the articles mentioned, but he denies that he stole them.

Harry Forbes, one of the best known locomotive engineers in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, lies critically ill at his home, in Pequonoc and all hope for his recovery has practically been abandoned Mr. Forbes had trouble with his head several weeks ago and when his case was diagnosed, it was revealed that Mr. Forbers was suffering from a tumor on the brain. He at once went to Baltimore and after being a patient at Johns Hopkins hospital a day or two he underwent an operation. The ordeal did not have the beneficial results anticipated and it was evident that he could survive but a shore time, so he was brought home. Mr. Forbes is one of the youngest engineers in the employ of the railroad and has been in the freight service.

Another bicycle was stolen today and another was recovered. This afternoon Carl Plimpton, a youth residing at 114 1-2 Howard street, and a student at the Nathan Hale grammar school, complained to the police that while he was attending school this forenoon, the lock was removed from the wheel and the machine was taken away. Earlier in the day Tony Rispoli, a boy living at 73 Shaw street, informed the police that he had found a bicycle abandoned on Elizabeth street. A short time afterwards Morris Weinstein, a lad residing at 27 Hempstead street, appeared at the police station to lodge a complaint because his bicycle had been stolen and it then developed that the wheel found was the property of Weinstein. Tonight the Plimpton youth visited the police stationed and stated that the bicycle had been found on the school grounds a short time before.

Patrolman John Foley, who has been confined to his home on Williams street about two months, was able to resume duty tonight and was assigned to Bank street.

Rosario Grillo, 130 Liberty street, Westerly, R. I., is scheduled to appear in the local police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the automobile laws. Grillo was operating his machine, a commercial car, at the corner of State and Main streets, this morning when he was held up by Traffic Officer Braxton Hill because Grillo was operating the machine which was equipped with improper registration. The officer ordered Grillo to present himself in court.

Andrew Charsonneau, 16, Central street, River Point, R. I., was taken into custody late this afternoon by Sergeant James McGrath, of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, as a runaway. The youth was loitering about the union station and when questioned by the officer it was revealed that the lad had run away from home. The boy was taken to the police station and locked up pending arrangements being made to send him home.

Timothy S. V. Collins, station master in the employ of the New Haven railroad, is spending several days in Washington and will witness the games to be played there Saturday, Sunday and Monday between the Senators and Pirates.

The police were summoned to a house on Grand street, this evening, by one of two women who were in the place and who declared that a man had forced his way into the house. When Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Patrolman Edward Daniels reached the house it became known that the man, who was found there, had been drinking and had gotten into the house, believing he was entering his own home, which is next to the house where the two frightened women reside.

Miss Dorothy Henkle, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Henkle, an instructor at Williams Memorial Institute, is spending the week-end in New York.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Dr. Julian G. Ely, 43 Granite street, and Miss Mae Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan F. Richardson, of Millis, Mass. The marriage will take place at the Lowlands, Millis, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Nov. 6.

Several weeks ago the city, through the city council, decided to cause the construction of a larger sewer through Pequot avenue and at a recent meeting of the council a vote was passed whereby the entire cost of the sewer construction would fall upon the property owners along that part of the avenue where the work is to be done. The tentative plan for the payment of the work is that each and every property owner be assessed according to the frontage of his property. Whether this course will be followed remains to be seen, for it was evident at a hearing of property owners this forenoon at the municipal building by the compensation board of the city, that the property owners entertain the opinion that the city should at least pay a portion of the cost and not place the burden of expense of improving the city's sewer service upon the property owners. The hearing was attended by 18 residents of Pequot avenue, in front of whose property the new sewer will be laid and all expressed the opinion that it was unjust to expect the property owner to pay for work to be done by the city and for the improvement of a service for which the city should be expected to bear the expense. Attorney Frank L. McGuire, speaking as one of the property owners to be affected by the assessment, made it plain that the plan as announced by the city to pay for the work was unjust, unequitable and without reason.

John Pullin, a carpenter, who had never been arrested before, was taken into custody this afternoon by Patrolman Braxton Hill when Pullin was found intoxicated on Main street. He was liberated tonight upon furnishing a surety in Harry S. Beg, on his bond of $50 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

The police department has been provided with an automobile for use in an emergency, for today City Manager William A. Holt had a Ford touring car that has been used by the highway department to be turned over to the police. The act of the city manager will do away with the idea of a larger and more powerful machine being hired and will cause the Ford to be used for several weeks and until such time as the regular police car is reconditioned the early part of next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Saxton of Norwich were host and hostess to 100 of their relatives and intimate acquaintances at the Hotel Mohican ballroom tonight, the occasion being the 30th anniversary of the marriage Cards and dancing were enjoyed and dainty refreshments were served. The guests of Mr. and Mrs. Saxton came to New London by automobile and the affair was not concluded until after midnight.

They will come here from New Haven and will be dined at the Mohican hotel in the evening. Their arrival will be at 7 o'clock, when they will be escorted by a squad of state policemen tendered by the governor. Wednesday the visitors are to be shown about the city and then be escorted to the Rhode Island state line, whence they will go to Providence. They are in the east to look over the industries and to get information as to what we have in the line of manufactures.

PROGRAMME IS COMPETED FOR S-51 MEMORIAL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 9.—The great heart of this city, as represented by all the churches, every civic and patriotic society, and the churches of Groton, Montville, Niantic, Flanders, Gales Ferry and Waterford represented by their clergymen, will manifest sympathy with the relatives of the crew of the submarine S-51.

Columns have been written about the disaster and sorrow and sympathy have been expressed as well as cold type could give expression to the bereavement the people of this city felt. Now it remains for words to be spoken, that the mourners for the dead may hear phrases of consolation, with sentiments of pity and assurances of regret. A memorial meeting will be held at the Lyceum theatre Sunday evening by a committee of citizens, of which Henry H. Bond is chairman. Rev. Edward R. Chapman will preside. Today the programme was completed and is announced as follows:

BOSTON THEATRE RECOGNIZED AS SCHOOL TO TRAIN ACTORS

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The opening of the Kepertory theatre of Boston with Sheridan's "The Rivals," gives official recognition to a theatre as an educational institution, and thus is exempted from taxation.

Patterned somewhat along the lines of many civic treatres of Europe the workers on this stage will strive not only for the perfection of their art, but also to give earnest students of the drama a chance to absorb the real atmosphere of the theatre. Its educational efforts will be to present plays of artistic merit to the public to interest high school students in the theatre, and to train and teach embryo actors and actresses.

Professional actors and actresses will play the characters while students look on at rehearsals and receive their instruction from these same professionals.

The theatre is the outcome of years of effort, and for Henry Jewett, its director, and Mrs. Jewett, who has been the guiding hand in many phases of the work, it is a vision realized.

Finances of the theatre will be handled by a board of trustees and the entire project will be non-profit making. Mr. Jewett hopes eventually to buy original plays and send out road companies to show other cities what the Repertory theatre is doing in the hope that similar projects may be launched elsewhere.

The theatre itself cost $150,000 and embraces all that is modern. It will accommodate 499 people.

MARKETS WITH ESKIMOS BY AUTO FOR FIRST TIME

HERB LAKE, Man., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Far to the north of here, a small automobile chugs its way over the ice and snow, the first vehicle of its kind to invade the land of the Eskimo.

It was taken into the far north by John Harris, who has returned to his home there after marketing a large number of furs here.

On his visit to civilization, Harris brought his Eskimo wife and three children, "just to give them a treat," and if wide and wondering eyes were a criterion, it was a treat for them.

When he returned, he took with him the small automobile, besides a large stock of provisions and goods, to be used in trading with the natives. So far as is known here it will be the first automobile in this section of the north.

FORMER ANTI-SOVIET LEADER TO BECOME SUBJECT OF JAPAN

NAGASKI, Oct 9 (AP)—Ex-Attaman Semenoff, former Russian "White" leader who fled from the Soviet and is now living in Nagasaki, is reported ot have formally applied for Japanese naturalization. The Home Office is expected to waive the rigid seven-year residence rule in favor of the Russian refugee. It is said Gen. Semeneff plans to conduct a campaign for closer economic relations between Japan and Mongolia.

To demonstrate that the weight of years rested lightly on their shoulders, Mrs. Mary Scheetz, age 83, Mrs. Emma Blank, are 75, and Mrs. Amanda Erdman, 75, all of Mountainville, Pa., entered the oat field of R. E. Erdman and challenged him to a binding contest. Each woman took a row and all finished well ahead of Mr. Erdman.

The entertainment committe reported that they are planning for an entertainment the latter part of this month. A social hour was spent after the meeting.

The quarterly meeting of the state aerie was held in Waterbury last Sunday with Grand Worthy President Charles Guenther as the principal speaker. He outlined the work that he wished would be carried out, not only in Connecticut but throughout the United States this year. The meeting was attended by State Treasurer W. R. Hastedt, C. O. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Marechal Concert

The concert to be given under the auspices of the Norwich Music Association at Slater Hall, Wednesday, October 21st, will certainly be an eventful occasion.

Maurice Marechal the talented violincellist has had an extraordinary triumph on the musical stage of all Europe. The Monde Musical of Paris says "The young violincellist, Maurice Marechal, who made a sensation last November at the Concerts Lamoreux, revealed such purity of expression and emotional charm in the concerts of Schumann, that he was called the Tribunal of the violincello.

The comparison is just and the compliment well merited. "There is probably no cellist at the present day who interprets music with such enlightened intelligence and incomparable technique, in addition to which Marechal has an elegance of style, expressing so much soul, heart and thought that skilled and ignorant alike are spellbound and enchanted." In all probability this will be the last opportunity to hear this great artist in so small a city as Norwich, as already managers are besieging him to return soon again to America, when he will be under contract to play in the large cities, presumably at exhibitant prices. In view of this fact, the public is urged not to miss this delightful treat only to regret it ever after.

As there is no regular musical course in Norwich this winter, this will be one of the very few chances to hear a brilliant and satisfying musician, whose program is sufficiently varied to suit all tastes.

Connecticut College Concert

The third attraction in the current college concert series is The Elshuco Trio which comes to New London January 18th. The determining factor in their engagement was the great number of requests for them again which came to the committee after their wonderful concert two years ago. Headed by Willem Willeke, this is one of the very best chamber music organizations now appearing before the public. No one who heard them on the occasion of their last visit will be willing to miss them this time.

An analytical lecture on the program to be played by the Philharmonic orchestra will be given by Professor J. Lawrence in the college gymnasium, Friday evening October 16th. Upon request, tickets will be mailed free of charge to guarantors and subscribers to the course.

Palace Theatre

Wallace Beery and Irvin Willat started together on the road to film fame five years ago. The famous actor and noted director were reunited during the filming of "Rugged Water," Willat's latest Paramount production in which Beery is featured with Lois Wilson, Warner Baxter and Phyllis Haver.

The picture that lifted Wallace Beery from the "among those present" class from "Behind the Door," a strong sea story directed by Irvin Willat. It made both men famous.

Like their first venture together "Rugged Water," deals with the sea. It was adapted from Joseph C. Lincoln's story of the life saving service on Cape Cod.

It is being shown for the last time today. 5 acts of Paramount vaudeville featuring De Carlos and Granada, the two famous Spanish dancers with their original orchestra and the Palace Symphony orchestra of eleven completes the program.

Meeting of the Ladies' Aid society Wednesday afternoon October 14th at 2 o'clock in the church parlors.

Two Features at the Broadway Sunday

Not so long ago, Mr. James Speyer, the New York banker, had an automobile accident. A young woman, occupying the other car, was injured and her father, as her guardian, sued Mr. Speyer for damages.

The jury heard the case, retired, and brought in a verdict for $1,500 damages, to be paid to the defendant's father.

This is only one illustration of how a technical point of law may confuse a jury. It has been said that 12 good men and true are only 12 times more liable to err than one. We all know of verdicts which were unjustified by either the law or the facts—many of them in cases involving human life or liberty.

Such a verdict of a jury is the basis of Phil Goldstone's current special, The Verdict, which unfolds the story of a lad accused of killing his sweetheart's persecutor and sentenced to the electric chair. As we follow his case through the mazes of an appeal to the higher court, the film of mystery deepens, until at the very end a flash of dramatic lightning reveals the truth.

Appearing in this breathless mystery picture are such noted stars of the screen as Lou Tellegen, William Collier, Jr., Elliott Dexter, Taylor Holmes, Gertrude Astor, Gaston Glass, Walter Long, Louise Lorraine Maude George, Paul Weigel, Josef Swickard, George Fawcett, Stanton Heck and Charles Clary. This is the first picture.

The second one is a thunderbolt thriller with Buffalo Bill, Jr., as Hard Hitting Hamilton.

Other real attractions are the augmented orchestra playing for the complete program, a comedy and Kinograms. Remember all seats are only 25 cents.

Bread Theater

Corinne Griffith Productions, Inc., announces that Declasse, which First National will offer at the Bread theater Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is the most pretentious work of Miss Griffith's individual producting career. It advances the following facts in substantiation of this statement:

Declasse was originally written in play form by Zoe Akins for Ethel Barrymore and that star found it a highly successful vehicle, not only for a long run on Broadway but an extended tour, as well, thus proving its entertainment value.

It was this proof, as well as the ideal role it affords, which prompted Miss Griffith to purchase the screen rights. And she has surrounded herself with a supporting cast of unusual proportions for picture. Included are many names which, themselves, have enjoyed the supremacy of the stellar lights—Clive Brook, the distinguished English actor; Lloyd Hughes, whose recent promising work caused First National to place him under a five-year contract; Louise Fazenda, former Keystone comedienne, and others.

As Lady Helen Haden, Miss Griffith has an extensive and varied field for the exercise of her histrionic talents. She is introduced as an English society leader, surrounded by the luxuries and gayeties of London's exclusive life.

Through the manipulations of an adventuress, this suddenly vanishes, and the drab severity and sensationalism of the divorce court befalls her.

Disgrace and ostracism follow, with New York next. Then destitution and the forced acceptance of a detestable marriage offer from a money-lender.

These are the chief phases of life Miss Griffith depicts, and these lead up to a highly emotional and thrilling climax in an automobile accident in the streets of Manhattan. But through this misfortune, she escapes the money-lender's clutches and finds her true love.

Robert Vignola, who directed the picture, is declared to have surpassed his former performances in development of the tensely dramatic action. The scenario was prepared by Charles Whittaker and Bradley King.

Palace Theatre.

Percy Marmont, Nell Hamilton and Mary Brian are featured in the leading roles of the new Herbert Brenon-Paramount production, "The Street of Forgotten Men," which will be shown at the Palace theatre on Sunday. The picture is an adaption by Paul Schofield of George Kibbe Turner's Liberty Magazine story by that name which is an underworld romance laid on the Bowery in the late 90's.

Marmont whom fans will remember best for his great work in "The Light That Failed," and "If Winter Comes," is cast as "Easy Money" Charlie in the picture. He is a fake cripple who preys a handsome living out of the gullible public. Charlie "inherits" a baby girl whom he brings up in the belief that he is a wealthy business man and then, when she is of marriageable age, "dies" that nothing might stand in her way of happiness.

Bridgeport White-eye, another cripple, determines to blackmail the girl, and Easy Money Charlie is compelled to come back to life to save her. It's a great situation, furnishing a "smash" climax for the production, which is a second "Miracle Man" if there's ever to be one.

Mary Brian is the girl Portland Exeter, who never learns that there are such men in the world as her guardian, nor such a place where they fought for her—"Diamond Mike's" saloon. Young Hamilton is the millionaire she marries.

Sunday night the Palace Orchestra will be augmented to twenty pieces.

The Iron Horse

Of the many interesting phases of the biz William Fox special production, The Iron Horse, one that stands out in relief against the historical background is the wonderful life-like representation of the types and characters of that period, shortly after the Civil war.

There are blue-eyed, light haired riders who might have ridden straight from the canvasses of the great artist, Frederick Remington; others with hair and eyes of the night that might, with a change of costume be lap-dissolved into the Spanish cavaliers who crossed the Cordilleras with Cortez. There are famous plainsmen—frontier characters—empire builders—pioneers—Indians—as real and picturesque as the once livid characters they are representing in the great moving picture of American endeavor, The Iron Horse.

Supporting the huge cast consisting of George O'Brien, Madge Bellamy, Gladys Hulette, Cyril Chadwick, Will Walling and Fred Kohler are such sterling players as Francis Powers, Jack O'Brien, Colin Chase, James Welch, James Marcus, J. Farrell MacDonald and Frances Teague.

The production was filmed under the direction of John Ford who made such past successes as North of Hudson Bay with Tom Mix; Cameo Kirkby, and Hoodman Blind. The Iron Horse comes to the Jodoin theatre, Bridgeport Sunday, Oct. 11th for a limited engagement.

New Device Measures Trails

One of the foresters of the Yosemite National park has devised a cyclometer to use in connection with those over the trail where ordinary surveying methods would be prohibitive, says Scientific American.

He uses ordinary cyclometer and frame attached to a long handle, which he can manipulate while he is riding his horse. The cyclometer is attached to the hub. It works very nicely and gives rough computations which are all that are needed. This device is a variation of the well-known odometer.

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Read this Remarkable Testimony Regarding Results from Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up ever getting well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is." — Mrs. J. A. JONES, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

GIVES WARNING AGAINST FAULTY AMATEUR WIRING

"Faulty insulation of electric wiring may be a second "Mrs. O'Leary's cow," according to the Connecticut committee on public service information, which in connection with the nation-wide Fire Prevention week, Oct. 4 to 10, has issued a caution to citizens of Connecticut against amateur attempts at wiring. "Mrs. O'Leary's cow," it will be remembered was the one which kicked the lantern that started the great Chicago fire fifty-fours years ago this week, and which since then has become symbolic of our everyday carelessness which now costs annually 15,000 lives and half a billion dollars.

Despite the fact that the public usually lays the origin of mysterious blazes to "crossed wires," actual investigation of fires in this state has proven that very few blazes result from properly installed electric wiring. Most of the fires which develop from wiring, usually come from those wires which have been purchased and installed by someone with only a hazy idea of the proper methods of doing the job. The practice of home-owners in making extensions to their electric service themselves, the committee says should be discouraged, for such attempts usually result in faulty insulation and the development of dangerous wiring conditions.

The laying of new wire and the installation of extensions to the present electric service in the home should be attended to by an expert, and "the best is none too good," the committee says. It advises that the electric company be consulted before extensions are attempted and cautions against amateur electricians.

LOCATING LANDING FIELDS FOR CONNECTICUT PLANES

There are now fifteen landing fields where airplanes may alight in various parts of Connecticut in emergency, according to survey made by the recently established aviation division of the state motor vehicle department. Three of them are first-class fields available for regular use by airplanes at any time. They are at Hartford, Bristol and Bethany. The others are emergency fields to be used chiefly when pilots find it necessary unexpectedly to alight, although some of them are being developed into general all-around fields. These, according to the air map of the state aviation division, are located at New Britain, Saybrook, Rockville, Niantic, Bridgeport, Salem, Southington, Danbury, Waterbury, Plainville, New London and Branford.

That at Niantic is used in connection with military maneuvers during the annual encampments of the national guard, and is to be further improved. The Salem field is on the property of United States Senator Hiram Bingham, adjoining his summer home, and while used primarily by the senator in connection with flying to and from places in Connecticut to keep appointments, is also available to any aviator in an emergency. Similarly, the Plainville field was laid out by Governor Trumbull for the same purpose. New Haven is the only large city of the state which is without a place where an airplane may land, if necessary, without difficulty.

It is the purpose of the state aviation division to increase the number of emergency landing fields throughout the state, and to that end, aviators of the 118th observation squadron have been busy for some time studying advantageous locations, first from the air and then on the ground, consulting owners of property considered desirable for an emergency field. They are finding most of the property owners are convinced that the location of a landing field on their land does not damage the property in any way.

It is pointed out by officials of the aviation section that landing fields are as important to pilots as harbors are to mariners, and that, for each emergency field projected in the state, the safety of aviation is advanced. Since it is possible for an airplane to glide many miles after the engine has stopped, the presence of emergency fields within gliding range would often obviate accidents in the event of serious engine trouble developing in such machines, it is said.

MOTORISTS ARE GIVING FREE-RIDERS THE GO BY

"Ride-jackers," or those fare-saving youths who line the highways seeking free rides from passing autoists, are becoming less popular with the Connecticut motorists and many of them are now finding themselves stranded by the roadside, according to members of the state police. Last Saturday the advent of the football season brought a large increase in the number of "ride-jackers" on the highways leading to New Haven, all of whom were seeking to avoid car fare to the Yale game.

It was formerly the custom of the autoist who had spare seats in his car to take these ride seekers along, enabling them to avoid paying trolley or railroad fare. Now, however, according to several members of the state police who were on duty on the highways leading to the Yale Bowl Saturday, most of the motorists give the ride-jackers a polite smile and continue on their way. The development of several law suits during the past year in which car owners were held responsible for injuries occurring to "ride-jackers," has changed the motorists attitude toward the free passengers from a friendly to a hostile one. In several cities in Massachusetts, the authorities have instructed policemen to arrest "ride-jackers" on the charge of idleness.

Another angle has also recently entered into the "ride-jacking" situation Members of the trolleymen's organization are becoming aware that the motorist's custom of picking up strangers in order that the latter may avoid car fare is causing their company financial losses which reflect on themselves. In at least one city in Connecticut, motormen and conductors on their own initiative are requesting auto owners to do away with this ancient practice which is detrimental to everyone except the "ride-packer."

JUDGE E. B. HAMIN'S GIFT TO FORMER NORWICH CURATE

McGuiness, pastor of St. Anthony's, Litchfield, has accepted on behalf of the parish, a memento of the late Pope Pius X, presented by Judge Elbert B. Hamlin. The gift offered by Judge Hamlin is a signed photograph of His Holiness, presented in 1906 to the judge's father, the late Rev. Dr. T. S. Hamlin during an interview held at the Vatican.

Dr. Hamlin was at the time pastor of the Church of the Covenant, Washington, and on a visit to Rome had several audiences with the pope regarding religious conditions in America, with a view to promoting closer relations between the various sects. On the eve of Dr. Hamlin's departure for America His Holiness sent the photograph in question to him, with a message of personal appreciation and estheem.

For several years the signed likeness of Pope Pius hung in the library of the rectory of the leading Presbyterian church in Washington and on the death of Dr. Hamlin came into possession of Judge Hamlin. The photograph shows His Holiness in his white robes with scarlet cape, and wearing the papal cross and fisherman's ring. The autograph reads, "Pius P. P. X."

FIND STATE'S INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS ARE GOOD

Miss Charlotte M. Holloway, industrial investigator of the state department of labor, makes the following report on industrial conditions in Connecticut: "a survey of the business conditions of the manufacturing industries of the state shows there is no falling off in the progress noted since January 1, 1925. Periods of comparative slowness and the non-production caused by shutting off of work during the summer holiday season are balanced by the business done in the other months so that the nine months already recorded show satisfactory indications of real progress.

Navy day, which takes place annually on Oct. 27, will be the all-day attraction at the Submarine Base on that date.

Every department on the base and every ship attached there will maintain "open house" for the benefit of all visitors, who will be given ample information and consideration, in compliance with orders given out by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. The demonstration will be nation-wide, and every available ship in the Navy will be assigned to coastwise and homeport duty for such exercises.

The U. S. S. Camden tender, will remain in port with submarines of the R and S-boat types. Visitors may familiarize themselves thoroughly with the latest types of Uncle Sam's undersea craft on this occasion.

The winter season's social activities opened Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Ernest Joseph King, wife of Captain King, commandant of the Submarine Base, acted as hostess to the Wednesday bridge club, of which she is a member. The affair was held at their quarters.

NORWICH TOWN

Rally day is to be observed at the First Congregational church and Sunday school tomorrow (Sunday.) The minister has asked that there be a good representation of the church members at the morning worship, also that every member of the Sunday school attend that period, in order to make the day one of special significance. During this week the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey has had the co-operation of several members of the parish in his efforts to carry out the plan by calling at the homes of several parish members who do not attend church regularly and personally inviting them to be present at church and Sunday school on rally day. Stone, pastor of Hanover Congregational church. Miss Freeman, aunt of Mrs. Stone, was also a guest at the Hanover Congregational parsonage September 9th, when in observance of her 81st birthday she was entertained at a special dinner by Rev. and Mrs. Stone. Among other gifts she then received a beautiful loaf of angel cake, sent to the parsonage for Miss Freeman by Mr. and Mrs. Angus Park. On the cake were eight large candles and one small one significant of 8-1. Mrs. Mary Rollins, the efficient matron at the home, and her able assistant, Mrs. Mary White, the nurse, were also present at the dinner, as guests of Rev. and Mrs. Stone.

BODY OF MISSING AIRMAN FOUND IN WRECKED PLANE

Searchers Found Body of Charles Ames, Bearing Only a Few Bruises, in the Cockpit of the Machine—Airplane Was Discovered on Nittany Mountain Six Miles North of Belle Fonte, Pa.—Plane Had Crashed Into Four Trees, Coming to a Stop Against the Trunk of a Fifth Tree—Air Mail Pilot Disappeared Ten Days Ago.

BELLE FONTE, Pa., Oct. 11.—(By the Associated Press)—The frantic search for Charles Ames, air mail pilot who disappeared ten days ago, ended today on Nittany mountain, six miles northeast of Belle Fonte, when the body of the birdman was found in his wrecked plane, which had crashed against the side of the mighty hill. A party of searchers, one of the thousands who tramped the hills and valleys since Ames was reported lost, came upon the wreckage this morning. Ames' body, bearing only a few bruises, was found in the cockpit of the machine.

Fate conspired to keep the fate of the birdman unknown for, when the wrecked ship of the air was found, it was discovered that four limbs of the forest, broken off when the plane crashed into them, had formed a perfect cover. Under these four trees, completely shrouded, rested the wreckage containing the pilot's body.

Word of the find spread through the mountains like wildfire and within a short time hundreds of searchers, together with air mail officials from the Belle Fonte field, were on the scene. The body, lifted from the cockpit, was brought to Belle Fonte and taken to an undertaking establishment.

That Ames met instant death was the belief of the air mail officials. His face was badly bruised but the body contained few other marks.

The point where Ames crashed is densely wooded. It was evident that the pilot, flying low, crashed into the four trees, the plane coming to a stop against the trunk of a fifth. The trees closed in upon the wreckage making it impossible for the airmen who have searched this entire region to locate the spot where Ames met death.

Ames was on his course, and was near the Hecla light, beacon for airmen, when he met his fate. Over the point where his body rested in the debris, other airmen have passed each day, flying east and west with their cargoes of mail for New York and Chicago.

The shipment of mail in Ames plane was intact, and shortly after it was removed from the wreckage it was on its way west in a plane piloted by E. B. Hill.

The body was lifted from the plane and sent to Belle Fonte after which the mail was taken from the wreckage. Superintendent Cecil Eggs of the air mail service examined the debris in the hope that he could learn just what caused Ames to crash. Coroner Heaton, at Phillipsburg was summoned and it was expected that he would reach Belle Fonte to conduct an inquest by nightfall.

Among the thousands of searchers out in the mountains about Clarion was Paul Ames, of Washington, D. C., brother of the dead pilot. He was notified to come to Belle Fonte and take charge of the body. Ames' parents are in Los Angeles. The pilot himself resided in Cleveland.

It was on the night of October 1 that Ames disappeared. Flying with night mail from New York to Chicago he passed over all the regular beacons and fields east of Belle Fonte. Then he disappeared. At dawn on the morning of October 2 the search started. Airmen combed the regular flying route east and west, with this point as a center. Thousands of residents of the region joined in the hunt, and finally 350 national guardsmen were sent out to sweep the Clarion district. Rewards were offered for information. From dawn to dusk each day these thousands of searchers trudged the mountains while aviators scanned the district from their planes. For several days there was hope that Ames would be found alive. But as the searchers came in at dusk each day without word of the pilot, the hopes dwindled until finally it was generally admitted that Ames was dead.

One of the hardest tasks of the long vigil by air mail officials was the running down of rumors and reports that Ames had been located, or that his plane had been heard over certain points.

The plane was found by John D. Earnitt, the fifteen-year-old son of E. A. Earnitt, a farmer of Hecla, nearby. The lad was one of a party organized this morning to search the mountainside.

The plane was completely wrecked but the 188 pounds of mail contained in 13 sacks was undamaged and was forwarded to Chicago late today.

The place where the body was found was on the true course to the Belle Fonte field. The machine was lying head down the mountain side and slightly tilted to the right. Ames' body was strapped in the seat leaning over the right side of the plane, with the head resting on the right arm. The face was partly mashed and there was a deep wound on the head.

The tops of six nearby trees had been cut off and two other trees were snapped off near the bottom where the plane finally landed. The wings were torn off and the motor was split in two lengthwise. There was no evidence of fire.

It was the theory of those familiar with the air mail course in this territory, that Ames probably mistook the Hecla gap light ahead of him as the Belle Fonte field and started to descend to make his landing. As the weather was foggy the night he disappeared, he was evidently flying low so as not to miss the field. In doing so, it is believed, he struck the tops of the trees and then fell.

Ames was about 33 years old. He was a world war veteran and had been in the air mail service several years. He was regarded as one of the most experienced pilots in the service.

Ames' death is the second that has occurred among air mail pilots in the mountain ranges of Pennsylvania, in March, 1924. Brooks Hyde Pearson was caught in a snowstorm near Curwensville, west of Belle Fonte and is believed to have dashed into a mountain side. He was found after several hours' search in his partly burned plane by a farmer in a ravine in the wooded part of his farm.

GERMANY WARY ABOUT JOINING THE L. OF N.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 11—The shadow of soviet Russia still darkens Europe's all important conference convoked to devise permanent security among nations and thus prepare the world for a general decrease in the burden of armaments.

The struggle which the allied powers are having with Germany at Locarno is compared to a similar struggle they had with Turkey at Lausanne. The goal is the same, inducing Germany like Turkey to link up her economic and political future not with the east but with the west.

At Lausanne the allies, under the leadership of England, succeeded in preventing the Turks from rejecting the occidental powers and embracing only those of the orient, and, despite the supreme difficulties encountered, they have equal confidence tonight that Germany can be shown that her destiny lies, not with Russia exclusively but with the west primarily, in addition to rational relations with Russia, which no one here seeks to impede.

The anxiety which the league of nations, and particularly the allied powers have shown to get Germany into the league has only served to make Germany more shy and hesitating. The German statesmen say bluntly: "Five years ago they blackballed us; and now they are seeking to drag us in by our coattails. The German people are not fools; they have gone very well without the league so far, and they have their relations with Russia to think of. We simply cannot afford, as a member of the league to risk our friendship with Russia by participating in possible economic, financial or military penalties against Russia."

That is why Germany wants special treatment if she joins the league, at least until such time as European armaments are reduced to a point where Germany will be less inferior in strength.

On their part the allies, in seeking to placate Germany, realize that they are playing a dangerous game, risking as they do a weakening of the league covenant and incurring the wrath of the other members. But they are apparently ready to go as far as a recommendation to the council that Germany's special position should be taken into consideration.

In the meantime the difficulties over the French guarantees to Poland have been virtually settled by tying it up with the league covenant. France and Poland are found to have a defensive alliance, and article XV makes it clear that if the council in any dispute fails to reach a unanimous report, then the league members have a right to take such action as they deem necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

PRESIDENT'S AIR BOARD TO RESUME HEARINGS TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The President's air board will get back to work tomorrow after a recess of several days, with the hope of speeding its inquiry into the many sided aircraft controversy so that the taking of testimony may be completed by the week-end.

Chairman Dwight W. Morrow is anxious that this be done, if possible, to give the board plenty of time for the drafting of its report, which President Coolidge desires before the opening of Congress.

The board already has covered to a large extent the military uses of aircraft, and also has touched slightly on commercial developments. It expects to devote part of its remaining time to hearing aircraft manufacturers and representatives of commercial aircraft companies.

Chairman Martin B. Madden of the house appropriations committee, has been asked to appear before the board tomorrow, and it also plans to examine Rear Admiral William S. Sims, retired, who asserted before the house aircraft committee last winter that the airship carrier had succeeded the battleship as the backbone of the navy. Postmaster General New also has been recalled for further questioning on the air mail service.

HIGH WIND INDIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR FIRES

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 11—The high wind was indirectly responsible for two serious fires here today.

The first fire was at 4 o'clock this morning when the home owned by Isadore Birnbaum at 28 Winthrop street was damaged, the loss being estimated at $4,000. The Birnbaum family occupied the first floor, Clarence Hayward and family the second floor and a room on the third floor.

The Hayward family entertained friends last night and lighted a fire in the fireplace. They retired at midnight and at 4 o'clock the upper part of the house was found to be in flames. Twelve persons were driven from the house in their night clothing. Chief William J. Noble said the blaze was due to a defective fireplace.

A. F. OF L. MEMORIAL FOR SAMUEL GOMPERS TODAY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 11—When the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor reconvenes tomorrow morning for its second week, it will face a mass of committee reports dealing with scores of resolutions on a wide variety of subjects.

The afternoon session will be devoted entirely to a memorial to the late Samuel Gompers, president of the federation for more than forty years. Old time friends and workers with Mr. Gompers will speak.

The resolution offered last week by J. Shafir of the Chicago Bank Employes association, asking the United States to recognize soviet Russia, today aroused interest when a telegram was made public from the Chicago organization doubting Shafir's right to introduce the measure. The telegram was signed by Duane Swift, vice president of the union. Other measures introduced by Shafir, especially concerning labor banks, also were assailed by Mr. Swift. Mr. Shafir could not be located today, fellow delegates saying that he was out of the city.

General prediction was made by the federation officers that the committee would report unfavorably in the Shafir resolution dealing with the soviet. They pointed out that President Green last week publicly turned down the plea made by Arthur A. Purcell, member of the British parliament, that the federation establish relations with the Russian workers.

WATERBURY BOY DIES OF GUNSHOT WOUNDS

WATERBURY, Oct. 11—Charles Sweeney, Jr., 17, of Porter street, Watertown, died in the Waterbury hospital this morning as the result of gun shot wounds sustained yesterday when his father, firing at a bird in an orchard near their home hit his boy. The victim of this hunting accident with his father and his uncle, Richard Sweeney, set out yesterday with guns and dog. The party had separated and dense undergrowth hid the boy and his uncle from the lad's father.

CLAIMS NEW CANAAN TOWN MEETING ILLEGAL

NEW CANAAN, Oct. 11—According to Town Clerk Edward Rutledge, action taken at a special town meeting Friday night was illegal and another meeting will have to be called. The meeting voted a $150,000 bond issue for a new high school building and the school building committee was authorized to erect the school in Mead Memorial park and use $12,000 for beautifying the grounds.

The last item, according to the town clerk, is the illegal one, as, at a previous meeting, the money was voted to buy another site, upon recommendation of the finance board. The town clerk claims the money cannot be used as it was voted Friday night, until the finance board meets and makes another recommendation and another town meeting is held to voted on that recommendation.

FAMOUS PATENT LAWYER KILLED BY AN AUTOMOBILE

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 11—James S. Coleman, 57, patent lawyer, who is credited with having handled a major ty of Thomas A. Edison's patents, was killed late today when struck by an automobile while crossing the street.

Charles Miller, driver of the car was later arrested and held on a homicide charge.

Aside from being known in legal circles, Mr. Coleman was recognized as a student and scholar, and was a friend of the late Robert Ingersoll.

Mr. Coleman was a native of Washington, D. C., and his mother lives there at the present time. His father was sheriff of the District of Columbia, at the time of President Garfield's death and conducted the execution of his assassin.

State of Business is Sound and Healthful

Cotton Goods Market Was Badly Upset by Break in Prices—Improvement Reported in Other Textiles.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(A. P.)—All the familiar signs of trade expansion were present last week, giving definite indications of a sound and healthful state of business. In many instances the progress of commercial activity was slow but there was a distinct quickening of retail trade that carried promise of further improvement in wholesale channels and in manufacturing lines.

Resumption of the gold movement from London to New York was the most interesting development of the week from the viewpoint of international trade. Shipments of $6,000,000 or more are now on their way to swell the enormous stocks of the metal already held in the United States. Unless the movement becomes considerably larger, it is expected to have little effect on credit conditions here but bankers would not be surprised if the loss of gold caused a stiffening of London money rates which would eventually counter-act the reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate.

Reports of railway operations which appeared last week were unmistakably favorable. Not since the transportation act became operative five years ago have August earnings of the class one carriers been so impressive.

Continuation of the freight movement at a high level was reflected in the announcement that car loadings for the week ended Sept. 26, numbered 1,120,643, a figure exceeded only once before this year.

Steel operations expanded to about 80 per cent of capacity for the entire industry, with steady growth reported in the volume of inquiries for various steel products. Several large rail orders were placed during the week and more are in sight for the next few weeks. Buying of structural steel was active and automobile manufacturers have found it necessary to keep in the market.

The increase in unfilled orders at the end of September, amounting to 204,494 tons, was the first gain since early in the year and was widely heralded as convincing proof of the upward trend of business.

Scattering irregularities persisted in the business situation but none of them could be characterized as seriously adverse. The cotton goods markets were badly upset by the sharp break in cotton prices, which followed another upward revision in the government's crop estimated. Continued improvement was reported in other textile lines.

Bank clearings of the leading cities, as reported by Dun's review, last week totalled $9,823,789,000, a gain of 7 per cent over the preceding week and almost 20 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

BLOCK OF WOOD MAY REVEAL TRAGEDY OF THE SEA

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP)—An inscription scratched on a block of wood which was washed up on the island of Martha's Vineyard today said that disaster had overtaken the schooner Norka in mid-Atlantic last August. The block was described in the inscription as the last hope of five survivors who were adrift in an open boat on Aug. 2, approximately a thousand miles east southeast of Boston. The message signed by five sets of initials, requested that the Donald Murchie, Dedham, Mass. be notified. The Dedham police said tonight that no Donald Murchie was listed there.

In the 1923 list of merchant vessels of the United States the Norka is listed as a schooner yacht of 28 tons, built in South Boston, Mass., and sailing from New York city as her home port.

The block of wood was picked up on the north shore of Martha's Vineyard today by Arthur Green of North Tisbury. The message read:

"Latitude 37.15 north; longitude 59.-03 west. We are adrift in an open boat with only a little food and water. This is last hope of five survivors of schooner Norka. Eighth month, second day. H. M., M. V. W., S. L. W., L. M. W., R. E. L. W. Notify Donald Murchie, Dedham, Mass."

The inscription was not written in pencil, but impossible to tell how long it had been in the water.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—A series of radio concerts and recitals of unusual calibre was announced tonight following a conference of officials of the Radio Corporation of America and the Steinway and Sons Piano Manufacturers. They are to mark the first complete programs" of air character to be broadcast, the statement said, each occupying at least 90 minutes of the programs of stations at New York, Washington and Schenectady.

Josef Hofman, pianist, will give a recital in the inauguration concert, Oct. 27. William Mengelberg of the Philharmonic orchestra, being the director for the evening. Five other programs are listed in the announcement between that date and Dec. 4.

WOMEN IN LONDON ARE WEARING MUD GUARDS

LONDON, Oct. 11—(A. P.)—Mud guards for women's ankles have appeared here with the arrival of the autumn rains. The guards are really a kind of half gaiter devised to protect silk stockings from mud splashed up in the streets by traffic. The stocking protector or guard extends upwards about a foot in length and is held in place by three supporters, one of which encircles the limb just below the knee.

WATERBURY FIRE TRUCK CRASHED INTO HOUSE

WATERBURY, Oct. 11—Truck No. 2 of the Burton street engine house, a pipe ton machine, crashed into a three family tenement house at 113-121 East Farm street, while on its way to answer an alarm early today. Six firemen narrowly escaped injury in the accident caused by a broken steering rod. The machine tore up twenty feet of wire fence, tore up lawn and hedges and finally came to a stop when it hit the stone steps of the house, the impact waking the residents.

French Cabinet Studies Debt Project

M. Caillaux Presented His Report of the French Debt Negotiations at Washington Last Week.

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—M. Caillaux, newly returned from his debt finding labors at Washington, presented his report at a cabinet council today, and at the conclusion of the three hour discussion, Premier Painleve declared: "The project M. Caillaux brought back from America will be thoroughly studied. Negotiations with the United States will continue."

The cabinet will meet again Tuesday and go into further examination of the finance minister's statement on the Washington negotiations, and it is likely to be re-examined at a ministerial council a week from Tuesday, after the convention of the radical party at Nice, which M. Caillaux is to address, has terminated.

On leaving Elysee palace, M. Caillaux emphasized the fact that the whole of the inter-allied debts problem was still in the "stage of study," and notably the projected provisional agreement with the United States, which had not been decided upon one way or the other.

ESTIMATES OF CITY POPULATIONS ON JULY 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Census bureau calculations of city populations as of July 1 this year, covering a large part of the United States were made public today by the department of commerce.

New York, being omitted, Chicago, with a total of 2,905,329, was the largest city listed. For Philadelphia the bureau estimated 1,979,361; for Detroit 1,242,044; for Cleveland 936,485; for St. Louis 821,543; for Baltimore 796,-296; Boston 781,529; Pittsburgh 631,-568; San Francisco 557,550; Buffalo 538,061; and Milwaukee 509,192.

These were the only cities listed which were assigned more than a half million of population. The bureau's calculations were based on the rate of increase in growth shown by the cities considered during the decade 1910-1920, except in a few cases where recent state or local census figures were available. Calculations were not made for Los Angeles, Atlanta, Akron, Oklahoma City, Norfolk and a few other points where there was reason to believe the results would be far from correct.

LADY CYNTHIA MOSLEY EXPLAINS HER ATTITUDE

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Lady Cynthia Mosley, the daughter of the late Lord Curzon, discussed before the London Press club last evening her position as labor candidate for Parliament. Among other things, she said there was more culture among the "dead" men from the Clyde than in any Mayfair drawing room. She then went on to explain her own attitude, saying:

"I do not look upon myself as a stunt, as I happen to be very much in earnest, and I do not think it at all odd that I should belong to labor. The only thing appears odd to me is that other people should think it funny."

She could not help but think that she and her husband were just as much handicapped in entering the Labor party as a workingman entering the conservative party, and yet if any attacked him they were looked upon as snobs.

"To attack us," she exclaimed, "is only snobbishness the other way around. The labor party is an intelligent, delightful family."

LINER CAMERONIA RESCUED SIX MEN OF COAST GUARD

Guard Patrol Boat 238 Was Described as Abandoned in Latitude 40.32 B, Longitude 70.08 West—Message Was Received by Radio Corporation of America—Clears Up Mystery of an Earlier S O S Call Sent Out About 200 Miles East of Nantucket Lightship—Three Other Coast Guard Boats Were Reported in Distress—Crew on Boat That Put Into New London Battled With Storm 36 Hours.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(A. P.) — A wireless message received today by the Radio Corporation of America announced the rescue by the liner Cameronia of six members of the Coast Guard patrol boat "No. 128" (2357) which was described as "abandoned in Latitude 40.32 B. and Longitude 70.08 west."

Boston dispatches early today reported Coast Guard patrol boat No. 238 adrift, without fuel, in approximately the same location. Two destroyers from Provincetown and the cutter Tampa were seeking the drifting craft.

The message was also seen as clearing the mystery of an earlier S. O. S. call, supposed to have been sent out by an unidentified vessel from about 200 miles east of Nantucket lightship.

THREE OTHER PATROL BOATS WERE IN DISTRESS

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—(A. P.)—The storm that lashed the Atlantic seaboard last night and yesterday disabled or distressed four craft, it was revealed in radio messages received here today. Three were coast guard patrol boats operating in New England waters.

The coast guard patrol boats 128, 238 and 147, operating out of Nantucket, Boston and New London, respectively, were caught in the 70 mile gale. Tonight, the crew of six of the 128 had been rescued by the Cunarder Cameronia, the 238 was still adrift without fuel off Cape Cod, and the 146 was reported to have been picked up by the cutter Mojave which was towing her back to her base.

The possibility that a fifth vessel might be in distress was revealed when another incomplete message was intercepted, stating that a steamer was aground at "Owl Point Buoy—" the sender, station addressed and the remainder of the name were not picked up.

Messages received here today from the Cameronia showed that she was standing by the CG-128 this forenoon and that early this afternoon the boat was abandoned and the crew of six taken aboard. The position was given as Latitude 40.32 north, and Longitude 70.80 west about 100 miles south of Nantucket. The Cameronia then proceeded on her way to Glasgow. Later it was reported that one of the searching coast guard cutters had picked up the drifting boat. The CG-128 had been two days out of the station at Nantucket on a four day patrol trip.

The CG-238, with eight men aboard, exhausted her fuel yesterday after fighting the storm that was sweeping her toward the southeastward. She maintained radio communication with the Boston base and rode out the storm while the cutter Tampa and the coast guard destroyer pressed the search, prepared either to re-fuel her or take her in tow. Tonight she was reported to have drifted to a point 28 miles southeast of Cape Cod light and an early rescue was hoped for.

The coast guard cutter Mojave, patrolling in southern New England waters, reported today that she had the CG-147 in tow. The 147 operates from New London, Connecticut, and carries a crew of approximately eight men.

New London reported tonight that a second patrol boat from the coast guard station, the 126, there had been caught in the storm and had made port today, badly battered. Her crew of seven was nearly exhausted after 36 hours battling with the storm.

MADE NEW LONDON HARBOR AFTER BATTLE WITH STORM

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11.—(A. P.)—Believing that they had escaped death by a narrow margin, the seven members of the crew of the coast guard patrol boat 126, piloted their craft into this port today after a thirty-six hour battle with the storm which has been raging off the coast.

The bow of the 126 was battered to pieces, one engine was out of commission and the men were near a state of exhaustion when the fall boat crippled into New London.

The crew, working with shoes unlaced, ready to take the sea, never lost control of the boat during the storm and the craft was making but two knots an hour when it reached its home port.

The 126, a 75 footer, was on duty at Rum Row when the storm broke Friday night and was watching the schooner Arcola, of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, which was anchored off Block Island near the scene of the wreck of the S-51.

The Arcola put to sea when the storm came, up and despite the fact that the wind made such a trip hazardous for the frail patrol boat, the 126 gave chase.

The chase took the patrol boat 125 miles off Montauk Point. The 126 kept in touch with the destroyer Patterson and the patrol boat 157 was directed to relieve the 126. The 126 was ordered to return to Fort Pond bay at Montauk Point and fought its way back to that harbor.

There, however, conditions were about as dangerous as they were at sea. The 126 was tied to the dock with five ropes but these failed to hold and the patrol boat crashed several times against the pier, battering its bow to pieces.

Yesterday morning, Captain Frederick Brown, of Mystic, ordered the 126 to sea again in an attempt to reach Fishers Island. The boat had gone but a short distance when one of the engines went to pieces and the craft, battered about by the high waves, crawled along at two knots an hour. Fishers Island was reached and passed and the 126 continued to New London. It is now laid up at the state pier in need of extensive repairs.

EAU GALLIE, Fla., Oct. 11 (AP)—The pleasure boat Clara B., owned by Captain E. Arnold of Malabar, Fla., and under charter to the Melbourne Farms, capsized when attempting to turn about just inside Sebastian inlet, 27 miles south of here late tonight. Fourteen are known to have drowned while several are reported missing. A rough sea made rescue work almost impossible while those who were saved are badly cut from being thrown against the rocks.

The bodies rescued and brought here are those of Mrs. L. Davidson, wife of the manager of the Melbourne Farms, a Mr. Roach and his 12-year-old son, and A. Mr. Salmon, all of Wichita, Kas. The remainder of the party is said to have come from Wichita and surrounding territory last Thursday to look over property of the Melbourne Farms company.

The boat left late this afternoon for a short sea journey it was said. Upon passing through the inlet south of here found the sea running so high that it was decided to put about and return to port. The rough sea and the short turn are thought to have been the cause for the upset. Fishermen joined in the rescue and other bodies are expected to be brought here tonight.

DECLINE IN THE POTATO HARVEST THIS YEAR

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Oct. 11.—(AP)—The six New England states, in company with the rest of the country will show a decline in the potato harvest this year, according to the forecast of the New England crop reporting service made public today.

The total forecast for United States potatoes on October 1 is 344,227,000 bushels, practically unchanged from a month ago, but 24 per cent below the 454,000,000 bushel crop of last year and 18 per cent below the five year average.

"The six New England states had 42,326,000 bushels, or 25 per cent less than last year and six per cent less than their average," the report stated. "A 25 per cent shortage from last year caused the early potato crop to be marketed earlier than usual, thus leaving a clear field with prospects for a strong market and rising prices for the late crop."

One of the boys appropriated the back-door key to his own house and upon finding that it also unlocked the rear door of the Gamache home, they entered. They ransacked the house somewhat. In Tardiff's bed room on the ground floor they found the gun. A bullet hole piercing the bed and the door showed that the youths had given the revolver a try-out, before making their get-away. Mrs. Gamache at first thought that three rings, one a valuable diamond, had been taken, but they were found later with the exception of one which she was in the hopes of finding later. The boys admitted their guilt when arrested, but flatly denied having taken any rings or anything but the revolver and flashlight.

GEORGE E. TRACY IS KILLED CAR RUNS INTO STATE FENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 11. — George E. Tracy, 25 of 956 West Boulevard, Hartford, died almost instantly at 1:45 o'clock Saturday forenoon, when his Ford sedan collided with a state fence two feet west of the Columbia bridge over the Willimantic river. The heavy top rail crushed through the machine, crushing in the roof and chest. Tracy was hurled towards the city from the road and according to wheel tracks was driving on the left side of the road in rounding a sharp curve some 100 feet west of the Columbia bridge. Here Columbia avenue ends and the Windham-Willimantic Association Jr. boy losses was coming over the bridge from toward Hartford. The sudden [illegible] of the bus as he rounded the curve apparently bewildered Tracy. He applied his brakes and the sedan skidded some 60 feet to the right of the road where it struck the soft dirt shoulder of the macadam. The car veered half-way round so that it was at right angles to the highway with the front wheels in the road and sagging, the machine leveled three of the heavy state fence posts. The top rail, a heavy beam 2 feet long and eight by eight inches was plowed through the right door of the car and crashed into Tracy with such force that it sprung the lock on the left door. Tracy was found with his legs held firmly under the steering post by the rail and the remainder of his body hanging out of the door. Occupants of another machine which had been following the sedan lost no time in taking Tracy to St. Joseph's hospital, but upon arriving at the institution it was found that life had been extinguished long. At the hospital Medical Examiner Louis I. Mason, medical examiner, pronounced death due to a fracture of the skull caused by an automobile accident. Medical Examiner Mason rendered his finding to Coroner Arthur G. Bill at Danielson, and gave permission to have the body turned over to relatives.

Tracy was Connecticut representative of the Thompson-Plaster X-ray company of Chicago, being connected with E. Brooke Crombie of 368 Main street, Hartford. In the rear of the death car was an X-ray machine which was found undamaged. The machine bore Connecticut registry number 66-483. Chief of Police Allan McArthur was notified of the accident, but finding it out of his jurisdiction he in turn summoned the state police barracks. State Officers Frank Schweikert and Frank Kulowsky conducted an investigation.

BOY'S SPINAL CORD CUT— WAS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 11. — Arthur Potter, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter of Windham Center, is in a critical condition at St. Joseph's hospital with a partially severed spinal cord as the result of being accidentally shot in the neck from a .38-calibre revolver in the hands of Thomas Lewis, a neighbor, Friday evening.

Potter and a chum, Lloyd Jacobs, had gone to visit Mr. Lewis, who was showing them the revolver. In demonstrating to them how easily the trigger worked he pulled it. This cell was empty but when he pulled the trigger a second time the supposedly empty gun discharged a bullet which entered the right side of young Potter's neck and lodged on the left side. Dr. E. E. Guild answered hurriedly to the call and finding that the injury was severe ordered the boy removed to the hospital, where he was treated by Doctors Edward J. Ottenheimer and C. E. Simonds. Saturday the boy's body became paralyzed and an X-ray photograph disclosed that the spinal cord has been nearly severed.

GIRL MILK PEDDLER STRUCK BY CAR OF COWARDLY DRIVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 11.—A rigid investigation is being conducted by the state police into the severe injuring of Esther Dunnock, the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dunnock of The Ridges, when she was struck by an automobile while peddling milk in a little express wagon about 7:30 o'clock Saturday night. The driver of the car escaped without leaving any clue as to his identity and a swift search of the highways for miles around by State Policemen Frank Schweikert and Frank Kulowsky of the local temporary barracks, failed to locate any automobile which might be mixed with the accident. The child was apparently struck while drawing the cart on the right side of the Coventry-Willimantic highway, going west, at a point in front of P. S. Enos home at The Ridges. Mr. Enos heard the crash and believed at the time that the high wind had broken a window somewhere in his house, but upon failing to locate any such damage he dismissed the matter. Some 20 minutes later William Booth of 21 Park street, this city, and Fred Beckwith of South Windham came along in a Ford car. One of the young men saw an object move beside the road. The car was stopped and the injured girl was found. Several bottles of milk and a lantern littered the road. The child was unconscious from a cut over the eye and was in a semi-conscious state. She was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital, and Sunday had somewhat rallied and recovered consciousness. It is believed that an X-ray will be taken in an effort to locate internal injuries. The mystery which surrounds the cowardly act on the part of the driver of the car which struck the child was made more baffling when the state officers failed to find the rear wheels and body of the little cart. The front wheels and axle and the handle pole were found. After searching the vicinity thoroughly by daylight Sunday, the officers could not arrive at any conclusion as to the whereabouts of the remainder of the toy wagon.

The Dunnock girl had several customers at The Ridges and had peddled milk in the hand-drawn cart for some two years. It was Sunday that the parents had previously been warned of the danger of this practice, through accident or mistreatment of some kind, as the little girl was forced to walk beside the highway for a considerable distance, in covering her route.

Saturday, the selectmen of Killingly closed the south section of the bridge over the Assawaga river at Cottage and Main streets. This action was taken as a precautionary measure, to avoid the possibility of accidents. The north section of the bridge has been closed for about ten days, to permit the building of a new concrete bridge by the state highway department. Much traffic has been using the south span. This section of the bridge was never built and never intended to carry such heavy traffic. Including ponderous motor trucks as are passing over the highways today, so the selectmen have deemed it wise to close it to travel. The closing of this span of the bridge makes only a short detour necessary for those using the east-west route through Danielson—the Providence-Hartford route. No more than a minute or two will be lost by motorists making the detour via Water and Franklin streets to the Brooklyn highway or, coming the other way, into Main street. The bridge will be closed for a number of weeks.

STERLING INVENTOR'S IDEA, STOLEN, SOLD FOR $680,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 11—There is a possibility that Sterling has an inventive genius who will startle the world. He is Joseph Wolski, a native of Poland and for 17 years resident in Sterling, where his abilities have advanced him from a poorly paid employe of the United States Finishing company to a responsible position with the big concern.

Wolski has said to have perfected a sort of machine gun capable of firing 7,500 shots a minute from five barrels that operate simultaneously. Such a gun is expected to reap havoc among aerial fleets. It is said that Wolski would like to have the United States government own the patent rights to this gun in preference to any other nation.

Wolski is a linguist. He speaks seven languages. It is said that he invented a bomb during the World war, happened to show it to the agent of a manufacturing concern who is said to have pirated its special feature for the benefit of the concern he represented, which concern, it is related, afterwards sold the patent rights on the bomb to the federal government for $680,000.

COLD, GALE, SNOW FLURRIES MADE SATURDAY TRYING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 11—The fact that Saturday was cold enough to freeze the shock-absorbers off a flapper isn't any evidence that all the fall season is going to be that way, dire long distance weather prophecies to the contrary notwithstanding. But Saturday—October 10—was so unusual, weather-wise, that it remains a subject for press comment. At least all the Sunday papers had something about it.

For one thing, there were flurries of snow in Danielson and the temperature was below the freezing point before the sun went down behind the western hills. Icicles hung from roofs following the rain of late Friday and the early hours of Saturday morning.

Fur wraps, performing other than the decorative service to which they were applied during the hot weather season, appeared in quantities. Radiators of motor cars were frozen. Hunters came in chilled from the woods. The day was more like late November than early October.

Wind of gale force whipped falling leaves about and drove the cold into buildings where fires had to be rushed to keep humanity comfortable. In sections of Pomfret sufficient snow fell to whiten the ground. The same was true in other nearby towns.

October 10 was particularly rough. No such day is recalled for so early in the fall season in many years. All the discomfort the weather brought was in a measure compensated for by the manner in which it boosted business. It turned the thoughts of procrastinators to warmer underwear, fall wraps and other things that help keep the wheels of industry revolving.

The temperature did not drop below 24 degrees, but the gale out of the northwest made the day about as uncomfortable a one as will be experienced until real winter sets its seal upon this part of the country.

TREASURER ALPERT EXPLAINS HARDSHIPS OF FILM TAX LAW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Oct. 11.—From the stage of the Bradley theatre, Jake Alpert, a partner and the treasurer of the S-A Amusement company gave a talk on the results of the new film tax law and urged all in the audience to sign a card addressed to Governor Trumbull asking him to call a special session of the general assembly to consider the revision or repeal of the law.

Mr. Alpert said that the law had been in operation two months and during that time the several motion picture exchanges pulled out of the state so that all films that were used here had to be shipped from the outside. There is a tax placed on every film that enters the state and the way the law is now working, the theater manager must pay the tax and not the producers, as was intended when the law was passed.

He stated that ninety per cent. of the legislators have been interviewed and that practically all said they did not know they were voting on the bill when it came up as it was passed on the final day of the legislature with hundreds of other bills. Mr. Alpert said that it would cost about $60,000 to call a special session of the legislature and that already that much had been received from the tax. It was pointed out that the way the law is now worded, the burden falls upon the theatre manager, who must pass it along to his customers. He claimed that the movies was "the poom man's amusement."

Mr. Alpert said that at present the Bradley theatre has contracts signed for pictures up to the first of January for the first of February and after that there would be a possibility of getting only two pictures a week. He said the pictures contracted for were signed up last August.

Mr. Alpert claimed that the tax for the Bradley theatre amounts to about $1,500 a year, or $30 a week. There is also extra expense of express, telephones and trips to New York which will bring the increase to about $2,000 a year. In closing he urged every one to sign the card calling for the extra session.

The card reads:

"To His Excellency

"Governor John H. Trumbull—

"To preserve my favorite amusement, and to forestall any additional cost of admission, as the result of the Film Tax Law, I, the undersigned, respectfully urge Your Excellency to consider the calling of a special session of the general assembly to reconsider this law."

These cards are being distributed at the theatre.

A telegram received in Westerly Saturday from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Davis and party, who are on a motor tour of the White Mountains was to the effect that four inches of snow had fallen where they were and that it was still snowing.

The Westerly Automatic Telephone company in its answer to the complaint of the Westerly Town Council, filed last week with the Public Utilities Commission, admits that the Westerly exchange subscribers are required to pay a 10-cent toll charge to Watch Hill exchange, but denies that said toll charge is unfair, unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory and avers that such charge is no higher than necessary to give the company a reasonable revenue.

The commission has not yet fixed a date for a hearing on this complaint. John G. Wray, telephone expert, who was employed by the city of Providence in its fight against the rate increase by the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, has been engaged by the town of Westerly to assist in its fight against the Westerly Automatic Telephone company.

The answer of the Westerly telephone company is made by Dr. John Champlin, president of the corporation, and a member and vice chairman of the State Public Welfare commission.

The company denies the complaint by the town that a charge for phone service to the Westerly subscribers to Watch Hill exchange is on a double season base rate. The company further contends that its rates are in accordance with tariffs filed with the Public Utilities Commission according to law, and that the same rate for exchange service in Watch Hill has been in effect for 20 years.

The basis of the town's complaint is that Westerly subscribers calling Watch Hill subscribers are required to pay a 10-cent toll charge, while Watch Hill subscribers, may call subscribers in the Westerly exchange without any additional charge.

President Clifford W. Campbell, at the October session of the town council put it up to the other members of the council whether it was advisable for the council to proceed with the continuance of their complaint before the Rhode Island State Board of Public Utilities, saying that matters had now arrived at a stage where someone would have to be paid, before further progress could be made. He called attention to the fact that the miscellaneous fund had been exhausted and even in the September bill to be paid from this account appeared charges amounting to $86.65 in the miscellaneous accounts with the notation "no funds available." President Campbell said that telephone investigators as Expert Wray were expensive as had been found out when accounting experts like Wall & Co., came to be paid for work, for which the council had contracted. He stated that the following up of the complaint would cost the town anywhere from $300 to $600. Definite decision to drop or to continue with the complaint was then continued to a future meeting of the council.

High winds Saturday blew down a large elm on Elm street in front of the property of C. E. Roche and occupied by Postoffice Inspector Charles Pendleton. In falling the tree crossed the highway and the top branches rested in the premises, corner of Elm and John streets. In uprooting the stump caused sections of the newly laid cement sidewalk to buckle and crack. Workmen in the employ of the Westerly Highway department made short work of clearing up the wreckage. The heavy wind of Saturday was preceded by several snow squalls early in the morning. A heavy downpour Friday afternoon and evening added to the variety of weather.

The Westerly police department is again busy in outlining safety zones for crosswalks on Broad street, LeRoy Norman, of the Westerly police force, began duty Sunday morning in applying white paint to lines, which have become nearly obliterated by the heavy traffic, which passes over them. About noon time Herbert Edwards on a motorcycle crossed the Pawcatuck river bridge and not seeing the ambuscade, struck and passed over a wooden plank placed on a low box to protect the half section of the highway on which paint had been applied. When the plank yielded the motorcycle and rider passed over safely until called to return by Patrolman Ferraro's whistle.

Twelve or fifteen sections of the cement driveway in the freight yard at the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad have already been poured and are in place, beginning at the east end of the drive between two of the siding tracks, near the Westerly freight house. At the present rate of progress, the cement drive will be completed before severe weather puts a stop to the work. The driveway of hard surface will be of great advantage to freight shippers and receivers of Westerly for at times the muddy drive, between the tracks has slowed down or put a complete stop to shipping activities there.

At the Westerly town hall Saturday night was held a continuation in the series of fairs and dances given by the members of the Cyclone Fire Engine company. Previous to the opening of the fair a parade on West Broad and High streets was held by the firemen, headed by the Westerly Kiltie band. The guests of the evening were the Johnston Fire company of Johnston, R. I.

In a cable message from Breno, Italy, was received the news of the death of Jacob Catto, 72, formerly of Westerly, who has been in his native country for the past three years. Details concerning his death have not yet been received, but it is the belief of relatives here that he must have died very suddenly, as only a few days ago a letter was received stating that he was in his usual good health.

Mrs. Catto, who has been here for the past nine months had made preparations to return to Italy, to join her husband in December. Mr. Catto has made a number of visits to his native country and during his last stay had spent much time with his brother, John Catto and the latter's wife, formerly of Westerly.

Mr. Catto was born in Breno, 72 years ago last June 11, and came to this country when 21, becoming a citizen of the United States. He was a stonecutter and was employed for a number of years by the Smith Granite company and at the Newall quarry.

Besides his wife, Mary Gelleti Catto, he is survived by two daughters, Mary, wife of Arthur Farquelli, of 18 Chestnut street, and Rose, wife of Angelo Parmigoni of 4 George street, and by five grandchildren. He was a member of Bowen lodge, No. 30, Knights of Pythias, and the society Aria Operia, Sons of Italy, of Westerly.

FORMER P. M. CHAS. J. BUTLER DIES EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 11. — The death of Charles J. Butler, 59, occurred Sunday morning about 5:30 at his home, 19 Park avenue, from a hemorrhage of the brain. He had been in failing health for several months, a condition which followed a shock.

Mr. Butler was born in Birkinhead, England, April 25, 1866, the son of John and Elizabeth Wilson Butler. At the age of two years, he came to this country with his parents and for three years lived at Irvington, N. Y.

He then came to Westerly and has resided here for the past 54 years. His education was obtained in the public schools of this town. He attended the grammar grades and entered the high school. Before graduating, however, he left his studies to begin work as an apprentice in the engineering department of the New England granite works and worked as a journeyman until he reached the age of 24.

At that time he was offered a position in the Westerly post office as assistant postmaster by Samuel H. Cross and served for a time. He also served as assistant postmaster four years under Postmaster William P. Clancy. He then served for ten years under Postmaster Walter Price and at the death of the latter was appointed postmaster, June 23, 1910, and served for five and one-half years resigning Feb. 15, 1916.

He was an exceedingly efficient public official, and during the time of his service as postmaster, a new and handsome marble post office building was erected here.

In July 1915, Mr. Butler purchased the coal and wood business of J. Frank Segar which was started by Samuel E. Segar, and operated by him for fifty years. Mr. Butler devoted practically all his time to this business until his recent illness.

He was a director of the Westerly Savings and Loan association, and of the Westerly hospital. In addition he had been active in other civic affairs and from June 1917, to the time of his recent illness had been chairman of the Westerly highway department. He was a member of the national prohibition council, a former secretary of the board of trade, a charter member of the Colonial club of Westerly, also held membership in the Catholic club of New York city and the Sons of St. Patrick of Providence. At the Church of the Immaculate Conception he was a member of both the Holy Name society and the Tabernacle society. In connection with his board of trade work he was particularly interested in the deeper navigation of Pawcatuck river which would enable bigger craft to be brought up, and he was largely responsible for securing the interest of congress in increasing the depth.

Jan. 20, 1900, he was united in marriage with Miss Susan Nestor, who survives him. He is also survived by two brothers, Richard J. Butler and James G. Butler of Westerly.

WESTMINSTER

"Christ Stilling the Winds and Waves" was the subject at morning worship at Westminster last Sunday.

Frank S. Linnell left Sept. 27 for his winter home in Masschusetts with his nephew and the latter's wife, Mr. and Mrs. Moses A. Linnell. Mrs. Linnell's death and Mr. Linnell's absence makes quite a difference on the hill, and both are missed.

Death came unexpectedly to Frank Colte Sunday afternoon as he sat in his chair. He had been ailing for several days but was not thought to be in a serious condition.

The funeral was held at his home at 10 a. m. Wednesday. Rev. G. Leon Wells of Mooosup conducting the service at the house and at the grave. The bearers were Thomas Colburn, William Davis, A. T. MacLeod and Edward Tillinghast. Burial was in Westminster churchyard. Mr. Colte was a good neighbor and companion and had been a justice of the peace for some years. His name was on the Republican town ticket of Monday's election for grand juror. He leaves his wife, an invalid for several years, and son, Gould. Coming to Westminster from Brooklyn, N. Y., some years ago, the grand their son have had a successful chicken ranch on the old Lovett place, naming it Weedwell farm.

The town election was attended by a large number of voters and much interest was evidenced in the different items of business.

Supervisor Edwin B. Floyd visited schools in this region the first of last week.

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 11.—Columbus day will be observed in Westerly when bomb explosions at 6 a. m. The day's celebration will include a parade of various fraternal organizations, exercises in Wilcox park and a display of fireworks in the evening, in honor of Christopher Columbus, the great Italian navigator who Oct. 12, 1492 reached the West Indies and thereby received credit for discovering the adjoining North American continent.

Capotosto of the superior court, an address in Italian by Ernest Ruggerio of the celebration committee, and selections by the Venezia band.

The closing event of the day's program will be a spectacular display of fireworks on the High street playgrounds, beginning at 9:30 p. m.

Sterling Hill school deposits in the Chelsea Savings bank, Norwich, already amount to $25, which is a good beginning.

TOLLEY RELIEVES BRITAIN WILL STAY BY HIS GOLF

GLENEAGLES, Scotland, Oct. 11. (AP)—Cyril Tolley, the big Bambino of British golf, is not going to give up that game for lawn tennis, after all. Perhaps it is just as well for the peace of a mind so accustomed to the delights of victory as his.

In one day, Tolley set new amateur records for both golf courses at Gleneagles and so won the annual Silver Tassie competition. Then he turned to the lawn tennis tournament and was put out in the second record by an almost unknown player.

In the "Silver Tassie" competition, Tolley turned in a card of 71 in the morning over the King's course and then scored a 70 in the afternoon on the Queen's course, both of them among the finest inland golf layouts in the world. His total of 141 was nine strokes under that of the runner-up, Robert Harris, the amateur champion.

Not long ago Tolley almost turned the country upside down by announcing that he was going to give up golf and devote himself to lawn tennis. It was one was asked to believe, a patriotic gesture, the ponderous prodigious Mr. Tolley having decided to concentrate his athletic prowess to retrieving some of the prestige his homeland has lost in international tennis. The press treated his decision as a thing of tremendous national importance. Grave editorials were written in all the paper, and many magazines, humorists and cartoonists furnished some comic relief, and some sports reporters seemed unable to get the topic off their minds.

But now, tennis having reduced his weight by 14 pounds and by thus improving his condition, better his golf, Tolley has decided to keep on with both sports, being a man with plenty of leisure.

BISHOP DECLARES CHURCHES ARE UNITED AGAINST LIQUOR

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP)—There is a greater unanimity of sentiment in the churches of America on the prohibition question than there ever was on the matter of abolition of slavery, Bishop Thomas NicLolson, president of the Anti-Saloon League of America, made this statement in outlining the biennial meeting of the league to be held here November 5-10.

"The Anti-Saloon league is really the church in action against the organized liquor traffic," Bishop Nicholson asserted. "No greater danger could befall the league than to have a diminution of interest on the part of the church.

"Many of our officers have been and still are clergymen. They have worked on meager salaries, almost without exception sacrificially. The president receives no salary and some others of the general officers serve gratuitously. The general superintendent and general counsel are paid moderate salaries. Collections that have supported the league have been in very large measure free-will offerings taken in the churches of the various denominations.

"A word ishould be said also for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and other similar organizations. Not a few of them have suffered ignominy at the hands of unscrupulous persons. The list of those who have had houses bombed or who have suffered death at the hands of the minions of the whisky business is a notable roll of martyrs. In the names of those who have died the martyrs' death for the cause, the church should go forward."

COMMERCIALISM ROBBING ART AND ARTISTS CONDUCTOR SAYS

DENVER, Oct. 11 (AP)—The money a part of the public is paying to "hear a name sing or play" rather than an artist is held to blame as an item in a "commercialism that has taken the heart and soul from music."

Robert Slack, noted concert director, sighed as he said it. "It's money-money-money. The public makes and breaks artists — unfortunately—and part of it pays to hear a name sing or play rather than an a ist."

This public to which Mr. Slack referred pays to see the chosen few and in doing so, in his opinion, thereby is keeping hundreds of names from the electric sign boards that are equally as good. "But commercialism—Commercialism, that's what has taken the heart and soul from music," he added.

Mr. Slack has had an association with choirs, choruses and operatic stars over a period of nearly 40 years.

BEET RAISING MAY SUPPLANT SUGAR CANE IN LOUISIANA

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 11 (AP)—Sugar cane, long a staple crop in Louisiana, may lose its eminence in the list of the state's agricultural products, if sugar beet growing proves successful.

Cane crops have been beset by many plagues, the most recent being the borer and is proving serious. Mosaic disease and root rot also have attacked cane.

Sugar planters have asked that the sugar house at the new Louisiana state university be provided with machinery for refining beet sugar as a part of the experiment planned next year.

More than 10 acres of sugar beets will be planted in various sections of the "sugar belt" of Louisiana next year.

CHURCHILL GREATEST TALKER SAYS PARLIAMENT GAZETTE

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Winston Churchill was the greatest talker during the last session of Parliament, his speeches consisting of 145,000 words, filling 309 columns of the official report, said the Parliamentary Gazette. Ramsay Macdonald came next with 231 columns, followed closely by Lloyd George with 210. Premier Stanley Baldwin only spoke 82 columns. Commander J. M. Kenworthy still holds the lead for question with a total of 571.

Birds Perpetuate Oak Tree

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Professional foresters in England are not planting many oak trees, but the birds are carrying acorns and in wastelands the oak is being perpetuated by nature despite the decline in the demand for oak in commerce. Concrete has displaced oak for fenceposts and in many parts of England sycamore and other soft woods are more popular with builders.

Is 92, But Sings Solos Weekly

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—John Ayres, aged 92, sings solos twice a week at the open-air meetings of the Gospel Lifeboat Mission at Peckham Rye, and delivers an address at least once a week.

GURLEYVILLE

Mr. Linderson and family and Mr. Lorens and family and friends enjoyed a pig roast at Eastford, the first of the week.

Paul Langers family are going to Manchester to live. Neighbors and friends will be very sorry to lose them.

YOUTMUL SMOKERS GET FAGS WHILE HOME OFFICE WORRIES

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—John Bull, like Uncle Sam, is meeting with difficulties in trying to regulate personal habits by legislation. It is not so much drink over here as smoking that is causing the Home Office worry.

There is a law that compels tobacco shops to close every night at eight. It was enacted during the war to save fuel, lights, etc, and release a certain amount of labor for employment more essential to the winning of the war than selling cigarettes and cigars. The law is still in force and there are no indications that it will be repealed.

But it is being evaded. Many tobacco shops, upon closing their doors at night, leave outside a slot machine which delivers cigarettes to anyone who puts in a sixpence or a shilling. There are even penny machines that deliver a couple of "kaspers" to those who insert a huge British copper.

The machine doesn't distinguish between a little boy's coin and one put in by a grown man. And that is what is worrying the Home Office. Children who wouldn't be allowed to purchase cigarettes in shops are procuring them from the machines.

At the moment there is plenty of labor available for even such unessential industries as selling cigarettes. But there has been no suggestion to resume the pre-war habit of selling tobacco after dinner.

FUNCTIONS HELD TOO EARLY; PRINCE OF WALES SLEEPS

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 11 (AP)—While cabinet ministers, diplomats, functionaries and thousands of school children anxiously awaited the arrival of the Prince of Wales to attend a school festival arranged in his honor during his visit to Buenos Aires, the heir to the British throne slept profoundly in the magnificent private residence placed at his disposal during his stay here.

Tired out by a ceaseless round of official functions, the Prince refused to leave his bed at the early hour the school feast should have begun, which nevertheless was carried out in his absence.

A similar occurrence took place during a trip made by the royal visitor to a large ranch in the province of Buenos Aires, where a rodeo and horse-breaking exhibition had been prepared in his honor. When the train carrying the Prince arrived at the railway station near the ranch in the early morning the Prince remained in bed, appearing when the show was over.

SOVIET COUNCIL ORDERS WATCH ON CONCESSIONS

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP)—By a special decree he Council of Commissars has ordered the chief concession committee to organize a permanent commission to watch the carrying out of the concessionary agreements entered into by foreign concessionaries with the Soviet government and to provide for the removal of any possible obstacles which might hinder the normal work of the concessionary enterprise.

The decree is prompted by the growing number of concessions granted by the Soviet government and the commencement of actual operations, it is stated.

The new commission is also charged to watch the carrying out by the respective state organizations and institutions of all obligations undertaken by them in regard to the concessionary contracts, to discuss all questions arising in connection with he carrying out of the terms of the contracts which cannot be regulated independently by the individual organizations and periodically to draw up reports and supply reviews of the working of the concessionary concerns to the central authorities.

NOBEL PRIZES TOTAL FOUR MILLIONS TO 125 WINNERS

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 11 (AP)—Prizes of about $4,000,00 given to 125 winners, will be the record of the Nobel Foundation on the occasion of its 25th annual awarding of prizes at the end of this year.

This public to which Mr. Slack referred pays to see the chosen few and in doing so, in his opinion, thereby is keeping hundreds of names from the electric sign boards that are equally as good. "But Commercialism—Commercialism, that's what has taken the heart and soul from music," he added.

Mr. Slack has had an association with choirs, choruses and operatic stars over a period of nearly 40 years.

Market Cotton by Motor Truck

TALLULAH, La., Oct. 11 (AP)—The mule and wagon as a means of transporting cotton to the gins seems likely to be supplanted by the motor truck.

With improved roads, the farmer who relies on the mule and wagon will labor under disadvantages. One grower in Madison parish made six trips to a gin one day by motor truck, where using a mule and wagon he would have made but one.

How hard does a dog bite? Dr. W. Treska of Berlin, watching his mongrel Ponto whittle a T-bone down to a thin sliver, decided that here was a lot of energy gone to the dogs. He set a mechanical cutting machine to work on a second bone and found out how much energy it took to make that one look like the other. He finally calculated that it took a force of 560 pounds to the square inch to bite a bone.

Columbus

How in heaven's name did Columbus get over
In a pure wonder to me, I protest:
Cabot, and Raleigh, too, that well-read rover,
Frobisher, Dampier, Drake and all the rest
Bad enough all the same,
For them that after came,
But, in great heaven's names,
How he should ever think
That on the other brink
Of this wild waste, terra firma should be
In pure wonder, I must say, to me.

How a man ever should hope to get thither,
E'en if he knew that there was another side:
But to suppose he should come any whither,
Sailing straight on into chaos untried
In spite of the motion
Across the whole ocean,
To stick to the motion
That in some nook or bend
Of a sea without end,
He should find North and South America,
Was a pure madness, indeed I must say.

What if wise men had as far back as Ptolemy,
Judged that the earth like an orange was round,
None of them ever said, "Come along, follow me."
Sail to the west and the east will be found."
Many a day before
Ever they'd come ashore,
Sadder and wiser men,
They'd have turned back again;
And that he did not, but did cross the sea,
Is pure wonder, I must say, to me.
—Arthur Hough Clough.

In October

I walk again with Autumn,
Walk once again with Autumn,
Along this wooded way,
Where slantwise falls the sunshine,
The softly golden sunshine,
Upon her garments gay.

Not here the signs of mourning,
The sombre signs of mourning;
For here the mourning heart,—
There is a subtle something,
A vague, pathetic something,
That does this truth impart,

I look on her in sorrow,
In mute, responsive sorrow,
While I more deeply feel
Because she is not seeking,
By any token seeking
Her sorrow to reveal.

And as I walk in musing:
Walk here with her in musing,
The moral seems to be:
Do not parade your sorrow
And you will have in sorrow
Sincerest sympathy.
—Ralph H. Shaw in Boston Transcript.

MUDDLE WILL BRING REACTION

The stand taken by the president in connection with the shipping board is no different than was to be expected from the head of a nation who is concerned in getting results and stopping waste.

When the president urged the shipping board to confer increased authority upon the president of the fleet corporation and to name Admiral Palmer to that place there was but one thing in his mind—the ending of the bickerings and delays which had been going on in the shipping board and the accomplishment of something in the way of administration and disposal of the vessels.

Admiral Palmer has endeavored to do much in this direction. He has sought to send vessels where there were cargoes waiting and to bring down the tremendous deficit which was being piled up yearly in the running of the government owned vessels. He was also endeavoring to dispose of idle and useless vessels, which have for years been tied up and rusting away, and entailing a greater expense than can ever be realized from them at a sale.

Despite the changes to better conditions and the progress which had been made in that direction by President Palmer, the shipping board has continued to offer its object to the reduction of the government vessels through sale and it has done its best to block the work of the fleet head. This reaches its culmination in the removal of President Palmer, an act which it had the authority to carry out, but an act which was committed while a presidential investigation was about to start and while the president was temporarily away from Washington.

While the board may be acting in the belief that it is strengthening its position it is certain to cause reactions and it will be surprising if it does not help to convince congress that the experiment of placing the merchant fleet under such a commission is a failure and that henceforth it should be turned over to one of the government departments, where it could be administered by one head and not a divided authority.

THE SHENANDOAH'S FLIGHT

Even though Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne has made the same statement to the air inquiry board that she did on the morning when notified of the death of her husband, it doesn't convince that the commander of the Shenandoah, and those with him had been ordered to their death with a knowledge that such or anything serious in the way of trouble was to be anticipated.

If it is maintained that the flight of the Shenandoah west was not necessary it will probably have to be agreed that it was not, not any more so than the sending of naval vessels to celebrations of seaport municipalities, or the sending of sailors, marines or soldiers to similar events whether they happen to be held at seaport or inland cities.

As for protesting the flight of the Shenandoah it doesn't appear that Commander Lansdowne knew that the airship was unfit, that there were conditions to be encountered which it could not successfully meet or that there was a storm which could not be avoided. Because the flight was ordered when state fairs were underway cannot be used as a condemnation of the naval authorities, any more than the ordering of a flight to Detroit to try out the new mooring mast would have been. Such a special flight was recommended by the commander, but that test was to have been made on the flight which had been undertaken, the circle further west and the trip to Detroit having been combined.

As for going contrary to the recommendations of the commander in sending the Shenandoah west, it doesn't appear that it was any different than the situation which prevailed when Commander Lansdowne declined to follow the recommendation of Lieutenant Anderson that the ship's course be changed because of the air conditions. Lieut. Anderson offered it as his judgment without giving convincing reasons for it. It was however advice which had a direct bearing upon what later developed, but it was not accepted. Commander Lansdowne saw no actual storm and no wreck ahead. He didn't have a hunch that they were threatening and he gave no convincing reasons in his recommendations.

SETTLING DEBTS

In coming to terms with the debt commission of this country, the Czecho-Slovakian commission has set an example for others in keeping with what has been done by Great Britain, Finland, Belgium and others.

Czecho-Slovakia is a nation that has come into being as the result of the war. It has borrowed money and while there was some difference of opinion concerning the amount involved that was quickly adjusted. It is to be noted that this country desires to pay and has made its plans to. By such an agreement as has been entered into it will repay with interest the $115,000,000 which it is agreed it owes and this will mean a total of something like $300,000,000, all of which will be cleared up in the 62 years allowed.

In the meantime it is apparent that the disposition manifested by Czecho-Slovakia to pay will mean that it will experience less difficulty in getting a loan in this country preparations for which are already underway. This will, of course, be floated through ordinary, and not government, channels, but when it is noted that the interest rate which the government will exact is only 3 1-2 per cent. and that of the loan will probably be 7 1-2 per cent. there is no chance for claiming that Uncle Sam is trying to squeeze the debtor nations.

What is the effect of this latest adjustment going to be upon other countries? Perhaps we are to infer that the Rumanians were not ready to pay, that they were coming over to make a pretense and seek better terms and that they had realized from the progress made by the Czecho-Slovakians that it was no time for any such move. Again it is not improbable that they are waiting to see what France is going to do and are unwilling to act until France has definitely decided.

The desirability of keeping down the ultimate bill through beginning payments cannot fail to make its appeal to those debtor nations which have not agreed to a settlement, while on the other hand the opportunity to get loans through promising to pay present debts is not going to be entirely disregarded.

BISHOP BROWN'S CASE

There will be no surprise that the vote of the house of bishops of the Episcopal church was overwhelmingly in favor of sustaining the trial and the review courts which found Bishop Brown of Ohio guilty of heretical teachings. And that action having been taken it can be expected that the case will continue to follow the usual course in such cases, infrequent though they may be.

Just why Bishop Brown should desire to retain his title and place in an organization against which he has displayed such an attitude is almost beyond comprehension. It is realized that there are those who appreciate the advantage of boring from within, but when it gets to the point that officials or members of an organization, whether it be a church or something else, get to the point of doing as they please regardless of the tenets of the organization there is no reason to expect that they are going to be tolerated indefinitely.

Bishop Brown decided upon his course with deliberation. He calculated its effects and he knew its penalties. He had, of course, a perfect right to his own views but when he got to the point where he was violating the laws of the church which he was sworn to support and teaching entirely contrary to its belief, it was time for him of his own accord to pull up stakes and get out. When he reached the point of continuing in his action without any such move he invited just what has taken place and what can be expected to follow. There is no one to blame but himself.

TESTING FRENCH MINISTRY

In connection with debt payments special interest is centered just now in the manner in which France is going to react to the outcome of the visit of the Caillaux commission to Washington. That five year arrangement is not effective until it is ratified by both the French government and congress.

It was of course an unexpected outcome and when France shows a disposition to refuse to accept it is to be interpreted as meaning that France recognizes the situation in which it has been placed as regards its credit and doesn't like it. Of all the nations France cannot afford to have its credit attacked at this time, whether there is any justification for it or, not.

On his arrival in France Finance Minister Caillaux has let it be known that while he will present the five year arrangement for action he will not urge its adoption. There have been developments which show that the result of the commission's visit is displeasing. There have been moves to bring down the franc and threats to take action financially against any engaged in such a movement. It all means that the Painleve government is going to be subject to an early and severe test. Whether it will be able to weather the fury of the storm should be known within a few days.

In connection with all its debt moves France has not been unmindful of the value which an adjustment would be to its credit. That advantage it can use at the present time and most certainly it cannot afford to experience the effects of balking at a settlement.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Dry tinware thoroughly to prevent rust.

A good grade of linen in tea towels is economy in the long run.

Dry steel wool on the radiator after using—then it will not rust.

A little oil of peppermint will give relief to that throbbing corn.

Do not soak fresh fish in water before cooking. This treatment ruins the flavor and makes the fish soft.

To remove grease from the floor, sprinkle them with dry soda, let stand a short time, scrub and the spot is gone.

When plates or dishes are burned after baking they can be easily cleaned by rubbing them with a cloth dipped in salt.

Lemon juice applied to brown or tan shoes will remove stains. Rub it well into the leather, then apply brown polish and all stains quickly disappear.

Keep an alarm-clock in the kitchen and set the alarm at the time bread or cake is to be finished, or when it's time to start meals.

When your shredded cocoanut is dry and hard, put it in a small sieve and steam for a while, then cool.

Tumblers that have contained milk should be rinsed in cold water before being washed in warm. Putting the milky glass into hot water will have the effect of clouding it permanently.

If you wash your flat silver in hot sudsy water and scald with boiling water each time it is used, your actual silver cleaning will not amount to much.

To prevent the tarnishing of unused silver you should wrap it closely in tissue paper after cleaning and keep it in a closed place. Silver will stay bright for several years with this treatment.

When making a cake where the flour is to be sifted several times, place the sifter in a large paper bag and sift the flour. When pouring flour into a sifter for second sifting, place on a piece of paper to catch flour that sifts through.

CHARACTER IN RUGS

If the room is to have charm the rugs must be in harmony with the setting. Colonial interiors usually have woven rag rugs or old hook rugs in quaint designs. Formal interiors require Persian or Chinese rugs in rich colors. For a very colorful interior it is safer to use a plain colored rug such as taupe, violet or brown to bring out the furniture.

WET UMBRELLAS

Umbrella manufacturers tell us the best thing to do with a very wet umbrella is to turn it upside down and let the moisture drip away from the ribs. Don't open it to dry as this stretches the ribs and makes the umbrella bulky.

SLOW EATING

Try to encourage the children to eat slowly from the very beginning. They are apt to get in the habit of eating rapidly during school days and this habit is likely to cause illness in later life.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

An excellent daily stimulant, and one which is most efficacious in reducing oily hair, is to dip the fingers in cold water and manipulate the scalp with the finger tips; then raise the hair from the head and shake lightly. This will invigorate the scalp and stimulate and tone the hair roots.

At bedtime after cleansing your face you may use the following lotion to correct its oiliness and tan: Two drams glycerine, 30 grains zinc sulphocarbolate, four drams toilet alcohol, one and one-half ounces orange flower water, one dram tincture cochineal and enough rose water to make six ounces. Shake well.

Here is a good exercise for reducing the hips: Stand erect with feet slightly apart. Lean forward from the waist extending clenched fists stiffly in front. Swing the arms and trunk as far as possible to the right keeping them parallel with the floor. Swing over to the left side. Repeat alternately 20 times.

BOOK BORROWERS

All of us suffer from people who borrow our books and then forget to return them. In time we cannot remember what has become of the missing volumes. Keep a card or small notebook at hand near the bookshelves and each time a book is borrowed jot down the title, the borrower and the date. Then when a reasonable length of time has elapsed do not hesitate to ask for the return of the book.

PROTECTING SCREENS

Screens ought to be painted either when put away in the fall or when put up in the spring. All particles of dust must be removed before applying the paint and this is done by scrubbing the surface thoroughly with a brush and hose. It takes two coats for the frame and generally only one, painted on lightly for the wire screening.

DECORATING SLEEPING PORCHES

Sleeping porches, usually opening off a west or south bedroom, should harmonize with the decoration of the bedroom, they adjoin. Due to the number of windows and brilliance of light, the porch interior should be slightly darker than that of the bedroom.

LOWERING A HIGH BEDROOM CEILING

When the bedroom ceiling is too high, making it a cold and uninviting room, it is a good plan to carry the ceiling color down to the walls all around as far as the tops of the window casings forming a "canopy" which can be separated from the wall with a moulding or simple line of color.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Shades of platinum are reported as being among the important colors in autumn hosiery.

The deep rich tones of Japanese coral make an admirable choice for the necklace or bracelets which add to the effect of the costume.

Ensemble sets of necklace, bracelet, brooch and earrings are making their appearance among the manufacturers.

Velveteens are being taken up by the exclusive model houses in the French capital.

Black combined with color is a favorite at the Ritz while honors are evenly divided between new wood shades, green and Lanvin blue.

A comparatively new life has been given to flannels through the application of embroidery in one form or another.

Sleeves in all tailored dresses, and in many of the afternoon dresses as well, are long.

The new sleeve shows trimming through the lower half from the elbow to the wrist. Many two-fabric combinations are noted. High gauntlet cuffs, wrist puffs and wide much flared bell sleeves falling over the hand all are featured.

Skirts everywhere are short, and in afternoon dresses and evening gowns are irregular in line.

The skirt which is shorter at the front than at the back is emphasized following the upward movement of the waist line from the front to the back.

Velveteens are in good form for street and for sport wear to some extent they are wanted for wraps and strangely enough by women who can amply afford to buy velvets.

All shades of brown are featured in shoes for the autumn season and of special interest are models of alligator and lizard skin which reveal a new interpretation of the Oxford tie.

NEW HATBANDS

The men have not been neglected this fall. Many attractive wares are set forth to tempt their eyes and pocketbooks. Very new are hatbands made of flannel to wear with the felt hats of early fall. These bands are plaided or striped.

SCARF MATCHES HAT

A French designer has introduced the set composed of hat and scarf in matching colors. The hat, a small bangkok, is banded with three tones of georgette crepe each one a different color, and these three shades are joined together to form th long scarf. In one instance black, henna and green are combined.

LIGHT HOSIERY SHADE ARE STILL VOGUE

With the opening of school there is usually a small epidemic of matching shoes and hosiery. Staple shades of wood brown were found at the retail counters, but general opinion has it that the adult public is not yet interested in deepening their shades of hosiery. Some important shops recommend Aztec, Medium Brown and Toast as suitable blendings with the new fall leathers. Baby Leopard and Genuine Seal. Nevertheless the popular choice as evidenced by what New York is wearing, remains fixed the middle of September on Cher. Atmosphere, Flesh Nude and other members of the light hosiery family.

LAUNDRY HINTS

White silk, whether embroidery or woven, should be washed in cold water if it is desired that it retain its pure lustrous silvery whiteness, with no suspicion of a yellow shade.

To remove machine oil stains, rub the material with a little butter or lard and wash it with warm water or soap.

Spirits of camphor will remove fresh peach stains from linen if its application is followed by the use of soap and water. It will also remove white spots from furniture.

To clean a navy serge dress or suit brush the dust out thoroughly, then dip a fairly stiff brush in hot water and rub well into the serge. Iron on the wrong side and the suit or dress will look like new.

Use soapy water when making starch and the clothes will have a glossy appearance and the irons will be less likely to stick.

CARING FOR PAINT BRUSHES

Rules for caring for paint brushes:

1. Don't let paint dry on the bristles. When brush is temporarily not in use, keep bristles submerged in paint. Do not put water on a new paint brush.

2. Bristles should not curl at the end. Brush should be hung or suspended in paint pan so submerged bristles do not rest on the bottom.

3. Keep bristles clean. When brush is laid away for a day or two, paint should be washed out with turpentine or kerosene, and brush kept in oil, turpentine or water.

4. When storing brush for several weeks, wash bristles and wrap them in canvas, oilcloth or paper. Lay away flat on a shelf.

5. Always wash varnish brushes immediately after using. Then wrap the bristles to keep them clean.

6. Use different brushes for different surfaces. You can't get good interior results from a brush used for outdoor work.

7. Have plenty of brushes for various colors. Never use the same brush for paint and varnish.

EASY HEMSTITCHING

A method of hemstitching which requires no drawing of thread may not be know to you. It is for sheer goods only. Turn a hem of the desired depth in the piece of goods to be finished and baste it down near the edge. With an extra large sewing machine needle, unstreaked, stitch just below the hem line. This makes a series of holes. The needlewoman will hemstitch the goods between these holes as though they were threads of the real "drawn" kind. Sheets and pillowcases which are not of a quality to warrant much handwork upon them and yet which need a little "dressing up" can be hemmed in this manner with satisfactory effect.

HOW TO STUFF CELERY

Mix one-half pound American or cream cheese with sufficient evaporated milk to moisten it. Season with salt and pepper and add eight chopped olives and one-third pound of chopped nuts. Select short, wide pieces of celery. Trim most of the leaves and fill with the cheese mixture.

FOR THE DOLL'S HOUSE

Any right-minded little girl whose doll's house is her chief concern, will be delighted with the gift of a cupboard that contains round tin boxes marked "coffee," "sugar," "flour," "bread," etc.

TOASTED COCOANUT

Put shredded cocoanut in a pie pan under the heat of the oven. Watch it carefully and stir frequently. When golden brown in color, remove, cool and roll as fine as desired with a rolling pin.

RECIPES

Tomato Jelly: 2 tablespoons granulated gelatine, 1-2 cup cold water, 3 1-2 cups of tomatoes, 1-2 onion, 1-2 bay leaf, stalk celery 2 cloves, few grains cayenne, 2 tablespoons Tarragon vinegar, few grains of salt.

Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes. Mix remaining ingredients, except vinegar, bring to boiling point and let boil ten minutes. Add vinegar and soaked gelatine, and when gelatine is dissolved strain. Turn into a mold, first dipped in cold water, and chill. Remove from mold to bed of crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with mayonnaise dressing, forced through a pastry bag and tube; or the jelly may be cut in any desired shapes and used as a garnish for salads or cold meats.

Halibut-Tomato Sauce: Take two pounds of halibut, two cupfuls of tomatoes, one cupful of water, one slice of onion, three cloves, one-half a tablespoon of sugar, three tablespoons of butter, three tablespoons of flour, three-fourths teaspoons of salt and a little pepper. Cook the tomatoes, water, onion, cloves, and sugar for 20 minutes. Melt the butter, add the flour, and stir into the hot mixture. Add salt and pepper, soak for ten minutes, then strain. Clean the fish, put in a baking pan, pour around half the sauce, and bake for 5 minutes, basting frequently. Remove to a hot platter, pour around the remaining sauce, and garnish with parsley.

Stories That Recall Others

The Biter Bitten

He was telling about his experience in other days in running a village store, when farm produce was traded for store things, and money was scarce.

"I recall one particularly shrewd old woman who used to do her trading at my store. I always breathed a sigh of relief when she left. Somehow, she always impressed me as getting the best of me, even when I had my eyes wide open. But one time at least the tables were turned to my satisfaction. She came in with several pounds of butter. I weighed it and gave her the trade price. She watched the butter weighed and then with the remark that she had to attend to some other things down the street and would be back for the coffee she wished to exchange, she left the store.

"While she was gone a customer came in and wished to buy a half pound of butter. I pushed a knife through the molded butter, and it hit something hard. Investigation showed it to be a stone of fair size. I wasn't much surprised.

"But I took the stone out, washed it off and then put it in the middle of her bag of coffee, which incidentally sold for considerable more than the price of butter a pound."

Verbal Oil Leaks Out

A widely known bachelor was continually informed by a maiden of long acquaintance, who eargerly exhorted that he marry before he became ineligible. The gentleman keenly resented his lady friend's insinuations and schemings, but was far too polite to give her even a veiled hint that her attentions were obnoxious. For many years they had eaten at the same boarding house. On one occasion which of late was becoming rather usual, the food was particularly distasteful. On remarking on the poor quality of the food the woman replied:

"Why don't you get married to a woman who can cook well? I have just completed an extension course in domestic economy."

"Well, I've often thought of getting married," replied the bachelor, "but I'm a bit afraid of having a woman around too much. If I did get married though, it would be rather convenient. My wife would probably have a sewing machine, and if she had a sewing machine she might have an oil can. Then I could oil my office door; it squeaks awfully. But I guess I'm 'oil can' enough already, and it wouldn't do to have two oil cans in one house."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rt. Rev. John G. Murray, who is to be installed today as bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Portland, goes to the Maine city from Hartford Conn., of which diocese he has been auxiliary bishop. Bishop Murray is known as one of the most brilliant scholars among the Catholic clergy in America. Born in Waterbury Conn., in 1877, he went to Holy Cross college after finishing the course in the schools of his home city. Because of his splendid record at Holy Cross Bishop, Tierney of Hartford selected him for university training and sent him to Louvain. While in Belgium he was ordained to the priesthood. Upon his return he was assigned to a church in New Haven. Within a few months, however, he was appointed to the faculty of St. Thomas's Seminary. In 1903 he was made chancellor of the Hartford diocese and later became auxiliary bishop.

If other people never made mistakes we would have little cause to pride ourselves on our abilities.

From Small Beginnings

Mayer Bauer, Founder of the House of Rothschild

A Jewish boy, Mayer Anselm Bauer, watched his father carry on business as a merchant of slight importance. Like all boys, he admired his father and resolved likewise to become a merchant. For that reason he protested against his father's wish that he should become a rabbi. What was good enough for his father, would be good enough for him. All this was in Germany about 150 years ago.

The young man became a money lender. Instead of putting up a sign consisting of three golden balls, the emblem of money lenders in the United States, he put up a sign that was a red shield. The first da that he looked at the emblem he little realized that the German name for the red shield, "rothschild," would become the family name of a great Jewish house, so vastly rich, and so powerful that it would control kings, bring about war and peace, and make its power felt everywhere in the world. In fact, the money lender's sign grew into a name that is a synonym for untold wealth.

Curiously enough, it was not alone Mayer Bauer's business ability that set the family on the way to wealth; it was also his play. He became a collector of odd coins, and in this way, by accident, became a friend of the petty ruler of Hesse-Cassel. The friendship brought him government business and he quickly became a financial power.

The story of his lonesty is well known. When the French invaded the land, the ruler had to hurry away to save his life. With absolute trust he placed a vast fortune in the hands of Mayer Bauer, who hid it away, and afterwards gave the ruler not only the full value but also a high rate of interest. Tht honesty was characteristic of the man, and was the real reason of much of his success. When he died, his ten children carried on the great business he had established. They and their descendants developed the House of Rothschild into an international power, all of which started with the small boy who wished to imitate his father and become a merchant.

Two-Seated Taxis Urged

London has started a movement for a two-seated taxicab to take the place of the ordinary taxicab which seats four persons and is now in use in Europe and America. The two-seater would be cheaper to operate and therefore cheaper to the rider. It is argued. There is some apprehension that it would cause overcrowding, however.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More About the New Road

Mr. Editor: The argument is made that the new proposed route for a state highway around Jewett City, if selected, will hurt business. If that be so, it is very pertinent, for there is none too much business now, and no one of us wants to do anything to hurt the prosperity of our borough. But what business will it hurt? It will not hurt the hotel business, for there is practically very little to hurt. It cannot hurt the grocery and meat business, for these depend almost wholly on local people for their business, and it is most unlikely that any of these customers are going to use the new road any more than they do the present one to go out of town for these supplies. In fact, if this highway opens up new sections, closely adjacent to the borough, for habitation, it may increase this line of business. Moreover, if grocery men send out delivery trucks, it will give them more good roads over which to travel. It probably will not hurt the drygoods business, for it is well known that a great percentage of this business goes out of the borough already. Moreover, we do not see how it can hurt the hardware or plumbing, or barber business; for the business that comes to Jewett City in these lines now, is just as likely to come when a new road is built, closely paralleling the present main thoroughfare. Nor can we see how it can hurt the manufacturing business. If these factories now send out trucks, they must require a fairly clear road on which to run them out with a greatly increased traffic on our main streets, these trucks would find greater difficulty performing their business with safety; whereas, if a new route is opened, so closely at hand, there will be two avenue for traffic and improved routes for these trucks to choose. The only kinds of business in Jewett City that we can see a possibility of receiving any harm are: the ice cream business, restaurant business, real estate and automobile business. In other words through traffic may occasionally stop in the borough to buy ice cream or soft drinks; or may stop to get a meal, or to buy gasoline, or get an auto repaired. But we should say that the differences to these businesses would be very small; and could be more than compensated for by establishing new branch filling stations, additional ice cream and soft drink parlors on the new route, as well as possible lunch places. As to real estate, it must be remembered that a great portion of Main and North Main streets in Jewett City from Lisbon bridge to Tadpole bridge is taken up with residences. Is this residence property going to be more desirable when dust and gasoline fumes increase, and when motor traffic multiples? Or will the shopping district be a better place to trade, when traffic becomes so congested that it will be perilous to cross the street? We should say that real estate business will be helped more by opening up new areas for building along a new road, running parallel with the main shopping district and at no great distance from it.

Further, along this line, we can ask, will two good roads running through a district bring less business than one? For this new route is so near that it will practically be on the near outskirts of the town. Will two bridges making possible access to a place bring more business or less?

Now we wish to notice the matter of expense and inconvenience. It is argued that if the new road is put through, the state will abandon support of the main highway in Jewett City from the Lisbon bridge, to Tadpole bridge. Such a contention is only partially correct, for the highway commissioner asserts that the state will have to continue maintenance to Slater avenue from the Lisbon bridge, and from there on to Voluntown. This ought to cut one fourth from the proposed $700 annual cost to the borough. But it should be remembered that if busses take the place of electric cars, and other traffic continues to increase, that there may come a time, in the no distant future, when silent policemen will not do, and for the safety of life and limb, two or three traffic police may have to be substituted for them, and the probable cost of maintaining two or three traffic police, one near the post office, one at the junction of Main street and Tracy avenue, and possibly one at the junction of Slater avenue and Main street, would probably be anywhere from $2,000 to $6,000 a year, or a sum far greater than the maintenance of the road from Slater avenue to Tadpole bridge.

It has been asserted that if the proposed route is following the children who go out of town to a school will have to go a mile or more to get a bus. This is answered by the statement that these busses go to nearer places, will probably go through the center of the borough anyway. And the lives of these school children will be safer if a great amount of the through traffic is running on some other route, while they are getting on and off these busses along the Main street.

Now let us notice seven advantages of the new proposed route. 1. It will avoid a bad intersection at the "bend" in Lisbon. This intersection is bad because it combines a curve and an intersection which makes it very difficult to see persons coming from the side road, or the other direction. Many accidents have occurred here, and it is remarkable that more of them have not been fatal. In the new route there may be an intresection above, but it will probably be at a point less fraught with peril because affording a better view in either direction. 2. This avoids the Lisbon-Jewett City bridge. This bridge, with careful driving is wide enough for two vehicles to pass, but the margin is so close that not a few accidents occur. 3. It avoids the South Main street railroad crossing. They say we have 24 hour service there. But why 24 hour service for the flagman, if it is not a perilous place? The gates have been broken down there several times, and there have been many other close shaves, and often long blockades by freight trains. 4. It avoids the congested shopping district of Jewett City; this will add to the comfort and safety of those who do wish to trade there. 5. It avoids the bad Tadpole bridge curve. Not a few accidents have occurred there, and anybody who has been over it knows that if a driver does not use caution, he endangers both himself, and those going in the opposite direction. 6. It avoids three school sections: the Bent school in Lisbon, the Riverside school in Jewett City, and the Parochial school on No. Main street. With greatly increased traffic we consider this some object. 7. It will greatly accommocate through traffic, that wishes to do no business in Jewett City, and whose only wish is to get through the borough as quickly as possible.

Underwater Oil Flame

Burning an oil flame under water for weeks at a time and avoiding most of the heat loss of an ordinary boiler, is the feat of Oscar Brunler a Belgian scientist, says a Science service letter from Brussels. By means of a device similar to a carburetor, a spray of crude oil mixed with air is blown into the burner under pressure. Water is kept out of the burner until it is hot and the fire is burning well. Then the water is allowed to rise around the flame until it is submerged. Once started it can be kept burning for months. All designs of boilers are based on the principle of bringing the flame of the fuel into the closest possible contact with the water in order to avoid loss of heat. The most efficient method is to have the flame directly in the water, and this is what Brunler has succeeded in doing. His success is shown by his report to the Society of Chemical Industry. More than 8" different kinds of oil have been burned, and boilers have worked continuously for months. The flame can be regulated completely by turning one wheel. While an ordinary burner seldom gives as much as 75 per cent of the heat, as determined by common methods of analysis, this submerged flame has given a heat efficiency of practically 100 per cent for week at a time.

Colorful Finnish Markets

In brilliant skirt and smock the Finnish fishwife is the most vivid of the colorful throng at the daily market. While the Finns are fishing, the wives bring the catch to market. It is especially exciting when the autumn sailing fleet comes in to sell provisions for the winter and again on the day when the ice breaks up in the spring and the first vessel of the year steams into the quays. The Helsingfors housewife usually comes to market and does her own purchasing of vegetables and meat and rarely leaves without the inevitable handful of bright, hardy flowers.

HUMAN BETTERMENT IS GOAL FOR THE WORLD SAYS MISS SLATTERY

For the third consecutive year Miss Margaret Slattery of Boston addressed a union mass meeting Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church. Miss Slattery spoke under the auspices of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association. A number of the churches of the city united in the union service which had a very large attendance. The entire auditorium was occupied and the gallery was well filled by the overflow from the main floor. The service opened at 7.30 with the invocation by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and Rev David A. Pitt, D. D., read the scripture lesson and offered prayer.

James C. Macpherson, president of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association, presented Miss Slattery to the large audience. I take this opportunity, said Mr. Mcpherson, on behalf of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. to express our appreciation of the use of this splendid auditorium. Mr. Macpherson said he also wished to express on behalf of the association, his gratitude t othe churches who gave up their evening services to join in the union service. This is the third year the Norwich Y. M. C. A. has induced Miss Slattery to come to Norwich, he said. Miss Slattery has just returned from a tour of Europe and I know that she has a remarkable message for us.

With reference to her trip through Europe, Miss Slattery, in her opening words said, I have been walking through empty palaces. It gives one a strange sensation to walk through empty palaces. Postdam is empty. Potsdam is exceedingly empty. It gives one a strange feeling to know that a palace has been emptied and emptied in our day. The one in Vienna is going to be an art gallery and the one in Budapest is going to be an orphanage.

Miss Slattery told of watching repair work going on at one of the empty palaces. She heard, she said, something that almost made her heart stand still. It was the Star Spangled Banner, and turning around she saw that a boy of about 17 was whistling our national anthem as he worked. His father was German, his mother Austrian. He said, and was pround of it, that he was an American and was born in New York city. He saw Miss Slattery as she approached and knowing that she was an American he wished to speak to her. He did not like to accost her, so he whistled the Star Spangled Banner, knowing that it would attract her attention. He told her that his people were there to straighten out some business matters and that he was going back to the United States as soon as he could.

The king is gone, said Miss Slattery. The sultan is gone. It is a new world. To have a part in it, to live in it, is worth anything we might have to pay. Some palaces have not been emptied. Some will soon be emptied. Anything may happen in Europe. Anything may happen in China. Anything may happen in India; the surface is apparently smooth, but it is cracked.

We need a warm human passion to make the world a better place for man to live in. I ask you tonight if you are willing to take part in this crusade, to put some new ideas in the minds of your young people. The world cannot walk into the sunlight without us. If we refuse to walk it will drag us back into darkness.

It is better to make a city clean and fine than to make a city larger. Why does a large city want more people? Race suicide is far better than filling our insane hospitals. We don't need more people. We need a better type of people, clean and balanced in mind. The church of God ought to be able to put ideals into the hearts of men. The idea of human betterment, human welfare, all over the world is the supreme goal. The academic answer won't do. We must get together. It is wonderful to say that to you who are together here tonight. I wonder if the new idea has caught you and perhaps you understand that nothing that divides is important.

The new idea is here. What are you going to do about it? Will you teach it to your daughter? Will you tell her, her spirit is first? When public opinion says so, the cheap, dirty literature of today must go. Will you tell your daughter that it is not the most important thing in the world to be so popular that she is asked to eight dances a week.

We have got to do something in our homes to teach our children what true sacrifice is.

Following Miss Slattery's lecture the service closed with the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," the benediction being pronounced by Rev. J. Harlow Graham.

Afternoon for Young People

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock at the United Congregational church, Miss Slattery addressed a meeting especially for the young people, having a fine audience to hear her inspiring message.

General Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. presided, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of the United church read the scripture and offered prayer. Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown of Trinity Episcopal church gave the invocation and pronounced benediction. William S. Huber was at the organ.

PEEPING TOM HAS THAMESVILLE TERRIFIED

The Thamesville neighborhood is stirred up by a peeping Tom, and attacks on women that have taken place within the last week, the latest scare taking place Saturday night, when a ladder was used to reach the second-story window of two houses.

Early last week two women walking at night below the city line near Everett street were attacked by a man who threw one of them to the ground. The screams of the other woman scared him away and the two frightened women hailed an automobile which took them to their homes on the West Side.

Late Saturday night a waman who was in a room on the second floor of her home heard a tapping on the window and caught sight of a man on the roof of an addition which gave him access to the window. She telephoned to the police, who found a drunken man in the neighborhood who denied any connection with the window tapping. Sunday morning it was found that the man had reached the roof by using a long ladder which he had dragged from a house some distance away and had thrown down the bank after he was discovered. It was learned also that he had put the ladder up against another house to reach a window, but a woman there heard the noise and scared him away by going to the window.

Earlier in the week there had been reports of two or three other scares from the activities of the peeper.

SNOW AND HIGH WIND MAKE OCTOBER RECORD

Flurries of snow and wind of hurricane force Saturday made the coldest Oct. 10 for many years here. Many streets of the city and town were littered with the branches of trees that were blown off and on Spalding street a whole tree was blown over into the street. A tree blown over in front of James McNally's place at Norwich Town carried down a bunch of 20 wires carrying local telephone service. Altogether about 100 telephone wires were out of commission in various parts of the town.

Hamilton avenue near Corning road was blocked for a time by the limb of a tree that was blown off. Street Commissioner John C. Donovan and Henry E. Davis, tree warden, were kept busy looking after clearing up the fallen limbs.

There is to be a United States civil service examination for entomologist, for vacancies in the bureau of entomology, department of agriculture, for duty in Washington, D. C., or in the field.

WEDDING FEAST PARABLE PRIEST'S SERMON THEME

It chanced that the gospel for the nineteenth Sunday after Pentecost read in all the Catholic churches of the world yesterday was Matthew 22 2-14, the parable of the wedding feast. Preaching to the customary large congregation at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. John J. Reilly considered the motives of the Saviour, in utilizing the parable, as a frequent form of speech during His earthly ministry, understanding the character of the oriental mind. In the gospel of the Sunday Christ must have had in His thought the great church which He was about to institute; and the preacher traced the parallel between the invitation to the wedding and the astounding call which God has extended to the members of the Roman Catholic church.

That there is nothing accidental about this call, that it has been in the mind of the Almighty since time was, is proven conclusively by the fact that there are in China and India more pagans than even the 300,000,000 Catholics of the world. Since God has not called the former to the marvelous wedding feast which He so lavishly spreads before His chosen people is a proof of the gratitude and alacrity with which this invitation should be accepted. But is it?

The guests bidden to the marriage of the parable gave excuses which find their counterpart today—Sunday pleasures, distractions of business, while those who laid hands on the servants of the king, treating them contumeliously and then putting them to death, have their parallel in the element who refuse the invitation with rudeness, even deride or criticise Christ's ministers who tender it. The parable sets forth the penalty.

The Redeemer's invitation to Catholics begins with the graces of baptism and continues through other favors which Father Reilly's hearers were admonished not to ignore or neglect. Having been selected to be members of the great church which the Saviour instituted, as representative of His teachings on earth, they were urged to do no speculating with their souls, balancing acceptance of Christ's invitation against ease, or wealth, or social advancement. The preacher summarized his instruction in the warning of St. Paul, "See that you walk worthy, brethren, of the vocation unto which you are called."

Afterwards Father Reilly assisted Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass, in giving holy communion, there having been a large number of confessions the day before.

The epistle of the Sunday was Ephesians 4. 23-28. The music at the masses was by Mrs. Lena Boudreau Healy, a pupil of Prof. Frank L. Farrell.

Following the high mass at 10.30 there were Rosary devotions and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, no afternoon vespers being held.

BROUGHT INJURED MAN TO BACKUS HOSPITAL

Solomon Goldstein, 41, of Colchester, who was struck by an automobile late Sunday afternoon near the Jerry Stark farm on the Colchester road, was brought to the Backus hospital in this city by Representative George G. Engler, who came along in his automobile soon after the accident happened. Goldstein has a slight concussion of the brain.

The Colchester man was hit by a machine driven by Clifford E. Friend of Glastonbury. When Mr. Engler arrived at the point of the accident, he offered to take the unconscious man to the hospital and secured the name and address of the driver of the machine, who said he wanted to take his family back to Glastonbury, and promised to come to the hospital after he had done so. Mr. Engler reported the facts at police headquarters, and left with the police the card upon which the driver of the car had written his name and address.

Mr. Friend returned here Sunday night, visiting the hospital to learn the condition of Mr. Goldstein and reporting the accident at police headquarters.

COLCHESTER D. A. R. HAS HISTORIC CHAPTER HOUSE

The formal dedication of the new chapter house for the Colonel Henry Champion chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Colchester, was held Wednesday. Only the members of the chapter were present and this number included representatives from East Hampton, Lebanon, Westchester, Hebron and Colchester.

The tiny building dedicated bears a unique history. It was the first building erected in Colchester and was the original dwelling house of Nathaniel Foote, who came to this country from Colchester, England, about 1700. The house was built in 1702, and was the property until recently of Mrs. Alice Buck, who presented it to the D. A. R., for a chapter house. It was moved to its present location on the grounds of the Day family last fall, and has been refitted, refloored and weather-proofed.

When the members were in search of panelling for the walls, Dr. C. E. Pendleton sent them, to an old dwelling house in Marlborough, once occupied by the Blish family, but since used as a henhouse. In his professional visits the doctor had expiered this promising henhouse and discovered that the walls were covered with panelling of the very period wanted. It was Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, who put the matter through and made the purchase of not only the coveted panelling, but also a fireplace which was moved to the chapter house, each array old stone in its place. In addition to this a splendid specimen of the corner cupboard of old times was found which had been used for the hens to nest in. This is now placed in the chapter house.

Rev. George Brown of Plainville made an address appropriate to the occasion and offered a short prayer. Miss Elizabeth Bigelow gave an informal talk to the members. Descendants of Nathaniel Foote throughout the country have contributed liberally to the cause. Many interesting relics have been gathered into this little building and others have been promised, so that it will become a treasure house of historical interest.

WESLEYAN LABORATORY HONORS WILLINGTON MEN

The first of Wesleyan's new buildings, made possible by gifts of more than $1,200,000, is under construction, the contract for the chemical laboratory having been awarded to Joseph H. Mylchreest, of Middletown. Mr. Mylchreest's bid was about $200,000. Contracts for plumbing, heating and lighting, not yet awarded, will make the total cost about $350,000. Mr. Mylchreest states that it will take from a year to 18 months to complete the building, the cellar of which has nearly been finished.

The chemical laboratory is one of three proposed buildings which Wesleyan plans to erect, according to an announcement made by President James L. McConaughy, at his installation last June. The others are a library in honor of Dr. Stephen Olin, and a college union.

Hall Memorial will be the name of the new laboratory in honor of the late Colonel William Henry Hall, of Willington, prominent Wesleyan alumnus of the class of 1892, his father, Gardiner Hall, Jr., and his son, Holman H. Hall, '26, who was killed while a sophomore at Wesleyan.

In 1912 a fund was started for the Hall Memorial with a gift from Gardiner Hall, Jr. Other members of the family brought the sum to more than $100,000. William Henry Hall, known as "Hank" to all his intimates, was one of Wesleyan's best known alumni and a trustee. He served 18 years in the Connecticut houset of representatives and six years in the senate.

When the Olin library is built, it will face the new laboratory.

The laboratory will be of brick with limestone trimmings, 123 feet by 35 feet, with wings at each end, and will be two stories high. A lecture hall will seat 200.

MOOSEHEART LEGION WHIST REALIZED GOOD SUM

Women of Mooseheart Legion, Norwich chapter, No. 124 met at the Moose home Thursday evening, with Senior Regent Mrs. Mary Hunter presiding. There was a very good attendance. Mrs. Grace Walz, chairman of the auditing committee, read the financial report which showed the chapter to be in good financial condition.

Mrs. Teresa Watters, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported a very good sum realized from the recent whist and pinochle.

Announcement was made of the bazaar and entertainment to be held at the Moose home, of which Mrs. Margaret Rogers is chairman.

The chapter is to go to New London on November 3rd, and visit Chapter 247 and present them the traveling emblem.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served after the meeting.

ONLY SIX EASTERN TEAMS HAVE NOT BEEN SCORED ON

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(A. P.)—The third week of college football brought with it another tidal wave of touchdowns which left the goal lines of only six of the outstanding eastern elevens uncrossed.

Columbia, Cornell, Syracuse, Dartmouth, Colgate and Navy were still perched at the top of a high pile of points today without having been scored upon, although the defensive strength of all six teams has yet to be tested by serious opposition.

The powerful Columbia machine, which yesterday tore through Wesleyan for 64 points as readily as it had stampeded Haverford and Johns Hopkins, was scheduled for a severe intersectional test with Ohio State, at Columbus, O., next Saturday while the Middies fresh fro mtheir decisive befeat over Marquette 19-0 saw more serious opposition ahead from Princeton in the annual game of the two elevens at Baltimore, Md.

Syracuse is called upon this week-end to journey to Indianapolis, Ind., to extend its winning streak at the expense of Indiana, Colgate, Dartmouth and Cornell Lafayette, Maine and Rutgers respectively.

Yale, although scored upon by Georgia 5-7 through clever use of the forward pass in the third period, displayed a driving attack, which coupled with Pennsylvania's conquest of Brown 19-0 set the stage for one of the next Saturday's outstanding contests a meeting of the hosts of Eli and Quakertown at New Haven.

Favorable results likewise attended final testing games of the Army and Notre Dame preparatory to the battle of these powerful gridiron battalions of east and west at the Yankee stadium. Rockne's cohorts smothered Beloit 19-3 without revealing any of the special ammunition prepared for the West Point aggregation, while the Army ran roughshod over Knox college until the cadets' second team was scored upon 26-7.

The week end play in the east brought no upsets among the outstanding elevens, although Princeton failed to win as decisively over Washington and Lee at 13-6 as was expected.

Georgia's Tech's last half triumph over Penn State 16-7 administering the first defat of the season to Bezdek's warriors was disappointing but not discouraging for state state enthusiast.

ASTHMA CURED BEFORE YOU PAY

Mr. D. J. Lane, a chemist located at 1608 Lane Bldg., St. Marys, Kans., has discovered a simple home remedy for Asthma. Mr. Lane has so much confidence in his ability to cure that he will send a regular $1.25 bottle free, postpaid, to any sufferer who will write him. His offer is that he is to be paid for it if it cures. If not, your report cancels the charge. If you suffer from Asthma write him today. Send no money—just your name and address will do.

With many of their regulars missing from the line-up the losers uncovered a sound attack and a sturdy defense which were overcome as much by "breaks" as by the brilliant last period assault of the Golden tornado.

Harvard gave Yale coaches something to think about when they lettered the Bulldog's total against Middlebury amassing 58 points and producing a new backfield star in Crosby, Yale had defeated the same team a week before 53-0.

HARRIS IS CONFIDENT AND McKECKINE SAYS LITTLE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP) — Stanley Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, tonight was virtually certain that the worlds series of 1925 would end at Griffith stadium tomorrow.

"Coveleski is my selection," he said, "and I hope that we don't have to go back to Pittsburgh tomorrow night. We are glad to be out far in the lead.

"I hardly think that Kruege will be able to play, and Myer will be at third again. He seemed slightly off color today, but he is a youngster playnig out of position and he is trying all the time.

"Barney Johnson has a heart like the Rock of Gibraltar. After the injury to his right leg, when he rounded first base on a hit, he in the game he kept going to over, refusing to back up for a minute. Scotty coaching at first, told Barney to make the turn, but he would have needed a lasso to keep him back. The same thing happened at the Polo grounds a year ago.

"Goslin's homer settled the game. The goose is hitting the long ones in this series. It was a tough break for Pittsburgh when I got that liner of Wright's in the seventh. I don't want to talk about my own play during the game, but I can realize that that catch was hard on the Pirates.

"The umpire unquestionably lost the play in which I slid into the plate, for I beat the ball and was on the way to the bench before I realized what the decision had been. But those things happen in baseball. I'm glad that it was not the winning run for Washington."

Bill McKeckinie, the Pirate manager, had little to say except that his Pirates were in a batting slump such as they have not known all season.

"We ought to get out of the hole tomorrow and get going in earnest. We are anything but beaten, and will fight it out all the way. Aldridge who beat the Senators in Pittsburgh Thursday, will be the pitching ace and Smith will catch."

Meadows, McKechnie's opening day choice, needs at least another day of rest, it was learned in the club house.

JOHNSON SAYS HE WASN'T TIRED AFTER THE GAME

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(A. P.)— "We won and that's all I care," said Walter Johnson after defeating Pittsburgh today for the second time in the world's series. "I wasn't tired at the end, although I probably seemed to be having a hard time out there in the ninth.

"I didn't have the stuff I had in the first game at Pittsburgh, but I had plenty of time to train for that Pittsburgh game. They gave me only three days for this second one and ten or fifteen years ago it would have been too much, but now a days four or five wouldn't hurt me."

"My right leg is sore where I strained it after hitting to left in the third. The thing caught me after I had rounded first and made a quick start for second. It looked to me like an easy two base hit. I don't think that the injury interfered with my pitching to any great extent.

"This same thing happened late in the season and it is something that is likely to recur at any time when you make a snap start or are out of position.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH TO JOIN FEDERATED COUNCIL

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11—The Episcopal church in the United States will become a constituent member of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America, if the recommendations of the committee appointed to consider the existin relations between these two bodies is accepted by the triennial general conference of the church meeting here. This committee will recommend to the general conference early this week membership in the council with "such reservations as the general convention shall determine."

The committee also recommends before final action is taken the whole question should be debated simutaneously in the committee of the whole in both houses of the convention separately, and that if in either house there is less than a two-thirds vote in favor of the proposal, the committee of the whole report adversely to the church's becoming a member at this time and that the status quo be continued through the coming year.

JOHNSON SHUTS OUT PITTSBURGH IN FOURTH GAME OF SERIES, 4 TO 0

The "Big Train of Baseball" Pitched Brilliantly and Was in Danger Only Once—"Goose" Goslin Pushes Out Homer With Two Men On—Joe Harris Also Hits For the Circuit—Pirates Use Three Pitchers in Attempt to Turn Back Senators—Aldridge to Oppose Coveleskie Today.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Big Train whizzed through Griffith stadium this afternoon, making no stops.

Pittsburgh's Pirates caught a few fleeting glimpses of the express as it roared by, leaving the wreck of most of their championship hopes in its wake, but that was about all, as they went down to defeat for the second time before the mastery uncurled by the iron right arm of Walter (Barney) Johnson, The Big Train of baseball.

It was the third setback for the National league champions in four games of the 1925 world's series. Only a miraculous comeback now can save them in a battle which Washington is favored to end tomorrow with Stanley Coveleskie seeking the victory that is needed to give the Senators their second successive world's title.

Johnson's Victory Impressive

Today's triumph for big Barney was more decisive than his first one for he blinded and blanked the aspiring but helpless young Buccaneers, 4 to 0 with a dazzling exhibition of sharpshooting, while Goose Goslin, home-run hero of 1924 and Joe Harris slashed out successive home runs in the third inning that broke the resistance of the young Pirate southpaw, Emil Yde, and produced all the Senators' runs.

Pres. Coolidge Not Present.

President and Mrs. Colidge were not present to cheer the Senators today but more than 38,000 fans, the greatest crowd that ever jammed its way into Griffith stadium, cheered Johnson as he held the Pirates in the hollow of his hand and roared as Goslin clinched the game with his homer, a blow that not only brought over the first three runs, but also blasted Babe Ruth's world series record for circuit clouting. It was the Goose's fifth homer in the two years and lifted him from the tie he had gained yesterday with the Bambino for slugging records.

Old Injury Comes Back to Johnson

While the crowd looked on and marveled at Johnson's pitching it did not know that Barney went through the last six innings with his right thigh bound tightly in tape where he had strained an old muscle injury in trying to stretch his single to a double in the third inning. For that matter the injury apparently had no visible effect on the effectiveness of the veteran, but to those who found it out in the club house after the game, it revealed the great courage that went hand in hand with the skill, control and speed that once more baffled the Pirate youngsters at every turn.

Johnson allowed six hits today, one more than in his first victory last Wednesday in Pittsburgh. He also struck out only two this afternoon as compared with ten before, but he was steadier this time, working easily and smoothly. Always invincible in the pinches where he also had brilliant support from his teammates, particularly Bucky Harris and Muddy Ruel.

Meyer is Unsteady

There was only one weak spot at any time in this defensive of the Senators—at third base, where the youngster Buddy Myer, was nervous and uncertain in his struggle to fill the shoes of Ossie Bluegee, still out of the game from the effects of being "beaned" three days ago by Vic Aldridge.

Myer's unsteadiness permitted two scratch hits by the Pirates in the second inning and put Johnson in the only real hole of the game, with runners on second and third and two out. But Stan Harris snuffed out this rally when he grabbed Yde's bounder for the third out.

After that Johnson was never in trouble as the wide sweep of his arm, propelling a baffling change of pace, kept the Pirates at bay. In the last seven innings only one Pirate got as far as second base—Max Carey, who scratched a ninfield hit and stole the middle bag in the sixth.

Johnson's Greatest Victory

It was a great victory for Johnson, probably the greatest of all he has scored in 19 remarkable years of major league service. For today he reached a goal that has always been his aim—a world's series shut-out. He had pulled triumph out of the fire in the last game a year ago and he had won his first complete game a few days ago in championship conflict, allowing only one run, but today he was at the peak, at last. The shut-out king of all time, the man who has twirled more scoreless innings than any other, added another gem to his crown.

Harris Plays Brilliantly

Twice, however, as the shadows lengthened across the diamond and Johnson moved on to his greatest glory, the dynamic young figure of Bucky Harris stepped in to flash bits of fielding brilliance that nipped budding outbreaks by the Buccaneers.

In the seventh Harris jumped high to make a wonderful one-hand stab of Glenn Wright's drive and doubled Pie Traynor off first after the latter had opened the inning with a sharp single to center, his fourth safe blow in two games off Johnson. Again in the ninth, after Barnhart had revived Pirate hopes a bit by working Johnson for a pass, the young Washington manager raced in to scoop up Traynor's tingling grounder, tag out Barnhart on the baseline and complete another double play with a fast throw to first. The final play of the game also fell to Harris when he grabbed Wright's poke, juggled it a moment, then whipped the ball to Judge for the putout.

One Big Inning for Senators

Offensively, the Senators bunched their big efforts in one big inning, the third, when they drove Yde from the box, but it was only by the narrowest of margins that they were stopped from scoring in two other innings of "Jughandle Johnny" Morrison and Babe Adams, who scaled a world series peak for the first time since he pitched the Pirates to triumph in three games over Detroit in 1909.

The damage in the third frame would have been even heavier but for Walter Johnson's vain attempt to make second base on his sharp hit to right which opened the inning. He was easily retired but the big barrage soon enveloped Yde. Sam Rice sailed over second on a hit which Eddie Moore stopped with a diving lunge and Wright missed a chance for a double-play that would have retired the side when he muffed Grantham's throw to second on Stan Harris' grounder.

Goslin Breaks Up Game

This set the stage with man on first and second for Goslin and the Goose brought the crowd to its feet, cheering wildly, when he caught one of Yde's curves and shot it toward the left field bleachers. It grazed Barnhart's finger tips but flew on and bounded high over the short barrier. The roar for this had hardly subsided when Joe Harris slashed an even mightier wallop high into the same left field stands for his second homer of the series.

Taps were sounded for Yde when he walked Judge and Morrison's curves checked the Senators without further scoring after he had hit Ruel in the back with one wild heave.

There was no further threat on the part of the Senators until the seventh when Stan Harris and Goslin drove out successive singles. Judge forced Goslin, however, and a moment later Stan Harris was nipped at the plate on an attempted double steal, with Judge, although the closeness of the decision brought a howl from the stands and a kick from the champions.

Against Adams in the eight, Ruel lashed out a double for his third hit of the game and went to third on Myer's infield blow that the latter beat to first but on an attempted squeeze play with Johnson at the bat, Ruel was tagged out by Gooch, who picked up the pitcher's splash in front of the plate.

For the Pirates, there were few opportunities against such pitching as Johnson's and such a defense as the Senators put up. Superior strategy had conquered them the day before but they were simply outplayed in every department of the game. They played gallantly but to no avail against a team that held every advantage except youth.

Aldridge and Coveleskie Today

Today, in a last desperate effort to check the tide of defeat, Vic Aldridge, who twirled Pittsburgh's only victory in the second game, will go back to the firing line. He will carry the Pirates last ditch hopes in another duel with his veteran rival, Coveleskie. The score:

SATURDAY'S GAME MOST THRILLING OF SERIES

(By The A. P.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—A shivering gale that swept with Arctic fury across Griffith stadium today left in its wake as wild and wooly a world's series battle as has ever been waged. Out of this maelstrom of excitement and thrills that left spectators and players alike dizzy as well as chilled, Washington's inspired battalions left the wind-swept field victorious by a margin of 4 to 3 in the third game of the championship fray, gaining a commanding lead of two games to one in the fight for baseball's greatest honors.

In this ebbing and flowing conflict the Senators came from behind to win with a closing burst of combined attacking and defensive brilliance but only after a twisting and shifting struggle filled with pulse-stirring plays and bad ones, sensational hitting as well as impotency at the bat, consummate strategy as well as bad generalship.

Joe Harris, bulky right fielder of the Senators, won the game when his smashing hit scored Stan Harris in the deciding run and furnished the climax of a two-run rally that put the champions in front for the first time, but it was saved by Same Rice and Fred Marberry in the closing two innings of drama.

Rice, in the eighth, robbed Earl Smith of a home run with a marvelous one-handed catch as he toppled over the centerfield bleacher's barrier into the laps of spectators, while Marberry, giant relief hurler who had replaced Alex Ferguson, stopped the last desperate charge of the Pirates in the ninth after filling the bases with only one out and pitching three straight balls to the last batsman, the dangerous "Pie" Traynor, before a fly to Earl McNeely ended the threat.

QQUESTION AS TO RICE'S CATCH IN SATURDAY'S GAME

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The question of Sam Rice's catch in right center in yesterday's contest remained a subject for discussion throughout the city tonight.

The consensus of opinion appeared to be that Rice held the ball long enough to make it a legal catch but Washington players were reported to have admitted that the ball was dropped before being returned to the infield. They would not say so, directly, however, when questioned by newspapermen.

Rice claimed in an interview in the club house yesterday after the game that the ball had not been out of his hands for a second, and declared that his delay in returning it to the field was due to the fact that he became entangled in some way after running into the bleacher fence and had trouble in extricating himself.

Another interview credited to Rice related that the Washington outfielder had collided with a bleacherite's head and required time in which to recover his breath.

RUMORS OF SALE OF GOSLIN AND PECK ARE UNFOUNDED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP)—Rumors downtown tonight had it Leon (Goose) Goslin and Roger Peckinpaugh had been sold to the Boston Red Sox for $225,000, Peck to become manager of the team.

Clark C. Griffith president of the club, was quick to deny the report.

"This thing is ridiculous," he said "and I am sick and tired of talking about crazy rumors. Whoever is starting them must be crazy. There is absolutely nothing in it."

WORLD'S SERIES BRIEFS

Goose Goslin's home run in the third inning gave him the world's series record for circuit clouting. It was his second of this series and his fifth in two years of championship competition displacing the previous high total of four, hung up by Babe Ruth.

But for Walter Johnson's attempt to reach second on his drive to left that opened this inning Goslin's blow would have come with the bases full. The Goose's clout grazed the finger-tips of Barnhart before it bounded into the bleachers. But Joe Harris, who followed with his second homer of the series, put the ball high and far into the same stands with one of the most terrific smashes of the series.

This home run orgy also tied several other series records. Including the mark of two in one inning by one club, first done by the Giants in 1921. And the record of five for one club in a series, which the Senators themselves equalled last fall after the Giants and Yankees each had set the standard with five apiece in 1923.

Stan Harris was called out at the plate in the seventh inning on an attempted double steal with Judge, but from the pressbox he looked safe by a good margin. The crowd thought so, too, for it jeered Umpire Moriarty for several minutes. Harris kicked strenuously but since it wasn't a vital situation for the Senators, the squawks soon were silenced.

There was a big cheer in the eighth when Babe Adams, veteran hero of the Pirates' triumph in the 1909 series with Detroit, was sent to the box to replace Morrison.

Ruel, the batting "bust" of the 1924 series, ranks among the heavy stickers this time. He had a perfect day at bat this afternoon, blazing out three safe blows, one a double off Adams, and getting to base when hit by a pitched ball in his other appearance at the plate.

The final overnight ruling of official scorers on the disputed play by which Goslin got to first base in the first inning of Saturday's game, Earl Smith, Pirate catcher, is credited with an error as well as a passed ball.

Yde got away to a shaky start when he passed Stan Harris and Goslin in the first inning but Joe Harris rapped to Traynor and a snappy double play snuffed out the side.

Buddy Myer, Bluege's substitute at third, put Johnson in a hole in the second inning when he failed to handle two raps by Traynor and Grantham. Both were credited as hits but they were of the scratchy variety and probably would have been outs in the hands of a more experienced and steady infielder.

The Washington crowd came out today to see Johnson pitch and Goslin pickle one. They got what they came for and went away happy. Stan Harris pulled a neat bit of strategy in the eighth inning even if it did not work out. With Ruel on third and Myer on first with one out and Johnson coming up Bucky figured that the percentage favored Johnson hitting into a double play. He ordered a squeeze play and had Johnson's tap been a bit longer Ruel would have scored. As it was Gooch took Johnson's roller and plastered Ruel with the ball as he came up the line under full headway.

Ossie Bluege, Washington's star third baseman who has been out of the game since he was hit in the head by a pitched ball in the second contest, watched today's battle in citizen's clothes from the bench. He is coming around alright but physicians are taking no chances, fearing a slight concussion.

Secretary Kellogg, an enthusiastic fan, dropped in at the champions' dressing rooms before the game to congratulate Manager Harris on yesterday's victory. He also posed for pictures with the manager.

AGGIES LOSE TO MAINE BY ONE TOUCHDOWN

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 10—Coach Sumner A. Dole's Connecticut Aggie eleven lost its first home game of the season today, when in a gruelling contest with the rugged University of Maine eleven, the State College team went down to a 7-0 defeat.

Paul Bitgood of Danielson, former Killingly High athlete, and Gerald Allard of Putnam were two eastern Connecticut boys who showed up well for the Aggies. Bitgood played the entire game at left guard, where time and time again he threw back the Maine ball carriers with no gain. Allard was sent in at left halfback, substituting for Filmer. His defensive work was of high order, especially against Maine's overhead attack, and he made several good gains through the line.

Maine scored in the last few minutes of the fourth period, when a drop kick was blocked and converted into a touchdown. Connecticut had rushed the ball deep into its opponent's territory as the game was drawing to a close. Schofield, Connecticut's quarterback, elected to try a drop kick as it was fourth down and only fifteen yards from the goal posts. Moreland was called back to kick, but his attempt was blocked by Dickson. Maine right guard who broke through the Aggies defense, Dickson recovered the ball on the bound on his own twenty-five yard line, from which he raced the remaining seventy-five yards for the winning touchdown. Stanton kicked the extra point after the touchdown. This break provided a complete reversal of the situation in the outcome of the game, as it looked as though the Aggies were going to score, until Maine broke through and blocked the kick.

Play was considerably slowed up because of the wet and slippery field, which made sure footing impossible. Of still further disadvantage to the contending teams was the high wind, which made consistent punting, and the clean handling of punts, impossible.

Connecticut's running attack looked better today than in any previous game; the Storrs backs ripping through Maine's line for substantial gains time and time again. Ten first downs for Connecticut as against four for Maine tells the story of the ground gaining ability of the two elevens.

Inability to hang onto the ball, coupled with two intercepted passes, hurt the Aggies chances to score when they were deep in Maine territory. Starting a march in the latter part of the first period, the Aggies went for a distance of sixty yards on straight line plunges and off tackle slants, only to lose the ball on a fumble in the second period when deep in Maine territory.

Makofski, Schofield and Filmer starred in this march, ripping through their opponent's lines for good gains.

RACE DRIVER KILLED AS CAR CRASHES FENCE

DETROIT, Oct. 11—(A. P.)—Al Waters, Chicago automobile race driver, was injured fatally and 20 spectators hurt, four seriously, when his automobile went through a fence while racing at the Michigan state fair grounds today. Water died en route to a hospital.

Waters was on the 146th lap of a 150 mile race and had just passed the grandstand when his rear axle broke. The car turned at a right angle and crashed into a low fence where the crowd had gathered to watch the finish.

Of the twenty persons injured, 13 suffered fractured legs. The other seven were cut and bruised. The four persons critically injured suffered fractures of both legs, internal injuries and had not regained consciousness tonight. They were:

E. J. Miller, Mayville, Mich.; Joe Becin, Detroit; Ralph W. Lambright, Detroit, and Harold Ellison, Milan, Mich.

Waters arrived for the race today too late to qualify and successfully pleaded with officials to be allowed to start. He was attempting to remain in fourth place which would have put him in the prize money, when the accident happened.

BALTIMORE WINS MINOR LEAGUE BASEBALL TITLE FROM LOUISVILLE

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11—(A. P.)—The Baltimore Orioles today broke the spell Joe Deberry, Louisville right-hand ace, had woven about them in two games and broke through his delivery—as many as the Birds could Junior World's series 5 to 2. As a result of their victory, the seven-time champions of the International league tonight rested on the highest pinnacle of minor league baseball. The American association titlists won but three of the eight games played here and at Louisville.

George Earnshaw held the Colonels in the palm of his right hand today. Although ten hits were made off his delivery—as many as the Birds could gather from the combined offerings of Deberry and his successor, Wilkinson—Earnshaw kept them scattered, his mates added five fielding miscues to his burden.

Porter Brainard scored two of the Oriole runs on long homers over the centerfield wall, Brainard's smash led off the Birds' big inning, the fourth, in which they scored three runs and caused the banishment of their previous nemesis, Deberry. Boley, who gathered three hits today, followed with a double and scored on Cobb's two base blow. Earnshaw brought his catcher home, and forced Wilkinson to the rescue of Deberry, with a long single to center. Wilkinson promptly put a stop to the scoring.

The Kentuckians gathered the first pair of victories in the opening games played at Louisville. Baltimore won the next two to even the series. When the play shifted to Baltimore, the Colonels led off again with victory but dropped the last three games to the Dunnmen. Eleven innings were necessary to give the birds a 10 to 9 victory yesterday.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH MGR. ONEY AND HIS SAINTS

Mr. Sporting Editor: The Sachems would like to know what the matter is with Mgr. Oney and his St. Joseph's baseball team. Through the sporting columns of the Bulletin, he challenged us, the Sachems, for a game to be played upon the Duwell field, Sunday, October 11th and was accepted, in Saturday's paper. The Sachems had their full team on the diamond at 2 o'clock Sunday, but Mgr. Oney and his men did not show up, and Umpire Gross, declared the game forfeited to the Sachems, at 3 o'clock, by the score of 9 to 0. What's the matter with Mgr. Oney is he yellow, or was he trying to kid the baseball public, when he issued the challenge, or was it that he knew that he could never beat the Sachems and he would rather have the score 9 to 0, than a much larger score, that it sure must have been, providing the game was played.

FIVE EASTERN CONN. BOYS PLAY FOR AGGIE FROSH

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 11—Five eastern Connecticut boys played a prominent part in the first game of the season for the Connecticut Aggie freshmen eleven yesterday, which played a 0-0 game with Kent School at Kent, Conn.

They are Allard, former Plainfield High athlete, who started for the Aggies at fullback; Usher of Willimantic who started at end; Gilman and McNamara, both of Norwich, who were sent in at guard to stop the Kent gains through the line, which they did to perfection; and Hewitt of New London, former Chapman Tech star, who looked good both at end and fullback.

These men have all shown up well on Coach Alexander's yearling team, and they are certain to give a good account of themselves before the season is long under way. The play of the two Norwich boys at guard was especially good, and much will be expected of them from now on.

The two teams were evenly matched in yesterday's struggle, and the struggle was a tight one from start to finish. Fumbles cost both teams opportunities to score. Kent showed a slight advantage over Connecticut in rushing the ball.

Eastern Connecticut people who would like to see the Aggie freshmen in action will have the opportunity next Friday afternoon, when the Tufts freshman team comes to Storrs. The Bay Staters from Medford always have a strong eleven, and the game should be a good one.

GRANGE IS STAR OF GAME AGAINST BUTLER

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(A. P.)—Neither Chicago nor Ohio State can be considered out of the western conference title campaign as a result of their 3 to 3 tie in the opening battle for the Big Ten season yesterday. Strangely enough, Ohio fought Chicago to an identical score last year, but the Maroons took the crown, despite the tie, as they went through the season undefeated.

The game was the debut of Elmer Marek, who proved himself a player of the breed of "Red" Grange.

Grange apparently is the Grange of 1923 and 1924, judging from his performance against Butler. The famous redhead's achievements yesterday were topped by a 70-yard run for a touchdown when he received a punt when standing almost on the sidelines surrounded by a flock of Butler tacklers.

FRIBERG HITS HOMER AS ASHLAND WINS FROM WORCESTER TOWN TALKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 11—Facing a cold wind, regular football weather, a crowd of 1500 watched the Ashland A. C. defeat the famous Town Talks of Worcester, Mass., 3-1 here today. "Spike" Liberty allowed six hits while Flodman of Worcester allowed the same number.

Ashland scored in the first. "Nap" Liberty singled to left, took second, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on a wild peg to third, "Bernie" Friberg, star second baseman of the Philadelphia Nationals on his first trip to the plate socked one of Flodman's shoots into deep center for a home run.

Town Talks scored their only tally in the second. Bedard singled to left, and when the ball went through Gilbert he went to second and scored on Regan's single.

In the sixth Friberg knocked one straight up into the clouds, the centerfielder dropped the apple and Bernie was safe at second. Joe Faber beats out a perfect bunt and Friberg went to third on the play. He scored a moment later on Raney's sacrifice fly.

Faber Presented Traveling Case

In the first inning with both clubs gathered around home plate Warden Matthew Geary in behalf of the fans of Jewett City presented "Joe" Faber a beautiful traveling bag, a sweater and a peach of a traveling kit.

Faber was the hitting star of the game getting three hits out of four trips to the plate.

Friberg played a wonderful game at first accepting nineteen chances without an error and hit bar. in every attempt at bat. He was giving a wonderful hand by the crowd every trip to the plate.

Next Sunday will be the last game of the season with the fast Herrups of Hartford, Conn. The score:

NEW LONDON'S NEW AERIAL TRUCK TO BE DELIVERED OCTOBER 20TH

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11.—The new Seagrave aerial truck for use of the city's fire department will be delivered here the 20th inst. by Howard Ensign, Edward Phillips and Charles Bloomquiet, representatives of the manufacturers of the truck. The apparatus has arrived in New Haven, having reached that city Saturady by rail Because the central fire station here where the truck is to be permanently housed is not ready for the reception of the apparatus, owing to alterations being in progress, the truck will remain in one of the New Haven fire department's houses until the date of delivery. The truck will not continue to New London by freight, but will be driven here.

Charles Harold, driver of a Yellow Cab, complained to the police at 3:45 o'clock Saturday morning that while he was driving a passenger from Groton to New London a short time before, he was held up the New London approach to the Thames river highway bridge and the car was searched by a sailor wearing sidearms. Patrolmen Edward Daniels and Patrick Sheehan accompanied Harold back to the bridge approach, but the sailor was not found. The officers and Harold then went to the local section base, No. 4, United States Coast Guard, state pier, where they found that the sailor had boarded his ship a short time before the officers arrived and they were informed by Lieut. Crowley that the alleged act of the sailor would be investigated. Lieut. Crowley stated that the sailor had been detailed to perform guard duty at the bridge approach, because of the large number of sailors stationed at the pier having been given shore liberty Friday night. With the assurance that the sailor's act would be investigated, Harold withdrew complaint against the guard.

The high wind of Saturday and early this morning caused several trees and limbs of trees to be blown down, but no particular damage resulted. One of the largest of the trees blown over was at the corner of Glenwood and Pequot avenues. Limbs from trees fell on Meridian street and Maple avenue, at the latter place a limb landing on electric light wires.

Charles Carroll, of Montville, employed as a paper mill worker, was taken into custody late Saturday afternoon by Patrolman William Riordan charged with intoxication. He will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning. Carroll was at the Hotel Winthrop restaurant and in such a condition of intoxication that he made a nuisance of himself and was an annoyance to patrons of the eating place to the exent that his arrest was requested.

Alfred Martel, of 177 Pequot ave- nue, complained to the police Saturday that three young men were about the city obtaining money under false representation. Martel declared that he had been approached by the men on Pequot avenue and that he had given one of the three $1 upon the representation that the money would be expended, together with additional sums collected here, in the interests of drivers of commercial cars and trucks, but that when he read the receipt given him, the acknowledgement of the payment of the money called for a subscription to the "Rural Life and Farm Stock Journal." Later Patrolman Riordan located the three men and caused them to go to the police station, where they admitted having received $1 from Martel, but each declared that Martel had not been misinformed as to what the subscriber would receive for his money. They also displayed proof of their being accredited agents of the publication.

The police received a telephone summons from a resident of Shaw street early Saturday morning that a child was being brutally beaten by a resident at 2 Pratt street. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman George Laboue were sent to the Pratt street home, where Mrs. Planpiano, 15, informed the officers that her father, Gaetano Planpiano makes a practice of beating her whenever the desire to do so prompts him, and that is frequent. The girl stated that she had been taken from a home by Planpiano and that her mother was dead. She also expressed a desire to be allowed to return to the home from which she was taken. The authorities are investigating the girl's statements.

Mrs. Georgie Reeves, of 342 Mon- tauk avenue, Raymond Budley, 37 Brooks street; Mrs. Shirlel Thomson Old Mystic; Muster Russell Holmes Old Mystic; Mrs. Stanley Cobb, Groton; Mrs. Louis Sklarew, Mystic; Mrs. Lawrence McGrath and infant son, 730 Williams street; Roland Wheeler, 17 S. S. Howe; Thomas Hanlon, schooner Frank Lynch and Master Antlelli Orphanage-Memorial Associated Hospital were dismissed Saturday.

Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman is absent from the city and will be for several days. During the absence his duties will be attended to by Dr Alfred Lavenby.

Mrs. Lillian Vark Bindloss, formerly of New London, died at Norwich state hospital Saturday morning. She was the widow of George Bindloss, whose death occured about 18 months ago. After the death of Mr. Bindloss Mrs. Bindloss moved to New Haven. She is survived by a daughter, who resides in New Haven.

The funeral of Miss Mary Harrison was held Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at her residence, 27 Harrison street, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church, Groton. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

William Dwyer, formerly of New London, died late Friday at Bellevue hospital, New York, where he had been under treatment for several days. Mr. Dwyer was formerly employed on the New London line steamers and at one time was the proprietor of a club room on Railroad avenue. He is survived by a brother, James Dwyer, 32 Hempstead street, New London.

Abraham L. Notkins, of New Haven, has sold to Louis and Sarah Taner parcels of land as 100-102 Ocean avenue.

Dorothy J. Notkins, of New Haven, administratrix of the estate of Matthew A. Notkins; Abraham A., and Benjamon A. Notkins, also of New Haven, have sold a parcel of land on Ocean avenue to John Atchelas.

Rosario Grillo bought a Ford tour- ing car at Westerly from a man named Bruno, and came to New London without having gone through the formality of getting registration. He had borrowed number plates from Bruno and attached them to his Ford. He said he intended to get registration here, but he was stopped on the way and that brought a fine of $5 to him. Officer Hill directed Grillo at the corner of State and Main streets, but Grillo did not understand the directions and he was called to account. This led to the discovery that he had no registration.

John Pullin was charged with in- toxication. He said he had taken but a few drinks, but they made him a madman and he was arrested. He is employed as an expressman and had never been in the court before so he drew a suspended sentence when his employer pleaded for him.

James Ernest Turner, a boy who stole a pair of trousers and a belt from a man who had befriended him was released in the custody of the probation officer. His father is employed on a farm in Groton and there the boy was allowed to go with his mother, with the understanding that he, too, was to be employed. The mentality of the boy is questioned and to determine what his behavior will be the case was continued to Saturady next.

Joe Bennett was charged with steal- ing newspapers from doors where they were left. He is now on parole and to further test him the case was continued to the 7th of November.

The case of Albert Soltz, charged with gambling was also continued, that also going over until the 7th of November.

A breach of the peace case against Henrietta Simmons was nolled, as it was found to be a quarrel between neighbors and to have little of importance to it.

Charlie Moore, known as Charlie Chaplin, because of his peculiar manner and dress, had his case nolled. Charlie has been at the state hospital at Norwich several weeks, but he was released from that institution and is now about the city polishing the brass and nickel on automobiles.

Stephen R. Fraser, 27, of 633 Main street, a locomotive fireman, was arrested at 1:30 this afternoon at his home, following complaint being made to the police by his wife that Fraser appeared at his home intoxicated and after engaging in a row with her beat the woman. Patrolman Frank Philopena went to the Fraser home and took the fireman into custody. He was unable to procure a surety on his bond of $100 and was locked up to await a hearing in the police court Monday morning.

John A. Gillis complained to the po- lice tonight that a fellow had appeared at his home, and although apparently drunk, attempted to gain admission to the place. Gillis found the man in the hallway and drove him out of the place. When the intruder departed he left a boy's raincoat on the back veranda. This was turned over to Patrolman Augustus Ray, who made a search for the man, but could not find him.

Grover O. George, of Bayonne, N. J., visited the New London police station this afternoon and requested the authorities to assist him in locating his son, Clifford, aged 17, who is missing from home. Mr. George stated that the boy was last heard of Oct. 2, when he wrote a letter to his mother, the letter being addressed from this city. The youth's mother is ill and desires that the boy return home or communicate with her.

NEW BRUNSWICK POLICE ARREST ARTHUR LAVOIE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11—Arthur Lavoie, formerly a sailor stationed at the submarine base, was arrested by the New Brunswick police Saturday at the request of the Waterford authorities and upon evidence furnished by the New London police charged with rape. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was deputized as a constable by the Waterford selectmen and left late Saturday afternoon for New Brunswick to bring Lavoie back here to await his presentation in the Waterford town court.

The warrant for Lavoie's arrest resulted when the mother of Josephine Fulton, 16, daughter of Italian parents residing on Steward street, complained to the authorities. The girl in relating her sory of the assault upon her by Lavoie, declared that she had known the accused for some time and that she met Lavoie at the trolley terminal at Ocean Beach last April. She was invited to take a walk and accompanied Lavoie to Gardner avenue where the couple sat on a rock after passing across the highway bridge, which brought them into the town of Waterford. It is alleged by the girl, that Lavoie attacked her twice, each time accomplishing his purpose. After the assaut the girl declares, she started to walk to Ocean avenue, and was crying when Lavoie overtook her and endeavored to calm her, but she left him and went to her home. The girl stated that she did not inform her mother of what had occurred, but recently her condition became such that the parent caused the girl to accompany the former to the office of a physician, where the girl's condition was revealed. Compalint was then lodged with the local police. Lavoie had since the attack been discharged from the navy, but his home address was found to be New Brunswick. The warrant was issued and sent to the New Brunswick authorities, with the request that Lavoie be taken into custody.

A WHITE SAILOR TAKEN IN RAID ON BREWER HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11. — The police raided the home of Lonnie Brewer, colored, 29 High street, early this morning. As a result of the visit Brewer was arrested, charged with conducting a disorderly house, Sallie Herbert, 27, colored and married, and Montgomery Robertson, 28, white, a sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard patrol boat C. G. 20 were taken into custody charged with being fequenters of the place. Neither of these was able to furnish a bond for appearance in the police court Monday morning, so all weer locked up.

The police had long suspected Brewer of maintaining an immoral resort and at 3:30 o'clock Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolmen Edward Daniels, John Sullivan and George Laboue entered the house. Brewer was found to be in charge of the place and the circumstances under which the Herbert woman and Robertson were found left no doubts in the minds of the officers as to the business being carried on there. Brewer has a long police record for offenses of various natures.

NIANTIC MAN'S WIFE DISCOVERS HIM HANGED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11. — Otto Walho Salmi, a Finn, 44, committed suicide on the premises of his residence, Niantic, by hanging Saturday morning. His lifeless body was discovered by his wife. To despondency from some unknown cause is attributed Salmi's rash act. It is known that he had displayed symptoms of depression and worriment for several weeks. Salmi was well known in Niantic where he was employed as a stonecutter.

Salmi arose early in the morning and left his home. When he failed to return within a reasonable length of time Mrs. Salmi went to the garage in the rear of the home and, opening the door, found her husband's body with a rope aroung his neck and suspended from a rafter. When the body was cut down it was warm but life was extinct.

Broadway Theatre

Whether you go to the Broadway matinee or night today, you are getting a rare treat. That popular two for one matinee will be given today and a real old fashioned country store tonight, assuring you of real fun and free gifts.

The scheduled program itself is without doubt the best that has yet been presented.

The Keith famous vaudeville is as follows:

The Robinson Four consists of four girls of beauty, youth and charm in an harmony revel.

Edith Randall opens the program with a de luxe musical treat.

Kinnear & Ray follow in a comedy offering, "Can You Imagine."

Stone & Leever are called "Bughouse Kate" and you will laugh until tears roll down your cheeks.

Rice and Elmer close the show with versatile bits of comedy and thrills. The photoplay, "The Verdict" is the finest seen in this city for some time.

A reviewer finds it difficult to discuss any story which starts long before the screen action begins, and another difficulty is presented when one tries to discuss a murder mystery and still be fair to the people who are going to see it and don't want to know in advance just how it works out. So we will say of the story only that it is excellent drama, competently handled and told in a novel form.

The picture is, in general, up to the high standard of excellence set by the cast. Followers of the flickering stage will agree that not for a long while have we seen in one picture such an assemblage of first rate artists as Lou Telegen, William Collier, Jr., Louise Lorraine, Taylor Holmes, Gertrude Astor, Alaude George, Walter Long, Elliott Dexter, Gaston Glass, George Fawcett, Stanton Heck, Paul Weigel, Charles Clary and Joseph Swickard.

"The Verdict" will continue till Wednesday at this theatre. You should see this show.

THE SECRET OF THOSE WONDERFUL ENGLISH COMPLEXIONS

Grandmother's Recipe — Kept Her Youthful Looks and Clear Creamy Complexion with Common Everyday Buttermilk and Cream.

Every woman reader of this paper who prizes a clear creamy white complexion and snow-white hands and arms will be glad to know that while preparing this old-time recipe at home was always mussy and troublesome they can now obtain at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation called "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream.

The directions are simple and the woman who has hitherto refused to indulge in such so-called "vanities" might well be excused for using Buttermilk Cream since beauty simply thrives on buttermilk. No pimples or ugly sallowness, no wrinkles or lines around the eyes and mouth, but just that creamy delicious color that makes even a good-looking woman still more beautiful.

You can get it at any pharmacy or department store simply asking for "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream and remember it's only sold on a positive guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Lee & Osgood Co., can hardly keep it in stock there's such a demand.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Those who see Corinne Griffith in Declasse, which began a four day run at the Breed theater last night, will agree that she has done the best work of her career in this screen adaption of the famous stage play by Zoe Akins.

The enthusiasm which marked the initial showing of this First National picture was unusual. Robert Vignola, who directed the production, deserves special mention for the excellence of his work.

Miss Griffith was surrounded by a cast whose names were nearly all familiar to the audience. It included Lloyd Hughes, Hedda Hopper, Rockliffe Fellowes, Louise Fazenda, Lilyan Tashman, Clive Brook, Joan Standing, Edile Lyons, Mario Carillo and others. The adaption was by Bradley King and Charles Whitaker.

The story deals with the unhappy marriage of Lady Helen Haden, played by Miss Griffith, and he love for an American, Ned Thayer, who has allowed himself to fall into the clutches of an adventuress. His reformation and her future happiness form the basis of an exciting and entertaining story.

Declasse, as a stage play, was made famous by Ethel Barrymore.

DESIRE FOR HOT COFFEE IN BED MADE HIM INVENT

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 11—Difficulty in awakening and his fondness for a cup of hot coffee in bed were two factors that led Dr. Gustaf Dalen, winner of the 1912 Nobel prize to become a successful inventor.

Dr. Dalen as a boy living in a humble country home was required to arise early, but he found it hard to awaken on time. A discarded wall clock was repaired to which was added an alarm mechanism with a piece of tinplate taking the place of the bell. He combined the clock-work with a little friction wheel covered with emery paper that began to rotate 15 minutes before the alarm went off. Friction against the rough surface of the paper lighted a match.

The match was attached to a rod that swung over a gasoline lamp, the cap of which was simultaneously removed by another contrivance constructed from a couple of empty wooden spools and a piece of string. Over the lamp he had placed a coffee urn containing coffee prepared the night before. When the slumbers of the little inventor, then 14 years of age, were interrupted by the alarm going off the room was lighted and his coffee was boiling.

It was during Dr. Dolen's experiments with gas accumulators for beacon lights that he lost his sight through an explosion. His inventive genius, however, did not seem to suffer as he has since given the world a number of new inventions, and still continues to direct the work of his plant in spite of his blindness.

BRITISH HAVE A SUMMER BUT NOT ONE TO THEIR LIKING

LONDON, Oct. 11—(AP)—The British are gossiping about the summer that has just gone—the first summer, to the mind of an alien observer that this island folk have seen since 1921. But it was not a satisfactory summer; no summer ever is in England.

When it rains it rains too much and when it does not rain it is too dry to suit the farmers. Usually it rains too much, which is why everybody hastens to explain to the newcomer the existence of a saying that the English summer consists of two sunny days and a thunderstorm.

The latter part of May and almost the whole of June were bright and warm this year, the brightest months England has enjoyed sinc the drought of 1921. Even duffers got golf drives of 250 yards, so long a run did the hard ground give a truly hit ball. Cricket and tennis matches, so often stopped by showers, were halted during the early summer only when it was time for tea.

July began well, but before it was over the climate got back to normalcy—a little sunshine and a lot of rain. During August sunshine and rainfall was about average. Unfortunately August is the month of the conventional middle classes to take their conventional holidays at the seaside, especially if one has children. Usually the weather is better in June, but August is the month when the schools are shut. So, due to a rather cool and wet August, the summer as a whole provoked as much complaint as ever. The philosophical Englishman will tell you it is just as well, for the people have to have something to "grouse" about, and it is best they vent their accumulated annoyances on the climate.

TELL COUNCIL DENSITY OF TRAFFIC EXCEEDS NEW YORK

DETROIT Oct. 11.—(AP)—The city plan and rapid transit commissions told the common council that the density of traffic in Detroit now "far exceeds" that of New York in New York's most noted and conspicuous spots.

Throwing generalities out the window and sticking to specific cases the commission reported that:

Surface traffic at Grand River avenue and West Grand Boulevard is in excess of what was the last count made at Fifth avenue and 42nd street New York.

Traffic at Jefferson avenue and St. Antoine street exceeds the traffic at the same New York intersection by 18 per cent., and Jefferson avenue at East Grand boulevard is 33 1-3 per cent. more congested.

The 15 heaviest traffic streets in Detroit carry at their center four per cent. more than the 15 heaviest traffic streets of New York.

The 15 most important routes reaching the boulevard handle 18 per cent. more traffic than the 15 New York streets to which reference has been made.

The commission recommended a super-highway 120 feet wide to handle cross-town traffic, this amending the original plans, approved in 1917, of an 80-foot cross-town artery; and the widening of a portion of Second avenue and Hastings street to accommodate nothbound traffic around the downtown section.

SHOE SHINE IN MEXICO CITY COSTS $1.50—IF YOU PAY IT

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11—(AP)—The newcomer in Mexico City usually is stung once before he discovers that 20 cents, not $1.50, is the proper price for having his shoes shined.

A band of more or less gentle grafters operates in the Alameda, a beautiful park in the center of the city, where every visitor is known to stroll. He is almost certain to sit on one of the many benches and just as surely as he does he will be surgounded by a flock of boot-blacks clamoring for his custom. The shine completed, the boy is given ten or 20 cents, but he demands $1.50. The visitor registers astonishment. The boy insists.

The boy, by now reinforced with such of his companion pirates as are not similarly engaged, produces an official card" showing that the "duly authorized" scale of prices of the "syndicate" of shoe-shinners of the Alameda includes $1.50 for a "special shine." A special shine consists of an extra dab of something that looks like varnish.

Generally the victim hands over $1.50, charges it up to experience, and thereafter visits the Alameda only for fresh air.

CUBAN GOVERNMENT TO LEVY TAXES ON UNIMPROVED LAND

HAVANA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Under the new public works law all idle land in the republic will be taxed, affecting in the city of Buvana alone about 40,000 vacant lots and in the republic thousands of acres of land that either never have been under cultivation, or allowed to lie idle by owners.

This is the first time in the history of the republic, it is believed, that taxes have been assessed on idle lands. Formerly taxes were assessed on actual income, which prevented collection of any taxes against unproductive holdings.

The public works department has announced that six per cent. of the valuation would be considered as income from non-income paying lands and property, or $1.20 on each $1.000 taxable value.

STARVING CATS TO DEATH MAY SOON BE ABOLISHED IN ROME

ROME, Oct. 11.—(AP)—For many generations Romans have disposed of their cats by dropping them—some twenty feet below the level of the street—into one of the dry moats of the Pantheon or the pit containing the remains of the Trajan Forum. There the felines, unable to scale the walls, have lived and multiplied, depending for their food upon the generosity of passers-by and resorting during lean days to the cannibalism of their tiger cousins.

Not much longer, however, will the visitor see hundreds of these gaunt animals wandering about their prisons. Serious efforts are being made to get the government to remove the cats and to put them quickly out of their misery. It is also planned to ask the authorities to impose penalties upon persons who repopulate the cat prisons.

WILL SEEK DESIGNATION OF NATIONAL GOOD ROADS WEEK

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Observance of "Good Roads Week" throughout the United States in conjunction with the annual convention of the American Road Builders' association at Chicago next Jan. 11-16, is the aim of Charles M. Upham, state highway engineer, and manager for the road convention.

Governor McLean has been requested to so designate the week in North Carolina and governors of the other states and President Coolidge will be asked to issue similar proclamations.

The purpose is to center the attention of the citizens on road problems while the road convention is in session where the latest contributions to the science of roadbuilding will be on display and prominent speakers will tell of road imbprovements.

Speeds Up Rotation Ship

MUEHLHMEIM, Oct. 11—(AP)—An improvement on Flettner's famous rotation ship has been constructed by the engineer, Frank Struzina. His vessel is equipped with two stationary towers. By means of large air funnels that can be regulated to point in any direction, the vessel is enabled to utilize the wind coming from any point of the compass, whereby its speed is materially enhanced. At the trial trip the vessel succeeded in attaining a far greater speed than the Flettner ship.

To Observe Birth of Omnibus

LONDON, Oct. 11—Plans to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the birth of the omnibus in Europe have been launched here, but whether the celebration will be held in London or Paris has not yet been decided. It was in 1825 that the first omnibus lumbered through the streets of Nantes, France, although it was not until four years later that a similar vehicle appeared in England. Today there are 35,000 omnibuses, most of them double deckers, operating daily in London.

Rice Crop of Japan

TOKYO, Sept. 11.—The importance of rice in Japan is shown by an announcement that the empire consumes 30,697,000 koku, or 403,485,000 bushels of this food staple annually. These figures represent an average for the last five years and include 60,000,000 bushels of rice imported from abroad.

Last Executioner for Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Denmark's last executioner, Paul Selstrup, died at the age of 78. During 7 years he held office there were only three executions as the death penalty has been virtually abolished.

Tennyson First Edition Found

LONDON, Oct 11—(AP)—A first edition copy of "Poems of Two Brothers" dated 1827 and valued at 60 pounds, was discovered in a sack of books sent as waste paper to a firm of booksellers. The two brothers are Lord Tennyson and his brother Charles.

Ham Bone Club After Quarters

LONDON, Oct. 11—Members of the Ham Bone Club, a London resort of artists and writers, are in search of a home where they can in peace and quiet pursue their avocations. They plan to have their own village in the south of France.

INCREASE OF SUN SPOTS WILL BRING HOTTER DAYS

The Smithsonian Institution has just published a paper by Assistant Secretary C. G. Abbott giving daily values of the sun's heat since 1920. Results given show that for more than two years the solar heat has been below normal, but now is just reaching normal again.

Comparison with the number of sunspots gives the reason. When there are few sun-spots, as in 1923 and 1924, the sun burns low, like a fire that is not stirred. The time for many sunspots is now approaching and like a fire when the fresh coals are raked forward, the sun will soon send out more heat.

Two observatories under the Smithsonian are carrying on this work for the whole world. One station is in the nitrate desert of Chile on a mountain 9500 feet high. It never rains there, so that all food and water have to be hauled 12 miles. The ground there is as bare of life as an asphalt roof. The other station is on a mountain in the Arizona desert, where it seldom rains.

Daily telegrams bring results from both stations to the Smithsonian. Some promising experimental forecasts of weather conditions have been attempted by H. H. Clayton, based on these results.—Kansas City Star.

Sour Gum Tree's Leaf Scarlet

Starting early in its transformation, the tupelo or sour gum adds brilliant red to the woods of southern New England and the northern states. It is found, as well, in most of the eastern half of the United States in the regions of the Appalachians as the Mississippi valley, where another gum, the sweet gum, boasts autumnal beauty, says the American Tree association of Washington, D. C., which will send for a stamp free tree planting suggestions. This tree heralds the waning year with leaves that appear bright scarlet at a distance, but are found to be touched with yellow.

A young man with a slender salary should marry a girl with a small waste.

$1,500,000,000 in Claims

The assistant attorney general in charge of the bureau for the defense of suits against the United States, has reported to Attorney General Sargent that claims totaling more than a billion and a half dollars were pending before the United States court of claims on June 30, representing 2,941 cases.

In the various district courts of the country, 226 claims cases were reported pending on that date, with an aggregate claim value of $7,487,001.44. A large number of patent cases, with claims reaching many millions of dollars, are likewise pending in the court of claims.

Anton Lang, the famous Christ impersonator of the Passion play of Oberammergau, has at last succumbed to the offers of a film company. Standing in his workshop he was filmed as one of the principal characters in a local film.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(A. P.)—Speculative interest in this week's financial and commodity exchanges was divided between the stock market, which developed a sudden burst of strength on the lowering of the call money rates, and the cotton market, which collapsed to new low levels for the year on publication of a surprisingly large government estimate of the cotton crops.

Pool operations played a prominent part in the rise of stock prices when it became apparent that hopes entertained in regard to fall expansion in trade were being realized, judging by such indices as car loadings, bank clearings, chain and department store sales, pig iron operations and finally by the unexpectedly large increase in September unfilled orders by the U. S. Steel corporation, which were made public after the market closed today.

Shipments of gold from Great Britain to this country also were regarded as a favorable stock market influence on the theory that they assured the continuance of relatively easy money rates.

Buying orders in the stock market were spread over a broad list but well defined group movements were again in evidence with the motor, chemical, express, mail order, merchandising and tobacco issues making the best showing. Rails showed temporary burst of strength but failed to maintain their gain. Coppers and oils lagged behind the rest of the list despite the increase in American Smelting dividend and the sharp decrease in crude oil output last week.

GREENEVILLE

Rally day was observed at the Greeneville Congregational church Sunday school at 12 o'clock. There were a large number of visitors and an unusual number of scholars. The exercises opened with a selection by an orchestra composed of young ladies. This was followed by prayer by the pastor, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts. A short address of welcome was made by the superintendent, Mrs. H. H. Royden, followed by a song by the school. Mrs. Royden then gave a summary of the work of the school for the year. A duet by Mrs. L. Prentice and Miss Fowler was greatly enjoyed. Miss Viola Levitsky and Miss Evelyn Eastland had attended the summer school at Storrs as delegates from this Sunday school and a full account of that week was given by Miss Eastland.

After a song by the school and another pleasing selection by the orchestra, the pastor in his usual happy manner introduced F. B. Cary as the speaker for the day. Mr. Cary's address was listened to with the greatest interest by both pupils and visitors. He recalled pleasant memories of the days when his father had been superintendent of this Sunday school and he himself had been a pupil. Mr. Cary paid a fine tribute to those who had worked so faithfully in the school at that time. Then he gave the meaning of Rally day in a way that made it very real what the day should stand for. In closing Mr. Cary handed the superintendent an envelope containing a sum of money to be given by the pastor and superintendent to the scholar making the most progress in Bible study for the remainder of the year.

Mrs. Royden thanked Mr. Cary in behalf of the school for his kindness in addressing the school and for his interest in its welfare and the gift given to stimulate interest in Bible study.

The audience was again delighted with a selection by the orchestra which had added so much to the enjoyment of the occasion. After another song by the school the pastor pronounced the benediction.

APPRAISERS NAMED ON FOOTE FARM PROCEEDINGS

Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court made the appointment Friday of Attorney Andrew B. Davies of Norwich, Ambrose Sullivan, Montville and Dan D. Home, Montville as appraisers to assess and determine the amount of damages for taking by condemnation proceedings the land situate din Montville and adjoining the "Shantok Fort" site, containing almost 20 acres owned by Frank J. Foote. The appraisers were appointed as the state and Mr. Foote were unable to agree upon the compensation for the property. The land is sought for an addition to the state park there.

The committee of appraisers is directed by the court to meet in the city court room in Norwich at 10 o'clock on Friday, Oct. 16, to attend to their duties, and to notify all parties interested.

Attorney for Town of Groton

Attorney Warren B. Burrows of Poquonoc Bridge has been reappointed attorney for the town of Groton by the board of selectmen according to announcement made Saturday by First Selectman Clark E. Whaley. This makes the fifth consecutive year that Attorney Burrows has been retained as town counsel. He succeeded Judge Christopher L. Avery who is on the superior court bench.

Appointments have also been made for enrollers and collectors of personal taxes for each of the three districts as follows: First district, Mrs. Ruth Hermes; second district, C. Tyler Landphere; third district, Miss Millicent Kelley.

$7,500 COMING TO NORWICH FROM STATE FOR MONEY SPENT ON ROADS

Details of the state highway department's plan to distribute approximately $529,000 for state-aid road purposes to various towns in Connecticut have just been made public. By the transfer of more than a half million dollars from the gasoline tax receipts of the state government, it will be possible for those towns to participate in so-called state-aid funds to apply on the cost of roads already built by the towns in anticipation of financial assistance from the state.

In a number of cases the indebtedness of towns dates back seven and eight years, or throughout four appropriation periods. The result was that the highway department was besieged with requests to aid these towns to overcome the indebtedness and it was powerless to relieve conditions as sufficient funds were not available.

Commissioner John A. Macdonald outlined the situation to the board of control at its last meeting and on recommendation of Governor Trumbull, the transfer of funds was decided upon in order that the financial burden of the towns involved might be reduced.

It was announced at the highway department that as further funds are made available by the gas tax receipts, the department from time to time, as its budget will permit, proposes to apply for other transfers for state aid improvements. Many of the remaining towns in the state are seeking funds to carry out their road programmes and it is hoped to give these requests attention at a future date.

The towns which will benefit immediately by the transfer are divided into two groups. Those under "Anticipated" and the towns which have operated under the "Unfinished Interval" law. The sum of $259,260 was authorized transferred to the "anticipated" state aid" appropriation for distribution to twenty-nine towns. In the second group are thirty-six towns but seven of these are also in the "anticipated" class, leaving a net group of twenty-nine in each class, as no town can participate in both classes under the same appropriation.

Towns in the first class will receive a payment of the $7,500 or $8,750 maximum permitted under state-aid allotments in accordance with their grand lists. The statutes permit towns to enter into state aid agreements with the highway department under which roads are built, the state agreeing to refund the statutory proportionate cost of the work from future appropriations. Towns with grand lists less than $1,250,000 are reimbursed for seven-eighths of the cost of the work, while those whose grand lists are above that figure pay for one-quarter of the improvement.

The following towns will receive allotments of $7,500 as partial reimbursement for work already paid for by them:

Branford, Canaan, Bozrah, Colchester, Darien, East Granby, Easton, Greenwich, Groton, Montville, North Branford, North Canaan, Norwalk, Norwich, Pomfret, Redding Sharon, Sprague, Seymour, Stratford, Stamford, Southington, Suffield, Torrington, Trumbull Windsor, Windsor Locks.

Towns of Colebrook and Hebron whose grand lists are in the lower class, will be given $8,750 each.

Under Chapter 307, relative to unfinished intervals of state-aid roads, the following towns will receive credits (state and town shares) of $10,000:

Avon, Berlin, Cornwall, Coventry, East Haven, East Hartford, East Lyme, Hamden, Farmington, Lebanon, Lisbon, Manchester, Middletown, Milford, Norfolk, Newtown, Old Lyme, Orange, Plainville, Putnam, Ridgefield, Shelton, Thomaston, Thompson, Westport, Waterbury, Watertown, West Haven, Winchester, East Granby, Groton, Pomfret, Redding, Sharon, Stafford and Trumbull.

The statement also shows that the income from the gasoline tax has fallen almost $2,000,000 short of the expected 100 percent increase as a result of the doubling of the tax. Receipts for July, August and September during 1924 aggregated $339,175.89 and during the same three months this year since the two-cent tax has been effective, the income has totalled $486,746.11 or $191,516.67 less than the figure anticipated.

CONNECTICUT MOTORISTS USING LESS GASOLINE

Although 23,337 additional motor vehicles were registered by the state motor vehicle department in the quarter ended September 30 and general receipts of the department, exclusive of gasoline tax returns, increased 9.3 per cent., over the receipts for the corresponding quarter of last year, less gasoline per motor vehicle appears to have been consumed.

The state tax on gasoline increased from one cent a gallon to two cents a gallon July 1. Gasoline purchases for motor vehicle consumption showed a slight increase in July over the figure for July, 1924, when the tax was one cent a gallon, but the August consumption of gasoline fell off as compared with August, 1924. Taking the two months together, the increase this year was 79,945 gallons over July and August, 1924, whereas the increase for these two months of 1924 over July and August, 1923, reached 2,808,763 gallons. July, 1925, gasoline purchases aggregated 11,937,287 gallons as against 11,734,200 gallons bought in July, 1924. The gasoline bought in August, 1925, amounted to 11,755,809 gallons, a decrease of 123,142 gallons from the quantity bought in the corresponding month of 1924. In these computations, the August, 1925, total is unascertainable, the returns from gasoline distributors, from whom the department collects the tax being incomplete. The September figures are not ready. The gasoline tax receipts for July and August, however, show an increase of $235,028 over those for the same months of 1924, due to the higher tax rate. Receipts for July, 1925, amounted to $238,745 as against $117,342 for July, 1924; and the anticipated receipts for August totaled $235,712, as against $119,087 in August, 1924.

General receipts of the department, exclusive of the gasoline tax amounted to $419,721 for the quarter, $196,456 of which was realized from the registration of 23,337 additional motor vehicles and $72,749 from the licensing of 23,502 additional operators, the remainder being from miscellaneous sources. Of the 23,337 additional registrations for the quarter, 11,458 were issued in July, 6,810 in August and 5,069 in September. This brings the number of registered motor vehicles in Connecticut up to 249,202. All of the receipts of the department are, according to law, turned over to the state highway department for road extensions and improvements.

BOOSTER WEEK FOR NEW ENGLAND APPLES

Boston, the hub of the east, has long been noted for its baked beans, but now if plans underway by the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the New England departments of agriculture materialize the bean is likely to topple from its pedestal to make room for the New England apple. Last year the chamber conducted an Apple Week in Boston for the purpose of advertising the country's best apples. This year the departments of agriculture in each of the New England states together with other state organizations have joined together to make the week from October 29 to November 7 one monster Apple Week for the advertising of New England's leading fruit.

Connecticut's department of agriculture is not slow to join in this move, according to a statement given out Saturday, for it realizes and has long realized that New England apples are unequalled yet they meet with an unappreciative market. "New England apples are luscious and Connecticut's are unexcelled in quality," said Commissioner of Agriculture Philo T. Platt, as he directed a longing glance towards a dish of big red ones on a table near at hand yet so far away because of his recent illness.

"Our own home grown apples cannot be surpassed," said Deputy Commissioner L. H. Healey, as he bit into a McIntosh, "but for some reason the people of Connecticut and in fact all New England do not realize that apples freshly picked from nearby orchards are far superior in flavor to those shipped from the Pacific coast."

The cities in the east make an ample demand for New England's crop of 2,000,000 barrels, according to department figures, but in the past New England has not been as successful as it should in meeting western competition. During Apple Week every effort will be made, not only in Boston but throughout New England, to show the public by means of special sales, displays and posters that New England has superior quality and can meet the demand.

DECIDES LEGAL RESIDENCE WAS IN NEW LONDON

On the hearing of the defendant's plea to the jurisdiction in the case of Annie Weiner of Hartford and Ocean Beach against Harry Brightman, also of both places, Judge Allyn L. Brown, who took the papers in the superior court has handed down his decision in favor of the plaintiff.

Judge Brown in his decision states the vital question here is whether the plaintiff on July 28, 1925, when this action was brought "dwelt" in the city and county of New London.

The term "dwells" as used in the statute referred to is synonymous with the word "resides."

The undisputed evidence disclosed that the plaintiff on the date in question owned, and for some years had owned a house in New London that she was living there with her family at this time, and that she so lived continuously from June 1, 1925, until Sept. 7, 1925, thus making it her summer home. For the reason above indicated I conclude that the plaintiff "dwelt" in New London at the time when this action was brought and I therefore find in favor of the plaintiff upon the issue raised upon the answer to the defendan's plea to the jurisdiction, Judge Brown concludes.

Annie Weiner sought $5,000 for injuries received by her when she was alleged to have been attacked by a police dog owned by the defendant at Ocean Beach.

SPECIAL TROPHY OFFERED FOR R. I. RED HEN

The Rhode Island Red club of America, through its secretary, Mrs. Pearl M. Daniels, of Grafton, Mass., has just made an important announcement concerning American and Canadian laying trials. According to Mrs. Daniels, the club will offer a reward on Rhode Island Reds in laying contests, by offering a national trophy for the highest record in both Rose and Single Comb varieties in an American laying competition. The club likewise offers a trophy for the high hen in each American Poultry association district of which New England comprises district number one. There is also a medal for the high hen for each state in the Union. Under the eligibility rules, competing hens must be approved by the president and secretary of the Rhode Island club. Within two months, after the birds reach the contest plant they will be officially judged and must score at least 85 according to the standard of perfection. In other words birds must be standard type, and color, and reasonably representative of the breed. The Storrs contest will make lively competition for these trophies because there are now entered 360 Rhode Island Reds from Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The total number of eggs laid in the Storrs laying contest duing the forty-ninth week was 2,837, or almost twenty-nine per cent. Tom Barron's pen of White Wyandottes from Catforth, England, was the leading pen for the week with 46 eggs. The second place was a tie between Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Oregon, and another pen of Leghorns owned by Mountain Meadown Farm at West Rutland, Vt. Each of these pens laid 42 eggs. Two Connecticut pens of Barred Rocks tied with another pen of the same breed from Rockland, Me., for third place, each pen laying 40 eggs. The three pens were owned by Merritt M. Clark of Brookfield Center, Conn., Keewaydin Farm, Darien, Conn., and R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Me. The fourth place was taken by Deerbrook Poultry Farm of Short Falls, N. H., with a total of 39 eggs.

FRESHMEN VS. SOPHOMORES IN STORRS ROPE PULL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Oct. 11—The annual rope pull between the freshman and sophomore classes of the Connecticut Agricultural college will be held here tomorrow on the shores of the duck pond, in accordance with the announcement previously made by Ernest E. Speers '26, of Hartford, chairman of the rope pull committee.

With the possible exception of the pig roast there is no form of competition between the two lower classes at Storrs that arouses so much interest as the rope pull. Members of the losing class, to a man, must wade through the muddy water and slime of the duck pond, which puts an added premium on victory in this event.

Smarting under the indignity of a liberal "paddling" at the hands of the sophomores, which they received in the pajama parade when college first opened, the freshmen have been practicing diligently in order to be prepared for tomorrow's struggle.

Led by Bertram Magnesen, '29, of Hartford, the frosh secured a stout length of rope, with which they have held several practice pulls. Due to the watchfulness of the sophomores, who have been on the alert to break up any practice sessions, the yearlings have been forced to slip off quietly to the adjacent woods in order to hold their practices. According to current reports, the frosh held one session in the attic of Storrs hall, the freshman dormitory, as the sophomores were waiting outside to break up any attempt that might be made in the open.

Rules of the rope pull, as announced by Chairman Speers, provide that the teams shall consist of twenty five men from the respective classes. Sophomores pull from the north bank and the freshmen from the south bank, with the rope stretching across the pond. This arrangement gives the sophomores a slight advantage, as the frosh have to pull on an upgrade. Cleats, spikes or braces of any kind are prohibited. Ten minutes shall be the duration of the pull. A stake shall be set up at the center line of the pond, and the class pulling the marker on the rope furthest away from the stake shall be declared the winner. Every male member of the losing class unless excused because of sickness, must go through the pond. In addition, the losing class will be assessed fifty cents per member, which amount will be turned over to the college athletic association. Members of the varsity or freshman football squads will be allowed to pull for their respective classes, provided they did not participate in yesterday's games.

Captain Casper R. Crim, commandant of the state college R. O. T. C. unit, will act as chief judge. Lieut. L. D. Bunting will act as starter. Prof. Frank A. Ferguson will act as timekeeper. Dr. Howard D. Newton will judge from the south bank and Earl R. Moore will judge from the north bank.

The annual Bates fall tennis tournament must have the first round played by Saturday, October 17, the second by Thursday, October 22, the third by Monday, October 26 and the semi-finals by Thursday October 29. The finals are to occur on Saturday, October 31. This year the tournament promises to be an especially fine one. Thirty eight girls from the four classes have signed up for the contest, girls judged to be the best players among the student body. Among the girls who have signed are Rosamond Beebe, winner of the 1923 tournament, of Upper Montclair, N. J., and Francis Williams, of Rosemont, Penn. winner of the spring tennis tournament of 1924.

The new members of the mandolin club for 1925-26 are as follows: Gertrude Siskin, piano Helen Hulbert, banjo; Muriel Hendrich, mandolin; Dorothy Thayes, flute; Catherine Greer, violin; Cynthia Leper, Catherine Capen, Helen Kable and Ruth Hewlitt, all violins.

The initiation of the new members of the Cercle Francais, the French club will occur on Tuesday, October 13, in New London hall at seven o'clock.

The sophomore and senior classes held their annual party as their share of the welcome to the freshmen on Saturday evening, October 10, in the college gymnasium. Entertainment and dancing were features of the evening.

President and Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall were at home on Sunday to all those members of the freshman class who had not attended the previous gathering for the class of 1929 on the Sunday previous.

THREE ESCAPE UNHURT WHEN AUTO TURNS OVER

Three people in a new Ford sedan escaped with nothing more than severe shocks to their nerves and the machine was hardly scratched when it capsized at Harland's corner, Norwich Town, about 9.30 Friday morning, when making the turn from upper Washington street into Town street. The two women in the car, one of whom was driving, and a man with them were hurled out with a step ladder from the machine which had all its doors and windows shut when it went over.

The car which was a four door model toppled over on its side, as the result of the driver making the turn which is rather steep, a little too short.

People who reside in that locality quickly rendered valuable assistance, with the help of several others who happened to be passing at that time in extricating the man and two women from the over-turned car.

George Harold Gildersleeve who happened to be nearby was soon on the spot and assisted in taking the people out of the car; but it was found that none of the occupants were harmed beyond a severe shock to the nerves.

Several men righted the car, which from all appearances seemed none the worse, with the exception of one broken window and a few places slightly dented, also a few small spots where the varnish was rubbed off.

The Backus hospital ambulance was sent for, responding quickly although its services were not needed. The two elderly people were invited to the home of an acquaintance for a short time, while the car driven by Frederic H. Wyant, district agent of the Connecticut Humane society, accompanied by its owner was taken to the garage of Julian L. Williams to be looked over.

It was found there was nothing to be done, and the party returned home, practically none the worse for such a thrilling experience.

The fortunate escape for the occupants of the car was due largely to the owner driving cautiously as the machine when rounding the curve was proceeding very slowly as testified by eye witnesses.

Although this part of the state highway is usually traversed continually by automobiles going in both directions just at the time of the accident the overturned car was the only one nearby. Shortly after a number of cars caused congestion in the road and many people congregated.

TWO CHIMNEY FIRES CALL OUT DEPARTMENT

The fire department responded to two calls for chimney fires Saturday afternoon. The first call came in by telephone about 1 o'clock and was for a bad chimney fire at No. 591 East Main street, owned and occupied by Angelo YYeitz. Thirty-three gallons of chemical were used on the blaze.

The second call, also by telephone, came in at 2.09 o'clock and was a chimney fire at No. 145 Washington street in the house occupied by Frederick T. Sayles. The fire was quickly extinguished.

Lost Clothes in Hay.

Three Providence boys, about 15 years of age, caught in the rain Friday afternoon, went into a barn at the corner of Everett and West Thames street, to dry their clothes. In some way that they can't quite explain they lost their clothes in the hay pile and were frantically searching for them when Officer Charles Smith, who had been called, arrived on the scene.

The boys, using pitch forks, finally uncovered the missing clothes. They were taken to police headquarters where they were given shelter and after being questioned were allowed to go.

Your husband knows

A text addressed to the Mistress of the Household

Your husband knows about extension telephones. The chances are that he has one in his place of business. If not, then he has seen one in use in some other office or store. Every business man wants to cut down the loss of time and waste of energy—which is why the percentage of extension telephones in business organizations is so high.

What about lost time and wasted energy in the home?

Tell your husband how many times a day you hurry up or down stairs, or from one end of the apartment to the other, to answer the telephone. Ask him what he thinks about an extension telephone for you. It may not have occurred to him before, but he will probably suggest that you order one without delay.

The cost of an extension telephone (after a moderate connection charge) is less than 2 cents a day. What other convenience, comparable with this, can you buy so cheaply?

Telephone our local Business Office, today, and tell them that you want an extension telephone.

WORKMAN IS GIVEN COMPENSATION FOR INJURY

Workmen's compensation in the sum of $10321 for 9 3-7 weeks, at the rate of $11.00, has been awarded to Aldonino de Vellis of Groton in full settlement of his claim against W. H. Muirhead & Son of Bridgeport. De Vellis was employed by the Bridgeport company in work at the Odd Fellows home at Groton and suffered a double hernia while moving stones on March 29, 1925. The employe has not returned to work and still complains of pain and inability to work, but from the medical evidence in the case Commissioner J. J. Donohue decided the disability should be considered as ending on June 1, 1925, thus giving compensation for eight weeks which is two weeks longer than the usual disability period for hernia. The insurer also agreed to allow compensation from the date of injury to April 1 when an operation was performed as during this season he was receiving medical attention.

TAFTVILLE

Practically all the automobile owners of the town received their applications for registration this week from the office of the commissioner of motor vehicles. While vehicles are not compelled by law to be registered before January 1st, many of the motorists welcome the early receipt of their blanks, as they will make application for the same numbers that they are now registered under.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tracy Clark and Mrs. Clark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Grant Peck of Honor, Mich., who have been spending the past two weeks touring in the White Mountains and the Green Mountains in Mr. Peck's car, have returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark on North Third avenue.

Friday the downpour of rain was so heavy that on many streets the gutters were unable to take care of the rush and the water overflowed the surface of the street and sidewalk. The wind which accompanied the storm brought down leaves from the trees in great quantities, and these were carried by the rush of water into the sewers and probably helped to log them. Skunks which had evidently made their homes in the sewers, were driven out by the deluge, and in various parts of the town skunk hunts were organized to despatch the animals before they got into the cellars of the residences, as they have a habit of doing when they are being hunted in the streets. On North B street three well known residents, clubbed a skunk to death, but not before the skunk had a chance to enter in to the combat with disastrous results to one of the hunters. This brings to mind, the skunk story of a year ago, when a stone thrown at one of these animals had the result of knocking it through the cellar window of one of the prominent residents of North Second avenue. After a great deal of excitement, the animal was killed and taken from the cellar, but those in the house had an unpleasant reminder of its visit each time they threw a shoveful of coal into the furnace, for the rest of the winter, as the skunk had made itself at home in the coalbin.

Miss Helen C. Aberg of the Willimantic State normal school is spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Mrs. John Haeberle of Occum Road is in New York to meet a niece who is arriving from Germany.

The Ocowasin Camp Fire girls met Friday evening in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church, with the guardian, Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis in charge.

DECLARES FLORIDA BOOM HITS DUCK HUNTING HERE

"Regardless of the radical statement" of Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York zoo, Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game declared that there need be no fear that wild ducks will be exterminated "so long as the federal migratory laws as to bag limits and as to shooting after sundown are observed."

Superintendent Titcomb made the statement in a radio talk on the opening of the fall hunting season in Connecticut given from the Hartford broadcasting station. Dr. Hornaday, he said, "would reduce the bag limit on all game in all states without regard to what the bag limit in each state may be today." The only thing to fear with reference to maintaining good duck hunting, according to the superintendent, "is not from the gunner under the present wise laws, but from the drainage of large areas which were formerly the feeding grounds of the ducks."

"It is my impression," he continued "that today we have as many ducks as the feeding grounds in the south will warrant." This assertion was taken to mean that the Florida real estate boom in connection with which much marshy ground is being reclaimed is having its effect even on the duck hunting in Connecticut.

Since the federal migratory bird law went into effect, said Mr. Titcomb, all of the migratory birds have been on the increase.

That ducks are intelligent enough to note at what hour hunters as a rule, stop shooting at them was intimated when the speaker said:

"The law prohibiting shooting ducks after sundown appears to be one of the most unpopular game laws on our statute books. It corresponds to the federal law and was enacted in order to give the birds an opportunity to reach their feeding grounds at night without being decimated too seriously.

"Even if the law should be changed to read 'half an hour after sundown' the ducks would quickly learn when shooting ceases and change their habits of coming after the shooting stops. The man who hunts ducks after sundown is not giving the birds a fair show and he is not giving his fellow sportsmen a square deal."

Generally speaking, October 8 is looked upon as the opening of the hunting season in Connecticut. Superintendent Titcomb said he had received many favorable reports throughout the state as to the abundance of pheasants, but that a pronounced scarcity is not due to conditions, he said, but to a disease of the grouse which was discovered a year ago and which was found to be prevalent from Nova Scotia south to Pennsylvania and west to Minnesota. In the attempt to combat the disease the speaker requested hunters to report to the state board of fisheries and game any dead birds they might come across in the woods and to preserve for the same purpose the wings of birds they kill so that a pathologic study may be made of them. In view of the scarcity of grouse, he urged hunters to restrain themselves in hunting the grouse, "king of all of our game birds." He said that in the fall of 1923, when there was an abundance of grouse in the state, nearly 25,000 were shot in Connecticut. This figure is based on reports from 10,787 hunters out of a total licensed of 32,508.

The pheasants which have been distributed by the department were paid for out of the revenue from hunting licenses, it was disclosed in the talk. They cost $3.75 each at eight or nine weeks old. The cocks shot in Connecticut according to Mr. Titcomb, "are now worth $3.50 each when ordered by the thousand."

MACMILLAN ARCTIC PARTY WELCOMED HOME YESTERDAY

Program of Entertainment and Reception Extended From Wiscasset to Portland, Me—Portland Rotary Club Tendered Commander MacMillan a Luncheon—MacMillan Highly Praised His Crew—Expressed the Belief That the Dirigible is the Only Feasible Method of Air Exploration in the Polar Regions—The Explorers Made 5,000 Miles of Flying in the Arctic Without a Casualty.

PORTLAND, Maine, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Commander MacMillan and the 38 members of his Arctic exploration expedition, scientists, aviators and seamen, were welcomed home today by a programme of entertainment and reception which extended from Wiscasset to this city.

Given more than usual disappointment by the wost summer the natives remember in the north, beset and delayed along the entire homeward route by gales which culminated in that which kept not only the expedition but nearly 50 friends and relatives marooned on the small wind-swept Monhegan Island, the attitude of them all was expressed by Commander MacMillan when he said at a luncheon given him here, "This room looks good to us."

This last day of the expedition was a long one. The crews were astir on the ships before 4 o'clock this morning preparing for the run for the mainland which the expected break in the gale would permit.

From the twenty or more homes on Mohegan where they had found shelter the band of relatives, friends and newspapermen gathered in the intense darkness preceding the dawn about the windswept dock where the Peary lay. Shortly after 5 o'clock this expedition got under way.

The culmination of the rejoicing at their safe arrival was reached at the luncheon tendered Commander MacMillan by the Portland Rotary club. To reach it the programme at Wiscasset was cut to a brief interchange of greetings and followed by a dash in a motor cavalcade with the road cleared and the Woolwich-Bath ferry held open for the party.

It was at this luncheon that the leaders of the state, of the army and navy, of science and of education, gathered to congratulate the explorer on his safe return and the accomplishments of the summer.

Commander MacMillan, in return, with a voice hoarse from the exposure and hardship of the long voyage southward, thanked them for his reception and that of his men, then proceeded to extoll the work of his companions with scarcely a passing reference to indicate that he had connection with this first attempt by American flyers to discovery that unknown area of the Polar Sea.

Praise For Crew.

"The best crew I ever had, for the men who sailed the Bowdoin;" a fine body of men, in no way to blame for the failure of their effort" for the United States navy aviators; commendations for the scientists of the National Geographic society, "one of whom in a few weeks at Etah accomplished more than my other men had accomplished in years," were the tributes paid by Commander MacMillan to those who accompanied him.

In his address he stressed again the extreme hazard of flight of heavier-than-air planes above the Actic circle, reiterated his conviction that the amphibian type of plane was the best suited for the undertaking but that the dirigible is the only feasible method of air exploration.

"For the plane there remains," he said, "much work in the interior of Baffin Land, discovered more than 400 years ago but which is still unknown through most of its 600 miles length and 300 miles in breadth. There are also thousands of unexplored lakes in the interior of Labrador where an airplane may work.

"The men of the navy personnel worked night and day on the arrival of the expedition at Etah. The result was that all three planes were in the air in these days. On August 21 there was one plane left and five of the six motors had been used. There remained 2,000 miles of our objective to be attained in ten days while we had covered but 90 miles in the twenty days preceding. There was but one conclusion, which I knew and which the men knew, although they did not admit at the time. It was absolutely useless to continue. And further had any accident happened and a plane been lost either the Peary or the Bowdoin must have wintered in the far north to attempt the rescue of the men in the spring."

Long List of Speakers.

The welcome to the explorers was extended by a long list of speakers who preceded MacMillan. Among them were Rear Admiral Douglas E. Dismukes, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, Colonel John W. Wright, commander of the Portland coast defenses, Frank Stewart, George L. Keay, Congressman Carroll L. Beedy, Dr. J. Howard Gore, trustee of the National Geographic society, Dean Paul Nixon of Bowdoin college and Governor Ralph O. Brewster.

Governor Brewster in his address said, "The state of Maine rejoices to welcome Commander MacMillan and his associates safely home from an expedition for which the world is waiting to hear, remarkable alike for its courageous conception and for the dauntless individual heroism and that made it possible.

"The record of the air is forbidding even under the ideal conditions in which it is carried on here at home. Transferred to the Arctic 5,000 miles of flying without casualty is a record which is unique. The results of this expedition at least would seem to warrant no interferences as to the futility of America's efforts in the conquest of air. The United States navy may well point with pride to the achievements of its men and its planes."

Admiral Dismukes concluded his words of praise with the statement, "Commander MacMillan, it has been an honor for the navy to be associated with you and I hope you will give us another chance."

Following the luncheon, which lasted well into the afternoon, Commander MacMillan drove to his sister's home in Freeport. Tonight the Rotary club at Brunswick is giving him a dinner and a reception.

Commander MacMillan announced tonight that the Peary will sail tomorrow for Boston where her navy equipment will be removed. She will then return to Southport where she will lie for the winter across the dock from the usual winter haven of the Bowdoin.

It was a weary band which reached Wiscasset on the two ships this morning. Their welcome began, however, far down the harbor and the dock to which the Peary tied was crowded by citizens of the town and visitors from afar.

The trip across had been made in comparatively calm weather but both ships rolled and pitched heavily and many of the passengers became ill. The spray was flung high over them and the decks of the Bowdoin were constantly drenched.

It was a homeward voyage, however, and the spirits of all rose as the expedition made its way up the sunny, quieter waters of the Sheepscot river. Whistles and cheers greeted the Bowdoin as her white hull appeared around the point of land where she had been eagerly awaited for three days while the storm held her at Monhegan. And during that time one boat, the Novelty, had braved the storm to run newspaper plates and copy to Thomaston and a few more visitors had reached Monhegan on the fishing schooner Maurice G. Davis, homeward bound.

Everybody scrambled ashore at Wiscasset and were borne off severally by their friends. For a few moments on the old custom house steps the expedition leaders paused and were greeted by Samuel J. Sewall, representing the town, and leaders of the army and navy.

Commander MacMillan addressed the crowd briefly, saying that he regretted that his throat did not permit him to give a long review of the trip at that time. The party then entered the waiting automobiles and sped toward this city.

TO INVESTIGATE CRASH OF AIR MAIL PILOT C. H. AMES

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 12—The official board, named by Superintendent Carl Egge, of the mail service, to investigate the crash of Pilot C. H. Ames, whose body was found Sunday in his wrecked plane on Nittany mountain after a nine day search, tonight was drafting its report for the postmaster general. During the day members of the board made the six mile trip to the spot on the thickly wooded mountainside where Ames met death. They made a minute inspection of the wreckage, in an effort to ascertain what caused the birdman to drive his plane into the big trees on the steep mountainside.

H. B. Shaver, assistant superintendent of the Eastern Air Division, F. J. Celhaus, manager of the Bellefonte field, and J. D. Hill, veteran pilot, original members of the board named to make the inquiry, were assisted by H. T. Lewis, mail pilot of the Nebraska-Wyoming region.

The investigators said that their official report would be forwarded to Washington and made public there by the postmaster general. They expressed the opinion that Ames crashed while in full flight, traveling about 130 miles an hour when he struck the mountain. He had crossed one mountain range, they said, and while trying to pass over Nittany he was flying about 200 feet below the required heights. They believed that his right wing was torn off by one tree and that the ship tilted and cut a swath of about 100 feet through the forest before it struck ground.

Attaches of the air field, accompanying the investigators, removed all valuable instruments from the wreckage. Other instruments fell into the hands of souvenir hunters. Despite the fact that guards had been placed at the spot Sunday. Assistant Superintendent Shaver posted a notice in the Bellefonte postoffice warning that the instruments and other parts of the plane must be returned. He was most anxious to recover Ames' name plate, which was removed from the side of the ship. This, he said, he desired to send to Ames' parents at Hollywood, Calif. In event the instruments and plate are not returned, the official declared he would call in postal inspectors to find the persons who made away with them.

Sections of the ship, left on the mountainside, are to be burned.

With the return of the investigators to Bellefonte, Mr. Shaver joined Paul Ames, brother of the dead pilot, and they left in a funeral car for Cleveland, where the body will be cremated. The ashes will be taken to Jackson, Mich., for burial in the Ames family plot after services, probably on Thursday.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 12—Orlando Booth of New Bedford was shot and killed today while gunning for ducks at Westport, near here. His companion, Franklin A. Progress Made at the Locarno Conference

Allies Have Reached an Accord With Germany in Principle on Terms Under Which Germany Will Join the L. of N.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 12—(A. P.)—Important progress has been achieved at Locarno for the stabilization of the peace of Europe. The allied powers declare that they have reached an accord with Germany in principle on the terms under which Germany will join the league of nations.

This makes easier of settlement all the other undecided points of the proposed Rhine pact and arbitration treaties, and so confident are the allies of eventful success that arrangements have been definitely made to invite Mussolini, the Italian premier, to the closing sessions of the conference towards the end of the week.

Moreover, big things are happening in other directions. The German chancellor, Dr. Luther and Foreign Minister Gustave Stresemann had a long private meeting this afternoon with M. Briand and Austen Chamberlain, the French and British foreign ministers, and it would not be surprising if ratification of the proposed Rhine pact by Germany would be followed by the evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead by the British and a considerable decrease in the French military forces now holding the left bank of the Rhine.

Already French diplomats are beginning to remark that the French troops on the Rhine are getting rather sick of their job, thus preparing public opinion for a possible diminutive of the forces of occupation.

Diplomats from the smaller countries of Europe who are here as observers say also they would not be astounded that the allies, as members of the league of nations, will support a move to restore to Germany her former colony in East Africa.

Foreign Minister here today of the president of the governing body of the Sarre Basin, who is a Frenchman caused the impression also that a loosening of the French hold on the Sarre territory may be one of the outcomes of the Locarno conversations.

It was learned tonight that the main object of the projected visit of Count Skrzynski, the Polish foreign minister, to Moscow will be a revision of the Treaty of Riga as a precursor to a pact of non-aggression between between Poland and Russia. Poland is expected to rectify the Polish-Russian frontier in favor of Russia.

It is also learned that with the Rhine pact successful, Greece expects to negotiate an alliance with Jugo-Slavia and a general regional agreement for Balkan problems with Bulgaria, Rumania and Jugoslavia. Turkey will be invited to participate for purely European problems.

There is, however, no plans to take over the responsibility for possible difficulties between Russia and Rumania regarding the sovereignty of the former Russian province of Bessarabia, now part of Rumania.

"What really is going on along the sidelines of Locarno," said a European diplomat tonight, "is a kind of revision of the Treaty of Versailles."

The jurists today spent hours at the delicate task of drafting into cold phrases the principles of the agreement reached in the forenoon as to how Germany will enter the league of nations. The fact that the text has not yet been formally approved by the German delegation leaves a loophole for a possible rupture at a later stage of the conference.

That the Germans are holding the door open is indicated by their declaration tonight that certain German reservations have not yet been definitely satisfied; they explain that these concern participation in economic sanctions imposed by the league against an aggressor. They say they are not situated so as to permit their joining in economic and financial punitive measures, as such reprisals would be incompatible with Germany's economic programme, which is not only constituted to meet preparations, but also the restoration of German industries and in the foreign markets.

O'MAHONY MURDER TRIAL DEFERRED UNTIL DECEMBER

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Desiring to obtain further information from sources in England, counsel for James N. B. O'Mahony, New York city, have obtained from Judge George E. Hinman a further continuance of O'Mahony's trial for murder in the first degree.

The opening of the trial and choosing of a jury was set down for tomorrow morning. It nas now been deferred until the December term, Judge Hinman having notified State's Attorney William H. Comley, Jr., who is ready to go forward with thecase at any time, that he had granted another continuance.

As a policeman in Manchester, England, O'Mahony studied law smatteringly, and a chief obsession with him is said to be his steadfast belief that he cannot be legally tried for murder if the state cannot set forth "a motive" for the slaying of his sweetheart in Greenwich.

O'Mahony served with an English regiment during the war. His conduct in the English city; what were his immediate mental and physical reactions to wounds and war-stress, and his general life abroad, it is believed are subjects of investigation by English representatives of his New York lawyers, the results thereof to be presented at time of trial.

The O'Mahony trial was first scheduled for September 27, but was postponed when his attorneys asked time for an alienist to examine the prisoner at the county jail.

Mr. Moore laid a wreath tied in the colors of the United States and of Spain, on the Columbus monument.

"I place this wreath as a tribute to the discoverer of America and also to the great Queen Isabella who sold her jewels to make his voyage possible," the ambassador said in an address.

Members of the American embassy and consular staffs and of the American colony here attended the ceremony.

France in Quandary Over Debt Settlement

If American Proposal is Not Accepted, Maturity of War Stock Indebtedness of $400,000,000, Must Be Met in 1929.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The prospect of having in 1929 to pay $400,000,000 for war stocks in a lump sum if the temporary debt settlement proposed by the American debt funding commission is not accepted by France, is exerting a strong influence on the attitude of the government, it is said in well informed circles. The question has been only tentatively discussed by the cabinet, but M. Caillaux lay stress on the fact that if the temporary arrangement were not satisfactory maturity of the war stock indebtedness states France in the face and must be taken into consideration.

Some of the members of the French mission have issued a sad warning to the people against hasty conclusion, in view of the difficult position the French treasury would find itself in if nothing were settled now and the question left in abeyance. Full compliance by the specified maturity of the war stock debt.

ILL HEALTH AGAIN COMPELS LEON TROTSKY TO QUIT

MOSCOW, Oct. 12.—(AP) — Leon Trotsky, his health undermined by his strenuous labors at the economic tasks assigned him on his return to Moscow five months ago, has been compelled again to relinquish active participation in the Soviet regime.

Already the former war chef of the Bolshevists is on his way to South Russia, whence he returned in May after an "exile" which began in January. His physicians have ordered a complete rest to mend a breakdown which has resulted from working at high pressure ever since he was made chairman of the general concessions committee last May 27. He is going to Kislovodsk, a small health resort in the Caucasus where he is expected to spend a vacation of several weeks.

Trotsky has been spending 18 hours a day in work, devoting himself intensively to ambitious plans for the dissemination of electric power throughout all Russia, and to working out ways and means for improving the quality of Russian manufactured articles. He has been eager also to retrieve his former political prestige and to win his way back to the esteem and good will of his old associates in the Soviet government and the communist party.

To this end he has bent his utmost efforts to make a success of his task as head of the concessions committee.

The old breach between Trotsky and the communist party leaders now seems to be definitely healed, and it is said that this is due chiefly to the influence of the widow of Nikolai Lenin and to her desire that the party and government should not lose the services of her husband's old friends. That Trotsky has regained some of his old political authority is shown by the fact that he took part in the recent sitting of the central executive committee of the communist party, a forerunner to the regular congress of the party in December. At that time it is believed likely that he will be given a higher official position if the state of his health permits.

TO BEGIN WORK ON RAISING THE SUNKEN SUBMARINE S-51

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Divers and ships from the Brooklyn navy yard expect to begin work on raising the sunken submarine S-51 off Block Island before the end of this week, it was announced today at the commandant's office at the navy yard. The U. S. Vestal will be the station ship, it was said and the U. S. S. Falcon will be in charge of diving operations.

The navy department decided to salvage the sunken submersible itself rather than let the contract to a private concern. The contract went to the Third Naval District and the commandant of the navy in Brooklyn.

Officials at the navy yard said they hoped to have the submarine at the surface before the rough winter weather overtakes the salvage crews.

NAVY DEP'T TO SALVAGE THE SUBMARINE S-51

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—The navy department will salvage the submarine S-51 off Block Island and not let work out to a private company.

A contract has been let to the commandant of the Third Naval District at New York, and the Brooklyn navy yard. The scouting fleet repair ship Vestal and the submarine rescue ship Falcon have been ordered to report to Rear Admiral Plunkett, commandant of the Third Naval District, to assist in the work. The Vestal is at Guantanamo, Cuba, and on her way north will stop at the Norfolk navy yard for pontoons and other supplies necessary for the operations.

SALVAGING PLANS FOR SUB UNDER 128 FEET OF WATER

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Captain E. J. King, commandant of the submarine base here, was in New York today conferring with Rear Admiral Plunkett, commandant of the Third Naval District, regarding plans for salvaging the S-51. The submarne now lies in 128 feet of water off Block Island.

The scouting fleet repair ship Vestal and the submarine rescue ship Falcone, which have been ordered to report for the salvaging operations, will bring from Norfolk in addition to pontoons and other supplies necessary for the operations, fifteen navy divers, Lieutenant Commander H. A. Flanigan, of the base said today.

Indications are that a patch will be placed over the hole in the S-51 made by the steamer City of Rome so that the water may be pumped from the hull. The pontoons will then be attached and efforts made to raise the craft.

Salvaging operations will proceed as expeditiously as the weather will permit in order that any of the bodies of the 28 enlisted men and officers of the crew still missing that are in the hull may be recovered, Lieutenant Commander Flanigan said today.

SECRETARY OF WAR WEEKS TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION

Formal Announcement of His Withdrawal From the Cabinet May Be Expected Today After a Cabinet Meeting—Action Taken Because of the Condition of His Health—Plans For the Selection of His Successor Have Not Been Disclosed—Name of Dwight F. Davis, First Assistant Secretary, Mentioned as Probable Successor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—John W. Weeks placed his resignation as secretary of war in President Coolidge's hands today. Formal announcement of his withdrawal from the cabinet because of his health is expected tomorrow after his last attendance at a cabinet meeting.

Plans for the selection of his successor have not been disclosed. It has been the president's custom in the past, however, to couple his announcement of the retirement of a member of his official family with the publication of the name of the successor. He followed that course when Secretary Hughes resigned and was succeeded by Frank B. Kellogg, then ambassador to London.

If the president follows the same course tomorrow, it appeared probable tonight that he would name Dwight F. Davis of Missouri, for the war portfolio. Mr. Davis has been the assistant secretary of war since J. Mayhew Wainwright resigned to take the place in the house of representatives to which he was elected by his New York constituency. Since Secretary Weeks was stricken last March with the illness that has resulted in his decision to retire, Mr. Davis has been acting secretary and has borne the full administrative burden of the department.

Many other names are known to have been suggested to the president in view of the general feeling that Mr. Weeks would not be able to resume his duties in the war department. These included Secretary Work of the interior department and Postmaster General New; Charles D. Hilles of New York, former chairman of the republican national committee, Dwight W. Morrow of New York, now chairman of the president's special aircraft board; Hanford S. MacNider of Iowa, former head of the American Legion, and others.

PROCEEDINGS OF AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 12—An animated discussion of wages and a sharp debate on the question of contempt of court today enlivened the proceedings of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

The convention disagreed with the resolutions committee, which reported in favor of continuing opposition to wage reductions, by referring the question back for further consideration on the ground that the report did not go far enough.

After several proposed amendments to the committee report favoring trial by jury in contempt proceedings had been voted down, the report was adopted by an overwhelming vote.

The flareup over the wage question came after the convention had adopted without debate, a number of sections of the executive council's report. John P. Frey, president of the Ohio State Federation, offered an amendment to the committee's report on wages to the effect that it should state what constituted fair remuneration. He declared that "social inequality, industrial instability and injustice must increase unless workers' real wage and the purchasing power of their wages is advanced in proportion to man's increasing power of production."

James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union, proposed another amendment advocating shorter hours in some lines of industry. After a general debate, the proposed amendments were voted down, after which the committee indicated it would be willing to reconsider the entire subject, and the convention voted, by a large majority, to refer it back to the committee.

The afternoon session was devoted entirely to an impressive three-hours' memorial service for Samuel Gompers, president of the federation for more than forty years, who died last December at San Antonio, Texas.

Mr. Gompers' two sons, Samuel, Jr., and Alexander Gompers, were on the stage. A large marble bust of labor's "Grand Old Man" was unveiled by the sculptor, Moses W. Dykaar of New York and presented to the federation on behalf of the Cloth Cap and Fur Workers' Unions, the presentation speech being made by M. Zaritsky of New York. President Green accepted it for the federation and said it would be placed in a museum to be designated later.

Old time associates of Mr. Gompers spoke feelingly of their association with him. The speakers included Secretary Frank Morrison, who had worked with him 23 years; George W. Perkins, of Chicago, president of the Cigar Makers' Union—Mr. Gompers Union—who had known him for 43 years; Sara A. Conboy, secretary-treasurer of the United Textile Workers; First Vice President James Duncan, who had worked with him 44 years; James O'Connell, president of the Metal Trades Department, Mr. Gompers' next door neighbor in Washington for many years and W. D. Mahon, president of the Street Railway Workers.

HEARING CASE AGAINST EVAN BURROWS FONTAINE

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Hearing of removal proceedings against Evan Burrows Fontaine, dancer, wanted in San Francisco on a contempt charge in that she filed a second suit against young Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, whom she charged with being the father of her son, began today before U. S. Commissioner C. Beifler.

A bill of criminal information which embodies the contempt charge and upon which the dancer's removal to San Francisco is sought, was attacked by Miss Fontaine's attorney with the contention that affidavits which resulted in its filing were attested by a notary public, the attorney claimed a notary was not empowered to administer oats in cases involving criminal proceedings.

A $1,000,000 suit filed by Miss Fontaine against Whitney was dismissed and an injunction restraining her from filing a second suit was issued. Despite that it is charged, the dancer filed her suit again.

HARDSHIPS OF COAST GUARD PATROL FLEET

BOSTON, Oct. 12—The list of casualties in the coast-guard patrol fleet grew today when the C. G. 242, speeding for this port after rescuing a boat in the terrific gales of the week end, opened her seams when within sight of home and was beached at City Point. Her mishap brought the number of patrol vessels disabled by the storm to six. In every case the crew was saved.

The C. G. 236, which sent out appeals for help when her fuel supply became exhausted Saturday night limped into the harbor late tonight in tow of the coast guard cutter Tampa. Except for bad colds in several cases, her crew of seven were little the worse for their adventure.

The C. G. 147 which came to grief south of Nantucket was reported in tow of the cutter Mojave. The C. G. 126 put into New London, Conn., yesterday with her bow splintered, one engine out of commission and her crew of seven exhausted. The C. G. 124 was a derelict, 200 miles southwest of Nantucket while her crew, taken off by the British steamship Cameronia, were on their way to Glasgo. The C. G. 124 was abandoned near Nantucket and her crew taken off by the steamer Republic.

The C. G. 238 was on duty on Rockrow off Cape Ann, when she ran into a heavy blow Saturday morning, 5 miles east of Thatcher's island. The 75-foot vessel struggled all day against the heavy seas and about six o'clock at night, ran out of fuel oil. A radio message to the coast guard base here told of her plight, and the Tampa was ordered to her assistance, picking the patrol boat up last night, 25 miles southeast of Cape Cod.

The crew had a plentiful food supply but after the fuel gave out, there was no means of cooking it Stanchions and other wood furnishings were chopped up to feed the fire in the coal stove.

COMMUNIST STRIKE IN PARIS A SERIOUS AFFAIR

PARIS, Oct. 12—The general strike inaugurated by the communists today was a more serious affair than had been bargained for. Two hundred and thirty wounded in clashes between the police and, the strikers. Three of the wounded are believed and they are not expected to recover. Seventy arrests were made, among Jacques Doriot, Communist deputy, who only today had been sentenced to 13 months imprisonment for inciting French soldiers to disobedience.

Reports from Havre, Toulouse, St. Etienne, Strasbourg, Lyons, Marseilles, Rennes, Grenoble, Toulon and many other places show that the communists failed to arouse the workers and that law and order prevailed.

The Paris suburbs—"The red belt around Paris"—as the communist style them, were the scene of the most sanguinary clashes. St. Denis, where the tombs of the kings of France are located, but which now is a hotbed of communists, witnessed a pitched battle between the police and strikers. One man was killed in this area and fifteen were wounded.

Deputy Jacques Doriot came to grief in street fighting against the police and was taken to a station for protection, with wounds in his head and body. This occurred at the close of a communist meeting in the 17th ward, just a few minutes after a prison sentence had been imposed upon him by court.

Danahey denied the charge. Miss Danahey, sister of the accused, said that the trouble started when Kaplan had not given her a receipt for rent for the month of May. When she paid in June a receipt was given her for May and in July a receipt was made out for June. She paid in advance she stated and her family had always done so. They resided in the house in question for many years. The parents are now dead and some time ago Kaplan bought the house. Judge Frank H. His head was hanging out of the left-hand door of the car.

Robert J. Hanna, construction foreman for the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company testified he was walking along the road and saw the sedan approaching from the opposite direction at a rate of speed of about twenty-five to thirty miles an hour. The Evangelistic services in the Methodist Episcopal church continued on Sunday with increased attendances. A few of the workers met for prayer at nin o'clock in the morning but there was no regular service until 2:15 when Evangelist Smith spoke on "Jesus, the Man," stressing the tremendous influence on the life of mankind wielded by Jesus, even supposing, as some would say, "He was only a man." One of Mr. Smith's most telling illustrations was drawn from Robert G. Ingersoll the famous anti-Christian lecturer. Ingersoll devoted his whole life, said Mr. Smith, to denouncing Jesus as an impostor and a fraud yet when Ingersoll died his body could not be buried until certain documents had been properly signed by the attending physician and undertaker and those documents had to be dated according to the calendar which is reckoned from the birth of Jesus; and so Ingersoll in his death must needs pay to Jesus a tribute which through his life he had denied Him. Even as a man Jesus has been the most influential man in all human history.

Monday evening Mr. Smith spoke on "Is it easy or hard to be a Christian?" Tonight (Tuesday) his topic will be "Head and Heart." Wednesday the women of the community will be guests of the women's society of the church and Mr. Smith will give them an address. In the evening Wednesday he will tell the story of his life.

PUTNAM

The New England Insurance Exchange has nine men in Putnam making a survey of the towns of Putnam, Woodstock, Pomfret and Eastford, all being included in the Putnam insurance district. The investigation and survey is understood to be for the purpose of revising the fire insurance rate. The work will probably take from two to three months.

The survey is made on a credit and debit basis. A basic rate or unit is taken and as the investigation progresses the basic rate or unit is credited or debited as the case may be, in considering the balance, for instance, if a cellar or back yard is found piled with inflammable rubbish, a debit is made. If, on the other hand, premises are found free from fire hazard, a credit is made. The number of wooden buildings in the business section are considered. The distance from fire hydrants are noted. Many such details affecting the risk are tabulated and then an average is struck.

The town of Webster has just had the experience of having insurance rates nearly doubled. A local insurance agent, familiar with the situation here and in Webster, says that Putnam as fewer wooden buildings in the business section than Webster. However, the survey will be made by a minute investigation of conditions pertaining to fire hazard, or its absence. The report will be made to the New England Insurance Exchange and then Putnam will have to abide by the finding and the changed rate, of insurance, if there is a change.

FLY-TOX was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by the Rex Fellowship. In a simple, easy and thoroughly effective way, FLY-TOX kills flies, moths, mosquitoes, fleas, ants, roaches and other insects. It's so convenient to saturate the air with clouds of FLY-TOX. Flies, by merely winging through the mist, become affected with the strange action of FLY-TOX, and die. This mist lingers just long enough to do its work. It then evaporates and leaves only a pleasant, clean odor. Wall paper or drapes are not stained. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans. Those stray, elusive flies that invade the most carefully screened homes, are quickly and easily eliminated with FLY-TOX.

"TOO WARM FOR THE FURNACE FIRE"

"Dear Sir: Box No. 147 Waterford, Conn.

Just now it is too warm for the furnace fire, so after dinner I retire to the den, open a window to the west, place a heater between me and it, and study and read in comfort, warming the fresh air as it enters.

And then of a sharp morning, I jump out of bed a half hour before time to rise, close the window, light the heater, and lay back in bed and doze, and incidentally take a lesson in drawing from the patterns thrown on the ceiling by the top of the heater. Then rise and dress in a warm chamber. And a very important fact is that all this comfort has cost me less than eight cents.

Yours respectfully, ANTHONY DIXON"

TONIGHT'S TOWN MEETING

In the natural course of events the annual town meeting takes place at this season of the year. Postponed from last year it will be held this evening at the town hall and the session is one that calls for and should get a large attendance of the townspeople.

By the report of the selectmen it has been shown that the regular expenses of the town can be met by a tax of eight mills, or a half mill less than a year ago. By the amount which is called for by the school committee a tax of 12 3-4 mills is asked, an increase of three quarters of a mill, and in addition to such appropriations additional sums are sought for the Otis library, the Norwich Free Academy, where the tuition of town pupils has been paid for a number of years, for the transportation of Norwich pupils to the Putnam trade school, for the macadamizing of part of Lafayette street and for medical inspection in the schools, besides a few other smaller items.

It remains for the voters of Norwich to say what the tax rate is to be for the ensuing year. Though the rate will not be fixed tonight, but will be based upon the next perfected grand list and determined next March, it will depend upon what appropriations are made tonight as to what outlay the town will be required to make and how much will have to be raised by taxation.

It is at the annual town meeting that the voters have the opportunity to voice their sentiments and to inquire about the various items in the regular expenses or the different special appropriations that are sought. It is therefore a meeting which calls for a representative assembly and open discussion. There is no reason for making the claim in the future that nothing was known or too little understood about what was being asked. The town meeting provides the chance for finding out and being fully informed before taking action one way or another. It is the time for letting the town authorities know what is expected of them by the townspeople. The last town tax was 24 1-2 mills. What the next one is rests largely with the citizens in town meeting.

PROGRESS AT LOCARNO

What must be regarded as satisfactory progress is being made at the conference at Locarno where the entrance of Germany into the league of nations and the ratification of the five power pact concerning security along the Rhine are important objectives.

Since this conference was called and since it has been in session special attention has been directed to the activities of Russia, which has been doing its best to create an alliance with Germany and Poland of a political nature in addition to new trade understandings which have been reached. The significance of such a move has not been lost upon the other nations. It has been used as a strong argument for getting Germany into the league while Russia has been using the pact as its excuse for endeavoring to draw Germany and Poland to its support.

In view of the circumstances much interest has been manifested relative to the attitude which Italy would take concerning the security pact, and the announcement which its representatives have made that they will stand with Great Britain in the upholding of the Rhine agreement. That, indicates, if it indicates anything, that Italy not only approves of the course that is being followed but that it believes that its participation is called for in maintaining peace in the western part of Europe. This increases the support of the Rhine line between Germany and France and must be regarded as generally pleasing to the allied nations.

This security pact is supposed to be for the maintainance of the present boundary between France and Germany. It is for arbitration instead of war, and with Germany in the league instead of being lined up with Russia the chances of that country making trouble will be greatly reduced, a fact which is equally gratifying for those who are actually desirous of peace and are not looking for a new alignment of nations that will pave the way for more bloodshed.

The Locarno conference has not completed its work. The promise of satisfactory results whets the interests as to the actual outcome.

YIELDING TO APPEALS

Conditions along the highways today are such that for the most part the disposition is to disregard the appeals that come from the people seeking rides, and there are times when even those endeavoring to get assistance of a legitimate character are coldly ignored. This is especially true if it happens to be after dark.

There have been too many instances where those who have asked for rides and been accommodated have not only been impudent and ungrateful but have held up and robbed those who gave them assistance and in too many instances they have not balked at taking life or trying to for the sake of accomplishing their quest for loot.

Begging a ride is by no means a new practice. It is an old story, but in the past it has been the disposition of those driving vehicles who could accommodate another to pull up beside the road and offer to give a lift to the pedestrian overtaken. The automobile driver has not been negligent in this respect, but through experience of himself and others to their bitter regret he has found it advisable to look out for himself and take no chances either by inviting the pedestrian or by submitting to appeals.

There was a time when freight trains were relied upon by a certain class for traveling about the country. It has not been abandoned but there are many today who are as much opposed to walking as were the old knights of the road. They carry the idea that the users of the highway owe them a ride and they are not backward in asking for it. Perhaps those who stand and wait and beg will eventually be picked up but there is a matter of self protection which must get serious consideration.

It is not to be supposed that all are highwaymen. Nevertheless there is a disposition to be cautious. If none is picked up certainly the company of a robber or an impudent guest will not be secured. The difficulty of picking the deserving from the undeserving is fully understood and while all are not crooks they labor under the handicap which the real crooks have placed upon all the seekers for rides.

CHANGING FEDERAL TAXES

It will be only a few days now before the ways and means committee begins its hearings in Washington in regard to the new revenue bill. It has reason to expect that many changes will be made, that even more recommendations will be offered than can be adopted and that the hearings will be jammed with interest as the various views are offered concerning the best manner of reducing the taxes.

In his messages President Coolidge has let it be known that he favors the elimination of the federal inheritance tax. Such a step would be the cause of general satisfaction throughout the country because of the injustice which is now done by the imposition of both federal and state inheritance taxes and the drains which are made upon estates because of them.

Some idea of the approval given to the president's suggestion is indicated by the fact that there are governors of 29 states who have gone on record for such action and it has recently been learned that there are at United States senators who are prepared to lend their active support to such an outcome.

The ways and means committee can be expected to hear from this dissatisfaction which seems to be generally distributed throughout the country. The abandonment of such a tax by the federal government would not correct the whole evil connected with such taxes but it would be a big relief and pave the way for state action which would remove the other injustices through encouraging that policy of reciprocity which has been entered into by several states concerning the transfer tax. The sentiment for dropping the federal inheritance tax is indicated by the opponents of it. Their aim must be to make it so strong that congress will see and vote in the right way.

FOG

Fog has proved its terror for the navigators of ships, for the engineers of trains and for the drivers of vehicles. By the finding of the body of Charles Ames, the air mail pilot, attached to his wrecked plane in the heavy woods of Pennsylvania it is fully set forth that the navigator of the air is not immune. Fog is given as the reason of the crash, for it is recorded that it was particularly heavy that night and at that locality. Indications are that he either figured that he was flying higher than he really was, or else he was keeping as low as possible in order to pick up his guiding lights when he struck Nittany mountain.

Mariners have received the benefit of various inventions for overcoming the effect of fog, such as submarine bells, radio bearings and the like but with all the devices tried out it has not been possible to dispel fog or to penetrate the curtain which it drops over land as well as water. It is a case of making the best of the situation, running at reduced speed and applying the best protective measures known.

Fog is a menace wherever it is encountered and it would appear that the air mail pilot was flying in the face of danger which he did not suspect. Just what the circumstances were will never be known. He was the only one who knew and his testimony is beyond reach. It is another one of those deplorable instances which add silent testimony to those which have preceded it as to the need of continuing the respect for the fog bank for there is no telling what it enshrouds or what lies back of it.

OBJECTION SUSTAINED

It seemed a perfect hopeless case. Every one in the courtroom believed the girl guilty. Her attorney considered himself powerless to do anything. He was old and not a shining light.

Mathew Arnold was, as a business man and a citizen, considered impeccably virtuous; he was known by bankers, spoken highly of by ministers, recommended by jurists, respected by every one. Mathew himself was impressive looking as he sat at the table before the judge, the picture of an outraged public spirited citizen.

The aged attorney for the defence called his client to the witness stand. Her very manner seemed indicative of guilt. She was nervous, fidgety, disinclined to meet the eyes of any one. As she sat waiting for her counsel to question her she twisted and pulled at a diminutive handkerchief.

Although extremely pretty, her clothes were of cheap neutral design and color; her hair was unbobbed, her cheeks were guiltless of rouge and her lips were untouched by carmine.

"Tell your story, in your own way, please," her lawyer directed soothingly.

"I had been in Mr. Arnold's employ three months, as stenographer. I got along splendidly until one day I let him take me out to lunch; after that, things were different. . . . He stopped censoring me for the small mistakes that I made occasionally and fixed it so that I had less work than the other girls, and he raised my pay, at the same time.

"When he wanted me to go out to supper with him, one day about one month ago, I refused. After that he treated me meanly. He piled more work on me. Then one day, about a week ago, he gave me that check for some overtime work. Next thing I knew I was arrested for 'forging' the check. I didn't do anything except refuse to—"

"I object!" roared the prosecutor, "we've been all over that ridiculous nonsense before, your honor—is it necessary to allow this girl to repeat. . . ."

"Objected sustained!" snapped the judge, casting a baleful eye at the girl. The idea, the very idea of this little nobody, sitting in a courtroom, deliberately trying to save herself from jail by besmirching the character of a solid citizen like Mr. Arnold!

The unfair objection and its outrageous abatement by the court had somehow waked her lawyer. He would have taken an ordinary failure without the bat of an eyelash—he was accustomed, by this time, to losing cases—at sixty-five one doesn't get upset over commonplace things—but to be discriminated against by the judge found his mind suddenly functioning with amazing efficiency.

The lawyer suddenly motioned to the girl to vacate the witness chair and signified his desire to have Mr. Arnold grace it. Mr. Arnold did so, condescendingly. He sat down pompously and cleared his throat, placing his hands upon his knees and lifting his head imperiously.

"You say," snapped the rejuvenated lawyer, "that you did not give the girl that fifty-dollar check in payment for overtime, as she says? You still insist that you know nothing about the check, and that the girl had access to your bank checks, extracted one, and forged your name to it?" Mr. Arnold nodded and added firmly, "I do."

For just a moment the attorney blinked angrily and helplessly. Suddenly he turned and strode to his worn black brief case, which lay nearby upon the table, and extracted a handful of various sized papers.

"Then why, Mr. Arnold," he shot at the man as he returned with the papers and shoved them toward him, "did you deliberately practise making your signature, in various ways unlike your usual signature, on these papers which my investigator found hidden in your private office?"

Mr. Arnold jerked nervously in his chair, his face flushed crimson, then turned a shade of purple. He put up one hand and jerked at his collar. The jurors straihed forward; a ripple of astonishment swept through the crowd beyond the rail. The judge leaned far over the edge of his desk, forgetting his legal dignity altogether, and the prosecutor stood astonished.

"Why! I, I practised making those signatures to—well, hasn't a man a right to practise making his own signature if he wants to?" he ended lamely, only to resume at once indignantly: "How dare you search my private office; how dare you break into my desk—give me those papers at once," he was in a perfect fever of excitement now, "give me those sheets, you old fool!"

He swung around and addressed the judge: "I withdraw my charge against the girl—dismiss this case and make this man give me back my papers There's been enough notoriety now over this outrageous affair. Things have come to a pretty pass in this country when the courts no longer protect decent citizens from insult." He pounded the arm of the witness chair unmercifully as he turned upon the judge as though that individual were responsible for this predicament.

"Dismiss the case, I tell you; I withdraw my charge!" He suddenly whirled about again and addressed the old lawyer, accompanying his demand with a string of profane ejectulations. "Give me those papers." The lawyer relinquished them with a smile.

"Certainly, sir," he said courteously. "I covered them with your signature myself while I was sitting there waiting for the prosecutor to sum up his case—kind of had a little curiosity as to how hard it would be to make the slight changes in your signature that show on the check. Presumably the sheets you practised on are still locked in your desk."

When Mr. Mathew Arnold signed the check with three naughts after the five, which was to preclude a suit for slander and malicious prosecution, the little lawyer was right there to witness the signature—and he was wearing a brand new tailormade cutaway, with a pink carnation in the lapel.—Ottawa Citizen.

Stories That Recall Others

What is a Corn Club?

They were discussing farm matters and organization. The method employed to help the farmers raise better corn and to get the children interested was being talked. A corn club was advocated and in answer to the question: "What is a corn club?" one of the girls replied: "It's the cob with no corn on it."

A Kind Boss

A prosperous young man was making a tour of the state. He met a tramp and gave him a lift of several miles. Stopping at a small town they both had a good meal at the expense of the young man.

The journey was then continued and at another town the tramp suggested that they eat again. He finished first and under the pretense of buying a cigar he paid for both plates

Having finished the young man went to pay. "It's paid for," the cashier informed him.

"Who paid for it?"

"Your boss," pointing to the tramp.

From Small Beginnings

James J. Hill, The Railroad King

"It's too bad about Jim," his friends said when "Jim" Hill's father died and he had to leave school and give up all his high ambitions to go to medical school. He had planned to lift himself above his country companions to become a physician and surgeon and to be of some real use to mankind. Now came the death of his father and all his plans were upset. He did not know it, but there lay before him opportunities greater than the rubbing of Aladdin's lamp could bring him. The way that fate was driving him. The way that fate was driving him was the way to his own happiness.

Instead of going to medical school, as he had wished to do, he found a job as clerk with some steamboat people. Instead of learning how to diagnose diseases, he learned how to weigh boxes. Instead of curing people, he learned how to direct them and how to plan for them. He served so well as a clerk that he became an agent for steamboats on the inland rivers. He saw the needs that arose, and so he brought about new steamboat lines. He made no effort to keep things as they were; he made them better than they were. Consequently, he made money.

Very quickly he saw that railroads and steamboats must work together, and so united his steamboat lines with a railroad line, the St. Paul Pacific. When the railroad spent more money than it made, James J. Hill, seeing its future, obtained control of it, made it over, boldly made it larger, rolled it into the great wheat country of the Northwest—and his fortune was made. From then on he became the great railroad king of the Northwest. He made his railroads touch the Pacific; he sent his steamers to Papan; he made the Great Northern Railroad one of the controlling railroads of the United States, and he made himself one of the richest of men.

In everything that he did James J. Hill showed keen analysis of conditions. He diagnosed the case, saw what was to be done, and then did it boldly—like a good surgeon. He used the ability that he had planned to use in medicine, but he used it in a way that was vastly to the benefit of the development of the great west and the United States in general. Because he was a thoroughly good clerk, he became a thoroughly good master of men and millions.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

WINDS THAT BLOW UP AND DOWN

That winds blow up and down as well as horizontally was forcibly brought home to many people for the first time by the destruction of the "Shenandoah." Far from being unusual, such "vertical winds" lie at the heart of some of our best known weather phenomena, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Every flash of lightning that you see, or that you hear as thunder, and every pellet of hail that falls is probably due to a 'vertical wind,' says the bulletin. These are the fruits of rather violent upward and downward blasts. If you consider as well the gentler rising and falling currents—the 'vertical breezes,' let us say—you must take pretty much the whole field of weather for your sphere.

"Practically every surface wind, whatever be its direction or speed, is moving along to replace air which has risen. Clouds, too, are built by rising air. The elusive little circles on weather maps that denote 'lows' and 'highs' are in final analysis the representation of upward and downward air currents. Where cold air from the upper regions flows down it compresses the surface atmosphere and produces a 'high' where the air, because of heat, is rising, it relieves the pressure and forms a 'low.' Most weather phenomena are due to the interplay of forces between 'highs' and 'lows,' which bring in their train changes in wind, temperatures and humidity.

"The most spectacular of the effects of 'vertical' winds are thunder storms. As the tracer bullet marks the flight of projectiles for a marksman, so the great towering 'thunder head' marks the upward rush of the invisible wind. Often these thunder clouds may be seen growing before one's eye. Seldom is the growth slow and orderly. More often it is violent, and the upsurging clouds appear to boil madly. Thunder storms are usually local affairs and the wind that has rushed upward must come quickly earthward again to restore the atmospheric balance. In the head of thunder storms, therefore, strong downward currents are usually encountered. It was such an upward then downward rush of air, apparently, that played an important part in the destruction of the 'Shenandoah.'

"Until comparatively recently the origin of the tremendous charges of electricity in a thunder storm baffled science. Now it is pretty generally believed that they are caused by the upward gusts of air—that these are in truth the dynamos of the sky. The building up of the electrical charges is supposed to be brought about by the gusts blasting raindrops to pieces, the smaller fragments carrying negative charges upward while the large droplets with positive charges remain behind. Hostile forces are established and when the strain becomes too great it is relieved by a lightning flash. When the negatively charged upper cloud floats away before the strain is relieved the flash is to the earth.

"'Vertical winds' are also credited with the production of hail, and their onionlike structure bears out the theory. Raindrops carried upward by the less violent gusts, according to this hypothesis, are frozen in the cold upper air. Sinking in the boiling cloud they acquire more moisture on the lower levels and are again carried to the freezing region. On the number of skyward trips made before they escape from the boiling cloud and fall earthward depends the size of the hailstones."

2,073,684 Visit Parks

The scenic lures of the country's national parks and monuments drew a record-breaking number of visitors during the park season this year up to September 30. By actual count of the interior department, announced today, 2,073,684 persons included the government playground areas in their summer excursions. The department compared this with the 1923 total of 1,493,712 to show an increase of 39 per cent in the two years.

Hot Springs, Ark., proved the most popular of the national parks this year, with 265,500 visitors, and Rocky Mountain Park was second, with 233,912. Yellowstone had 154,282 and Yosemite 269,166.

Peter Has an Idea

By those who seek is knowledge gained,
And education thus attained.
—Peter Rabbit.

When Flitter the Bat bade Peter Rabbit good by and started for the Sunny South, it set Peter to thinking. Peter does think once in a while. "I won't see Flitter again until next spring, yet somewhere he'll be flying about every evening all winter long just as he had flown about here all summer long," muttered he. "It gives a fellow a queer feeling to know that an old friend is somewhere alive and happy, yet I cannot see him. This whole business of getting ready for winter is bunny anyway. Some get ready one way and some get ready another way, and others like myself don't get ready at all. Personally, I can't see any sense in doing a lot of work when you really don't know what kind weather you are going to have. I suppose everybody has his own ideas on the subject. It would be kind of fun just to go around and find out how all the people I know are getting ready for winter. This is great weather for traveling. I believe I'll do it."

This was the beginning of Peter's idea, and he soon got so interested in it that he could think of nothing else. He could hardly take time to eat properly, and when Peter neglects his stomach he is very much interested indeed. It was beautiful weather. You know October is a very beautiful month. It was just cool enough to make Peter feel cool. He couldn't have sat still if he had wanted to. He just had to be hopping about.

"Let me see," said Peter. "Flitter the Bat has gone, so there is no use thinking about him. A lot of my feathered friends have gone, so there is no use thinking about them. I've seen Buster Bear and I know what he's doing. He's thinking of his stomach all the time. It's a good thing to think of once in a while, but I shouldn't want to think of it all the time. But that's Buster's way of getting ready for winter. Johnny Chuck is just like him, and Bobby Coon isn't much better. All those fellows can think of just now is stuffing themselves until it looks as if their coats must split. The Squirrel cousins think more of work than they do of eating. Still, I suppose they are really thinking of eating, only not all at once. I think I'll visit them first and find out, if I can, just what they do to get ready for winter and how they do it. Perhaps I might learn something. I'll begin with Striped Chipmunk."

So Peter started at once for a place where he knew that Striped Chipmunk was sure to be found. Striped Chipmunk was there. When Peter came in sight of the place he saw Striped Chipmunk running for the old Stone Wall as fast as his little legs could take him. But for his striped coat Peter wouldn't have recognized him. That was because he had such a looking head. There was no shape to it. You see, he had the pockets in his cheeks stuffed so full that his head looked to be twice as big as it should have been.

Peter scampered after Striped Chipmunk straight over to the Old Stone Wall. When Striped Chipmunk disappeared, Peter waited. Finally, after Peter had waited and waited, Striped Chipmunk reappeared. He popped up suddenly from between two stones in the Old Wall. "Hello, Peter! What are you doing here," said Peter.

"I have an idea," said Peter.

"Hello, Peter! What are you doing here?" said he

"You don't say so!" exclaimed Striped Chipmunk. "Do tell me what it is. I haven't had an idea for so long I wouldn't know one if I should meet it."

Peter made up a face at Striped Chipmunk. "It is this Striped Chipmunk," said he. "I've started out to find out how all the people I know get ready for winter, if they get ready at all. Of course I know that you store away a lot of food to use after Jack Frost arrives. But I'd like to know where you store it and how you store it and why you store it. Would you mind telling me, Striped Chipmunk?"

Striped Chipmunk grinned. "I'll think it over," said he, and away he went after another load.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. WATERFORD MAN LOSSES SUIT FOR $1,000 DAMAGES TO AUTOMOBILE

On the ground that the plaintiff, William W. Burgess of Waterford, has failed to prove due care on the part of the driver of his car or negligence on the part of the driver for the defendant, Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court has handed down judgment for the defendant in the suit by Mr. Burgess against the Massachusetts Baking Co. of Boston and New London.

Mr. Burgess sued for $1,000 for damages to his automobile, a Chandler coupe, which was driven by his wife on Nov. 11, 1924 on the road between New London and New Haven when a collision occurred with a motor truck of the baking company. A bill for repairs, which was an exhibit in the case, was for $307.31, an estimate for painting was $125, and the loss of use of the automobile for 24 days at $5 a day was claimed.

The following is the memorandum of decision:

"In this action for damage resulting to the plaintiff's automobile coupe when the right forward fender of the defendant's automobile delivery truck was in contact with the left running board or left front fender of the plaintiff's car, just as the defendant had overtaken it from the rear and was about to pass it, the testimony of the drivers of the two vehicles is in flat conflict. While each evidently told what lay in his or her mind as the true account of what happened, I am compelled upon the cogent probability of facts in evidence in effect undisputed, to find that the defendant's version of what happened is substantially the correct one.

"I am satisfied that the sand truck which was proceeding in the opposite direction, had gone far enough by the defendant's truck to justify the defendant's driver in proceeding to pass the plaintiff's car which had slowed down just ahead of him, that he thereupon sounded his horn and proceeded to pass on the left of the plaintiff's car leaving some three feet of clearance, that just as the cars were so opposite each other, the driver of the plaintiff's car swung diagonally to the left to cross over to the mail box on the opposite of the road, and in spite of the instantaneous efforts of the defendant's driver to avoid a collision, drove into the left front fender of the truck, lost control of the steering wheel, and then went off the road to the right and into the bank.

"The driver of the plaintiff's car who was somewhat hard of hearing and had the left window of the coupe closed either did not hear or disregarded the defendant's signal, and gave no signal herself to indicate her intended turn to the left, and failed to make an observation as to whether any vehicle was approaching from the rear before she turned across the road.

"The burden rests upon the plaintiff to prove both due car on the part of his driver and negligence upon the part of the defendant. He has proven neither. Judgment may be entered for the defendant."

PALMER MILL EMPLOYES OUTING AT FITCHVILLE

The annual outing and clambake of the Palmer Brothers company of Montville, Fitchville, and New London in honor of the Palmer brothers baseball league, was marked by a large attendance Saturday, at Fitchville in spite of the cold weather. Owing to the chilly weather, luncheon was served in the club room of the town hall. The baseball league resulted in a tie between Montville and Fitchville for the championship. The playoff was scheduled for Saturday, but due to unfavorable weather conditions, the playoff was postponed until next Saturday.

The clambake and luncheon were prepared by Randall Palmer, Willis Chappell and Norme Allen. Following the blessing by the Rev. J. F. Speerli, pastor of the Fitchville church, the savory courses were served at 1 o'clock. James R. Johnson of New London expressed regret in the absence of George S. Palmer, president of the organization, whose presence in other years had been an annual feature, but who could not attend Saturday on account of illness. Mr. Johnson also welcomed the women employes of the tshee plants. This was the first time that all of the women employes attended the annual baseball outing. W. W. Lyman, superintendent of the Montville plant called for the members of the three groups to rise in turn. Fitchville had the largest total attendance, Montville had the largest attendance of women.

After the luncheon the picnickers participated in a field and track meet. Each group entered a team. The events were as follows: barrel tilting, shoe race, medicine ball hustle, half-mile relay, 100-yard dash, Newcomb match, tug-o-war, and cage ball. New London won the pennant with a score of 27 points, Fitchville secured 26 points, and Montville 8.

The outing closed with the presentation of the pennant by W. P. Littlefield to Peter Maryeski, captain of the New London team. The presentation was accompanied by a few appropriate remarks by Mr. Littlefield. The field and track events were conducted under the direction of Arthur B. Dawson, physical director, and Henry W. Rafferty, assistant physical director of the New London Y. M. C. A.

NINE LUTHER LEAGUES REPRESENTED AT CONVENTION

The Misses Anna Retkovske, Frieda Retkovske, Elizabeth Steimer, Olga Zacher and Edith Butseck have returned to Norwich after spending three days at the 26th annual Luther League convention held at The Immanuel Lutheran church, Meriden. The slogan "Greater Service" was fulfilled to the letter. Eight members attended from Norwich, giving Norwich 55 points and placing the local league near the top in the race for the convention attendance banner.

At the convention business meeting, Miss Elizabeth Steimer of this city was elected state archivist of the Luther League and Miss Frieda Retkovske was elected state chairman of the verification committee. Emil A. Schuelka of Meriden was re-elected president of the state league.

Norwich and Bridgeport were the two new societies admitted to the league, making a total of nine in the state league. Delegates from the following leagues answered the roll call: Waterbury, Southington, Hartford Trinity, Hartford, St. Paul's, Bridgeport, Norwich, Naugatuck, Seymour and Meriden.

A meeting Saturday afternoon opened the session of the league with addresses of welcome from Rev. H. Mackensen of Southington and Otto E. Kamens, chairman of the social committee. PRUDENTIAL WILL CELEBRATE ITS FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Local representatives of the Prudential Insurance Company of America will participate today (Tuesday) in what is probably the largest and most widely-observed birthday celebration ever held by a single organization. E. O. Rodier, superintendent for the Norwich district, will entertain his staff of employes at dinner at the Wauregan hotel at 7 o'clock.

The Prudential Insurance company came into existence under the masterful guidance of John F. Dryden, its founder, fifty years ago today. And today each Prudential worker in the United States and Canada, wherever he may be, will pause at a designated hour to join with his colleagues in observance of the success attained.

At the home office of the company, in Newark, N. J., an elebrate program has been arranged. There will be a luncheon at which the guests will be leading financiers, insurance executives, public officials, educators and business men, and during the afternoon a meeting will be held in Salaam Temple, Newark, for thousands of Prudential men and women in addition to the special guests. The speakers at this meeting will be:

Edward D. Duffield, president of the Prudential; Edward C. Stokes, former governor of New Jersey; John R. Hardin, president of the Mutual Benefit Insurance company; Robert H. McCarter, former attorney general of New Jersey, and Dr. John Grier Hibbon, president of Princeton university.

STORRS FRESHMEN GO THROUGH DUCK POND

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 12.—The annual rope pull between teams of the sophomore and freshman classes of the Connecticut Agricultural college was held here this afternoon before a large gathering of students, faculty members and others of the Storrs community.

When it was all over, every male member of the freshman class had to make his way through the cold and slimy water of duck pond, which is the penalty the losing class is forced to pay.

The sophomore, always favorites to win this annual competition between the two lower classes, had to exert themselves to the utmost to win today. A picked team of 25 men was on each side of the rope as Capt. C. R. Crim, the judge, gave the signal to start.

Although the frosh gained slight advantage at the start, it was not until the half way mark of the ten-minute struggle was reached, that the Sophomore really showed their superiority over the freshmen. From then on it was easy, and the attempts of the yearlings to take in the rope yielded them not an inch.

With the sounding of the gun at the end of the ten minutes, Captain Crim waved for the freshmen to go through the pond, which they all did, some swimming and some wading, but all coming out on the other side covered with mud and slime.

MOTION TO SET ASIDE $264 VERDICT DENIED

Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court has denied the motion to set aside the verdict of $264 in the case of Omni M. and Fanny Petroman against Otto Anderson, Jr., all of Griswold.

The plaintiffs sued to collect $500 damages from Anderson, alleging that he cut trees, which were rightfully the property of the plaintiffs in July 8, 1925, a jury in the court of common pleas awarded the plaintiffs a verdict of $264 which Anderson moved to have set aside.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Waller says:

It appears from the evidence that the jury might reasonably have found that the defendant cut and carried away from the land of plaintiff, 135 trees in all, and that defendant was not guilty through mistake.

It appears from the testimony of the plaintiff that 87 of these trees were less than 12 inches in diameter, seven were more than 13 inches in diameter and 35 feet in length, one was only 12 inches in diameter and 40 feet in length, and the remaining 41 were 12 inches or over in diameter.

Upon the evidence as to value and under the statutory rule of damage, it seems to me that the jury might reasonably have arrived at the verdict of $264.

The motion is therefore denied.

MEXICAN LABOR SUPPLIED PICKERS FOR COTTON BELT

Partial relief from the great shortage of cotton pickers in Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi and Kentucky came from Texas, with Little Rock as the hub of a rushing business in Mexican cotton pickers, according to The Arkansas Gazette.

The traffic was a sequel to frantic efforts a few weeks ago of Mississippi planters to lure southern Negroes back from Chicago and other northern cities. Their efforts were not fully successful, but the influx of Mexicans partially supplied the labor shortage.

SENATORS UNABLE TO STAND FURIOUS ATTACK OF PIRATES WHO WIN, 6 TO 3

Four Washington Pitchers Struggle to Hurl Back Invading Pirates But to No Avail—Covey, Zachary and Marberry Are Hit Hard—Aldridge Pitches Brilliant Game For Pirates—Washington's Hopes Rest On Ferguson and Ruether Today.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—(By the Associated Press)—The fury of the Pirate attack, hitherto somewhat of a fable, became a reality today for the first time in the world's series.

On the crest of it, the National league champions came back when their hopes seemed lost, knocked Stanley Coveleskie out of the box and captured the fifth game of the championship struggle by a margin of six to three while the strong armed and stout-hearted Vic Aldridge hurled his second triumph over the Senators in brilliant fashion.

It was a sensational comeback on the part of the buccaneers, who had seemed headed for quick defeat after their third defeat and shut out yesterday at the hands of Walter Johnson. Tonight, as the warring forces departed for Pittsburgh and the sixth game there tomorrow, there was a rosier hue to the Pirate cause.

Bill McKechnie and his young stalwarts still must take two straight games to gain the world's championship heights the club last held in 1909, for the count still gives the Senators the edge at three games to two, but their batting rampage today has wrought about a startling revival of Pittsburgh hopes.

Washington Pitching Shattered

These hopes were further brightened by the wreckage that this savage Pirate attack left in the pitching ranks of the Senators. Four Washington moundsmen altogether felt the reckless blows of their young rivals, Zachary as well as Coveleskie being knocked out of the box while Win Ballou and Fred Marberry were rushed out in an attempt to check the sweeping advance of the invaders in the last three innings.

Bucky Harris lost the play with his ace, Coveleskie, and now faces his fight for one more victory with a badly battered hurling staff. For tomorrow he must use either Alex Ferguson, who was credited with the third game victory after being walloped a bit, or Dutch Reuther, veteran southpaw and the only regular who has not gone to a firing line where the Pirates are supposed to be fatal to portsiders.

With this prospect it may be that the issue will go to the limit of seven games with the final hopes of the Senators resting again on their great veteran, Walter Johnson, who finished his second victory yesterday with an injured right leg—in baseball parlance a "charley horse"—and would be taxing even his great strength and heart to win again with only two day's rest.

Fans are Disappointed

Today, before a big crowd of close to 36,000 that again included President and Mrs. Coolidge, Pirate bats that had been silenced for the most part thus far broke through the barriers in the knowledge that defeat meant final elimination.

Probably the major share of the throng came out to see Washington put the finishing touches to a second successive world's championship, which seemed in the capital's grasp once more, after a brilliant attack and defense had all but overwhelmed the National league champions. But instead, they saw an aroused young Pirate crew, with the glint of determination in their eyes, smash all before them in a succession of fiery drives.

The first fan of the land, President Coolidge, did not stay to see the whirlwind finish of the Pirates but even when he was called away by a diplomatic engagement in the third inning he had seen enough to convince him that it was Pittsburgh's day.

Pirates Start Attack in 3rd.

For it was the third inning that first saw the onslaught in full swing, producing two runs that put the Pirates in the lead after Washington had gotten away to a one-run advantage in the first inning.

From that point on, it was only a question of how long the Pirates could be kept in check. There was a revival of Washington hopes in the fourth when Joe Harris, slamming out his third home run of the series into the left field stands, tied the score but the National leaguers broke through in the seventh and were never headed after that.

Through the last three innings, the Pirates turned a close battle into a rout with an attack which found weapons long silent finally breaking down all barriers.

Cuyler-Barnhart-Wright

Cuyler, Barnhart and Wright—three men whose hitting prowess loomed large in the season's pennant triumph—found the range with consistent abandon for the first time in the series and the Senators, reserved and all, could not hold the mis check.

Moore, Traynor and McInnis, taking Grantham's place at first base and playing regularly for the first time in his sixth world's series—also figured in various stages of the scoring fray. In fact every member of the Pirate crew except Aldridge contributed at least one safe blow toward the total of thirteen gathered off the quartet of Washington twirlers.

Aldridge's bat was not needed, however, and the big right-hander carried his full share of the laurels in the steady confidence and skillfulness with which he checked most of the threats of his formidable foes.

Barnhart Starts Trouble

Barnhart was perhaps the biggest gun in the buccaneer battery, for it was the hitherto unobstrusive left-fielder who lit the match to the attacking conflagration in the third inning, when he drove in the first Pittsburgh run, lashed out the decisive stroke when he scored Carey in the seventh with what proved to be the winning run then completed his job by bringing in the sixth and final tally himself in the ninth on the wings of Wright's drive off Marberry's pitching and Bluege's glove.

Coveleskie Weakens

While he finally retired under this barrage, Coveleskie paved the way for his own downfall by his unsteadiness and lack of control, it was passes to Carey and Cuyler that started the fireworks in the third inning, permitting these two speed merchants to flash over on Barnhardt's hit and Traynor's sacrifice fly.

It was another walk to Moore in the seventh that opened the second Pirate drive, in which successive hits by Carey, Cuyler and Barnhart sent Coveleskie from the hill.

Into this juncture young Win Ballou stepped to check the rally by fanning Traynor while Cuyler was trapped off third when an attempted double steal with Barnhart went awry.

Zachary Goes In

Ballou, removed for a pinch hitter, gave way to Tom Zachary in the eighth but the hero of two world's series victories last fall was an easy target. He escaped with only one run being scored off him in the eighth, due to Wright's double and a single to left, Marberry, coming to the rescue, was found for a run-producing hit by Wright scoring Barnhart, but McInnis hoisted to Goslin for the third out.

Judge Cuts Down a Pirate

But for a lucky escape by Coveleskie in the first inning, when the Pirates failed to score after filling the bases, and a sensational stop by Joe Judge in the fourth, the damage by the invaders might have been even greater.

Stan Harris, making a clever play to retire Wright on a ball deflected by Coveleskie's glove, put off the first inning sortie while Judge, in the most startling defensive play of the game, plunged and grabbed Carey's liner in the fourth on the first base line, then touched the bag for the third out with runners winging their way from first and third. The stop cut off what looked like a certain double and brought a terrific ovation from the crowd.

Washington had its full strength back in the game with Ossie Bluege at third base for the first time since he was "beaned" by Aldridge in the second game of the series. His fielding was a help to the champions while at bat he showed he had no fear of the Pirate finger by slamming out a double but this assistance was not enough to turn the tide.

Senators Pass up Many Chances

The Senators, spreading their three runs over as many innings, missed as many good chances to score as did the Pirates but they found Aldridge at his best when the danger was greatest.

In the fourth, for instance, after Joe Harris had squared the count with his homer, Ruel's single and Bluege's double followed in quick succession. It looked like a rout for the moment but the big Pirate hurler steadied, fanned Coveleskie and got the dangerous Rice on a grounder to Mcinnis.

Again in the sixth, Joe Harris, leading off with a single, was sacrificed by Peck, while Ruel walked. This time, however, Bluege fanned and on the third strike, Smith's quick throw to Traynor caught Joe Harris for a double play, ending the inning.

Leibold, batting for Ballou, doubled in the seventh and scored on Rice's single. Rice advanced on Stan Harris' sacrifice but the heavy artillery of the Senators failed to come through in the pinch, Goslin and Joe Harris both expiring on flies while Judge got a pass that did no harm. This was the last Washington menace. For Aldridge set his foes down in quick order in the last two innings. The score:

WORLD'S SERIES BRIEFS

Stan Harris is trying to pick a pitcher for tomorrow's game while en route tonight to Pittsburgh. He has only Ferguson and the southpaw Dutch Reuther to shoot at the Pirates, and the Buccaneers are deadly against lefthanders. They peppered Zachary hard today, McKechnie has Kremer primed for the next game and is sitting pretty riding west tonight.

Joe Harris is the hitting fool of the series. Nothing stops him, fast ball, hooks, knuckle balls, all go flying back to the fences from Joe's bat. The Pirates camp against the fences but fences were made for Joe to hit home runs over. He collected his third circuit smash of the series today.

Coveleskie was not the pitcher today that he was in the second contest. He seemed a worn and tired man out there on the hurling hill with his moist flings and half-speed curves. The Pirates pecked away at him for four innings, then held up their attack for two frames and finally drove him to cover in the seventh.

Wright's play around the short field sparkled with irridscent brillianced. He knocked down hits to right and left and took the heart out of the Senators with fast throws from every position.

The Pittsburgh rooters came into their own with today's victory and organized a snake dance down Pennsylvania avenue on the way to the railroad station. They were still at it when the train pulled out.

Stuffy McInnis, appearing at first base in his sixth world's series, was one of the hardest fighters on the field. Constantly guiding Aldridge, steadying the infield and urging the batsmen to super-deeds, Stuffy kept himself busy throughout. He fielded his position perfectly and shot forth a single in the eighth which scored Wright, and when Earl Smith wandered from his post in the ninth, Stuffy was the man to call him back.

Hundreds of balls went out of the game before today's contest started. Most of them had the names of Senators and Pirates all over them, but some of the bleacherites were satisfied to keep them without insignia.

Both teams left for Pittsburgh immediately after the game, expecting to arrive at midnight and gain a full night's sleep on solid beds.

Reporters and the just plain fans who are following the teams departed at the earliest opportunity.

Mrs. Coolidge sitting behind the Washington dugout, kept a score of the game throughout.

ONEY SAYS M'BURNEY IS FAR FROM RIGHT

Sporting Editor: In reply to Manager McBurney's letter there is nothing the matter with the St. Joseph's B. B. team. In the first game that the St. Joseph's team played them they cried that they never had their regular team there. We learn that the Sachem's never had their full team there Sunday. As far as that goes the St. Joseph's team had just as many members there. Manager Oney received a telephone call that there was only four or five Sachems men on the field so he kept the rest of his team back.

Talk about being yellow, McBurney shows his streak runs right up the back of the Sachems' manager.

The umpire, Mr. Gross, was not on the field at this time. As for the score being 9 to 0 that is impossible. The Sachems have got to go out and learn how to play ball before they can beat us.

Yours in sport.
MANAGER ONEY.

MECHANIC KILLED AND DRIVER INJURED IN AUTO RACE

SALEM, N. H., Oct. 12 (AP)—Daniel Shaw, of Melrose, Mass., acting as mechanic for Vic Spooner in automobile races which marked the opening of the new Rockingham park board track here, today, was fatally injured when the breaking of the steering knuckle caused Spooner's car to overturn. The driver tonight was in a critical condition in the General hospital, Lawrence.

Spooner's car was making 125 miles an hour when the accident occuried immediately in front of the grandstand from which several thousands of persons were watching the races. Immediately after the crash the wrecked automobile caught fire and the flames spread to the board track. Hand extinguishers were brought into play and the fire was smothered with little damage.

Shaw died while being taken to the Clover hill hospital at Lawrence. Physicians said Spooner was suffering from concussion of the brain.

WEATHER IS NOT PROMISING FOR TODAY'S GAME

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—The Pittsburgh forecaster tonight gave baseball fans little encouragement for the sixth game of the world's series, scheduled to be played here tomorrow.

A drizzling rain fell all day and the weather observer said his maps indicated that the downfall would continue until late tomorrow, to be followed by fair and cooler weather.

BERLENBACH KNOCKS OUT SOLOMON AND CELMARS GETS DRAW WITH HERMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP)—Giving away 19 pounds to a game and courageous foe, Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, this afternoon made an auspicious start in his attempt to qualify for a fight with Jack Dempsey by scoring a technical knockout over King Solomon of Panama in the ninth round of a ten-round match at the New York Nation league baseball park.

Berlenbach, weighing but 172 against 191 for the Central American heavyweight, battered Solomon into submission after chasing him around the ring with a blinding barrage of blows to body and head. The light heavyweight champion was credited with winning every round of the one-sided contest by newspapermen at the ringside. Solomon kept his feet with difficulty until the eighth, when he was floored three times. After 31 seconds of the ninth round Referee Jack O'Sullivan stepped between them and sent Solomon to his corner ending the fight.

The first round was about even with both men playing for the head. Solomon evaded terrific lefts and countered with right hooks to Berlenbach's jaw. In the second round Berlenbach had Solomon groggy when the bell rank with a terrific series of lefts to the jaw and ribs. Berlenbach followed up his advantage in the third round and Solomon staggered into his corner at the bell with glazed eyes.

Solomon displayed great courage in the fourth under a merciless body attack which bent him double as the bell rang. Staggering under a continued terrific assault, Solomon laughed aloud in the fifth as a blow to his jaw brought blood. The crowd applauded his courage. He was so exhausted in the sixth that when he missed a right swing he fell out of the ring but climbed back and was still standing when the bell rang.

In the seventh round Solomon rallied slightly, driving Berlenbach into a corner but the champion was unhurt and unruffled. In the eighth, Solomon went down three times for the count of three but managed to last until the bell when he fell into his chair. At the beginning of the ninth, Solomon staggered to the middle of the ring but the champion's attack was so merciless that the referee stopped the fight with the Panama fighter hanging to the ropes, and awarded the champion credit for a technical knockout.

Solomon's defeat was the second surprise of the day for a crowd of about 6,000 had previously seen Babe Herman of California, outstanding featherweight challenger, held to a draw by Joe Celmars of New York, a comparative unknown.

It marked the first time since he came to this country several months ago that Solomon had failed to answer the gong for the final round.

Celmars Gets Draw With Herman

Celmars entered the ring for his match with Herman on only a few hours notice as a substitute for the retired featherweight champion, Johnny Dundee, who failed to appear for the weighing in at the offices of the New York boxing commission. Celmars appeared to be slightly overweight at 132 1-3 against 126 for Herman, but soon proved that he would make trouble for the Californian by flooring the latter with a terrific left hook soon after the opening of the first round.

During the next three rounds, of the ten-round contest Celmars nonplussed the man who only recently held the champion, Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., to a draw, dazzling Herman with his speed and a sharp left jab to the head. Displaying nimble footwork, he made Herman miss with both hands as the crowd roared its approval and it was not until the fifth round that the latter finally found the range.

Herman rallied in the latter rounds and brought the fight to even terms, in the opinion of the judges, by terrific right handers to the chin which found Celmars always willing to mix. The draw verdict of the judges was received with disapproval by the crowd, a chorus of boos and hisses indicating that many believed Celmars entitled to the honors.

Terris Gets Decision

The third of three ten-rounders which featured the show, conducted as a benefit for the National Sports alliance, brought together a pair of fleet-footed lightweights, Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, N. Y., and Sid Terris, of New York. It was their second meeting, and Terris, who had won the previous bout, took the Judges' decision again this afternoon.

A left jab which constituted Terris' chief weapon of defense was matched against a flailing left, when called upon by Bernstein. The jab proved the more effective of the two blows, and Bernstein was bleeding at the mouth when the tenth ended.

PRES. COOLIDGE LEAVES EARLY BUT MRS. COOLIDGE REMAINS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Forced to keep an engagement, President Coolidge left early in today's game between Pittsburgh and Washington and apparently took the champion's luck with him.

The score was 3 to 1 in favor of the Pirates when the president departed. Mrs. Coolidge remained, however, and cooked a tie score for her favorites—Washington. Joe Harris' homer did this trick and Joe got a big smile and plenty of applause from Mrs. Coolidge as he trotted by her toward the bench after the clout.

Despite the heavy Pittsburgh attack subsequently which gave them a three run lead, Mrs. Coolidge remained until the last man was out, joining with her fellow rooters in the hope of a Washington rally. As usual she kept score.

Appearing at the park just before game time, the president received Manager Harris of the champions to congratulate him on yesterday's victory and then threw out the first ball, a heavy heave which carried straight to Umpire Rigler, standing behind a battalion of photographers. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were accompanied by Frank W. Stearns of Boston.

An engagement to receive the credentials of Zenda Fierlinger, newly appointed minister from Czecho-Slovakia, compelled the president to leave the game early.

MICHAELSON CROSSES LINE FIRST IN MARATHON

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Al Michaelson, running under the colors of the Cygnet Athletic club, East Port Chester, N. Y., today won the Port Chester marathon run under the auspices of the Port Chester Chamber of Commerce and held in connection with the silver jubilee of the Knights of Columbus.

Still appearing fresh and running with long easy strides, Michelson breasted the tape two hours, 27 minutes and 1 and 4-5 seconds after the start.

Clarence DeMar of the Melrose, Mass., American Legion was second, and Frank Zuna of Newark, N. J., unattached, was third.

VICTORY CHANGES ENTIRE MORALLE OF PITTSBURGH CREW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—Confidence oozed from the Pirates' clubhouse after their victory over the Senators in the fifth game of the world's series.

"Wouldn't be surprised if we'd take them," Manager Bill McKechnie said as he rushed into his clothes in preparation for an immediate train journey back to the home town. "We've got Johnson and Coveleskie out of the way for a while.

"Tomorrow I'm going to send Kremer back and he is in good shape to go. He's worked hard for us all year and is one who can get back into the box with a comparatively short rest.

"We started to hit and that explains why we won and we're going to keep on hitting from now on. Yes, I think we'll take them.

The Pirates were like a primary school let loose for recess, thumping each other on the back, smiles brightening every face as they piled into taxicabs and dashed for the train awaiting them. McKechnie himself hurled off the worried look that has been his for several days and laughed and joked with the crowd which swarmed to the door to congratulate him.

Stanley Harris, youthful manager of the Senators, took defeat calmly.

"Those things will happen," he said, "and they're a part of baseball. Covey wasn't right, anybody could see that. He wanted to go in and get back that game he lost in Pittsburgh but he wasn't there today.

"I may start either Ruether of Ferguson tomorrow; I haven't decided. That was a fine play when Joe Judge stabbed Carey's shot down the first base line when things were dangerous, and for a time I thought it had saved the game for us. Bluege felt fine and did some nice fielding. He was pretty good at the bat, too.

"I wish we had ended it today and didn't have to go back out there. I'm almost tired of the whole thing."

Walter Johnson said that if the Pirates win tomorrow, he probably will be out there again in the last game.

"We'll have to do the best we can," he argued, "and that's about all there is to it. In didn't do any work today outside of picking up a bat once in a while around the dugout, but I doubt that my sore leg will interfere if I have to go in. It's not so bad today but I think it will be all right."

GRAND CIRCUIT OPENS LAST MEETING OF SEASON

ATLANTA, Oct. 12—Grand circuit racing opening here today as a feature of the Southeastern fair, with the running of four events. With the final races Friday, the 1925 grand circuit schedule will be ended, following appearances at ten other cities this season.

In the opening event, the 2:15 class pace, Lynette captured first honors in the three heats, coming from third place on the last circuit of lead Allceward, second, by a sulky's length. Braden ruler, in a field of four pacers won the three heats in the second race, the special pace, holding the lead in each appearance without difficulty.

The third race, the 2:12 class pace, brought forth the first real competition of the day when Miss Czar Moko nosed out Norman Grattan for first place in the third and deciding event. Georgia was a bad third.

Grey Worthy was declared winner of the fourth race, the 2:09 class trot, by defeating the only other entrant, Tipple Frisco, in two straight heats. The losing racer was the only Atlanta entry of the day being owned by Walter Candler, well known sportsman.

AGGIES TACKLE MASS. TEAM ON SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Oct. 12.—An attractive gridiron contest is scheduled for Storrs next Saturday, when the Connecticut Aggies will meet Massachusetts Aggies on Gardner Dow field. Big things are planned at the state college for that date, as it is the Alumni Homecoming day, and the time when the corner stone will be laid for the new Community house at Storrs. Alumni Secretary Alexander has plans well under way, and it is expected that hundreds of Connecticut's alumni and former students will return to Storrs.

Although his team lost to Maine on Saturday, Coach Dole was well pleased with the brand of play shown, remarking after the game that the eleven showed up better than in any previous game. An unfortunate break in the form of a blocked drop kick and a subsequent seventy-five yard run for a touchdown cost Connecticut the game, but despite this the team played a game that was a great improvement over anything displayed to date.

Dole was specially pleased with the Aggies' running attack. There was co-ordination between the line and backefield in opening holes and driving through for gains that looked better than anything seen here in a long time. Connecticut gained twice as much as Maine in rushing the ball.

No practice was held Monday, but the squad will get down to solid work this (Tuesday) afternoon, when preparations for the Massachusetts game will begin.

A real contest is assured when the teams of the rival Agricultural colleges get together, and next Saturday's game will be no exception to this. Last year Connecticut defeated Massachusetts 12-10, and that was the only contest dropped by the Bay Staters. Memory of this, topped with the natural rivalry that already exists, is sufficient to warrant a real battle from the first to the final whistle next Saturday. Further, Coach Gore of Massachusetts were teammates together at M. A. C. and this fact injects another bit of interest into the situation.

Both teams are expected to have seven regulars from last year's teams available, and both will be able to send veteran teams on the field. This in itself should insure a first class game with a high quality of play predominating.

CUBS WIN FOURTH GAME OF CITY SERIES

CHICAGO, Oct. 12. (AP)—While his teammates were bunching hits off Ted Lyons, Kaufmann held the White Sox to five hits today and the Cubs added another victory in the City series, the score was 3 to 1. The Cubs now have three games and the Sox one.

Up to the eighth inning, the White Sox got only one man past second base, Sheely reaching that station in the seventh on a single and an infield out.

Kaufmann seemed to lose control in the eighth inning and was on the verge of being taken out, but insisted on remaining.

Lyons, who was defeated 2 to 1 by Lefty Cooper the other day, had two bad innings. In the fourth he was touched for hits, two of them doubles, but only two runs were scored.

The Cubs put their other run across in the seventh on Grimm's single, Pittenger's sacrifice, and Hartnett's double which bounced off Kane's shins.

Attendance, 11,103; receipts, $9,560.-14; commission share, $1,434.02; club's share, $8,126.12; each club, $4,063.06.

HARD SCRIMMAGE FOR ACADEMY SQUAD YESTERDAY

The Academy football squad had one of the longest and hardest scrimmages so far this season yesterday. Practice opened at 3 p. m. with a short kicking drill which was followed by about two and a half hours fast scrimmage. The varsity had a big advantage over the second team and showed up well during practice. The backfield is showing greater speed on both the offensive and the defensive. The men have greater confidence in each other and are playing with more team work than earlier in the season when they appeared very poor. Coach Whitney has driven the team hard from the very first of the season, putting them through long practice sessions almost daily.

The following are the lineups for both teams: Varsity, le, Waters; lt, Kramer; lg, Fedile; c, Schawtz; rg, Polsky; rt, Mullins; re, Sargent; qb, Courbois; lhb, Williams (Capt.); rhb, Brewer; fb, Marks. Second team: le, LaCroix, lt, Gilbert; lg, Connell, Norman, c, Murphy, rg, Guiomb; rt, Palmer; re, McClurgage; qb, Sullivan; lhb, Vitiano; rhb, McGlone; fb, Kahn.

Among those present at yesterday's practice was last years coach, Bill Aitken, along with several alumni and former stars at the local institution. The general feeling among these men seems to be that the Academy has improved during the past two weeks so that when they face Westerly at Westerly Friday things will be far different from what they were in the first meeting between these schools last month in Norwich, when the Academy played their only game to date this season.

TIGERS BEAT JEWETT CITY SPEED-BOYS, 6 TO 0

About 400 football enthusiasts who attended the first clash of the season between the Greenville Tigers and the Jewett City Speed-Boys at Mohegan park Sunday afternoon were treated to a game that came up to all expectations and then some, in which the Tigers won out, 6 to 0.

After fighting the first half in a deadlock the Tigers came back in the third quarter and by line plunges took the ball to the seven-yard line, from where Nurmi Nelson took it over for the first and only touchdown of the game.

The fourth quarter found the Tigers again threatening the Speed-Boys goal, but the referee's whistle ended the game.

The line-up of the Tigers was as follows: A. McGowen, c; Maloney and Chrisky, guards; Tukanski and Longevin, tackles; Monahan, Gay, Sullivan and McIntyre, ends; Higgins Nelson and Swanton, halfbacks; Gorton, fullback, and Tennant, quarterback.

Referee, Ed. Williams; umpire, Jim Niclaski; timekeeper, Andrew Boyd and head linesman, Mahoney ran the game off in an orderly fashion.

PENN-YALE GAME WILL START AT 2.30 SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—After the strenuous game with Georgia Saturday, the Yale varsity football squad was given a rest from scrimmaging this afternoon. The men, however, had a long dummy scrimmage. Head Coach T. A. D. Jones pointed out the mistakes disclosed on Saturday that will have to be remedied before the Pennsylvania clash on next Saturday and individual coaching for the various positions followed.

Early shadows that fell in the big bowl caused the Yale authorities to move up the time of Saturday's game with Pennsylvania to 2.30 o'clock instead of 3 o'clock as originally announced.

WESTERLY AND WINDHAM PLAY TO A SCORELESS TIE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 12—The football team representing Windham High and Westerly High battled four long periods here today to a scoreless tie. The battle for the most part was in midfield with the exchange of punts being frequent. Both teams presented strong lines and sure tacklers, the wingmen of both teams being effective in protecting the outskirts. Windham had two opportunities to score bringing

WESTERLY

A fire starting in paper under the cutting table in the front room of the tailor shop of Frederick Brucker, 50 High street, Monday afternoon, just before 3:30 o'clock, caused a blaze which filled the shop with smoke. Angelo Bouvento, a tailor in the shop rushed out and rung in fire alarm No. 37, corner High and Canal streets. The apparatus of the Westerly Fire department was soon at the fire, laying two lines of hose from a hydrant across the street, but it was found unnecessary to turn on the water. Firemen under direction of Engineer Columbus Pasetti entered the smoke-filled shop with extinguishers, which, added to water already thrown on the blaze, soon had the fire out. Clouds of smoke filled the stairway, upper hall and press room of the Stedman press above, and rolling out the front door at first gave the impression that a serious fire was in progress.

Mrs. Brucker, wife of the proprietor, had just left the shop, but returned in time to collect many finished garments on hangers and remove them before they became filled with smoke. The greatest damage was from smoke, with but slight loss from fire and water. The loss was covered by insurance.

This is "HUNCH"

—one of the most famous characters in advertising history. Recognized all over the world as the Prince Albert man. You can find his prototype in any town. He's up on politics, baseball and horses, and has the real low-down on pipe tobacco. Name's "HUNCH."

Play this hunch and you can't lose

GET out that little old jimmy-pipe. Fill the bowl to the brim with Prince Albert and light up! Will you like it? Man, man! Does a kid like ice cream? Can a bullfrog dive? You bet you will like it, like you never liked anything before.

Because, what a man's smoke-appetite hankers for, Prince Albert's got nothing else except! Yes, sir, you can bet your life on that. You'll fire-up right after breakfast and stay with it till the little blue stars wig-wag "Good night."

Never was a pipe tobacco like good old P. A. Cool and sweet and soothing the smoke zooms up the stem, bowling over pet peeves and filling your system with a new kind of joy. And how kind it is to your tongue and throat. That's because the Prince Albert process cuts out bite and parch ab-so-lute-ly!

So, slip into top-speed and head for the nearest store where they hand out jimmy-pipe joy in tidy red tins. If you haven't got a jimmy-pipe, get one now. Then borrow a match and you're all set for a smoke experience!

P. A. is sold everywhere in fifty-cent tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look for the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

Makes Pumping Up Tires Unnecessary.

L. A. Hughes of 2510 Monroe, Chicago, Ill., has perfected a new air-tight valve cap that enables auto owners to pump up their tires once and never touch them again until punctured or worn out. Leading tire manufacturers, after thorough tests, have approved Mr. Hughes' invention and banished the old theory that air escapes through rubber. One inflation lasts the life of a tire, and tire mileage is doubled. These caps retail for $1.35 for set of five. The inventor wants agents and will send proof and sample Free. Write him today.

This new way works wonders on cloudy teeth

Modern science, by perfecting a new way of combating the stubborn film that covers teeth and imperils healthy gums, now opens the road to whiter teeth, safely.

THAT cloudy teeth, yellowish, discolored teeth can be made whiter and tenacious gums firmed is now an accepted fact. Foremost dentists of the world are widely urging this new method. You can have clean, pretty teeth and firm gums if you will start today.

This is accomplished by combating a viscous film that covers teeth. A stubborn, hard to remove film that old type dentifrices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel this film. Under it are the clear, attractive teeth you envy in others. Combat it, and your teeth become many shades whiter—more glistening. This offers you a 10-day test free. Mail the coupon.

The enemy of teeth and gums

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums; a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have firm pretty gums unless you combat that film.

Ask your druggist or mail the coupon for Pepsodent. Don't expect the same results from old time dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

ARMY AND NAVY CHARGED WITH BEING WASTRELS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP) — Testifying before the president's air board today, Chairman Martin B. Madden of the house appropriations committee, charged the army and navy with acting unwisely in expending money allotted them for development of the nation's air defense.

As chairman of the committee that appropriates this money he declared he would not "let go unchallenged" the charge that congress had failed to provide sufficient funds for the two military air services.

Mr. Madden declared that the army and navy had squandered millions of dollars "in a purposeless, meaningless, endless experimental orgy" in technical aircraft development, and asserted in his opinion technical development could no longer "be safely left to the two military services if the United States were to take its place among the countries of the world in the air."

In addition to Mr. Madden the board also heard Orville Wright, pioneer in aviation circles, Admiral S. S. Robison, the new commander of the United States battle fleet, and several other officers and experts.

REVIEW OF FIFTY YEARS OF AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 12.—(AP) — Fifty years of agricultural research passed in review when the Connecticut agricultural experiment station observed its golden birthday today, on the grounds surrounding the station in Huntington street. This was the first station of its kind to be established in the United States and the movement started fifty years ago has spread until every state now has a station, some of large proportions and with many ramifications. Experiment stations are now regarded by experts as the country's greatest research institutions.

Governor John H. Trumbull presided at the meeting this afternoon to which had been extended invitations to scientists and students of research work at stations in all the eastern states. The attendance was quite large.

Director W. L. Slate, Jr., welcomed all to the exercises and introduced Gov. Trumbull who presided and also spoke briefly on agriculture in the state.

The two addresses were by Dr. E. W. Allen, chief of experiment stations in the office of the secretary of agriculture, William M. Jardine who had been expected to attend, and Dr. R. W. Thatcher, director of the New York station. The former spoke on "The Relation of the Federal Government to the State in Agriculture" and the latter on "The Influence of Experiment Stations on Agriculture."

Provost Henry S. Graves of Yale dean of Yale forest school presented to the station a picture of Dr. E. W. Jenkins, director-emeritus.

FASCISTI AND ANTIS HAD CLASH IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 12—Prompt acting by the police here today averted open warfare between the fascisti and anti-fascisti organizations of this city, when some 20 fascisti followers appeared in Wooster square to take part in a Columbus day parade.

Three arrests were made, all being members of the anti-fascisti organization. They gave the names as Jacobi Primo, Italo Petrinelli and Raffaele Pickal, all of this city. They were charged with breach of the peace. An additional charge of carrying concealed weapons was placed against Primo when it was found that he was carrying a blackjack.

The trouble started when the band of fascisti followers appeared at the square wearing black shirts decorated with the skull and bones, the mark of the order.

Their appearance precipitated a general stir through the crowd. The three men under arrest engaged in a verbal battle with the black shirted band and the argument was fast nearing a physical combat when the police interfered.

CAMPAIGN TO ADVERTISE THE NEW ENGLAND APPLE

HARTFORD, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Boston chamber of commerce and the New England departments of agriculture are now in the midst of a far reaching campaign to advertise the New England apple. Last year the Boston chamber of commerce conducted an apple week in Boston and it was so successful that this year the departments of agriculture in each of the New England states together with other state organizations have joined together to make the week from Oct. 29 to Nov. 7 one monster apple week for the advertising of New England's leading fruit. Connecticut's department of agriculture is taking a part in the campaign.

The cities in the east make an ample demand for New England's crop of 2,000,000,001 barrels, according to department figures here, but in the past New England, it was said, has not been as successful as it should be in meeting western competition.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

The whigs made a clean sweep of the town elections in Norwich three quarters of a century ago and also were victorious in a very large percentage of the towns in the state. The reports of the census were being received and it was found that there had been a 23 per cent increase in the population in the state and the town of New London was the largest of 51 towns reported with a population of 9,08. The common council held two meetings during the week and ordered that flag sidewalks and curbing be placed on many of the principal streets of the city to be paid for by the property owners.

Extracts from the files of the Norwich Courier follow:

Tuesday, Oct. 8 1850.— At a meeting of the common council the committee on sidewalks reported favorably on proposed sidewalks on the north and south sides of Main street in East Chelsea. It was also voted that all sidewalks laid should be of North river stone at least one and a half inches thick and that he curbing should be at least four inches thick and 15 inches deep, each curbing stone to be four feet long.

The elections in the surrounding towns went as follows: Griswold, whig; Plainfield, whig; Canterbury, whig; Brooklyn loco; Killingly, whig; Pomfret, whig; Thompson, whig; Woodstick, whig.

In Norwich the whigs elected their ticket by a majority of more than two to one, although their opponents were out in unusual strength. The following is the ticket elected: Assessors, John Dunham, E. J. Lathrop, B. Durfey; board of relief, Joseph A. Terrington, Joseph Backus O. Woodworth; selectmen, S. B. Meech, E. Y. Thomas, B. D. Dean; town clerk, Othniel Gager; treasurer, Lyman Brewer; sheriff, Z. R. Robbins; constables, Frederick Prentice E. W. Wells, Daniel Connell, Jr., Thomas L. Stedman, George D. Fuller, William T. Farrington.

Thursday, Oct. 10, 1850—At a meeting of the whigs at the town hall on Friday evening the following were elected as the town committee: William E. Park, Thomas L. Stedman, Daniel Connell, Henry H. Osgood.

A fire broke out about 12.30 last night in the Willimantic house in New London owned and occupied by Martin S. Coates. The loss is estimated at about $800.

The largest town reported is New London in which the present population is 9,008, in place of 5,519 in 1840. IT COST A NEW LONDON MAN $250 TO SELL ALCOHOL TO SAILORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.—If Andrew Mikel was wise just before the police court assembled this morning as he was a few minutes after it adjourned, he would have been $250 richer than he is now. He would have saved the money he spent for a fine, the costs of his trial and the fee he paid his attorney to defend him. He is a bit slow to realize that the way of the transgressor is hard, for he has three times been penalized for selling liquor and with keeping liquor to sell. His total payments in penalties would probably be represented by four figures. He was caught at his scheme to outwit the police very easily. Police Sergeant Smith passed along North Bank street, observing three sailors ahead of him. One of the gobs stopped at the Mikel place and went in, but he immediately returned to the sidewalk and called to his companions to come back and to enter the place. Sergeant Smith thought the trio had a dry appearance and followed them in where he found a large tumbler with about a half a pint of alcohol in it. This was seized and Mikel was arrested and charged with having the alky to sell by the drink. He acknowledged that his purpose had been anticipated, so his attorney demurred to the complaint. But Mikel was fined $200, notwithstanding he had before been convicted. He escaped a jail penalty by sparing the court a trial of the case.

Oliver Woodworth, Jr., was complained against for parking his auto on the south side of Golden street and blocking an alley-way. On payment of the costs of trial the case was nolled.

Thomas Carroll paid a fine and costs in the police court this morning which amounted to $18.70. Then he contracted another penalty and went to jail to stay, ten days and to work out or pay the costs of his trial. Tom seemingly liked his booze and he indulges no appetite for it. He was penalized with a fine of $10 on the 6th inst and was given time to pay the money. This he did this morning. Then he was accused of intoxication again when the court convened and was sent to jail.

Clarence Maxwell was charged with intoxication, but as it was his first appearance in court judgment was suspended.

Lonnie Brewer stood up in the police court today and admitted that he was guilty of maintaining a house of ill repute when he pleaded to the information against him, but in the next breath he would have the court understand that he was a good Samaritan when he took in Montgomery Robertson, a caller at the Brewer home, 70 High street and led him to the room that was occupied by Sadie Herbert, the common law wife of a man who was not mentioned. Brewer and the Herbert woman are black and mocha colored, while Robertson is white, a waiter tender at the Submarine Base. Brewer was presented by the prosecutor as "a man of the church," as he designates himself. It was then Lonnie's opportunity and he represented that "Monte" came to his home and was admitted just as any man would be welcomed who had not a place to lie. Monte was shown into the room where the Herbert woman was kneeling in peaceful sleep and he was told to bunk in. That was all there was to the whole thing, Lonnie said. He had no room except the one Sadie was in, so what was he going to do? Monte declared that he made inquiry as to such a place as Lonnie maintained and was directed to go there. Miss Herbert declared that she was absolutely innocent of any wrong-doing. She was acquitted, while Brewer was fined $25 and Monte was assessed $5. A colored man paid the fine for Monte and took his say-so that he would recompense him. Lonnie went to jail, as he was short of funds today.

Stephen Raymond Fraser is a terror when he partakes of liquor, according to his wife. She has three times secured his arrest. Saturday he was drinking and when he went home he created a disturbance that was to his wife unbearable. He reached home with a quart and consumed that till he was lit up in great shape. When he is abstemious Fraser is a proper man his wife said. But there are too frequent occasions when he is not proper. She does not desire to have him punished for his lapses, but she does want his reformation or the severance of relations with him. He was penalized with a term of 20 days in jail today and then the judgment was suspended that Fraser may redeem the promise he has made, to join the Volstead army.

John A. Heikel ran down a young man some months ago, and the latter has been in the hospital since then. He was not in condition to appear in court today when the Heikel case was called on continuance so the matter was again continued, now until Oct. 26.

Holt, relative to the appointment of a successor to the office of lieutenant for the city manager has not made an appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of former Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe, a year ago. Sergeant James D. Gaffney has performed the duties of lieutenant since the retirement of former Lieutenant Beebe, but not at the compensation given for the office of lieutenant, the acting lieutenant has received only the compensation of sergeant. Captain Pinney will also discuss the matter of the city adopting an improved set of rules and regulations for the government of the department's personnel, which rules probably include a portion of the rules and regulations submitted several months ago by Lieutenants Sweeney and Potts of the New York police department.

Coming to the Breed

Tom Mix and Zane Grey!

The screen's most picturesque western star and fiction's most brilliant narrator of western life again combine in motion pictures.

The dynamic M. Mix has already portrayed two-fisted characters of Zane Grey's in The Last of the Duanes, and Riders of the Purple Sage. Now comes The Rainbow Trail which opens on Thursday at the Breed theater.

Tom once more comes to the fore with a vivid interpretation of the historic frontier westerner, adding to the fictional qualifications of the story the daring and fearlessness for which he has been long noted. Exterior scenes were made in the beautiful Yosemite Valley.

Lynn Reynolds, long associated with the western star in the capacity of director, held the megaphone in this one, too.

Anne Cornwall plays the leading role opposite Tom Mix and George Bancroft, Diana Miller, Carol Halloway, Lucien Littlefield, Fred DeSilva and Mark Hamilton are cas in strong supporting roles.

Connecticut College Concert

The recent election of President Coolidge to honorary membership in the Philharmonic society of New York was the first election of this sort in nearly a quarter of a century. President Coolidge, who has manifested great interest in the Washington concerts of the orchestra which plays at the New London state armory October 20th, is the first chief executive to become affiliated with the Philharmonic society as honorary associate.

Such membership is an honor infrequently bestowed, and was reserved originally only for distinguished musicians who had appeared with the orchestra or had assisted in it some way. The first honorary members were two famous violinists, Vieuxtemps and Ole Bull, who were elected in 1843. Three years later Ludwig Spohr was honored with an election. The list of composers who received honorary membership includes Wagner, Liszt, Mendelssohn, Raff, Rubinstein and Dvorak. Pianists and vocalists elected were Richard Hoffman, Gottschalk, Talberg, Mills, Joseffy, Jenny Lind, Henrietta Sontag, Albani and Parepa-Rose. Edwin Booth, the distinguished actor, who appeared occasionally as a reader with the Philharmonic also was elected.

CITY COUNCIL VOTES TO BUY TRUCKS FOR STREET USE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.—The city voted to buy Ford trucks this evening, two for the street department and one for the replacement of a Republic truck. Councilor Street urged the distribution of the purchases among the dealers of the city, saying that he did not favor giving the Ford machines a monopoly of the business. Manager Holt explained that the Ford trucks were in a class by themselves. The cost was less than that of other trucks and the cost of maintenance was less because of the standardization of the Ford parts for trucks. Mr. Streeter urged the purchase of a four wheel drive truck, but the Council did not take his view of the matter and motions for the buying of the Fords prevailed. The city manager declared it to be the purpose of the city to get a fleet of small trucks of the Ford pattern and that such trucks would eventually be had. It was pointed out that the city had divided its patronage in the purchase of cars.

The council voted to resurface the street at Truman and Bank street to the corner of Montauk avenue where the brick pavement is worn. The resurfacing is to be with pyrex. The matter was argued at length before a decision was reached, the city manager saying that he and the city engineer had visited the city of Pawtucket where the resurfacing had been done with the material that it is proposed to use in New London and there the experience had been very satisfactory.

The council voted to extend the sewer in Avery court a distance of 350 feet, and land was deeded to the city for the purpose by Ambrose Cassara, Henry Kaiser and wife. The cost for the sewer is to be borne entirely by the parties benefited.

A tourist complained of the perplexing signs referring to turning on the streets and that matter was referred to the committee on public safety. Councilor May referred to the marking of the street surfaces with yellow and white paint and the city manager explained that to the satisfaction of the councilors. He said the yellow paint worked admirably on smooth surfaces, but that on the rougher surface the best results were not obtained. Councilor May desires an ordinance adopted that shall cover what is known as "jaywalking." Mayor Fox represented that he had some ideas that he believed should be incorporated in such an ordinance as was proposed, and said he would offer them before the proposed ordinance was adopted, or offered for adoption. Councilor Streeter called attention to the parking of automobiles on the west side of Bank street and said such an ordinance was being disregarded. He pointed out that the congestion on Bank street especially on Saturday evening was dangerous.

The council received a request for information as to the rights of people to place advertising signs on the roofs of buildings. The reply of the council was that such a request should come in the form of an application for construction as it came under the building code as such.

There were applications for permits to erect three residences, a storehouse and several garages bfore the council this evening, and all were granted.

There is usually a vast difference between a man's worth and what he is worth.

STEPHEN SHEEHAN'S HOME ENTERED BY BURGLARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 12.—Daylight burglars operated in this city this afternoon, it was revealed early this evening when it was discovered that the residence of Stephen Sheehan, 67 Faire Harbour place had been entered during the absence of the family and that valuable jewelry had been stolen. Mr. and Mrs. Sheehan left on an automobile ride during the middle afternoon and when they returned discovered that entrance to the cellar had been gained by forcing the door and that a tin box containing a string of coral pearls, a pair of gold cuff links, a woman's diamond ring, 14 karat and raised setting, a two dollar and a half gold piece, pearl star pin, $10 bill and change was looted. The tin box in which the money and jewelry were hidden was pried open with a file. After obtaining the loot from the cellar the thieves went to the upper part of the house where a search for additional plunder was made, but nothing found. The $10 bill, however, was found on the floor where one of the crooks had dropped it. Patrolman Michael Dorsey was assigned to the case.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PERCY MARMONT IN BEST ROLE IN 'STREET OF FORGOTTEN MEN

Percy Marmont gives one of the greatest characterportrayals of his career in the role of "Easy Money" Charlie in "The Street of Forgotten Men," which is Herbert Brenon's newest production for Paramount. The story deals with a petty panhandler who adopts a little girl and brings her up in ignorance of his profession, only to see the one fine thing in his life threatened with ruin through the evil plotting on one of his fellow crooks.

George Kibbe Turner, who wrote the story for Liberty Magazine, has created an unusually and exceptionally interesting character in "Easy Money" Charlie. Most of the dramatic action of the story is laid in a dive near the Bowery to which flock the hopeless, battered wrecks whom life has forgotten—a novel background against which Charlie and the girl stand out appealingly.

In such a role, Percy Marmont is in his element. Here he is seen as a beaten, hopeless wanderer, forced by circumstance into a life of petty crookedness which almost buries the idealism which he had hoped to use in bettering the world in general. Then with dramatic suddenness, he becomes the guardian of a small girl. To bring her up like a lady, he is forced to remain in the surroundings he desires and to keep her in ignorance of his profession. When she reaches womanhood, he falls in love with her; but this, too, he is forced to conceal and, by shamming death he leaves her free to marry a young man in her own sphere of life.

Featured with Marmont in the cast of the production at the Palace Theatre are Neil Hamilton and Mary Brian.

Broadway Theatre

An exceptionally fine evening was enjoyed by a capacity house at the Broadway theatre yesterday.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville proved to be one of the finest programs seen at this popular playhouse.

Edith Kendall in a musical offering was the opening act. She plays music as it should be played, everything from jazz to classical numbers.

George Kinnear and Elsie Ray in "Can You Imagine" followed with clever comedy patter, a little song and dance to good returns.

The Robinson Four is a feminine quartette. These charming, cute ladies offer an exceptional harmony ensemble.

Stone and Leever carried off the comedy honors. The title of this offering is "Turned Loose from the Bughouse." It is real fun, and hearty laughs for 13 minutes are assured.

Rice and Elmer in Versatile bits of comedy and acrobatics proved to be a worth while closing number.

The picture is one of the finest mysteries ever presented in Norwich. "The Verdict" is the title and the splendid cast makes this picture what it is.

Bradley Theater Putnam

Theatergoers of today demand something new and the eternal cry of producing managers is to find that something; Leon Gorden the well known writers of White Cargo which ran for over 3 years in New York to capacity audiences at Daly's theater and duplicated its sensational audiences at the Cort theater, Chicago and The Playhouse, London has succeeded in hitting the public with a play which is entirely different and the mere fact of its continuous runs in these cities is proof of the merit of the attraction.

White Cargo is laid on the West coast of Africa and depicts the efforts of the white man who tries to civilize a country that defies his heart breaking attempts to conquer the jungle with its shining sun that not only rots all vegetation and inanimate things but also rots their minds and moral fibre. It is a fight against loneseomeness and homesickness, with the ever constant fear of the "jungle" getting you. What Cargo contains a faithful reproduction of the customs and traits of African characters and deals with the inter-relationship of the white man with the native woman or as it is called in Africa "Mammy Palaver."

No expense has been spared to make White Cargo the outstanding hit that it is and theatergoers that demand the best in theatrical endeavor will find in this attraction an evening of unique and novel amusement.

White Cargo is coming to the Bradley theater, Putnam for one night only, evening, October 19th, at 8:15. Reserved seats range from $1.00 to $2.00 plus taxes. Box office sale starts Friday afternoon at 3 p. m. Mail orders must be accompanied by check.

White Cargo will be presented by the same company which played so successfully in Boston, last spring.

Breed Theater

Clive Brook, distinguished English actor, has the role of the London money-lender in Corinne Griffith's new First National offering, Declasse, now showing at the Breed theater.

While new to the American screen, Brook has already established himself as one of its most capable actors. Among previous pictures in which he has taken leading roles were Enticement and Playing With Souls. Prior to coming to this country, he was a star on the London stage.

Declasse is an adaptation from Ethel Barrymore's stage success of the same title. It draws vivid contrast between social leadership and social ostracism in London's aristocracy and affords Miss Griffith a highly emotional role of wide range. Lloyd Hughes is her leading man.

When money talks a man seldom troubles himself to investigate the truth of its remarks.

GAS STATION MODERN TOLL GATE ON TENNESSEE ROADS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 12 (AP)—The gasoline filling station has replaced the familiar old toppling that formerly was swung down to block the public highways in the form of a toll gate.

Motorists are paying part of the highway construction expense at three cents a gallon at the filling station pump, where formerly every vehicle passing the designated spots had to plank down a quarter.

Toll gates were satisfying to traffic 100 years ago when the pioneers blazed through forested acreas and established accomodation for travel, but today the state is building its own improved and modern highways. Motorists will drive out of the way over another route to escape the periodical gates.

On June 14, 1796, one turnpike company organized a toll road with rates ranging from one cent for every ten sheep or hogs, to three cents for each four-horse carriage. The rates advanced with the progress in roads and modes of travel and similar toll systems were adopted in other states.

The old toll gates in Tennessee became unpopular. Now through the red, blue, yellow and white gas filling pump, the state is netting nearly $3,000,000 in 1925 toward its public highway construction fund.

LEGENDS OF SANSKRIT PUT IN NEW ENGLISH VOLUMES

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (AP)—A new translation from the ancient Sanskrit by Arthur W. Ryder has just been published by the University of Chicago Press.

Under the name 'The Panchatantra," the book contains some of the world's oldest tales, first gathered more than 1,500 years ago in the Vale of Kashmir and now presented in English. Without footnote and glossaries the volume is rich in epigrams and verse from which the Oriental flavor has not been lost.

Wierd legends of lions who hold court like kings, scheming jackals and birds which talk with fishes, are told in the five books of the volume. The opening yarns tell of the broken friendship of Bull Lively and Lion Rusty and inserted therein are numerous stories which dovetail into one another.

Every paragraph or so is broken with a bit of sprightly verse, many of which are introductory to a separate legend or allegory. The reader is sent awandering from the original plot for a time but eventually another rhyme brings him back to the main thread of the story.

The tales originated in British India and were told by Buddhist monks more than 2,000 years ago. In the sixth century they were translated by a Persian physician and during the eighth century they reached Bagdad. Later the stories were translated into Greek, Latin, Hebrew, German and French. La Fontaine is said to have relied upon them extensively as a source for his fables.

STAFFORD SPRINGS FAIR OPENS WITH AN ATTENDANCE OF 14,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 10. — In spite of sullen skies this morning, which did, no doubt, keep a large number of people from coming to Stafford for the 56th annual exhibition of the Stafford Springs Agricultural society, there were about fourteen thousand at the grounds early in the afternoon. The grandstand alone had six thousand of, the number on the grounds and officials estimated the attendance between 12 and 14 thousand.

In keeping with its long established reputation the 56th exhibition was successful in every department, with splendid exhibits in the main exhibition hall, huge midways crowded with transient dwellers of the tented streets, a fine racing card, entertaining and thrilling vaudeville acts, and special features, including an athletic meet which attracted scores of entries and was run off between the heats of the races.

Races scheduled today, carrying purses totaling $2000.00 were the 2:08 pace, the 2:15 trot, and the 2:20 pace, the first carrying a purse of $1000.00, and the latter $500 each. A. L. Seidler, starter, of Plainfield, N. J., was forced once or twice to severely reprimand the drivers for jockeying for favored positions and there was much scoring in every heat before the field finally got off to Seidler's welcome "Go!" Because of the delays in starting the field, the races were run off late, with none of the events completed at 4 o'clock when the sun came smiling from behind hesitant clouds cheer the throngs in the grandstand and along the track—where keen wids had been blowing during the afternoon, lessening enthusiasm in the events.

The midways were popular with pleasure seekers practically all day, and there was much to be seen in these streets this year which was educational as well as entertaining. The poultry show is a bigger and better exhibition than last year, with 1,500 birds already in the huge tent and more due Tuesday. An exhibit of farm implements and tools was inviting the crowds, while the "Silo Dome" and "strong man" acts bid for the attention of the willing thousands on the street.

One attraction secured by the director of the midways which found popular favor was the Indian village, located back of the exhibition hall. The brown-skinned tribe was sought by throngs who wished to view a novel and decidedly interesting addition to the fair attractions.

The garden and orchard were glorified in the exhibition in the main exhibition hall, with fine entres by farmers of the state—and from southern New England generally.

Stafford manufacturers contributed a fine exhibition of cloth and materials attractively arranged in the upper end of the hall; the pearl novelties and pearl buttons of Schwanda and Sons were also an especially attractive display.

Household arts displays, needle-craft and handwork of various kinds were among the attractive exhibits in the main hall. Canning and cooking entries were included in this department with a number of local women and girls included in the large entry list. Prizes are to be awarded in all these departments tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be observed by the cattle dealers especially, with fine exhibitions of neat cattle and steers, draft and working oxen and a parade of trained cattle with tests of various sorts in the morning.

Several Massachusetts and Connecticut athletes entered the various events of the athletic meet, with the honors going to Boston university in two events, when Cullen crossed the tape in the half mile run first, with the fast time of 2.03 1-2 checked off. Mastaglio of Boston university took the first prize in 440 yard dash, in 53 seconds flat.

The other events of the athletic meet were battled for keenly with the following results: 220-yard dash—Chousse, Milbury, Mass., 1st; Jackson, Norwich, Conn., second; Mastaglio, Boston university, third. Time 26 second flat. Half mile run—Cullen, Boston university, first; McKinstry, Southbridge, Mass., second; Mulligan, Connecticut Aggies, third; time 2.08⅘. 440-yard dash—Masatglio, Boston university, first; Chousse, Milbury, Mass., second; D. Murray, Milbury, third; Time 53 seconds. Half mile relay race—Hartford Y. M. C. A. first; New Haven relay team, second; Norwich relay team, third; (winning team—Pintavalli, Dondaro, Gustafson and Bartlett); Time 1 minute, 40 seconds. 100 yard dash—Jackson, Norwich, Conn., first; Chousse, Milbury, Mass., second; Gustafson (Hartford Y. M. C. A.) third; time 11 seconds.

Fair officials tonight were well pleased with the prospects of bigger crowds tomorrow, as the reluctant sunshine promised warmer breezes—and perhaps even an Indian summer warmth tomorrow. A fine racing card and fine vaudeville program await the grandstand crowds. Particularly interesting was the Australian woodchopper's act, the Anderson diving girls, Fearless Flyers and the Friscoe's Seals. Miss Elizabeth Roderick of New York city was well received in two songs, "Sole Mio" and "Someone Like You."

YOUNG LAFOLLETTE LIKE FATHER ENJOYS CAMPAIGN

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 12 (AP)—Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., 30-year-old republican nominee for United States senator, enjoys campaigning as well as his late father.

Already experienced in the steering of political campaigns, he takes a delight in the tours that candidates make, particularly by automobile. If young Bob has a bobby, it is driving an automobile.

Young Bob followed his father's career closely. Characteristic LaFollette mannerisms are employed to some extent by the son, although his platform style differs somewhat from that of the senator.

The first important appearance of young LaFollette in the political spotlight was at the Cleveland conference in 1924, where he delivered his father's speech accepting the presidential endorsement of the Conference for Progressive Political Action.

Unusual bonds existed between the father and son. In 1918, when Bob Junior was critically ill, Senator LaFollette familiarized himself with the dietary and other treatments and helped administer them. On one occasion, it is said, the senator held Young Bob in his arms until the crisis was passed.

Illness, from which Bob apparently recovered with robust health, was responsible for the interruption of his university education, and resulted in devoting himself to a training based on experience.

From February, 1917, until January, 1918, he was confidential secretary of his father, this service also being interrupted by illness. After convalescence, he became secretary to Senator LaFollette, holding this position until June, 1925. During the same period he was clerk of the senate committee on manufactures, and in 1922 he managed the progressive campaign in Wisconsin. After the campaign he was elected chairman of the republican state central committee and was reelected in 1924.

He was vice chairman of the campaign committee, in charge of policy, which conducted the senators 1924 campaign for president.

HAWAII PLANS CELEBRATION OF DISCOVERY OF ISLANDS

HONOLULU, Oct. 13 (AP)—Tentative plans for an elaborate observation in 1928 of the 150th anniversary of the discovery of Hawaii by Captain James Cook, the English navigator, have been submitted to Bruce Cartwright, president of the Hawaiian Historical society, by Albert P. Taylor, librarian of the territorial archives.

The proposed program would include a visit to the islands by an international fleet of warships and the minting of an American coin in commemoration of the discovery of the archipelago which was named the Sandwich islands after Capt. Cook's patran, the Earl of Sandwich.

Taylor pointed out that the celbration would have an almost universal interest in view of the fact that so many nations played a part in the building up of the islands, their civilization, industry and commerce, following the discovery. These he listed as Great Britain, the United States, Russia, France and Spain. Denmark and Sweden also became friendly with the kingdom of Hawaii and probably would be included in the celebration.

Taylor suggested that the historical society bring the proposals to the attention of Governor Wallace R. Farrington and request that he ask the state department to extend formal invitations to the various governments to send men of war to the islands during the celebration. During the visit the vessels might visit Kealakekua bay island of Hawaii, where Captain Cook was killed on his second visit to the islands.

He also suggested that $50,000 be minted specially in 50-cent pieces at Washington and that this amount be underwritten in the islands.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS REVIEW ANNOUNCED BY SHANNAHAN

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 13 (AP)—National electric railway operations thus far in 1925 have resulted in increases in net revenue, although there have been slight decreases in gross revenues over the same period for last year. This statement was made by J. N. Shannahan, president of the American Electric Railway association, preceding the organization's convention here.

Lower operating costs and increased rates of fare were given as the causes for the revenue situaton. The loss in general traffic was attributed to uneven business and industrial conditions and an increase in the use of private automobiles.

"Traffic is growing in the large centers, but in smaller cities it is not increasing," Shannahan said. 'Heaviest traffic losses have been recorded in New England, due largely to unsatisfactory business conditions in the textile and leather industries.

"Conditions in the district north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi rivers are more favorable than in any other part of the country. The section east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio rivers is running second in favorable traffic conditions. Other districts reported traffic losses up to July, but conditions from then on have improved.

"The national average fare now is 7.57 cents. Wages are slightly higher, the average beng 56 cents per hour. Taxes are up one-half of one percent over last year. The general situation is fair.

'But competition is being eliminated by establishment of reliable bus service by electric railway companies the number in use having increased 100 percent in the last year."

EXPERIMENTS PROVE ALFALFA SAFE CROP

Alfalfa is a safe crop; not a gamble. The factors are now known which when met, make alfalfa as certain as corn. Some risks are associated with all crop raising but these are no longer matters of mere chance with alfalfa.

For a quarter of a century alfalfa has been looked upon as a matter of chance, "heads I win, tails you lose." Each season brings forth some new wonder crops which many sow expecting only a small chance to win. New crops which will far surpass anything ever yet tried are continually in demand. The fact that failures have occurred has doubtless led to the placing of alfalfa with the many new and mysteriously hazardous crops.

Even in 1925 some farmers in Connecticut decided to "take a chance" with alfalfa. It is not surprising to learn that such a person has neglected to inoculate, buy seed positively known to be hardy, apply lime in sufficient quantity, prepare the seedbed thoroughly or even distribute the seed well.

Is it not time to take this matter of raising alfalfa with a grain of seriousness. When the few needs of alfalfa are supplied, a crop is secured. Alfalfa gives far greater returns per acre than any other hay grown in Connecticut. It gives more hay, better hay, enriches the soil and still costs less per ton than timothy and red top.

You no longer need to travel far to find striking evidence that alfalfa will grow remarkably well in Connecticut. The Wood Ford Farm, Avon, has been given considerable publicity because of its seventy acres in alfalfa. The first field was sown in 1919. These 18 acres have averaged over five tons of field cured hay per acre for six years. "The best paying field on the farm" is the owner's appraisal. Another field of about 20 acres was sown in 1922 and has done better than the first.

Fourteen acres of the finest stands of alfalfa and not a single failure is the experience of John Gamme in New Fairfield. The first field of seven acres produced a better crop this year than any of the other five. Two acres more were seeded three years ago and about four last year. All were excellent stands and the last two as near perfect as could be expected. Fourteen acres with fully four tons of cured alfalfa on each one made a barn full for Mr. Gamme. The County Agent's advice six years ago was not such a bad risk of Mr. Gamme. —J. S. Owens.

THE ARTIFICIAL LIGHTING ROOM

Time for a general artificial lighting program will soon be here. Pullets are ordinarily lighted from November 1st on. As has been plainly demonstrated, the pullets will stand up under two months of artificial lighting. At the end of that time—January 1st—the days begin to get longer and nature seems to help out perceptibly more in hold or increasing production.

There are three systems of lighting commonly used which may be classified as follows: The poultryman's system—from 9 to 10 at night; the dairyman's system—from 5 a. m. until daylight; and the hired man's system—from 6 a. m. until daylight and from dark until 6 a. m. Any one of these systems of lighting will give good results.

The "poultryman's system"—from 9 until 10 p. m.—will, without question, produce as many or more eggs and keep the birds in the best physical condition, as it provides additional food with a minimum loss of sleep. This applies to the hen and not to the poultryman, however, and many poultrymen are changing or considering changing the night-lunch plan to the "hired man's system"—that is, morning and night lighting. Even though the returns from this system be slightly less, the wear and tear on the man is a factor to be considered.

Whenever artificial light is used, the scratch grain should be increased at least 2 pounds per 100 birds per day. Artificial lighting tends to increase production and reduce flesh; consequently the birds must be watched carefully and the scratch grain increased sufficiently to maintain weight. It is usually advisable to feed the pullets twice as much grain as mash during the fall and cold weather.

Early-hatched pullets at the peak of production November 1st should not be lighted until the peak is passed and a slight drop is perceptible. Failure to consider this may cause excessive production for a short time and a period of very low production following.

Hens used as breeders should not be lighted until after January 1st—except perhaps a short period of fall lighting previous to October 15th. Hens intended only for egg production may be lighted straight through—provided the lights are started early enough in the fall to hold the hens in production before there is any evidence of molt. Old hens that are molting heavily should not be lighted until they have finished their molt and are growing new feathers.—R. E. Jones.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN HEN AND PULLET

What is the difference between a hen and a pullet? This is a question that may be answered in several different ways. One poultryman may say, A year or more; another, A molt and a new coat of feathers; still a third may say, Twenty-five to fifty eggs per year; while another may say, One to two dollars profit per bird per year.

These answers may all be correct. In actual practice, however, the difference in value between a hen and a pullet is exactly what you make it. If we consider the hen at most value on November 1st and the pullet at sale for production on the same date, pullets usually start their year with an inventory handicap. This means that fall, winter, and annual production must be high in order to make up the handicap and still pay a greater profit than the hens.

While the hen year is ordinarily considered as from November 1st to November 1st pullets should be in heavy production during October as well as November and December if they are to take advantage of the season of high egg prices.

The best old hens can and should be kept over as breeders because they have demonstrated their production value. Where it is a question of purchasing pullets at prevailing prices or keeping hens, good hens may be kept over. Where pullets are grown at home and can be inventoried at cost price, they will show a much greater profit per year than hens.

A simple yet important point in pullet management is the kind and depth of litter used. Pullets are not accustomed to having any kind of litter on range; consequently, when placed in winter quarters, if the litter is deep and has a tendency to rattle, the pullets are more or less frightened. What is worse, the grain, when scattered in the pen, sifts down through the litter and the pullets do not actually find it until they are driven to scratching by starvation. It is far better to use only a small amount of litter at first and then add more as the pullets become accustomed to their new environment.
